As a result of his confession Ovila Lambert, who up to date has been out on bail for $6,000, was sent to jail to await his trial. The cross-examination conducted by Mr. N. K. Laflamme elicited evidence to the effect that Carufel had perjured himself no less than seven times during the investigation before Fire Commissioner Riche a few days after the fire.

Carufel claimed that he was employed by Lambert to work for him as a bartender. Three weeks before the fire Lambert had showed him two jugs containing oil which were stored in a back room of the hotel. At the time he said that he understood that a man named Roy had been hired to set the place on fire.

About eight days before the blaze Carufel claims that Lambert came to him and made some proposition with regard to taking Roy's place. Carufel claims that Lambert told him to empty the two jugs of oil in the bar, throw a match into the pool and run to safety.

He claims that he did as he was instructed and the hotel was burned

SENT FOR TRIAL.

Wilkie Appears In Police Court and Is Committed.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Standing in the dock tapping the rail, Edward Wilkie was committed for trial by Col. Denison yesterday on a charge of murdering his wife, Ellen, on the night of Aug. 14.

Frank Perry, jointly accused, was discharged. A coroner's jury had exonerated him. The prisoner Wilkie was represented by Mr. W. A. Henderson.

Dressed in black, her little face drawn and white, Lily Reynolds, the prisoner's thirteen-year-old stepdaughter recalled the night of her mother's death.

"He dragged mamma into the hall by the hair and kicked her," she said, blanching.

In answer to a further question by Mr. Corley, who tried to save the little girl as much as possible, Lily told of her mother getting up from the floor standing near the stairs and being struck by her stepfather.

The man Perry did not attack her mother.

To Mr. Corley's last question, the white-faced little girl said her mamma lived 15 or 20 minutes after being struck.

The prisoner was then committed for trial.

Little Lily Reynolds' life has been crowded into tragedy. Her father was killed by a fall during the erection of the City Hall.

Invited to St. Stephen's.

Ottawa Sept. 2.—When Rev. Murat Shaw Mackay, rector of All Saints' church, returned from a tour to the west yesterday, he found awaiting him a letter from the Bishop of Toronto, offering him the appointment of the rectorship of St. Stephen's Church,

WANT A ROAD OUT.

Prince Edward Islanders Wait on Mr. Fielding.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Sept. 2.—After a hard trip across the straits yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier entered Prince Edward Island and addressed eight thousand people in the Arena here. The Premier was cordially received.

A deputation informally waited upon Hon. Mr. Fielding at Georgetown, urging the Minister of Finance to make arrangements for the improvement of communication between the island and the mainland, in order, they said, that the islanders might secure the full advantage of the service to the New England States in exporting their fish, potatoes and farm products under the operation of the reciprocity agreement.

"As in the United States," said the Premier, "so here in Canada, reciprocity is opposed by the trusts, monopolies and special interests. But we have the people, our fellow-countrymen, at our back from one end of the country to the other."

From Montague to Charlottetown the Premier traveled over the Prince Edward Island Railway, arriving here for the big meeting last night. At every station en route he was accorded demonstrations. Special trains had run from all parts of the island and had to leave passengers at nearly every station for lack of accommodation.

ENDS QUEBEC TOUR.

Mr. Borden Addresses Electors In Cookshire, Que.

Cookshire, Sept. 2.—Mr. R. L. Borden and his lieutenants adjourned from Victoria Hall here yesterday and converted an intended indoor meeting into an outdoor one, in order to satisfy several hundred people who could not find room within.

The Conservative chieftain had hardly started to review the charges against the Laurier administration when someone cried, "What about Oliver?"

Mr. Borden immediately took up this question and said:

"No one knows very much up to the present time concerning the source of the huge sums of money which Mr. Oliver awoke one morning to find to his credit in the bank." This ignorance is due to the flagrant manner in which the Government has balked an investigation. A solemn pledge was given in Parliament to the Opposition that Parliament would still be sitting at the date set for the resumption of the committee's hearings on the charges against Mr. Oliver, and that pledge was given in the presence of the Minister of the crown whose honor was at stake. You all know how that pledge was broken."

Mr. Borden then discussed reciprocity at some length along the lines of former speeches.

Western Wheat Crop.

Winnipeg, Sept. 2.—It was estimated yesterday that half of Saskatchewan's wheat crop is cut. In Manitoba the percentage is even higher. Accurate estimates from Alberta are lacking, but most recent reports announce harvesting operations well under way. A large proportion of the cutting has also been cut. Threshing on the Portage Plains has commenced and it is anticipated that the beginning of next week will find threshing pretty general. In the few places where grain has been threshed, it has been found to average from twenty to twenty-five bushels to the acre, but it is impossible to make any general estimate from these isolated returns. The 40,000 men required to handle the crop are now on the ground and it is anticipated that the yield will be handled without further damage from any direction.

Child Maimed by Mower.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—Leoda Lapointe, the three-year-old son of Wilfred Lapointe, a prominent farmer of Burbridge, Bouchette Township, Que., was the victim of a terrible accident, resulting in his right foot being cut off just above the ankle. His brother drove a mowing machine upon him in an oat field.

McMaster Appointments.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Prof. Abraham Lincoln McCrimmon was formally appointed Chancellor of McMaster University by the Senate at its meeting yesterday afternoon.

H. F. Dawes, M.A., teacher in physics in the University of Toronto, was appointed to the McMaster chair in physics, made vacant by the appointment of Dr. Hoag to Saskatchewan University. Mr. Dawes is a graduate of Varsity. He was awarded in 1908 the Wellaston Research Studentship at Cambridge.

Three appointments were made to the staff of Woodstock College. V. A. Ray, M.A., of Galt, was appointed instructor in manual training; Leon McCrimmon, son of the new McMaster chancellor, becomes science master, and Ralph Bowron, of Hamilton, is now physical instructor.

Miss Louise Risdon, of St. Thomas, was appointed teacher of the piano at Moulton College.

MANY ENTRIES FOR THE SPORTS ON MONDAY

Labour Day Sports Look to be About the Best Programme Offered Here in Years—Outside Runners Will Take Part in Several of the Events and the Outlook for a Big Afternoon is Most Assuring.

The following entries have been received for the big Labour Day sports which will be held at Riverside Park on Monday. The entries do not close until ten minutes before the race is called, but in spite of this the entry list is sufficiently filled to warrant first-class competition in every event.

100 Yards Dash. — Frank Leahy Douro, J. Mahoney 'Y', J. McMartin Otonabee A.C., G. Pritchard, Albert College Belleville, H. Hill 'Y', H. Smith 'Y', J. Ridyard, J. Wortley Enismore.

Broad Jump. — J. McMartin, W. Wood, G. Pritchard, H. Woods, J. Mahoney.

One Mile.—F. Leahy, G. McCreary Belleville, J. Alexander Belleville, A. Smoke Chemong AC., H. Smith, W. Willis, H. Hill, G. Robinson Otonabee A.C., J. Wortly, J. Mahoney.

5 Mile Run—F. Leahy, G. McCreary, J. Alexander, A. Smoke, H. Smith, W. Willis, H. Keegan, J. Wortley, G. Robinson.

High Jump—J. McMartin, J. Mahoney, H. Woods, C. Bartlett.

Shot Put.—G. Pritchard, H. Hill, H. Woods, J. McMartin.

Pole Vault—H. Hill, C. Bartlett.

Quarter Mile—W. Willis, J. Ridyard, J Wortley, H. Smith, H. Hill, J. Mahoney, G. Pritchard, H. Woods.

The committee have decided to run the five mile race entirely on the track instead of out the road as stated. The other entries for the tug of war, quoits, base running contest, and Union men's races will be taken on the grounds. Competitors are notified that the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot put and base running will be started sharp at 1.30 p.m. so that they will not interfere in any way with the ball game. The other events will be contested while the ball game is in progress. All that is required now is a fine day, the track and grounds are in first class condition and with such a varied programme it sure will be some meet.

PETERBOROUGH'S STRONG TEAM AGAINST BELLEVILLE G. T. R.

Peterborough will have about the strongest line-up of the season on against the Belleville Grand Trunk in the game at Riverside Park on Monday afternoon at the field day of the Trades and Labour Council. Manager Quinlan, who is back after a few days with Chaucer Elliott's St. Thomas team of the Canadian League will be on the rubber and will be opposed by Ashton, the crack heaver of the Trunks. The Peterborough manager is confident of being able to turn the trick kon the Railway Men. Jimmy Callaghan will get into the game in the outfield for the Petes and Pete Campbell, who has returned from his western trip, will be at second base. The team will consist of the following:

Wilder c., Quinlan p., Cresswell p., M. O'Brien 1b., Campbell 2b., Rahmel s.s., Murphy 3b., Shaw, Callaghan, W. O'Brien, Mcadden, Craig, outfield.

Gotch A 10 To 7 Favourite In Monday's Big Bout

CHICAGO, SEPT. 1.—Frank Gotch, world's champion wrestler, reached Chicago with his retinue this morning. The world's champion traveled in a private car, and was accompanied by his wife and her parents; Manager Klank, W. W. Sterns, who is to look after the $11,000 of the $21,000 purse paid to Gotch; Farmer Burns, Reimer, Rogers, Asbell, Hassan and Referee Ed. Smith.

On the trip to Chicago Gotch and Smith went carefully over the rules which Smith has improvised for the Hackenschmidt match Labour Day and placed his stamp of approval on them, after a few minor changes had been made at his suggestion.

Gotch planned to do some mat work to-day and to-morrow at the Chicago Athletic Association, tapering off with some road work. Sunday he will do just enough indoor work to keep himself in condition.

Hackenschmidt has let up on hard work. He is taking a slight conditioning run and swim each day and doing just a little work in the gymnasium to keep himself in trim. The Russian Lion is absolutely confident that he will be the victor.

Despite his great confidence in Jim O'Leary's Stock Yards' book bets are being recorded at 10 to 7 and even that Gotch will win. Some unique bets are being made on the length of the bout, an especially popular bet among the Gotch followers being that unless there is a fall in the first ten minutes there will be none for an hour and a half. They believe Gotch will make a desperate effort to gain the first fall by a trick the minute they go on to the mat, and that unless he succeeds he will pit his strength and endurance against the Russian.

Assistant Police Chief Schuettler announced to-day that he would have 125 policemen in the park, several being stationed at the ringside, to see that the match is carried out as per rules. Schuettler announced that the police would see that there was no biting, gouging, no punching with elbows or fists, or any other rough work, such as Gotch is said to have used in his last match with Hack here in Chicago.

"The public is interested," the order reads, "in a scientific display of strength and agility of the two exponents of the wrestling art, and the police will see that the public gets what it pays for."

CANADA'S SHARE.

Dominion Has Played an Important Part in Steam Shipping

It is interesting to note that Canada has taken quite an important part in the development of steam navigation. The "Accommodation" built by Molson in 1809 was the first passenger steamer to ply upon British Colonial waters, and ran between Montreal and Quebec. The first steam vessel to make a transatlantic passage was also built and owned by Canadians. The "Royal William" as she was called, was built at Cap Blanc, Quebec, by George Black and J. S. Campbell for the Quebec and Halifax service of a Quebec company. She was built of wood on a clean lined semi-clipper model, 178 feet overall, keel 146 feet, breadth of beam inside paddleboxes 29 feet 6 inches, breadth outside paddleboxes 49 feet 10 inches, depth of hold 17 feet 9 inches. Her measurement tonnage was 830 tons. On April 24th, 1831, she was launched and christened after the King, by the wife of the then Governor-General, Lord Aylmer. She was towed to Montreal, where her engines were installed, and in the fall of the year made one or two trips to Halifax. Although she had small favoring winds, the "Royal William" was propelled by steam alone.

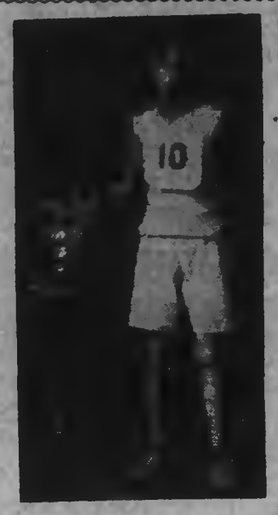
When in Halifax she came under the attention of Samuel Cunard, founder of the Cunard Line, and he became very much interested in her, and ultimately became a director in the company which owned the vessel. It is said that it was through his connection with this little steamer that the mighty fleet which bears his name was formed.

In 1832, trade being very poor in Canada, it was thought advisable to send the "Royal William" across the Atlantic to be sold, and on August 4th, 1833, she left Quebec for London, under the command of Captain McDougall. After coaling at Pictou, N.S., she arrived at Gravesend on September 11th; coaling again at Cowes in the Isle of Wight on her way. Her passage time between port and port was 25 days, during which she steamed all the way.

Canada and Canadians in the past have shown their genius and ability in shipbuilding affairs, and, now, with the establishment of shipbuilding plants in the country, it remains to be seen whether the Dominion will regain, in some manner, an almost forgotten supremacy.—Canadian Century.



ALBERT SMOKE, the speedy Indian middle distance runner, twice winner of the Examiner road race, and holder of the Midland counties championship, who will run in the five mile race at the Labour Day sports.

Many Montreals.

The other cities of Canada are casting green eyes of jealousy upon Montreal, beneficiary of the mysterious Meurling bequest. The metropolis itself is not overloud in its exultation. It may be only a mare's nest. There are more Montreals than the one we are accustomed to look to. And in this reflection it finds a Job's comforter. "Le Courrier de l'Ouest," hearing monition to the following effect:

"Some time ago our Montreal contemporaries announced that a French philanthropist rejoicing in the name of Meurling had died at Nice, bequeathing $150,000 to their city.

"The aldermen of the metropolis were very much affected by this generosity on the part of an absolute stranger. They are recovering, or at least their emotion is changing into one of another kind. There is Montreal—and Montreal. The largess of the late philanthropist was not directed towards the Canadian Hub, but towards Montreal, a little town in the District of Carcassone, in the Department de l'Aude, France—unless indeed Montreal, principal town of Gers, happens to be meant.

"Montreal may have to spend a pretty penny before it becomes convinced, by the discovery of two homonyms in France, that it is not the only pebble."

Has a Canadian Wife.

Sir Henry Seymour King, the Unionist M.P., who has just been unseated in Central Hull, chiefly on account of a free distribution of what is called in England "coals" and of "sweats," in celebration of his 25th anniversary as member of Parliament, is married to a Canadian lady who was a Miss Jenkins, daughter of Rev. Dr. John Jenkins of Montreal. Sir Henry is the head of a great banking house, in the front rank of financial institutions in England and in India. With his Indian bank, his Canadian wife, and his reputation for mountain climbing and yachting all over the world, Sir Henry's interests may be described as truly Imperial. Formerly Sir Henry's business was a banking and publishing house. Over forty years ago the lines were separated, and to-day Smith, Elder & Co. is a firm as justly celebrated among publishers as is that of H. S. King & Co. among bankers.

MANY ENTRIES FOR THE SPORTS ON MONDAY

Labour Day Sports Look to be About the Best Programme Offered Here in Years—Outside Runners Will Take Part in Several of the Events and the Outlook for a Big Afternoon is Most Assuring.

The following entries have been received for the big Labour Day sports which will be held at Riverside Park on Monday. The entries do not close until ten minutes before the race is called, but in spite of this the entry list is sufficiently filled to warrant first-class competition in every event.

100 Yards Dash. — Frank Leahy Douro, J. Mahoney 'Y', J. McMartin Otonabee A.C., G. Pritchard, Albert College Belleville, H. Hill 'Y', H. Smith 'Y', J. Ridyard, J. Wortley Enismore.

Broad Jump. — J. McMartin, W. Wood, G. Pritchard, H. Woods, J. Mahoney.

One Mile.—F. Leahy, G. McCreary Belleville, J. Alexander Belleville, A. Smoke Chemong AC., H. Smith, W. Willis, H. Hill, G. Robinson Otonabee A.C., J. Wortly, J. Mahoney.

5 Mile Run—F. Leahy, G. McCreary, . Alexander, A. Smoke, H. Smith, W Willis, H. Keegan, J. Wortley, G. Robinson.

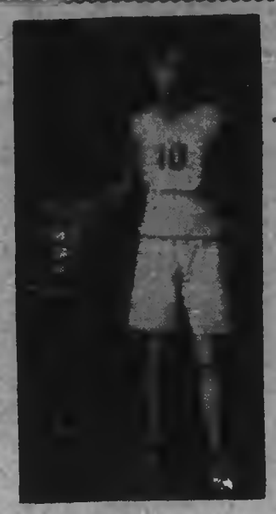
High Jump—J. McMartin, J. Mahoney, H. Woods, C. Bartlett.

Shot Put.—G. Pritchard, H. Hill, H. Woods, J. McMartin.

Pole Vault—H. Hill, C. Bartlett.

Quarter Mile—W. Willis. J. Ridyard, J Wortley, H. Smith, H. Hill, J. Mahoney, G. Pritchard, H. Woods.

The committee have decided to run the five mile race entirely on the track instead of out the road as stated. The other entries for the tug of war, quoits, base running contest, and Union men's races will be taken on the grounds. Competitors are notified that the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot put and base running will be started sharp at 1.30 p.m. so that they will not interfere in any way with the ball game. The other events will be contested while the ball game is in progress. All that is required now is a fine day, the track and grounds are in first class condition and with such a varied programme it sure will be some meet.



ALBERT SMOKE, the speedy Indian middle distance runner, twice winner of the Examiner road race, and holder of the Midland counties championship, who will run in the five mile race at the Labour Day sports.

FRANK LEAHY, winner of last year's junior road race, who is entered in the Labour Day sports at Riverside Park.

PETERBOROUGH'S STRONG TEAM AGAINST BELLEVILLE G. T. R.

Peterborough will have about the strongest line-up of the season on against the Belleville Grand Trunk in the game at Riverside Park on Monday afternoon at the field day of the Trades and Labour Council. Manager Quinlan,w ho is back after a few days with Chaucer Elliott's St. Thomas team of the Canadian League will be on the rubber and will be opposed by Ashton, the crack heaver of the Trunks. The Peterborough manager is confident of being able to turn the tric kon the Railway Men. Jimmy Callaghan will get into the game in the outfield for the Petes and Pete Campbell, who has returned from his western trip, will be at second base. The team will consist of the following:

Gotch A 10 To 7 Favourite In Monday's Big Bout

CHICAGO, SEPT. 1.—Frank Gotch, world's champion wrestler, reached Chicago with his retinue this morning. The world's champion traveled in a private car, and was accompanied by his wife and her parents; Manager Klank, W. W. Sterns, who is to look after the $11,000 of the $21,000 purse paid to Gotch; Farmer Burns, Reimer, Rogers, Asbell, Hassan and Referee Ed. Smith.

On the trip to Chicago Gotch and Smith went carefully over the rules which Smith has improvised for the Hackenschmidt match Labour Day and placed his stamp of approval on them, after a few minor changes had been made at his suggestion.

Gotch planned to do some mat work to-day and to-morrow at the Chicago Athletic Association, tapering off with some road work. Sunday he will do just enough indoor work to keep himself in condition.

Hackenschmidt has let up on hard work. He is taking a slight conditioning run and swim each day and doing just a little work in the gymnasium to keep himself in trim. The Russian Lion is absolutely confident that he will be the victor.

Despite his great confidence in Jim O'Leary's Stock Yards' book bets are being recorded at 10 to 7 and even that Gotch will win. Some unique bets are being made on the length of the bout, an especially popular bet among the Gotch followers being that unless there is a fall in the first ten minutes there will be none for an hour and a half. They believe Gotch will make a desperate effort to gain the first fall by a trick the minute they go on to the mat, and that unless he succeeds he will pit his strength and endurance against the Russian.

Assistant Police Chief Schuettler announced to-day that he would have 125 policemen in the park, several being stationed at the ringside, to see that the match is carried out as per rules. Schuettler announced that the police would see that there was no biting, gouging, no punching with elbows or fists, or any other rough work, such as Gotch is said to have used in his last match with Hack here in Chicago.

"The public is interested," the order reads, "in a scientific display of strength and agility of the two exponents of the wrestling art, and the police will see that the public gets what it pays for."

CANADA'S SHARE.

Dominion Has Played an Important Part in Steam Shipping

It is interesting to note that Canada has taken quite an important part in the development of steam navigation. The "Accommodation" built by Molson in 1809 was the first passenger steamer to ply upon British Colonial waters, and ran between Montreal and Quebec. The first steam vessel to make a transatlantic passage was also built and owned by Canadians. The "Royal William" as she was called, was built at Cap Blanc, Quebec, by George Black and J. S. Campbell for the Quebec and Halifax service of a Quebec company. She was built of wood on a clean lined semi-clipper model, 178 feet overall, keel 146 feet, breadth of beam inside paddleboxes 28 feet 6 inches, breadth outside paddleboxes 43 feet 10 inches, depth of hold 17 feet 9 inches. Her measurement tonnage was 830 tons. On April 28th, 1831, she was launched and christened after the King, by the wife of the then Governor-General, Lord Aylmer. She was towed to Montreal, where her engines were installed, and in the fall of the year made one or two trips to Halifax. Although she had auxiliary sails to assist her engines in favoring winds, the "Royal William" was propelled by steam alone.

When in Halifax she came under the attention of Samuel Cunard, founder of the Cunard Line, and he became very much interested in her, and ultimately became a director in the company which owned the vessel. It is said that it was through his connection with this little steamer that the mighty fleet which bears his name was formed.

In 1832, trade being very poor in Canada, it was thought advisable to send the "Royal William" across the Atlantic to be sold, and on August 4th, 1833, she left Quebec for London, under the command of Captain McDougall. After coaling at Pictou, N.S., she arrived at Gravesend on September 11th; coaling again at Cowes in the Isle of Wight on her way. Her passage time between port and port was 25 days, during which she steamed all the way.

Canada and Canadians in the past have shown their genius and ability in shipbuilding affairs, and, now, with the establishment of shipbuilding plants in the country, it remains to be seen whether the Dominion will regain, in some manner, an almost forgotten supremacy.—Canadian Century.

Many Montreals.

The other cities of Canada are casting green eyes of jealousy upon Montreal, beneficiary of the mysterious Meurling bequest. The metropolis itself is not overloud in its exultation. It may be only a mare's nest. There are more Montreals than the one we are accustomed to look to. And in this reflection it finds a Job's comforter. "Le Courrier de l'Ouest," hearing monition to the following effect:

"Some time ago our Montreal contemporaries announced that a French philanthropist rejoicing in the name of Meurling had died at Nice, bequeathing $150,000 to their city.

"The aldermen of the metropolis were very much affected by this generosity on the part of an absolute stranger. They are recovering, or at least their emotion is changing into one of another kind. There is Montreal—and Montreal. The largess of the late philanthropist was not directed towards the Canadian Hub, but towards Montreal, a little town in the District of Carcassone, in the Department de l'Aude, France—unless indeed Montreal, principal town of Gers, happens to be meant.

"Montreal may have to spend a pretty penny before it becomes convinced, by the discovery of two homonymns in France, that it is not the only pebble."

Has a Canadian Wife.

Sir Henry Seymour King, the Unionist M.P., who has just been unseated in Central Hull, chiefly on account of a free distribution of what is called in England "cools" and of "sweets," in celebration of his 25th anniversary as member of Parliament, is married to a Canadian lady who was a Miss Jenkins, daughter of Rev. Dr. John Jenkins of Montreal. Sir Henry is the head of a great banking house, in the front rank of financial institutions in England and in India. With his Indian bank, his Canadian wife, and his reputation for mountain climbing and yachting all over the world, Sir Henry's interests may be described as truly Imperial. Formerly Sir Henry's business was a banking and publishing house: Over forty years ago the lines were separated, and to-day Smith, Elder & Co. is a firm as justly celebrated among publishers as is that of H. S. King & Co. among bankers.

The National Cash Register Building Offers a Fascinating Free Entertainment.

Just north of the Grand Stand is the handsome building that houses the extensive lecture and moving picture outfit of the National Cash Register Co. And here all day long throng hundreds of visitors, who are taken on a trip to Dayton, and thereafter through the wonderful plant of this company, famous throughout the world for its humanitarian treatment of its employees. Thirty-eight acres of floor space, sixteen huge buildings, walls composed four-fifths of glass for good light's sake, modern ventilation and dust-removing apparatus, high-backed chairs for workers, distinctive treatment of women workers, are unique features of this wonderful plant, which now turns out over 500 complete cash registers every working day, and pays its workmen over $90,000 every week.

"Oh, isn't that wonderful—wish we had gardens like that," was the exclamation of many a member of the fair sex as the hosts of coloured slides illustrated the charming garden effects secured by residents near the National Cash Register factory, under the company's encouragement. Just as interesting and instructive, too, were the pictures dealing with the company's world-famous "welfare work" as carried out amongst the boys of the factory neighborhood. The fascination of gardening is employed to win the boys from the streets and the fruits of their labour is secured to them through the formation of their own Market Garden Company, vegetables, etc., being sold to the factory restaurant, and the people of the neighborhood, and the proceeds divided amongst the boys—all under the guidance of the company, which in this way early inculcates habits of industry and thrift amongst the boys who must be its own future operatives.

All told, one of the most interesting "exhibits" on the grounds, and which visitors should by no means miss. Seating capacity of the building over 400 and lectures repeated every hour in the day.

AN APPRECIATION.

Poor Frank Lefevre! A kind-hearted, jovial, sympathetic fellow workman. There was an "entente cordiale" existing between him and myself, that was a reminiscence to me, of Europe. The "entente cordiale" between Britain and France; for he was a Frenchman and I am English. From the first moment of our acquaintance up to within an hour or so of his death, there had always been a cheery "good day" or "how d'ye do" passing between us. Little did I think when, as usual at 7 a.m. or thereby, on the fatal Sept. 1, I gave and received the customary salutation, that within the short space of some two hours, my arm would have been the pillow upon which he would draw his last breath, and only a short quarter of an hour after he had received the fatal hurt that crushed out his soul. But a few minutes after and he had gone to a Higher Power.

I miss him! I miss his fat, cheery, good-natured, old-world type of smile. How many times he has "chipped" me for being a bachelor, and not doing, as he thought, my duty to my country. "Is there not ONE girl in Peterborough nice enough to please you" he would say.

Of the immediate manner of his death I was not an eye-witness. I was engaged on a machine some 50 yards away when I heard an ominous sound. Intuitively I scented a casualty, and before many seconds had elapsed I was on the spot where he lay an inert mass—he was a big man—barely breathing. I saw at a glance that death had marked him for a victim. Willing hands besides my own helped to carry his moribund body from the fatal spot and in a few minutes it was all over.

I have looked death fairly and squarely in the face more times than I care to recall, and never again wish to have such close calls as I have had until the last inevitable summons must come. But it knocks a fellow some to have a dying man and one's familiar friend in one's arms when one knows he can do absolutely nothing to help. God rest his soul.

LADIES FURNACE.

Alfred had so often been asked by admiring strangers "Whose little boy are you?" that it was perhaps no wonder that he finally turned the tables on his elders. This he did one evening by inquiring very sweetly of a young gentleman who was calling upon Alfred's sister, "Whose papa are you?"—Harper's Weekly.

SMELTER IS BURNED.

Hall Mines Plant Is Destroyed by "Fire-Bug."

Nelson, B.C., Sept. 5.—At midnight Saturday the huge plant of the Hall Mines Smelter, covering 13 acres of ground, and one of the largest plants of its kind in Canada, was a mass of blazing, crackling ruins. Nothing is saved except the seven miles of cable running from the smelter to the Silver King mine on Lode Mountain, the tall, blackened chimneys, one of which is 200 feet in height, and the one-storey building used as an office, the bridge house and numerous smaller buildings, are a tangle of blazing timber and twisted iron. This disaster is the work of an incendiary, who in the past two weeks has started a dozen fires, three of which have entailed enormous loss. Friday night the Nelson Brewery was burned to the ground, with a loss of $50,000. Previously a Chinaman's house, stables and outbuildings were destroyed, with a loss of $6,000.

The plant destroyed is conservatively estimated to have cost $750,000. The incendiary has shown the utmost persistency. At noon Saturday the watchman discovered the fire in the smelter and he thoroughly quenched it and arranged for extra guards. At nine o'clock, just after he had made the rounds of the buildings, fire broke out and within a few minutes the plant was a blazing furnace. By midnight the entire plant was practically consumed. Nothing could be done to save the buildings.

The smelter, built of magnificent timber, is situated on the hill above the railway just outside the city limit and no water supply was available.

The fire brigade could only watch the blaze from the town, ready to grapple with any fire that might break out in the city. From the assay office a few chemicals were saved a valuable chemical balances. The furniture in the buildings used as residences was carried out by hundred of willing hands and saved. All else went up in smoke, and for a time danger existed that neighboring residences would be consumed even if dangerous bush fires were avoided.

Only the complete absence of wind prevented a far worse calamity. The Hall Mines Smelter was formerly used to treat ores of Silver King and other famous properties of Lode Mountain Morning Mountain and adjacent territory, and employed hundreds of men.

There is no clue to the incendiary. The city posted placards offering $500 reward for information leading to the apprehension of the culprit. The city is thoroughly watched, but in spite of extra constables and the utmost vigilance on the part of the citizens, the police are completely baffled.

Building H. B. Railway.

Ottawa, Sept. 5.—The Government is calling for tenders for the supply of 10,000 tons of steel rails and fastenings for the Hudson Bay Railway and bids will be received up to Oct. 15. The contract recently awarded to J. D. McArthur for the construction of the line from the Pas Mission to Thicket Portage is being started. Mr. McArthur has moved his plant from Lake Superior section of the Transcontinental Railway, which he built, and which is being taken over for operation this fall.

SWEPT BY A STORM

District Around London Suffers Heavy Loss

NARROW ESCAPES

London, Ont., Sept. 5.—Tales of narrow escapes from death and of great financial loss are coming in as a result of a furious storm which broke over the district north of London on Saturday afternoon. One house was blown down, and its occupants were within a narrow margin of death. Scores of barns were unroofed or more or less damaged, and whole orchards of trees, laden with apples and other fruit, were uprooted.

The house of George Hall, on the Proof Line road at Birr, was practically demolished. It was a two-storey affair, and the wind tore off the roof and most of the second storey. Mrs. Hall and her six-year-old daughter were in the yard at the time and rushed into the house, where they were covered by pieces of flying timber.

The barn of James Ryder, on the Roman line, Biddulph, was struck by lightning and the entire crops of the season, with buildings and implements, were a total loss. The insurance amounts to only $1,600.

A huge silo on the farm of Percy Ferguson, Proof Line road, was blown down and scattered over the fields, and the barn near which it was built suffered the loss of its roof.

A large building on the premises of Thomas Thompson, 16th concession, London Township, was blown over.

The orchard of J. R. Hardy, near Birr, is wiped out, and the buildings are damaged.

A Mrs. Coursey of Biddulph was struck by pieces of flying timber and injured.

A barn on Ovens' farm at Lucan was unroofed, and the roof, which was of tin, was carried across the railway tracks into a field.

Others whose orchards and buildings suffered severely are Ernest Guest, A. M. Crunican and J. Brumwell of the Proof Line road. The loss will run into many thousands of dollars.

Two children who were driving and were blown from the road were slightly scratched and badly shaken up. Otherwise they were unhurt.

For miles there is a trail of destruction, and in many places it is almost impossible to travel the roads, owing to the trees which were blown across the highways.

Indian Girl Drowned.

Cornwall, Sept. 5.—Susan Lazore, an Indian girl, living on Sugar Bush Island, St. Regis, lost her life in a peculiar manner. She arose about six o'clock in the morning, and, following her usual custom, took a couple of pails and rowed out into the St. Lawrence in a boat to the channel to get fresh drinking water. In some manner she fell overboard and was drowned. Search was made and the empty boat found floating. The body was recovered about an hour afterwards.

Killed at Level Crossing.

Brantford, Sept. 5.—James Keirl, a well-known floral gardener, was instantly killed by a west-bound T. H. & B. train Friday night at a level crossing a few miles outside the city. Keirl was riding a bicycle and did not notice the approach of the train. His body was thrown on the pilot, in which position it was brought to the city. Coroner Ashton deemed an inquest not necessary. A widow and grown up family survive.

DRIVES IN A CROWD

American Autoist Hurts Six People in Toronto—Rescued From Mob

SAVED BY THE POLICE

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Three policemen had difficulty in rescuing from the hands of an angry mob, Alexander S. Tracey, 40 years of age, a contractor from Port Huron, Mich., who drove into a crowd of people gathered at Queen street and Roncesvalles avenue at 7.50 o'clock last night. The following persons were injured:

Gordon Cole, 218 Osler avenue, sinews of both legs lacerated, serious, taken home in police ambulance.

Mrs. Cole, legs lacerated, not serious, taken home in police ambulance.

Harry Rupert, 153 Devercourt road, shaken and bruised, taken home by friends.

Fred. Selvers and Joseph Selvers, Dodds avenue, West Toronto, shaken and cut, taken home by friends.

George Tenksbury, 218 Osler avenue, shaken up, taken home by friends.

The people who had no warning of the approach of the motor car, were thrown in every direction, and the heavy car was brought to a standstill by the impact of running into the bodies. The nose of the car was crushed in, and Tracy was dragged from the seat by the angry crowd, which surged back about the car when they recovered from the shock of the collision. The injured six were left lying in the roadway for Policeman Grant (228) was forced to go to the rescue of Tracy, who, with his brother-in-law, who was riding with him, was threatened with serious injury by the crowd. Policemen Sleford and McGrath arrived upon the scene and stood off the mob until Tracy was removed to the Cowan avenue police station in the patrol wagon. The police took charge of the auto.

At the station Tracy seemed to regard the matter as of little consequence, saying to Sergt. Mulhall that it was not much, and no one was hurt. He is charged with being drunk and with wilfully injuring a number of people.

Dr. Young, 280 Roncesvalle avenue, attended the injured, who were sent to their homes.

The course of the auto is traced west on King street, thence north up Dufferin street, and west on Queen street, all along which route accidents were narrowly averted.

Says He Did All He Could.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Roy Stafford of Belleville, Ont., whose motor car ran over and killed five-year-old Richard Collis of 74 Rhodes avenue, near that street in East Queen street Sunday night, gave himself up to the police yesterday, having read in the morning papers that his conduct in the matter had been criticised by one who saw the accident. He was charged with criminal negligence, but was immediately released, upon two sureties of $500, to appear in the police court to-day.

Mr. Stafford said that he had done all in his power to avert the accident. He had seen the boy run out into the roadway, had shouted to him to go back, and had reversed his machine, but the boy was too close and was struck. The car was stopped with the rear wheels still upon the body.

Chief Coroner Johnson opened an inquest at the morgue yesterday at noon, which was adjourned till eight o'clock to-night.

The Moroccan Question.

Paris, Sept. 5.—The French Foreign Office was advised from Berlin yesterday that the French ambassador, M. Cambon, was received at 11 o'clock yesterday morning by the German Foreign Minister, Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, to whom he presented France's written proposals for an adjustment of the Moroccan question.

The German Foreign Minister was unable, naturally, to indicate in advance what Germany's response would be to France's proposition. He said that the proposal would be examined with the greatest care, in a spirit of good-will, and with the hope that a full and satisfactory solution of the matter will be found in it.

No date has been fixed for Germany's reply, but it is presumed that it will be received toward the end of the week.

Two Killed on Roller Coaster.

New York, Sept. 5.—Two women, Mrs. Alice Provost of Jersey City, and Miss May Kalligan of Scranton, Pa., were killed yesterday evening when the last car of a three-car train on the "Giant Racer," a high roller coaster at Coney Island, left the rails. Their bodies were wedged between the side of the overturned car and the guardrail and badly crushed.

Three other occupants of the car were painfully but not seriously bruised.

Canadians in Second Place.

London, Sept. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It has been officially announced that the King's Prize for howitzer heavy batteries on Salisbury Plain resulted in a win for the 4th London, who secured 62 per cent.

The Canadians are placed second with 49 per cent.

Broke Altitude Record.

Parame, France, Sept. 5.—Roland G. Garros, the French aviator, yesterday broke the world's record for altitude in an aeroplane. He ascended 13,942 feet. Lincoln Beachey's record at Chicago, on Aug. 20 of this year, is thus beaten by 2,205 feet.

TO RUN IN SOULANGES

Premier to Fight His Enemies in Their Own Stronghold

RALLY AT ALEXANDRIA

Alexandria, Sept. 5.—The announcement that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will personally combat the Nationalist-Conservative alliance on its own ground by running in Soulanges was the feature of a great meeting here yesterday.

At Coteau, on his way to Alexandria a great spontaneous gathering of some three thousand of his compatriots was awaiting the Premier. Amid scenes of intense enthusiasm Sir Wilfrid was conducted in a wagonette for a mile or more to a large field, where a temporary stand had been erected. Here ex-Mayor Ollivier Andre and J. O. Mousseau, M.P.P., on behalf of the gathering, urged Sir Wilfrid to become their candidate. "You know the heart of Soulanges," said Mr. Mousseau, "and it is you who can redeem the county from the bad hands into which it has fallen and carry our banner to victory."

"My time now," said Sir Wilfrid "is like that of a religious. Every moment and hour his its duty." He would have preferred the selection of a local man, but if the Liberals of Soulanges would unite in battle he was prepared to enter the fight as their candidate.

The Premier was accompanied hither by Hon. George P. Graham, J. O. Mousseau, M.P.P., and R. C. Smith. He was welcomed by Hon. Charles Murphy and J. H. McMillen, ex-member and present Liberal candidate.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party were escorted to the scene of the meeting by local Liberal organisers at the head of a huge procession, including several bands and a detachment of Highland pipers, in uniform. The streets were liberally decorated with bunting, flags, streamers, mottoes and pictures of the Premier.

Mr. McMillan presented Sir Wilfrid to the meeting, delivering a glowing eulogy of his chieftain and telling the voters of Glengarry that it was probably the last time they would have the opportunity of joining with other Canadians in returning Sir Wilfrid to office, as the Premier was growing old.

Sir Wilfrid showed no sign of it when he arose to speak, his voice ringing out clearly. His speech was not a lengthy one, but covered concisely the points which he has already advanced during his campaign.

R. C. Smith of Montreal dealt mainly with reciprocity and on the value of the pact to a farming community. Hin. Charles Murphy and Hon. Geo. Graham also delivered addresses.

Mr. Mousseau confined his speech to an eulogy of the Premier. The presence of Mr. Hugh Munro of the firm of Munro and McIntosh, in the chair, and his statement that reciprocity would not hurt the manufacturers and that the Liberal Government could be trusted to treat all parties fairly was received with applause.

Half Million Homeless.

Pekin, Sept. 5—Summer floods along the Yangtse-Kiang and its tributaries, and also other great rivers, are repeating in various provinces the conditions in Anhwei and Kiangsu, which have not yet been relieved. In the Province of Anhwei, early in August, hundreds of thousands of acres of rice were destroyed by floods and half a million persons were rendered homeless.

Many thousands of square miles are now submerged and the bodies of hundreds of people lie unburied. The Chinese Government, as well as special committees, is subscribing relief funds, which is a new departure for the administration and shows the advancement towards modern ways, but the project of attacking the root of the evil, control of the waterways and the reclaiming of lands, has only up to the present been suggested and mildly discussed. Hence a repetition of these horrors may be expected each year, according to C. D. Jameson, the engineer sent by the American Red Cross to China to study this situation.

Two Attempted Suicide.

Hamilton, Sept. 5.—Weary of their brief sojourn in this vale of tears, two young men of this city Saturday night made unsuccessful attempts to end their lives. While their actions were not preconcerted, by a peculiar coincidence they both adopted the same means in their suicidal effort, and both attempts were made at approximately the same hour. Gordon Boss, who lives at 106 North Bay street, took carbolic acid at 44 East Hunter street, where he was visiting, a little before nine o'clock, and was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital. At about the same hour Henry Glover, a 17-year-old lad, living at 232 East King street, tried to throw off this mortal coil in the same manner, and was rushed to the city hospital. Both would-be suicides will recover, and the police will likely prosecute them for their actions.

Wheel Ran Over His Head.

Ingersoll, Sept. 5.—His skull fractured at the base and his cheek bone broken, James Streetfield, an Englishman, about 40 years of age, is in a precarious condition at the hospital. Streetfield fell from a wagon loaded with fertiliser on Saturday afternoon at the Baptist church shed, and a wheel passed over his head, which was crushed into the ground. He is suffering from concussion of the brain and has only a chance for recovery. The injured man has resided in Dereham township for some time.

Prisoners Still at Large.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—There is still no clue to the two men who escaped from the Central Prison on Saturday morning, and there is still no word from Warden Gilmour as to who they are or their appearance. The detective department has not yet heard a word of the occurrence from Warden Gilmour, and had it not been for the reporter who called their attention to the fact on Saturday they would not have known anything about it.

Warden Gilmour is still reticent and refuses to disclose any information which would lead to their capture.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Franco-German negotiations have been resumed at Berlin.

Three ferry boats were stuck in the bay owing to the shallow water.

John Morrison of Meaford was run down by an automobile, and his injuries are very serious.

Kenneth Jacquemine, aged nine years, was drowned by falling off the dock at Sandwich, Ont.

F. H. Ferris of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was struck by a train at the Canadian Soo and killed.

A labor war is imminent on the Illinois Central owing to the refusal of the railway company to recognize the union.

Two fatal cases of cholera were reported to the health authorities yesterday at Metrelbeke, two miles south of Ghent, Belgium.

More than sixty children were lost on the Toronto exhibition grounds yesterday, and were kept at the police station until claimed by their parents.

The London Evening Times understands that the King or the Prince of Wales will probably visit Canada during the Duke of Connaught's term of office.

Refusing to heed his friend's warning to remain seated in the "races dips" at Hanlon's Point, Toronto, yesterday, Joseph Hepburn, 29 Portland street, sustained injuries from which he died at midnight at St. Michael's hospital.

Bourassa Against Pact.

Montreal, Sept. 5.—Mr. Henri Bourassa, who has recovered his voice, held a meeting Sunday at St. Andre Avelin, in Labelle county. The meeting was remarkable for two facts. The first was that Mr. Bourassa, for the first time in his campaign, declared himself clearly and without reservation against reciprocity.

HEARING THE MEN.

English Railway Arbitrators Have Been at Work a Week.

London, Sept. 5.—The commission appointed by the Government August 28, to enquire into the trouble between the railroads of Great Britain and their employes, which led to the recent strike, has already been in session for one week, and gives promise of being as long-lived as some of its predecessors.

The railroads are represented on the commission by Sir Thomas R. Ellis, secretary of the Mine Owners' Association, and Sir Charles Beale, vice-chancellor of the University of Birmingham, while the representatives of the men are Arthur Henderson, Labor member of Parliament for the Barnard Castle division of Durham, and John Burnett, chief labor correspondent of the Board of Trade. Sir David Hartel, former Under Secretary for Ireland, is chairman of the committee.

The commission is taking the evidence of the men's representatives first, and the whole week did not suffice to exhaust the flow of information sought to be imparted by only four out of a host of officials from the different unions.

There was not a good word to be said of the conciliation board's scheme established by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Lloyd-George, in 1907. The general trend of suggestion favored a board for each railroad, made up of an equal number of representatives of the men and the company, with a national board, on which the companies and men's unions are equally represented, for service as a kind of a court of appeal.

Abandoned Dock Proposition.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—The Jamaican Government has practically abandoned the idea of constructing a floating dock at Kingston. This action is the result of the proposed establishment of repairing plants at both entrances to the Panama Canal.

Great Naval Review.

Paris, Sept. 5.—President Fallieres yesterday left for Toulon, where he is to witness a great naval review. The flower of the French navy will take part in the review, which will be one of the most imposing naval ceremonies in recent years.

Both Victims Die.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Harry Slingsby, 770 Crawford street, who was struck by a street car at the corner of Shaw and College streets, on Wednesday evening, died in the Western Hospital yesterday.

Slingsby was going north on Shaw street on the night of the accident, and as he approached College street slackened his speed to allow the street car to cross. The car struck Slingsby and dragged him under the fender for some distance. He was then removed to the Western Hospital with a fractured skull.

Coroner Graham will open an inquest at the hospital.

Far-Seeing People

SOME HUMORS OF ERIN

RAMSAY COLLES TELLS A FEW STORIES OF IRELAND.

The Jarvey Is a Mark Twain in a Small Way and His Retorts Have a Quaint Insinuation That Often Earns Them Money—How the "Red Earl" Knighted Davy Stephens, the News-Vender—Irving's Way.

Although not always a wit, the average Irishman is usually a humorist—if unconsciously so at times. The story which Sir Robert Ball, the astronomer, tells of the jarvey who was sent to meet him at a railway station, and who ultimately apologized to Sir Robert for keeping him waiting, adding, as an excuse, that he had been told to look for a "distinguished-looking gentleman," is fairly familiar to most of us.

And Mr. Ramsay Colles, in his delightful book entitled "In Castle and Court House", which comprises his reminiscences of thirty years in Ireland, supplements this story with one or two others which illustrate the humor of the Man in the Street in the Emerald Isle.

"It is ten to one," says Mr. Colles, "that the first car-driver one strikes on visiting Ireland is as truly a born humorist as was Mark Twain. Sir George Meyers was fond of telling a good story about a jarvey who used to drive him to Glengarry at night. One cold night Sir George, having paid the fare, handed the jarvey a glass of whisky, and on being given back the empty glass, said, 'Well, Pat, isn't that good whisky?'

"'Begorra, yer honor,' said honest Pat, 'I forget to taste it!'

"Another jarvey, on being asked the same question, replied, 'Faith, it's made a new man of me, and shure he's thirsty, too!'"

Another jarvey story concerns a callow youth who, having successfully qualified at one of the great military schools in England, was sent to Richmond Barracks, Dublin, to commence his career as a soldier. On arriving in that city he took an outside car and directed the driver to the barracks.

"Richmond Barracks, all right, captain," said the jarvey, as he started on a trip for which the legal fare is sixpence, but for which a shilling is usually tendered.

"What is the fare?" asked the "captain."

"Well, colonel," said the driver again, in a tone of voice which precluded the idea of any attitude save that of profound respect for the exalted person he was driving, "the meanest of thim gives me half a crown."

Mr. Colles also tells of how that well-known personality in the newspaper-selling world, Davy Stephens, who is practically the first person one sees on landing at Kingstown, was knighted many years ago by Lord Spencer. His lordship was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland at the time, and the story goes that as Davy Stephens [illegible] Majesty's representative with copies of the Irish daily papers, the "Red Earl" smote him on the shoulder and jocularly exclaimed, "Arise, Sir Davy Stephens!"

There are a number of amusing stories, too, concerning other celebrities. One concerns W. E. H. Lecky, the great historian, who one day went into a second-hand bookshop kept by one Michael Hickie. "Lecky came into the shop with a volume he had picked off the improvised shelf outside, and asked: 'What do you want for that?' It was a shabby-looking copy of the Bible. Hickie pulled his beard meditatively and said, 'One shilling.'

"'It's not worth a shilling,' said the man, emphatically, 'I'll give you sixpence for it.'

"Upon this Hickie awoke, and shouted 'Get out of my shop! Any man who says that the word of God is not worth a shilling won't stop here!' Hickie was not religious; he told me afterwards that he had mistaken Lecky for a clergyman!"

"Mr. friend, John Fergus O'Hea, the artist," says Mr. Colles, "told me a rather amusing story of Irving.

"When Irving paid his first visit to Ireland he was called upon by O'Hea, who wished to make some lightning sketches of the great actor. Having made a few thumbnail portraits, O'Hea said:—

"'May I ask, Mr. Irving, if you can give me a photograph? It may assist me in completing these sketches.'

"'Certainly,' replied Irving, producing a couple of dozen photographs of himself; 'you can have which you like.' O'Hea chose a photograph, and then, as he was taking leave, said, 'Will you add to your kindness, Mr. Irving, by signing this photograph?'

"'With pleasure,' said Irving; and taking up a pen he wrote across the foot of the photograph: 'To my very dear friend ——' He paused, and, turning to O'Hea, asked in the charming manner which all lovers of Irving will recall with a sigh, 'What name did you say?'"

Baby Eczema For Three Years

Three Doctors and Scores of Treatments Failed

The Dreadful Itching Was Stopped and the Sores Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Here is an illustration of the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Ointment has over torturing, itching eczema. By its soothing influence it stops the itching, and it heals the sores as if by magic.

Mrs. W m. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema, and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her, all to no purpose whatever, and all kinds of balms, soaps and lotions were tried, with no results.

"Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to my surprise she immediately began to improve, and was completely cured of that long-standing disease. That was four years ago, when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent. With a grateful heart I give this testimony to the great value of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home to allay skin irritations and heal and cure sores, wounds and ulcers. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. FRANK ENSLEY, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration.

Poor and His Treasures.

Lord Farquhar has kept his sixty-seventh birthday. He was Master of King Edward's Household in 1901, and his lordship is an accomplished musician, most of the leading musicians of the day having been entertained at Castle Rising. He is also a consummate judge of antique furniture and decoration, and has made a special study of the eighteenth century French.

Some of his most valued treasures came from the boudoir of Marie Antionette, while he possesses a great many of the most famous pieces from French houses of that period.

CAMELS IN A RAGE.

When Roused These Usually Patient Animals Fight Like Fury.

The usually patient and submissive camel, like the proverbial worm, will sometimes resent an overdose of abuse. Too dense to think of a way in which he can outwit his driver and so take him unawares, when roused to the pitch of fury he rushes at the tyrant open mouthed, and his formidable teeth and powerful jaws do serious damage.

Of this vindictiveness the camel driver is aware and of the certainty that sooner or later the camel will seek revenge. Accordingly it is customary for the person who fears his malice to throw his clothes before the camel, meanwhile hiding himself until the animal's fury has been expended in tossing and trampling on them, when the injury, real or supposed, is at once forgotten.

The camel will not identify himself with his driver or rider in the smallest way whatever. He steadily declines all advances. His eye never lights up with love or even interest at the approach of his master. Should you attempt to pat or caress him he will object in a very decided manner.

Good treatment or bad makes no difference to the camel. Life and its hard conditions are taken for granted. His view of things is far too serious. He is so absorbed and preoccupied that he has no time to waste in the gambols indulged in by all other young animals.—Harper's Weekly.

A PLEASANT MEETING.

It Is Nice to Find a Friend Who Sometimes Sympathizes.

"I don't like people who are always coming to me for sympathy."

"They do get tiresome, but I prefer them to the ones who come boasting of their successes and trying to make me dissatisfied with my lot."

"Oh, I don't mind that kind. They never worry me any. I am always so successful myself that I never have cause to envy them. And, speaking of successes, I made $300 last week in a little real estate deal, and my boy has been making a great record in school. He's away ahead of all the other boys of his age, and my wife has a maid now who is the best girl we have ever been able to find—the best one in our neighborhood, in fact. How is your boy doing now? I heard some time ago that he was inclined to be rather wild."

"Please don't mention him. I'm afraid he is going to bring sorrow upon us. You always were lucky. I guess I'll have to lose the little home I've been paying on during the past eight years, all on the boy's account. My wife has had to quit keeping help, although her health is very poor and"—

"Well, goodby. I've got to be going. Cheer up. What's the use of being grumpy? Look at me. You'll find, if you try it, that it pays to scatter sunshine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

GRAY HAIR WILL MAKE YOU LOOK OLD

Use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and Your Gray Hair Will Quickly Vanish.

Gray hair is a mark of age, and nothing that can be said as to its beauty will effect the disadvantages of this mark of age set upon your brow.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy darkens the hair and restores it to its youthful beauty. Our grandmothers and their grandmothers before them used sage and sulphur for darkening their hair. Nothing has ever been found more effective for this purpose than these two time-honored remedies, but Wyeth, a modern chemist, has combined the two with other ingredients which makes a delightful dressing for the hair, and which not only removes every trace of dandruff but promotes the growth of the hair. It also stops the hair from falling out and makes it beautiful.

A COUNCIL OF SEVEN

SOMETHING ABOUT THE BIG MEN AT SCOTLAND YARD.

Great Detective Establishment Which Operates From a Gloomy Office in London the Police Machinery Which Is a Terror to Crooks, Is Ruled by Sir Melville MacNaghten, Aided by Six Specialists in Crime.

In the great, rather grim, red-brick building which, like a medieval fortress, dominates the Thames within a stone's throw of the Houses of Parliament, there is a large, barely-furnished room which holds more secrets than any other in London, with the possible exception of the room of Cabinet mysteries. It is the nerve centre of our great and complex detective system, which controls the currents radiating all the world over for the discovery of crime; and it is in this secret chamber that the mysterious Council of Seven hold their meetings to unravel the tangled skeins of tragedy.

This council has not long been in existence; in fact, it is practically unknown to the outside world. It is only a short time since it occurred to the authorities of New Scotland Yard that, in place of casual conferences between detectives engaged in the solution of some problem of crime, it would be well to appoint a body of their cleverest detectives — men of acute and astute brains, with long experience of crime and criminals—to combine their efforts in solving the principal mysteries; and, as might be expected, the plan has worked admirably.

The greatest care has naturally been taken in choosing men for this responsible work. It was important that the council should, as far as possible, cover the whole range of crime. The detective who has specialised in murder or burglary may know little of, say, coiners and begging-letters impostors, and thus the leading expert in each of the principal branches of crime was chosen — men who know practically all that is to be known about their own branch and its professors, and whose names even are a terror to evil-doers the whole world over.

But let us see how this council works. Suppose that a mysterious murder has taken place in London. Within a few minutes after it has been reported to the nearest police station the detective inspector and his assistants are on the spot making investigations. Meanwhile the news has been flashed to New Scotland Yard; and almost before the local men have well commenced their inquiries a member of the council—the man whose special province it is—appears on the scene and takes charge of the operations.

If the problem is a fairly simple one, as it often is, and the murderer speedily run to earth, the services of the council are naturally not required. But if there is no sufficient clue to the assassin, or he has made his escape good, the council is at once summoned, and takes the case in hand.

And who are the members of the secret council? Naturally, they vary from time to time, due to retirements and other causes, but the principal members have so far remained the same. The head of the council is, by virtue of his office, Sir Melville Macnaghten, chief of the Criminal Investigation Department — a man who probably knows more about crime than any other in the United Kingdom.

Few men look less like a catcher of criminals than Sir Melville, who suggests rather a prosperous and genial stockbroker than a Sherlock Holmes; but, all the same, he is an expert in crime to the tips of his fingers. Apart from his long experience of crime and its professors, he is a born detective, if ever there was one. So intuitively clever is he that it is said he can tell, after a few minutes' conversation with a criminal, of what particular branch he is a specialist, and his resource and tenacity are just as wonderful as his instinct for discovering clues.

After Sir Melville, who controls the council, its principal member is Superintendent Forest, whose fame and prowess as a detective are world-wide. As a sleuth-hound of justice he has won laurels in every part of the world —from North America to Australia, and from California to Spain. There is scarcely a criminal in Europe who does not know of and dread him.

Another valuable member of the council, entitled, perhaps, to rank next to this terror to criminals, who, by the way, is one of the most amiable and genial of men, with a ready smile and laughing blue eyes, is Chief Inspector Drew, who has figured so prominently in the Crippen case.

Among other recent and present members of the council is Chief Inspector Drew, tall, debonair, gentlemanly, and a past-master of disguises —who has made a special study of the sharpers of all kinds of Europe and America; and who, in a variety of characters, ranging from a milkman to a Piccadilly lounger, has made many notable captures of criminals.

Others are Chief Inspector Collins, an expert in the lower walks of crime, to whom the slums of London are an open book; Chief Inspector Kane, quiet-mannered, but "sharp as a needle" and as tenacious as a bulldog—when once his "teeth are in" he never lets go; and Chief Inspector Scott, a man of rare organizing talent and the widest knowledge of crime, who is noted for carrying out successfully any task he undertakes.

SPEED ON DIRECT DRIVE: 2-70 M.P.H.

The Schacht Line for 1912

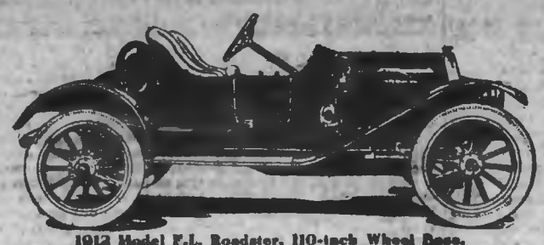
In our introductory advertisement we did not dwell specifically upon any of the outstanding features of the Schacht Cars—we merely gave illustrations and let the specifications speak for the car.

In placing our 1912 Cars on the market we are offering for sale a line (manufactured by a Canadian Company, with exclusive Canadian Capital) of which every Canadian can be justly proud.

The Schacht car is not a low-priced car, and yet when everything is considered, it is the most inexpensive car on the market. With its powerful motor, (cast en-bloc) having a 4½-inch bore and 5-inch stroke, generating 50 H.P. A. L. & A. M. rating—an engine so perfectly and so beautifully balanced that the driver is enabled to throttle the car down to a speed on direct drive (high gear) as low as 2 miles an hour, and with the same car attain a maximum road speed of 70 miles an hour. The motor, equipped with the peerless Mea Magneto has made the Schacht car famous as a hill climber—no other car on the market can boast a better hill climbing record than the Schacht.

The Schacht, Model J.M. at $2,450.00, fully equipped, combines in itself the specifications and qualities of cars ranging from $3,750.00 to $5,000.00. The long wheel base, the large wheels, the roomy driving seat and five passenger tonneau has been heretofore found only in the highest priced cars. In the Schacht for 1912 we have incorporated the left-hand drive and centre control, enabling the driver to use the necessary right hand to operate his gear control and emergency brake lever.

1912 MODEL J.M. TOURING CAR, 120-INCH WHEEL BASE, 7-PASSENGER, 45-50 H.P., PRICE $2,450



1912 Model F.L. Roadster, 110-inch Wheel Base, 45-50 H.P. Price $2,150.
Same Specifications as Model J.M.

SPECIFICATIONS MODEL J.M.—Continued.

SPRINGS: Special alloy steel; Front, Semi-elliptic; Rear, Three-quarter elliptic.
STANDARD EQUIPMENT: Mea Magneto, two gas lamps, two oil side and one rear lamp, jack, horn, all tools, pump and tire repair outfit, top and windshield.
STEERING: Worm and sector, 18-inch wheel.
TIRES: 34 x 4 inches.
TRANSMISSION: Selective; 3 speeds forward and reverse.
WEIGHT: 2,750 lbs.
WHEEL BASE: 120 inches.
Left-hand Drive; Gear Control and Emergency Brake in centre of car on all pleasure models.

Due to the perfection of the Mea Magneto we have been enabled to dispense with the dual ignition. Such a hot, high tension spark being produced at the first movement of the Magneto, that only a quarter turn of the crank is necessary to start the motor.

In addition to the standard equipment such as five lamps, tools, etc., we are equipping our cars with English Mohair top with envelope, Windshield and Speedometer. Schacht Cars have all bright parts nickel plated and our standard color is deep Royal Blue.

In addition to our line of pleasure cars we are manufacturing a line of commercial trucks and delivery cars that are absolutely without peer in Canada. Our Model 21, 4-Ton Truck is sold complete with body for $4,100.00. It is equipped with the same powerful motor and Mea Magneto—has a wheel-base of 144 inches and an eight foot overhang—it has the dual rear wheels and single front wheels, all equipped with the best solid tires to be had. Our Model D4, 40 H.P. Delivery Car is a beautiful production—it has a normal load capacity of 1500 pounds—its wheel base is 120 inches, and the length from rear of seat to opening doors is 66 inches—the price is $2,100.00.

We stand ready to verify all our statements by demonstrations, and demonstrations with either the pleasure or commercial models will be gladly made upon request.

We are now ready to close dealership contracts for the season of 1912 and all communications in this connection should be addressed to the Sales Manager, Mr. J. Scott Innes.

Intending purchasers and dealers will find our complete line on display at the Canadian National Exhibition in the Transportation Annex.

THE WELSH INVASION.

The Cymric Race Is Pushing to the Front in London.

Clever young men in England get less advertising than their contemporaries in France or in the United States, for the English need solid and long proof of merit before they raise their voices and say: "He is great." This is especially true of the world of art and letters.

Yet to-day seems to be the day of the "young" writer in England, and but two innings by the most effective kind the tremendously high percentage of Welshmen among the newcomers is striking.

As it is, they have taken their turn in Fleet street, which first succumbed to the Irish and then to the Scotch, and they have invaded the realms of book-publishing as well.

First among the younger literary set of the day is Alfred Noyes, who is regarded as a "certainty," if one may be pardoned the expression, for the Poet Laureateship.

Noyes is 28. He was famous at 23. Yet he is unspoilt. An orthodox, athletic-looking young man, clean-cut, very "Oxford," but full of the Celtic fire. He writes like a Cymru (Welshman); his fairy tales and tinkling verse are Welsh in spirit, though he is a big enough poet to be international. "Drake," that rather long but stirring epic; the ballad of the "Forty Singing Seamen," and the very poem he dislikes most of all his work, the "Barrel Organ," are known to all readers of English verse.

Noyes has been influenced by Oxford—(he was at Exeter College)—but the typical young Welshman, the golden, excitable Celt, is a product of Wales in education. He is far different to the genial autocrat of Oxford or the silently independent Cambridge man. He loves reading sonorous verse, is a natural orator, takes to theatricals with a born leaning that way. This is not one isolated example, mind you, but is typical of the hundreds of golden youth who come from Gwalia to London seeking fortune or fame.

Two years ago C. W. Miles, a young newspaperman, founded the Welsh Drama Society, and already connoisseurs and those who are on the lookout for new theatrical possibilities are hoping for great things from a very modest beginning. Mr. Miles is now editor of a leading London weekly, although but 27 years of age. These are but two out of scores who could be named in literature — all hailing from Wales. As an indignant Scotch writer remarked, when reference was made in his hearing to the "rat plague" that might devastate the metropolis: "It is the Welsh plague, you mean."

In art the Cymru is coming to the front. There are a score of Welsh artists in London, all earning good livings, who are practically self-taught.

In music the Welsh are too well known to need further eulogy, but it is especially in dramatic art that they should prove interesting.

The average Welshman has a natural "artistic" sense. It is this that has enabled David Lloyd-George to reach the heights he has. Although he is not a figurehead of English life or stature, yet he is a very notable and a very clever man, so the writer may be forgiven for mentioning that Mr. Lloyd-George appears to wonderful advantage in social ceremonies. But he should be heard speaking down in Wales among his own people. He is sometimes awkward in the House of Commons, but in Wales never, for he knows that the people, his people, are with him, and he rises to dramatic heights that would astonish the stranger who knew not Wales and its inhabitants.

His Master's Leg.

Lord Brassey, who has announced his conversion to votes for women, holds many unique records, one being that he is the only colonial governor whoever sailed to his colony in his own yacht—a feat which he successfully accomplished on his appointment as governor of Victoria.

After yachting, Lord Brassey's favorite recreation is cricket. On the magnificent grounds surrounding his beautiful Sussex seat matches are frequently played during the season.

Of one of these fights his lordship told a capital story. It appears that there was a scarcity of available talent, with the result that it was necessary to secure one of Lord Brassey's footmen as umpire. In due course his lordship himself went in, and a local bowler was put on. The second ball he stopped with his leg, and the cry was raised, "How's that?"

It was the footman who had to answer, and turning to his master, he exclaimed, in a half-apologetic tone, "I'm afraid I must say, 'Not at home,' your lordship."

"Not at home?" cried Lord Brassey. "What do you mean?"

"Well, then, if you will have it," the footman made answer, "I mean you are hout."

Coincidences of Dates.

Attention has often been called to the curious fact of the date Sept. 3 figuring so largely in the history of Oliver Cromwell. That very dominating man was born on Sept. 3, 1599; he won the battle of Dunbar Sept. 3, 1650; that of Worcester Sept. 3, 1651, and he died Sept. 3, 1658.

The number 88 had fatal influence on the Stuarts. Robert II., the first Stuart king, died in 1388; James II. was killed at the siege of Roxburghe castle, 1488; Mary, Queen of Scots was beheaded in Fotheringay, 1588 (new style); James VII. (II. of England) was dethroned in 1688; Bonny Prince Charlie died in Rome, 1788, and with him died the last hopes of the Jacobites.

Weight of Trains.

Lord Allerton has been commenting on the modern demand for conveniences and luxury of every kind in traveling, and he asks us to think what this means in the increase of the weight of trains. While a few years ago trains were of about 100 tons weight, we now had trains running at an average speed of fifty to sixty miles an hour—and weighing 300 or 350 tons.—Tit-Bits.

True men and women are all physicians to make us well.—C. A. Bartol.

A SULTAN'S SEVEN BEDS.

Abdul Hamid Changed His Sleeping Place Every Night.

An interesting reminiscence of Abdul Hamid, the former sultan of Turkey, who was known as Abdul the Accursed and by several other more or less unpleasant titles, is given in the description of a visit to Yildiz Kiosk by Colonel (Count) Gleichen in the Household Brigade Magazine.

"The house was a perfect labyrinth of small rooms," he writes. "In no fewer than seven of these rooms were beds on which the sultan used to sleep—not ordinary beds, but large couches, sloping at a considerable angle from the head end downward, so that, covered with a quilt or two, his majesty could sleep in a semi-upright condition and spring up at a moment's notice to be ready for anything.

"No one knew in which of the seven rooms the sultan was going to sleep, for he changed his resting place every night for fear of hidden dangers. Along the main passage which led past many of these rooms a most ingenious arrangement existed for giving warning of the approach of any one. The floor was composed of loose planks under the carpet, so that merely to walk along it started a clanking sound which must invariably have waked a light and nervous sleeper."

A Cheerful Liar.

One time the late ameer of Afghanistan asked the English diplomatic agent at his court to give a description amid a circle of Afghan boys of the largest gun in England. The Englishman described the 100 ton gun, and when he had finished the ameer observed to his admiring subjects, "I have seen a gun the cartridge of which was as large as the gun which has just been described to you." It would never do for an ameer to be astonished, much less to confess himself beaten.

BITS OF NEWS FROM BRITAIN

Death of the "Father" of the London Stock Exchange—Woman Swims Twelve Miles

The New South Wales marriage rate has greatly increased during the last five years. In 1910 the rate was equal to 8.15 per 1,000, the highest since 1900.

Thirty Knots an Hour

The Ferret, the new British 27-knot ocean-going destroyer, attained a speed of thirty knots an hour on an eight hours' official speed trial at Skerness.

Volcanic Eruption in Japan

It is feared that thirty mountain climbers, including several Europeans, have lost their lives in an eruption of Asama-yama, the largest and most active Japanese volcano.

Member for 66 Years

The death is announced of Mr. John Norbury, "Father" of the London Stock Exchange. He was eighty-seven years of age, and had been a member of the House for sixty-five years.

Boy Saves Two Lives

George Lewis, aged thirteen, of Montpelier, Bristol, jumped into the River Frome, at Bristol, and rescued Alice Rock, aged eight, and her brother, aged ten, from drowning.

Ravages by Cormorants

A reward of 50 cents is being offered for each cormorant shot on the Tweed, which is in such a low state that the trout become an easy prey for the rapacious sea birds.

Krupp's Muzzle Loader

Krupp's have just delivered their 80,000th cannon to the German War Office. The first order the famous Essen factory received from the military authorities was for a muzzle-loading three-pounder, made in 1847.

Wrecked G.W.R. Steamer

The Great Western Railway steamer Roebuck, which went ashore off Corbière, Jersey, was safely towed to St. Helier harbor, where she will be patched up to allow her to come home under her own steam.

Cultivation of Cocoanuts

Ten thousand acres of land have been granted by the Government of Selangor for the cultivation of cocoanuts. At present there are about 60,000 to 80,000 acres under cultivation in the Straits Settlements.

Chance for Clever Town-Planner

The Government of the Commonwealth of Australia is offering prizes for designs for the laying out of the Federal Capital City, the site for which was chosen recently. The first prize is $5,750, the second $3,750, and the third $2,500.

Member of 1847 Parliament

Mr. Francis Richard Wagg Prosser, who was believed to be the last survivor of the Parliament of 1847, has passed away, at the age of eighty-seven. Mr. Prosser represented Herefordshire in the House of Commons from 1847 to 1852.

Cost of Old Age Pensions

It is announced that the average weekly number of people in receipt of old age pensions during the first six months of 1911 was 901,605. The estimated cost of old age pensions in 1911-12 is $61,800,000, exclusive of expenses of administration.

Rival Beggars Fall Out

A Berlin beggar who stated on his board that he was blind, lame, and a nervous wreck, has been arrested for assaulting a beggar who stood on the other side of the road with a board on which was written the words, "Only Blind."

Parliamentary Figure Passes

The death is announced of Collins, the head waiter of the House of Commons members' smoking-room, for many years a general favorite with all M.P.'s who used the room. Mr. Lloyd George once declared that he was the best-informed person in the House.

From the Sultan to the Begum

The Sultan of Turkey has presented the Begum of Bacsal with a gold inlaid hand-glass and some valuable silk carpets from the Hereke looms. The sons of the Begum and her suite have also received souvenirs from His Majesty.

Automatic Saving Machines

One of the latest examples of Government enterprise is the setting up by the Hungarian Post Office of automatic saving machines in the main streets of Buda-Pest, the investor receiving a ticket recording the amount saved, which can be exchanged for cash at any time.

Death of a Famous Shot

Dr. John Sellars, coroner and medical officer at Dundalk, who was a familiar figure at the N.R.A. meetings at Wimbledon and Bisley, died last week in a private hospital in Dublin. For several years he was the Irish champion, in addition to being a winner of the Lord Lieutenant's prize.

Too Old at Twenty-one

The battleship Nile, which was built at Pembroke Dockyard twenty-one years ago at a cost of $3,000,000, is now to be sold out of the service as obsolete. The destroyers Ardent, Daring, and Spitfire, and the old surveying vessels Egeria and Stork, are also to be disposed of.

Ebb and Flow of Aliens

For the three months ended June last the total number of aliens who landed in the United Kingdom from ports in Europe and the Mediterranean Sea was 128,233, of whom 28,975 were transmigrants; while those who left for European and Mediterranean ports numbered 104,350.

Imprisoned Troops Rebel

Partly owing to a scarcity of water at Fort Malgue, Toulon, the soldiers imprisoned there as the result of a recent breach of discipline have become rebellious, and after singing revolutionary songs attacked the warders, several of whom were wounded. The arrival of other troops quelled the disturbance.

You Should Tremble And Shudder

When an unscrupulous druggist offers you a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.

If you are suddenly attacked by DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, SUMMER COMPLAINT, or any LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS, do not experiment with some new and untried remedy, but get one that has stood the test of time.

For 66 years this wonderful medicine has been used in thousands of homes in Canada, and has given universal satisfaction. When you want a bottle of "Dr. Fowler's," insist on being given what you ask for, as these no-name, no-reputation preparations may be dangerous to your health.

Mr. J. Castle, Totenka, Man., writes: "Just a word in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I used last summer for Cramps in the Stomach and Diarrhoea. I was very sick for a week and not able to do anything until I purchased a bottle of the above remedy, and after three or four doses I was as well as ever."

The price is 35 cents per bottle. See that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the label, as we are the manufacturers and sole proprietors of this remedy.

FROM GREAT MINDS

Dr. Grenfell:—A telegram is a miracle, only we've got used to it.

Arnold Bennett:—Happiness cannot be the gift of any legislator or social reformer.

Dr. Simon Flexner:—A healthy mind in a healthy body is a short but complete statement of happiness.

Lady Grey:—Everybody knows exactly how children ought to behave—especially when they are other people's children.

Upton Sinclair:—Most of the so-called philanthropic and charitable organizations are founded on an entirely wrong basis.

Premier McBride:—Educational expenditure, if it is made in the right spirit and at the right time, is the best of all human investments.

Right Hon. A. J. Balfour:—The world is improving, because each generation in its turn deals with and solves the problems which are presented to it.

Will Irwin:—At the back of men's unjust judgments lie two evil tendencies—a readiness to believe the worst and an eagerness to hear the worst.

Sir A. Conan Doyle:—A man who spends his money in beer and other things, when he might have devoted it to purchasing a little library, is a fool.

Mr. Roosevelt:—Don't you ever imagine that you can invent any patent system of government which will work by itself if you don't act the part of good citizens.

Right Hon. James Bryce:—If any combination of statesmen could remove the suspicion which exists between nations it would confer the greatest possible boon upon all.

TURN THE IDEA AROUND

A little thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends on the way other people bear themselves towards you. The looks and tones at your breakfast table, the conduct of your fellow workers or employers, the faithful or unreliable men you deal with, what people say to you on the street, the way your cook and housemaid do their work, the letters you get, the friends or foes you meet—these things make up very much of the pleasure or misery of your day. Turn the idea around, and remember that just so much are you adding to the pleasure or the misery of other people's days. And this is the half of the matter which you can control. Whether any particular day shall bring to you more of happiness or of suffering is largely beyond your power to determine. Whether each day of your life shall give happiness or suffering rests with yourself.—Onward.

MUTINY ON TORPEDO BOATS

A mutiny of the crews of the French torpedo flotilla took place at Cherbourg. The men complained of overwork and unjust punishment, and some 200, including petty officers, had been confined to their vessels. A hostile demonstration has been made against one of the officers.

Blood Drawn in a Duel

Count Joseph Karolyi and Count Sternberg met in mortal combat at Presburg, and blood was drawn. In the first encounter Count Sternberg was struck with the flat of the sword. In the second round Count Karolyi was cut on the left ear, while his opponent was wounded on the head and breast.

THE CLEVER INDIAN

How He Made Himself Numerous and Effected His Escape

A member of the Canadian Mounted Police tells a good story of the cleverness of an Indian. One snowy morning a band of Crees awoke to find that about a dozen of their ponies had been stolen during the night. Pursuit was immediately organized, and in the course of an hour the trail was struck. The band followed it for thirty miles or more, till it entered a river, and headed for a little wooded island.

Smoke was rising from the trees, and an opening, apparently the mouth of a cave, was in plain view. Presently a Piegan Indian showed himself in front of the opening. He was in war-paint, and at his heels was a dog.

Pretty soon the dog scented the Crees, who were lying low, and began growling and barking. The Piegan looked up, glimpsed about him a moment, and then instantly entered the cave. In about ten seconds apother Piegan came around the rocks and also went in; then another, and another, and another. The Crees lay silently in the bushes, counting, till upwards of fifty Piegans had come around the rocks and gone into the cave, and still they kept coming. Each carried a rifle.

When at least seventy men had disappeared in the cave, the superstitious and cautious Crees concluded that the evil spirit had something to do with it. So thoroughly were they filled with this idea, that even when reinforcements arrived, which was in a few hours, they were reluctant to attack the island.

That night, however, some Crees, less credulous than the others, crossed over the ice to investigate. On approaching the supposed cave, he found that it was no cave at all, but simply an opening leading some ten feet into the rock, where it made a turn and came out on the other side.

There was the remnants of a single camp-fire, the ponies were gone, and not an Indian was in sight. The clever Piegan thief, by making the circuit of the passage and the end of the island seventy times, had so deceived his pursuers as to gain the time necessary for his escape.

DAIRY HINTS

A cow should be at her best from five to seven years of age.

Harsh treatment, dogging and abuse invariably decreases the milk supply.

Whey pasteurized or fresh is worth seven cents per one hundred pounds as a food.

There is not a first-class cheese or a pound of fine butter made from inferior milk.

Milking with wet hands is a menace to good health, and milk can never be kept clean.

Stagnant water or filth of any kind in the pasture or vicinity of stables will taint the milk.

Too high temperature causes the butter to come in lumps of a soft nature instead of in form granular kernels.

There is no reason why farm butter should not be as valuable as the best creamery butter if made under right conditions.

Pure milk can be obtained only through healthy cows, pure feed, pure water, pure air, and sanitary methods of handling.

A coating of whitewash on the stable walls is of inestimable value to the health of the cows and the purity of the milk supply.

A silo is absolutely necessary to the economic production of milk on a large scale. Thousands of successful dairymen have proved this. It is no longer an experiment.

Salt should always be available to cows. Its use increases the digestibility of the food, the amount of water consumed, and hence the flow of milk is increased also.—Canadian Farm.

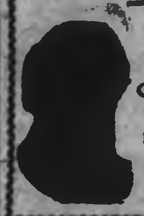
PEOPLE'S PULPIT.



Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

SALVATION FREE TO ALL MANKIND

Every Sinner Will Yet Have Full Opportunity to Return to Divine Favor.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., Sept. 3.—Although this is an after-season for the Camp Meetings, Chautauqua and other gatherings here, the after-season Convention of the International Bible Students now in session outshines all the in-season Assemblies of many years

During the ten days of the Convention addresses will be given by sixty ministers and instructors of the Association. The teachings are interdenominational, unsectarian. Pastor Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle, and now also of London Tabernacle, is the President of the Association. His was the principle address of today. The auditorium was crowded. Probably in compliment to Methodists, Pastor Russell took for his text what he claimed was John Wesley's favorite—"And the Spirit and the Bride say, Come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Revelation xxii, 17). He said:

Our Methodist friends who own this spacious Auditorium have generally forgotten the special teachings of Brother Wesley, who brought them to the front of his denomination at a time when Calvin's theory of the election of saints to glory and the predestination of all others to eternal torture was the basic thought of Protestantism. Brother Wesley's voice rang out clear and full—"I cannot believe that God predestinated to eternal torture the masses of mankind before they were born. I must believe that God is Love and that His love and His justice would give to every sinner a full opportunity for return to Divine favor and to everlasting life through Christ. Brother Calvin, indeed, has certain Scriptures difficult to apply, respecting election and the elect, but I have one Scripture at least which tells of a freedom of Divine grace. The 'river of the water of life' is not declared to be for the elect, but for 'whosoever will.' I take my stand upon that text."

Brother Wesley's battle-cry—"God is Love and will surely give every member of Adam's race an opportunity for eternal life through Christ"—has come ringing down to our day. And although Christians have become sick and tired of their endeavor to harmonize the doctrines of Election and Free Grace and are now trying to forget doctrines altogether, nevertheless John Wesley's theory has overwhelmed John Calvin's. The vast majority of Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists, etc., professing Calvin's tenets, really believe Wesley's—that God is Love and will surely give every member of our race a full opportunity for salvation, and that He predestinated none of them to eternal torture.

There are elements of truth in both theories, as we now see: "The path of the just is as the shining light, which shineth more and more—unto the perfect day." We are nearing the perfect day, and hence should understand the Bible better than did our forefathers, who did not have the wonderful Bibles Christians now possess, with marginal references, concordances and other helps! Ability to read also is universal today. Oh, what manner of Bible students we should be! Many Christians, however, discouraged by the inconsistencies and contradictions of the various creeds, Catholic and Protestant, have abandoned their creeds and abandoned their Bibles also, erroneously believing the latter to be the basis of the former. We must not share this mistake. While doing all in our power to remove all the creed fences which divide God's people into sects and parties, let us hold fast to the Bible, the most wonderful Book in the world. It is only beginning to be understood; its true light is shining to-day as never before. We are in the time mentioned by the Prophet, when the "wise shall understand" (Daniel xii, 10).

Brother Calvin was right in part—to the extent that he was in harmony with the Bible, which teaches us to strive to fulfil our Covenant with the Lord, that thus we may "make our calling and election sure." It does not teach the predestination which Calvin taught and which Wesley objected to—the predestination of the wicked to an eternity of torture. The only predestination mentioned in the Bible is connected with the Church, the saints. God predestinated that none could be of the Church class, the Bride class, except such as would become copies of His Son, the Redeemer. That predestination stands unalterable, but it has no effect upon others than the elect. It merely says that none except the saintly shall participate in the election. It says not one word about the fate of the non-elect. Read Romans viii, 28-30 and you will see this for yourself. To this, the Scriptural predestination, none can object. It is the unscriptural deductions which have caused us difficulty.

Brother Wesley was in exact accord with the Bible in his declaration that every member of our race must have a share in the grace of God in Christ. However, what Brother Wesley did not see was that the great Plan of the Ages is not confined to one century nor to one Age. He did not see that, while this Gospel Age is exclusively devoted to the selection of the Church class, invited to be "the Bride, the Lamb's Wife," there is a coming Age in which Christ and His glorified Bride will extend Divine mercy to the non-elect.

The key to the mystery is expressed in the Apostle's words, "in due time." Our great Creator need not be in haste. He has all eternity before Him. He allowed four thousand years to pass before He sent His Son to redeem the world and He has since taken nearly two thousand years in the selection of our Lord's elect Bride. He has appointed an additional thousand in which Jesus and His Bride, the glorified Church, will establish a reign of righteousness in the earth for the overthrow of sin and the uplifting of the sinners. Socially? Yes. Physically? Yes. Morally? Yes. Intellectually? Yes. Out of sin and death? Yes. Back to harmony with God if they will? Yes! No freer grace is imaginable than that which the Almighty has provided through the Saviour. Of it St. Paul declares, "God wills to have all men to be saved and to be brought to a knowledge of the Truth." To this end He has appointed one Mediator, "who gave Himself a Ransom for all, to be testified in due time" (I. Timothy ii, 4-6).

The "due time" for the Gospel call dates from Pentecost. But it is not a call for the world, but for a special class, the Bride class, to walk sacrificially in the footsteps of Jesus and to gain the great reward of joint-heirship with Him in His Kingdom. The "due time" for this work will soon be at an end—when the last probationary member of the Church shall have made his calling and election sure and when the "door into the marriage" shall shut. But the due time for the masses of mankind to hear of His grace and to respond thereto is still future, as Brother Wesley's favorite text will show us.

Before examining His text we will note the fact that three-fourths of the human family to-day are heathen in the most absolute sense of the word and many of the other fourth are heathen in a truthful sense. Why do they not see the grace of God in Christ? St. Paul answers: "Because the god of this world hath blinded their minds," because "darkness covers the earth and gross darkness the people" (I. Corinthians iv, 4; Isaiah lx, 2).

But why does God not scatter the darkness and open all the blind eyes and unstop the deaf ears? We answer, because, although He has promised to do these very things, His due time for their accomplishment is not yet come. He merely calls His elect during this dark time, requiring them to prove their worthiness by walking faithfully in the dark: "We walk by faith and not by sight."

With the completion of the elect Church at the coming of the Redeemer—after the marriage, when she will be the Bride—then both Bridegroom and Bride will shine forth in glory, scattering all the darkness, ignorance and superstition of the world. Satan, the Prince of Darkness, will be bound and every evil thing shall be restrained and the light of the knowledge of glory of God shall fill the earth; all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped. What will be the result? God's Word answers, that then "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God."

Brother Wesley's loving heart found and tightly grasped the declaration, "And the Spirit and the Bride say, Come; and let him that heareth say, Come; and let him that is athirst come; and whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Revelation xxii, 17). This text, however, belongs to the coming Age, to the time when Messiah shall reign: "For He must reign until He hath put all enemies under His feet" (I. Corinthians xv, 25-29). There is no Bride yet to say, "Come."

We are glad of this, glad that it is still possible for us to become members of that Bride class which must "make herself ready" for the marriage and be forever united to the Lord as His Bride at His second coming. Then by the marriage she become the Redeemer's joint-heir to glory, honor and immortality in the Kingdom. Then she, in co-operation with the Spirit of the Lord, will say, "Come," to whosoever wills to come of Adam's race. Everyone will say, "Come"; there will be a world wide invitation. All the blind eyes shall be opened to see the waters of life; all the deaf ears shall be unstopped to hear the gracious favor of God's love in Christ.

But as there is no Bride yet to say, "Come," neither is there any "river of the water of life" yet to invite them to. There will be no such river until after the establishment of the Kingdom for which the Master taught us to pray, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." Jesus explains that in the present time His followers do not go to the rivers of the water of life to drink; but, on the contrary, he says, "The water that I shall give him will be in him, a well of water springing up unto everlasting life" (John iv, 14).

The Church in her glorified condition after the "change" of the First Resurrection, after becoming the Bride, is symbolically represented as a City, as a Government—the capital of God's Kingdom, the New Jerusalem, which will then come to, or be established in, the earth—not a literal city, but, better, a symbolical one, of the Kingdom. It will be from under the Throne of that New Jerusalem, the Messianic Kingdom, that the "river of the water of life will flow, clear as crystal." On either bank of the symbolical river will be trees of life, whose leaves will be for the healing of the nations. Then will be their "due time" to come to a knowledge of the Truth that God loved them and did not predestinate them to eternal torture, nor to purgatorial suffering, but sent His Son to die for them—to pay their death penalty and thus to make possible their restitution to Divine favor (Acts iii, 19-21) and to all the earthly blessings, privileges and rights originally given to Father Adam—lost by his disobedience and redeemed at Calvary.

My dear friends, here we have the grandest and broadest Free Grace possible to be imagined, in connection with our Heavenly Father and His great salvation provided in Christ. As every creature shares in Father Adam's imperfection and dying conditions, so each one is to share in the merit of Christ's righteousness and sacrificial death; it shall be "testified to all in due time." There will be stripes, lessons, instructions, but they will all be corrective—with a view to the reformation and the regeneration of Adam and his race as human beings—not as spirit beings, not as angels; Adam and his race never were such. Only the Church has been begotten of the Holy Spirit to a spirit nature; only the Church will share in the resurrection to spirit conditions and be thus "like unto the angels."

These two salvations, now of the elect, and during Messiah's reign of the non-elect, do not imply a universal salvation of our race, but merely a universal opportunity for everlasting life. The Scriptures most clearly teach a Second Death, like the first death, except that none will be redeemed from the Second Death, and none will be resurrected from it. It therefore will be, as St. Paul declares, an "everlasting destruction" (II. Thessalonians i, 9). As St. Peter declares, the wilful sinners against light and knowledge will perish, "like natural brute beasts."

The lessons from these great truths of the Bible are powerful. They make plain to us that none can hope to be of the heavenly class, of the Bride of Christ, except such as enter the strait gate and narrow way—the saints, the faithful unto death. They teach us also, in harmony with other Scriptures, that those who now either see not and hear not, or who see and hear imperfectly, will miss this great "prize of our high calling." Nevertheless for these, heathen and others, God has provided more than they could have thought or asked—an opportunity for obtaining human perfection and a world wide Eden—Paradise restored. It teaches, also, that every misstep, every failure to do our best, is costly—both to the world and to ourselves. To whatever extent the world demeans and degrades itself, it will have, in proportion, difficulty and stripes in connection with the possibilities and opportunities of recovery during Messiah's Kingdom.

Let us herald wide the story of the grace of God in Christ for every creature; let us show the love of God to all who have the eyes and ears of appreciation. There is no greater influence for righteousness than this—The love of God and the love of Christ constraineth us (II. Corinthians v, 14). And in proportion as mankind receive the same their constraints toward righteousness increase. Thus, with clearer light upon our Father's Word, it is time for us all to cast aside the things of darkness and sectarianism which so long have separated the people of God from each other.

The lesson to the Church is gratitude, loyalty, faithfulness to Him who called her out of darkness to the high calling of joint-heirship with the Redeemer. "The Bride, the Lamb's Wife," is to make herself ready by putting on the fruits and graces of the Holy Spirit and being renewed and transformed.

The lesson to the world yet is only to those who, to some extent, hear it—that God is Love, that His mercy has provided a great opportunity for restitution that is nigh at hand; and further, the lesson is that every good and every evil deed will make their impression upon human character and have to do with the stripes, corrections, etc., of the future. Misimproved opportunities in the present life, violations of conscience, etc., will bring their reasonable retribution in the life to come and make the ascent more tedious and more difficult. On the contrary, every good endeavor and attainment of self-control will be that much of an assistance for the future, when "the Spirit and the Bride shall say, Come, and whosoever will may come and take of the water of life freely" and obtain perfection and everlasting life.

I trust that true Christian unity upon the basis of Divine Truth expressed in the Bible will be the keynote of this Convention to its very close. I trust that every soul in attendance may be so warmed and cheered and vivified by the Truth and its spirit that, going to his home, the blessing may be extended in overflowing measure.

TURNBULL'S

THE HOUSE THAT VALUE BUILT

LEADER DROPS DEAD.

Death of Toronto Unionist Mars Great Parade.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—Five thousand men marching with jaunty step through Toronto's crowded streets yesterday morning showed just why this particular day of all the 365 on the calendar should be denoted Labor Day. It was a great demonstration of the might and dignity of the organized workers of the city, and remarks upon the stalwart well-dressed and entirely prosperous appearance of the marchers were freely made. The occasion was one which symbolized a year of great industrial advancement, in which the workers have shared, and the comparative absence of clashes between employer and employed.

It is estimated that 200,000 people viewed the parade on the route from Queen's Park by way of University avenue, Queen and Dufferin streets to the grounds, and there was manifest public satisfaction over the revival of the event.

On the whole it could not be considered otherwise than a grand success and worthy of all praise. The men marched well—that is for amateurs. It was a long march and they were not quite so accustomed to the feet as trained soldiers.

Thomas C. Vodden, 45 years, 137 First avenue, financial secretary of Toronto Typographical Union, No. 91, collapsed opposite 96 West Queen street yesterday morning while walking in the parade and died on the way to St. Michael's in the police ambulance. The body was removed to the morgue.

Labor Day in Hamilton.

Hamilton, Sept. 5.—The Labor Day celebration at Dundurn Park yesterday was a great success, and a big crowd witnessed the fine program of sports arranged by the celebration committee. Every event on the program was well filled and several of the races had to be run on relays. A clear, warm day added to the enjoyment of the festivities.

BIG CONVENTION.

British Labor Union Leaders In Important Session.

Newcastle, Eng., Sept. 5.—There is an unusually widespread interest in the annual meeting of the Trades Union Congress, which opened here yesterday. Five hundred and fifty-four delegates were present, representing 1,867,000 members, which is considerably in excess of anything heretofore known in the deliberations of labor.

Parliament is bound to be largely influenced by the upheavals during the last couple of months in the labor world, and President Mullin gave the delegates a lead in his presidential address. He claimed that the workers had won hitherto denied advances in wages and other advantages by the recent unrest, and the long-drawn agony of arbitration, he intimated, had about reached its limit. He denounced the railroads' policy of non-recognition of the unions and sharply criticised the Government for employing soldiers for strike duty. "Instead of laying down the law to commercial magnates, whose high-handed autocracy had involved public suffering and would not easily be forgotten."

The congress has a week of heavy work before it. One of the larger proposals to be considered is the fusion of the various organizations into one grand federation, to be called the labor congress, with the object of better furthering the solidarity of labor, and for the purpose of more speedily introducing drastic improvements in the labor world.

Girl Washed Overboard.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 5.—Reports of the drowning of Mary Morgan, 8 fourteen-year-old girl passenger, and Arthur Ballantine, third officer of the vessel, who went to her assistance when she was washed overboard, were brought in by the steamer Pretorian, which arrived here from Liverpool late Saturday.

The Pretorian ran into a hurricane Wednesday and during the blow the girl was washed overboard. Although the accident was not witnessed by anyone of the remaining members of the crew, it is thought that Ballantine dived over after the girl in the hope of saving here. Miss Morgan was on her way to this city with her mother to meet her father.

Two other passengers were knocked down by the rolling of the ship in the storm and were badly hurt.

French Aviator Killed.

Chartres, France, Sept. 5.—The French aviator, Maron, was killed near here Saturday night. He was observed flying over the city, where he was to have participated in an aviation meet yesterday. Later came the news of a fatal accident to the aviator six miles away.

When seen Maron was flying fast at a height of about 600 feet. His motor failed and he attempted to plane to the earth. He dropped 200 feet and then the machine capsized. The aviator's chest was crushed in by the steering lever. He received other serious injuries and was dead when the peasants found him.

Balloonist Drowned.

Charlotte, N.C., Sept. 5.—After making a balloon ascension at Lakewood Park, a pleasure resort near here Saturday night, and making a fireworks display from the car, R. C. Brown, a daring young aeronaut of Michigan, fell with his parachute into a shallow artificial lake and was drowned before assistance could be given to him. A large crowd of people who gathered to witness the display saw the aeronaut drown, but were helpless to save him.

Amateur Birdman Fatally Hurt.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Alex. McLeod, 28 years old, of Winnipeg, a pupil at a Chicago school of aviation, was probably fatally injured yesterday when he fell from an aeroplane in which he was flying at a practice field in West Pullman. His neck was broken.

To Succeed Harwood?

Montreal, Sept. 5.—It is stated here on good authority that Hon. Charles Marcil, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons, will be appointed postmaster of Montreal after the election, replacing the late Mr Harwood.

SPLENDID RALLY HELD IN MR. STRATTON'S INTERESTS

Meeting in Committee Rooms on Saturday Evening Was One of the Most Successful in the Campaign--Stirring Remarks of the Speakers Were Received With Unbounded Enthusiasm From the Big Gathering and Victory of Reciprocity Candidate is Assured.

It was the workingman, the oppressed person, known as the average consumer, who got his at the Stratton rally Saturday night. All the speeches bore more or less on the reduced cost of living that would result from reciprocity. The saving was stated at $2.50 a week in a table expenditure of eleven dollars.

The speeches were over by ten o'clock so as to give the workingman a chance to do any shopping he might have to do. The addresses were short, sharp and to the point and as usual there was great enthusiasm. It was a good rally from the drop of the hat.

Chairman E. R. Hall prophesied an old time majority for J. R. Stratton. "We'll all be whistling on Sept. 21" he said.

Then for fifteen minutes Chairman Hall dwelt on cheese and potatoes. He showed how a few men constituting the Cheese Board in Peterborough bought up the product of the whole county at from 10 to 11 cents a pound. The merchant could not buy in large quantities because he hadn't the cold storage facilities to handle it, so most of the Canadian cheese went to a firm of large buyers in Toronto, Montreal and Halifax, who controlled the market and fixed the price from 18 to 22 cents a pound. The Canadian cheese producer couldn't ship to the United States because there was a duty of 6 cents a pound against him, and the Canadian cheese consumer couldn't buy United States cheese because there was a duty of 3 cents a pound against it.

"And there you are," said Mr. Hall. "The producer and the consumer get soaked to the limit and the food monopolist in the middle gets the profit. The same argument applies to all other perishable commodities, especially cold storage commodities such as fruit, butter and eggs."

Points On Potatoes.

Chairman Hall then passed to potatoes. Potatoes are the backbone of many a meal. Where they're not the backbone they're used as a filler. Everybody eats potatoes—some of us three times a day. Potatoes can be cooked in two hundred and fifty different ways and no one knows how much he appreciates potatoes until he can't get any.

"My wife," said Chairman Hall, "went into four shops in Peterborough to buy potatoes and couldn't get any. I tried to buy some from a farmer. He told me that he hadn't any and had to buy potatoes himself because the crop was a failure. Potatoes which should be perhaps a dollar a barrel, are $2.40 a barrel—forty cents a peck, just because there is a shortage.

"One of the benefits of reciprocity" went on Mr. Hall, "is that it's going to correct just this sort of thing. When there is a shortage in one country there will be plenty in the other. The idea in mixed farming is not to be dependent on any one product. If one crop is short, the other is heavy and things come out all right. Reciprocity in natural products is just that idea on an international scale. The climates of the two countries will supplement each other."

"If the duty of 30 cents a bushel on United States potatoes and of 20 cents a bushel on Canadain potatoes was wiped out, see how it would help in a case like this. The consumer is bound to be a winner, wherever food taxes are removed. With potatoes on the free list, New Brunswick would be stimulated to grow more potatoes for the United States market and would have, in consequence, a bigger available surplus product to ship here in a pinch. Then there's the big stretches of light, sandy soil in New Ontario which are specially adapted for growing potatoes. If we had a United States market there would be potato ranches all along the north shore of Lake Superior and who will deny that it would ensenld Ontario to be able to get a plentiful supply of good potatoes from such a nearby source. The Ontario workingman has to pay too much for his potatoes because we don't grow enough of them. The best potatoes in Ontario come from Muskoka and sections further north, but they are nearly all used for seed. One of the blessings of reciprocity is that it's going to increase the Ontario output of potatoes."

Rolling the Old Chariot Along.

Contractor T. J. Hartley, who has always been the friend of the workingman, was satisfied with the record of the Laurier Government. When the Liberals came in in 1896 Sir Charles Tupper said: "I give them three months. They'll never be able to handle Canada."

"Well," said Mr. Hartley, "that was fifteen years ago and they've been handling it ever since. It reminds me of of the old fellow who had never seen a locomotive before. At first he said, "It's too big to start." But after it got going he said, "It's too big to stop." The Laurier Government is too big to stop. I am content to let well enough alone. We can't send a better representative to Ottawa than J. R. Stratton. We have proved him in the past and we can trust him in the future.

A Manufacturer's Testimony.

Mr. George G. Gladman drew from a previous experience of twenty-five years in the lumbering business to show that reciprocity couldn't hurt that industry.

"All the time I was in the business," said Mr. Gladman, "we had to face a heavy duty in our products going into the United States and we didn't have any protection in return. But the lumbermen didn't lose money. We made money. If they could do that against a duty, they can do better with the duty removed. It's going to bring into the market a lot of lumber not now available."

"Somebody said to me the other day, you shouldn't be a Liberal. You're a manufacturer."

"What's that got to do with it?" I asked

"Well, these reciprocity schedules are the thin end of the wedge."

"Reciprocity doesn't hurt us," I replied, "and we have Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding's promise that the tariff on manufactures is not to be touched. I'm quite willing to trust men like that when they tell me they're not going to do it."

Mr. Gladman has just returned from a month's trip in Quebec.

"It's all rot," he said, "about Laurier losing his grip down there. I made it my business to find out. He's going to have just as big a majority in Yuebec if not bigger. And I don't think he's going to lose anything in Ontario either.

Mr. Alexander Macgregor saw nothing but good in reciprocity in natural products because the seasons of the two countries made it an admiral arrangement of give and take which benefitted producer and consumer alike. No aggregation of capital could get ahead of nature, working on a continental scale.

"And what's more," said Mr. Macgegor, "it doesn't interfere with the manufacturers. We're going to con*tinue producing manufacures* because we need them. What we want to do in Canada is to develop our country to versatile effort. Manufacturing interests are too near and dear to Eastern Canada to think of injuring them a whit."

Sir John's Historic Policy.

Mr. Macgregor remembered the speech Sir John Macdonald made in the Academy of Music in Toronto in the election of 1896.

"What he wanted," said Mr. Macgregor, "was just the kind of reciprocity we are getting now. Reciprocity is not a new idea. We had it once from 1854 to 1866. The record is that the bargain was twenty to one in Canada's favour. Lord Elgin, who was a Conservative if he was anything, went to Washington to urge the treaty of 1854. There had been a great deal of disloyalty and discontent before 1854 and a Montreal man had gone so far as to rotten-egg the Governor-General. Wise statesman that he was, he saw that the disloyalty and discontent was caused by her business conditions and reciprocity wah the means he took to allay it. It worked like a charm. Far from bringing on annexation it put it out of the question and drew Canada closer to the Mother country. And when it was taken away in 1866 the net result was Confederation. Reciprocity left us nothing but blessings."

"Why," Mr. Macgregor asked, "do the Conservatives want to turn their backs on Sir John Macdonald's historic policy? He strove for reciprocity all his life. It's true that the United States has turned us down many times. We asked for bread and they gave us the Dingley Bill and the Payne-Aldrich tariff. But let the dead past bury its dead. We needn't turn sour because we didn't get it before. We've got the chance to get it now. Don't let it slip."

Pot Boiler Patriots.

"Who cares why the election was brought on, so long as it was brought on," asked Mr. Mcgregor. "It it's a shrewd move on the part of the Liberals to do something the country will approve, it's only human nature. Party rancour should blind nobody to the benefits of an improved business policy. Who cares if it's a touch of free trade? A good fiscal policy is like eclectic medicine. It is a moderate application of different ideas. It takes a good thing wherever it can get it."

"For my part," said Mr. Macgregor, "if I were a Conservative, I would prefer to follow the good old flag of Sir John Macdonald, who said, "a British subject I was born and a British subject I will die" than I would the eighteen millionaires of Toronto, the eighteen pot-boiler patriots, whose interests scream annexation, when they think their pockets will be touched."

Mr. Macgregor dealt at some length with the unholy Borden-Bourassa alliance in Quebec.

"You will not say that Kipling is not an Imperialist. He wrote of Canada, "Daughter am I in my mother's house, but mistress in mine own." That's exactly the policy Sir Wilfrid Laurier stands for.

"Premier Asquith has called Sir Wilfrid Laurier the first statesman of Greater Britain. Lloyd-George calls the reciprocity policy crystallized common sense. The Nottingham Express speaks of him as one of the greatest forces for amalgamation in the British Empire. The London Times approves of reciprocity because a wealthy and prosperous Canada is a better member of the Empire than a depressed and unhappy one. Mr. George A. Foster in his University Magazine says of reciprocity from 1854 to 1866: "It benefitted both countries." Which shows the difference between Foster the essayist and Foster the politician."

"I think we can safely confide in the Laurier government and vote for reciprocity in the assurance that it makes for the unity and strength of the Empire, as well as for the benefit of Canada."

The Candidate Speaks.

Mr. G. R. Stratton was greeted with prolonged cheers. He congratulated the rally on the splendid meeting of last Thursday in the Opera House.

"I think," said Mr. Stratton, "that it has cleared the air. The people understand more about the issues now."

It being the last week-night before Labour Day, Mr. Stratton took Labour Day as his text.

"You're all going out on strike on Monday. You're going to quit work for Labour Day. And we're all going to join with you in the strike, and we want the strike to be as pleasant and agreeable as possible. So we want you to remember just a few things the Liberal government has done for the working man."

A White Man's Country.

"Remember," said Mr. Stratton, "that the present government has always stood by the unions and tried to make this a white man's country."

"The Liberal government," Mr. Stratton continued, "has always been war m to the working man. If it hadn't been it would not be living up to its reputation as the party of the people. The Liberal government has given special consideration to labour by creating a Department of Labour with a specially assigned Cabinet Minister. This Cabinet Minister is the grandson of a man who fought and endured many hardships to secure the rights of the people, William Lyons Mackenzie. The Hon. Mackenzie King is a highly practical humanitarian. He has studied labour conditions in Europe and the United States, as well as in Canada. Labour has in him more than an official; it has an enthusiast. The Labour Gazette is a useful feature of this department in keeping track of amendments to labour laws, causes and results of strikes, accidents, rates of wages, hours of labour, cost of living, food prices, court decisions affecting labour —of everything in fact, that can interest, inform and keep up to date the Canadian workingman."

The Last of the Sweating System.

"Perhaps," said Mr. Stratton, "you have not heard of the sweating system which the sub-contractors for mounted police and militia uniforms were using. Women and girls worked for ten hours a day in stuffy shops for three cents an hour. Well, that was something the government had direct authority over, and so the government put a stop to that as soon as they found out about it. This work has to be done now under proper sanitary conditions, current wages have to be paid, and the hours of labour are specified. What's more, the principle was applied to all government interests. This is popularly known as the fair wages policy and it has a fair wages officer to enforce it."

"You mustn't forget," continued Mr. Stratton, "a powerful trinity of Acts of Parliament dealing with the prevention and settlement of labour disputes. They are (1) The Conciliation Act; (2) The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act; (3) The Railway Labour Disputes Act. The Conciliation Act, which has settled over fifty industrial disputes since it came in force, puts at the disposal of both parties to the differences if they are willing and ask for it, the government machinery for an impartial inquiry. We are all agreed that strikes and lock-outs are things to be avoided if possible, and if impossible, to be settled as quickly as may be, if capital is not to suffer, and if labour is not to eat up its savings in unemployment. The Conciliation Act proceeds on the assumption that both parties are anxious to get together. It has nipped many useless strikes in the bud and has saved perhaps a hundred thousand wage earners from bitter idleness."

"The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, better known by its short name, the Lemieux Act, is the logical expansion of the Conciliation Act. It provides that when any dispute connected with public utilities threatens to result in a strike or lockout, it shall be submitted to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation, appointed under the Act, before a strike is declared. Public utility industries are defined as those associated with the great agencies of transportation and communication, railroads, steamships, telegraphs, telephones, gas, electric light, water and power works and mining properties. The reason for this is, of course, because a strike or lockout in the case of a public utility involves not only loss to the employers and employed, but great inconvenience to the public at large."

Protecting the Working Man.

"The Railway Disputes Act, whose principle is really included in the larger scope of the Lemieux Act, authorizes inquiry into the causes of dispute between railways and their employees. As the railways get their charters from the people, the Act takes more upon itself in the way of intervening, than an Act dealing with private capital would be warranted in doing. The general inconvenience to the travelling public, and the mail service and the general dislocation of trade caused by a railway tie-up is in the nature of a national calamity.

"So much," said Mr. Stratton, "for the wise measures the government has taken to keep the workingman in work. What has it done to keep the other fellow, the cheap labour scum from Europe, the scabs and underbidders from the United States, the yellow and brown men from Asia, from crowding him out?"

"Well, there's the Alien Labour Act which prohibits the importation of Alien Labour under contract, the British Act, making it a criminal offence to get old country mechanics to come to Canada under false pretenses and those clauses of the Immigration Act which makes a Hindu show $200 before he can get in, the Jap $50, number limited, and the Chinaman pay a head tax of five hundred dollars. The five hundred dollar poll tax has practically barred the Chinaman, the Jap comes to us in constantly decreasing numbers because we have a treaty to that effect, and as for the Hindu he is a family man and he can't have his family with him, and the climate is against him, and so he has stopped coming."

Looking After Life and Limb.

"Having done its best to keep the workingman in work and to keep the foreigner from crowding him out, what has the government done to protect his health and safety while he is at work?" This was the next question Mr. Stratton asked.

"Well the government has composed regulations regarding the sanitary conditions of railway construction camps. They must have medical inspection, medical attendance and hospital and nursing attention wherever necessary. With two transcontinental lines in process of building and the three extending their branches, this is a very important measure of reform. Also it has amended the Railway Act so as to require all trains to be equipped with safety appliances, such as air brakes, automatic car couplers, proper outside ladders and hand grips for freight cars. A special officer of the Railway Commission reports on the causes of railway accidents and the Labour Department also keeps track of industrial accidents, whether on railways or in other classes of employment."

Lest We Forget.

"And I want you to remember," said Mr. Stratton, "that, whether it was in the Legislature or in the House, I always stood by the legislation for the working man. I have always recognized labour's rights. You know what side you will find me on. I want you to understand that labour has friends in the Liberal party. And what has the Conservative party done for the benefit of labour. I have looked through the books and all I can find is that you were given, after a great struggle, "Labour Day" that you may eNnjoy at your own expense. Which party is the mechanic going to support, which party has recognised labour—should there be any doubt in the mind of any workingman, how he should vote in this elect ion? I don't think so, said Mr. Stratton amidst ringing cheers. All over the country working men, labourer and producer, were joining hands in favour of the agreement. They now understand, he said, its true meaning, and there could be no doubt but that reciprocity would reduce the cost of living for the industrial classes.

The high prices, Mr. Stratton said, were unnatural and artificial. There were many food products that could be purchased across the line cheaper than here. Take the agreement, look it over, stop and think, and no workman will vote against it, when things are going to make life easier for the man with the family to support.

Reciprocity in natural products, Mr. Stratton concluded, was the only thing that would equalise and relieve the situation, and every workman and producer should support it with the manufacturer, for whatever assisted the mechanic and producer, helped the manufacturer. Your opportunity, gentlemen, may never come again. Do not miss it.

Loud applause greeted Mr. Stratton's closing remarks, which showed that the feeling of the great crowd present had been expressed.

The meeting closed with the usual cheers for the King and the candidate.

TWO YEARS ON A THEFT CHARGE

Herbert Hughes Convicted of Stealing Watch and $19 is Sentenced by Police Magistrate This Morning

HAS BAD RECORD

Herbert D. Hughes was sentenced to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary this morning. Hughes pleaded guilty of stealing a hand grip valued at $10 from Geo. McGowen. He was found guilty of stealing a gold watch and a sum of money last August 21st. On this charge judgment had been reserved, in order to find out what his record was like. It did not take long to do this; his record was a very bad one, showing twice in Central Prison for 6 months; two sentences of 60 days each in gaol; 1903, 6 months for shop lifting; 1909, 60 days in gaol, and several other sentences. Nearly all of these terms were served for theft.

The magistrate sentenced him to two years in the Central Prison, but the prisoner requested to have this changed to Kingston Penitentiary in order that he could learn a trade. The request was granted.

Two local men were fined $5.75 each for being drunk and disorderly on the 2nd inst. A third was fined $2 for being drunk.

A man, who was remanded on a charge of vagrancy a couple of weeks ago, got work in the C.G.E., and was let go.

A local man was charged with assault committed in September last. He was allowed to go.

WAS MOST SUCCESSFUL MEETING EVER HELD IN SOUTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP

Centreville Hall Crowded to the Doors Last Night With an Enthusiastic Audience Who Endorse Arguments in Favour of the Reciprocity Agreement---Mr. Stratton, Mr. Kelly and Mr. Hall Make Splendid Speeches.

The largest meeting for the discussion of public questions ever held in the township of South Monaghan greeted Mr. Stratton and Mr. Kelly, the candidate for East Durham, at Centreville on Monday evening. The spacious Sunday school of the Presbyterian church being filled to overflowing and many stood outside the entrance, being unable to obtain a seat.

Mr. Thomas Donaldson, ex-Warden of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, occupied the chair.

Mr. R. R. Hall opened the meeting with a splendid address. He took the proposed reciprocity agreement and thoroughly dissected it, showing first that it was of a tentative character and could be repealed at any time; secondly, that it did not interfere with the manufacturing industries, and thirdly, that it would be of the greatest possible advantage in stimulating trade and open markets to the producers. After thoroughly explaining the advantages to the agriculturalist he showed how the present duties collected on products imported would not take place, thereby leaving that sum in the consumers' pockets. The speaker pointed out how the middlemen, the canners and all the rest of them, would no longer be able to keep down the price at which the farmer sells to them and that they would no longer be able to keep up the price at which the consumer must buy. He showed conclusively how the food monopolists who have been able to play both ends for the benefit of themselves would have to be satisfied with more reasonable profit, which would be of advantage to both classes of their victims. He proved that the government in accepting the present arrangement were only carrying out the policy that every Canadian statesman had advocate.

Mr. Kelly followed in a short speech advocating that the agreement be carried out. If it was unworkable and unsatisfactory it could be repealed. Certainly, he said, the farmer needed for his grain and stock a wider market. He hoped the farmers of Cavan would support him. Had it not been for the importance of the successful carrying out of the arrangement he would not have been a candidate.

Mr. Stratton after a passing allusion to Cavan having been the place of his birth and that of some other members of the family, made himself at ease with the audience. He pointed out the importance of the constituency electing a representative who would see that business was done with efficiency. He showed that the interests of a constituency depended a good deal upon the good will existing between the government and its representative. He pointed out what he had accomplished for Peterborough in the short period of three years and showed the great saving that had been made by the county in the different works constructed by the government and in the responsibilities they had assumed. He dwelt fully on the many public improvements that had been obtained through representative influence and the many others that were under way. He then contrasted the conditions that existed in 1896 under the old order of things with the progress that had been made under the Fielding tariff. The rate of duty had been cut down, the "mouldering branches" had been lopped off, raw material was admitted free for manufacturing purposes, as example of how the reduction of duty had brought prosperity such as the country had never known before. There had been a great increase in the development of manufactures; there had been plenty of employment and good wages for all. He showed how the population of Peterborough had increased from eleven thousand to almost nineteen thousand during the term of the present administration. He pointed out how the assessment had increased from four and one-half millions to eleven millions. The population had nearly and the assessment had more than doubled. The Customs receipts, which were always a barometer of the purchasing ability of the community, increased over eight times. They were fifty-nine thousand dollars in 1896 as compared with four hundred and forty-seven thousand dollars in 1911. This showed that the increase in prosperity under the present administration had been far greater than the increase in population. The population in the period mentioned had nearly doubled, while the Customs receipts the index of the prosperity of the people, had doubled four times, being eight times as great. The revenue of the Dominion had also increased from thirty-six millions to one hundred and seventeen millions, showing that Peterborough was one of the most prosperous spots in the Dominion and that the city had derived the largest benefits from good government. The total trade of Canada had increased three-fold from two hundred and thirty-nine millions in 1896 to seven hundred and fifty-nine millions in 1911. The total trade with Great Britain had increased from ninety-eight millions to two hundred and thirty-four millions, while the trade with the United States had grown from one hundred millions to three hundred and twenty-one millions. The trade with Great Britain was done with an open market, while with the United States it was a closed market. The fact that so much trade had been done with the United States under the present conditions indicated that this was our natural market.

Mr. Stratton then took up the agreement and gave the comparative prices for the past six years between Toronto and Buffalo in winter wheat, oats, barley and rye, which showed that the Canadian farmer was not deriving the same advantage from his labour as was the American farmer.

The meeting was thoroughly enthusiastic and sympathetic, and the crowd listened enthusiastically until the conclusion. The usual cheers terminated the most satisfactory meeting ever held in the township.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 5, 1911

NOT "OUR FUNERAL."

The Montreal Star, which is printing anti-reciprocity literature, prepared by the money of the United States trusts, has this idiotic display line in large letters—"One million men idle in the United States."

Well, what of that? That's nothing to Canada, except to the Canadian members of International Labour Unions who are sorry that their brethren in the States are out of a job while they have jobs galore—jobs which make them work full time and overtime.

Reciprocity does not put hard times on the free list.

LABOUR AND LOYALTY.

Yesterday was Labour Day in Canada and millions of Canadian working men and their families had a day of enjoyment as glorious as the weather.

They went to picnics, they visited friends, they walked in trade parades.

They carried the grand old British flag in front of the procession — its proper place—the "front of the procession" all over the world. In these processions there were thousands of members of international trade unions, working hand in glove — which means brotherhood—with their fellow unionists in the United States.

Who would dare to say to a Canadian trade unionist of the international order (unless he was at a safe distance and a quick dodger, with a light pair of heels) that the Canadian unionist was a traitor to the flag under which he marched, because he was bound in brotherhood with the United States unionists that marched under the United States flag.

Then who is the man that dares to say that the people of Canada will desert the flag because they trade a little more freely with Uncle Sam? To make such a charge is an insult to one as the other—a similar insult to common sense.

POLITICAL RECIPROCITY.

Mr. Borden and Mr. Bourassa are opposite as the poles in what they preach; but sworn brothers in what they practise.

Mr. Borden (in Ontario) is an ultra-imperialist to the hilt, a Tory of the all-wool—dyed-in-the-wool, kind. Mr. Bourassa is an anti-Imperialist—a red—republican in politics. Both of these gentlemen say that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is both—too British in Quebec, and for Mr. Bourassa; not British enough in Ontario, for Mr. Borden.

Both of these Jekyll-Hyde gentlemen agree that Sir Wilfrid should be killed for leading a double life.

So Mr. Borden ,the ultra-imperialist lion, lies down with Mr. Bourassa, the blood and thunder anti-British lamb. They pretend in public to be strangers. They clasp hands in private and say things. This is what they say:

Mr. Bourassa (with his anti-imperial flag tucked away out of sight under his coat tails)—"Mon cher Robert, when I have no candidate, I am to support yours? Is it not—eh?"

Mr. Borden, (with his ultra-imperial flag tucked out of sight under his coat tails)—"Oui, mon vieux—yes, and where we have no candidates in Quebec, we will support yours — that should beat Laurier."

Yes, the slogan is anything to beat Laurier. It is to laugh.

WILL KILL THE TRUSTS.

The Conservative party or, rather the unworthy leaders of the extreme partisan part of the Conservatives, are crying "wolf" when there is no wolf. They declare that the extension of the British principle of liberty of trade will ruin British connection.

Trade has made Great Britain and her possessions the greatest material and moral power in the world. The merchant and the missionary have been the first to invade the regions of darkness—the scales open the way for the cross, triply, symbolised on the flag under whose protection the fetters of the slave melt away and freedom and equal rights and fair play flourish.

The birds of evil omen, represented by the peculiar cries of the opportunists, croak also the wail that free trade in farm products with the United States, will open Canada to the evils of the trusts. Is there any sense in this? If these alarmists, were influenced as much by reason as they are by partisanship, and thirst of office, they would see, as sensible persons do, that the only foe, fatal to the trust principle, is competition.

In the matter of food products, which the reciprocity agreement makes free—permits free exchange of—for the first time in forty-five years, competition is created.

Do these alarmists deny, or can they deny, that the high cost of living, is due to the operations of the Canadian trusts—combines which use the tariff on food stuffs—the life blood of their existence—to artificially advance and hold high the price?

Do these alarmists realize, or do the people of Canada, who feel the pinch of the high cost of living, realize to what extent they owe this doubtful blessing to Canadian combines?

"Trusts" in Canada go under other names—"combines" and "mergers," but in this matter a rose by any other name would have as sharp a thorn.

The Monetary Times, a financial journal with little sympathy for reciprocity, in its latest issue, prints a pyramid of Canadian "mergers day by day" meaning that the trusts in Canada are increasing, and suggesting that they need a check. Here is the list:

Soap
Furs
Milk
Shoes
Bread
Cereals
Carbide
Fisheries
Explosives
Flour Mills
Lumber Mills
Chewing Gum
Car Foundries
Cement Plants
Canning Plants
Quebec Breweries
Carriage Factories
Fishing Companies
Bolt and Nut Plants
Steel and Coal Plants
Navigation Companies

Some of these may be quasi legitimate combinations to secure economy of operation by concentration of management and diminution of management expenses; but it can hardly be doubted that some of them have enough of the business instinct to take advantage of the monopoly which exclusive control of the products deal in, giving them the power to exact a higher price than would be possible with open competition. And they are by no means all of the factors that enter into the higher price of the articles that enter into our daily living. There are other combinations or associations, less noticeable perhaps, but equally effective, in controlling the price of food stuffs much more in their own interests than in the interests of the consumer.

These combinations thrive, as do all trusts, by the help of a tariff which prevents or impairs the effect of healthy competition. Could a Canadian food combine be successful in practically cornering the market and dictating its own price to the producer and exacting its own price from the consumer, if duty on the article or articles affected, were removed? Thus free exchange of articles made free by the trade agreement would put the market on a level to the detriment of the trusts, by holding them down on both sides of the line to legitimate profits, to the benefit of both seller and buyer,

Suppose there was only one merchant on George street. Wouldn't he be almost an angel, if he could resist the temptation to charge higher prices than he now does under keen competition. Suppose opposit ion should arise and create competition, is it not reasonable to say that the "trust"—the monopoly represented by the one merchant would be broken and that the buyers would benefit?

It's a grand dame's story to frighten children, to tell the people of Canada that free trade in food products would open the door to the United States trusts, controlling food products. Competition would draw their fangs. As to the other trusts, there would be no difference from the present, for the trade agreement does not affect the duty on manufactured articles, except in the case of a few farm implements and that only very slightly.

Don't be fooled by those who have an interest to fool you. Do your own thinking. Use your own reason and common sense.

ALWAYS THE SQUARE DEAL FOR THE WORKINGMAN

From an address by Mr. James Murdock, Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen of America, in Berlin on Saturday night, Sept. 2:—

"We took the matter up with the Minister of Labour, and we found that gentleman 'Johnnie on the Spot.'"

* * * * *

". . . . . Certain gentleman on the floor of Parliament, who should have known better, and who should have more interest in the welfare of the labouring man—I refer to such gentlemen as Mr. Lennox, Mr. Northrup and Mr. Blain—who have discussed this situation from every point but the proper one; who, so far as I can see, for no other motives than political ones, have blamed everyone but those who are to blame, that is, the G.T.R. officials, who have no regard for their contract and their agreement."

* * * * *

"I want to say to you, and you cannot say it is biased by political opinion, for I have never voted for the present Government, if it had not been for the magnanimous consideration and assistance given to us by the Minister of Labour and by the Dominion Government, the organization of which I am a member would have been annihilated on the G.T.R."

* * * * *

From the speech of Mr. D. Campbell, Third Vice-President of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers at Berlin on Saturday night:—

"All that Mr. Murdock has said is absolutely true."

Mr. Berry (another of the labour leaders interested in the strike was not able to be present, but he sent word that he heartily endorsed Mr. King. Proceeding, Mr Campbell said: "Mr. King has always given labour a square deal, and it is your duty to support him It remains to the labour men of North Waterloo to support Mr. King, to return him to Ottawa that he may continue his work for the labour men of Canada."

A PROTEST-ANT'S PROTEST

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you please favour me with a little space in your journal for a reply to a communication from Mr. Burnham that appeared in the issue of the Review of Friday, 1st inst.?

I am not a politician, but a humble and, I hope, good citizen; and only with this, in the interests of truth and fair dealing, to correct a misinterpretation with which Mr. Burnham's peculiar zeal has carried him. Subject to this is my desire to reassure Protestants; to show them that the fear of the calamities Mr. Burnham seeks to materialise, is unfounded; that Protestants are not in very grave danger of waking up some fine morning to find themselves burned at the stake or disposed of in some similarly uncomfortable Torquemadian manner.

Mr. Burnham tries to clear himself of the charge, that he is guilty of "having wrongfully, wantonly, and maliciously"—his own version of the charge—"stirred up sectarian and religious strife n Peterborough" by assuming and asserting that it is not he but His Holiness Pope Pius X. that is guilty of "stirring up strife" by his attitude to "Modernism," which Mr. Burnham declares is "the same thing as Protestantism."

He is wrong, he begins to argue, or, rather, assert, from false premises—to build upon a false foundation, and the resulting structure becomes an airy figment of his imagination—or malice. He declares that both "Modernism" and "Protestantism" deny the supremacy of papal authority, and affirm the liberty of believers." This denial and affirmation, as applied to Protestantism, are not "modern"; they are as old as Protestantism itself—its very foundation, etymologically and actually. "Modernism" is to Roman Catholicism, what its analogue the "Higher Criticism" is to Protestantism—both things to be denounced and fought as striking at the root—the foundation principles and very existence of the respective ecclesiastical systems.

The Pope, as visible head of the Roman Catholic Church and guardian of its interests and integrity, fulminates against "Modernism" as the "thin end of the wedge," which, driven deeper, would topple the church from its foundations. The attitude of His Holiness is not so much directed against "liberty of belief" as "liberty of unbelief," something which notably in France at the revolutionary period and, to a lesser extent, at the present day, led to the deposition of God and religion—moral anarchy.

The tendency of the Higher Criticism is the same—it is, in essence, a degradation of the liberty of belief to liberty of unbelief, a contempt for, and denial of, the interpretation of Holy Scriptures, as accepted by Protestants since the dawn of Christianity and as dear to true believers as the apple of their eyes or the blood of their hearts.

Wherefore, for instance, the visible head of the Methodist Church in Canada, the Superintendent who exercises the episcopal functions of a bishop, fulminates as fiercely against this "Higher Criticism" as the Bishop of Rome, as Protestants regard him, does against "Modernism."

Thus Rev. Dr. Carman, as well as the Pope, to use the language of Mr. Burnham, "denies the liberty of believers"—to become unbelievers.

It is a matter in both cases of ecclesiastical discipline. His Holiness the Pope no more attacks the interests of Protestants by urging his clergy to combat Roman Catholic "Higher Criticism" than Rev. Dr. Carman attacks the interests of Roman Catholicism by enjoining his clergy to fight against the dangers of Methodist "Modernism."

The "thief," of Shakespeare, "doth fear each bush an officer." So does Mr. Burnham see lurking danger to Protestantism in every fold of a priest's robe. I can't see likewise in regard to "Modernism" especially, because, perhaps, I have no ulterior purpose to sharpen my vision, and I am as good and true a Protestant as Mr. Burnham or any other of the self-ordained champions of Protestantism, who put into the hearts of Protestantism the prayer, "Save me from my friends."

I shall trouble you no more on this subject. I only wished to expose the truth, as I see it, and express my opinions as I hold them. I shall enter into no controversy, for my opinions, from my point of view, are as little subject to the appeals of sophistry as are my religious convictions. I have simply wished to protest against the travesty of truth to cloak ulterior objects, and can, therefore, consistently sign myself,

Yours very truly,
PROTEST-ANT.

WEDDING BELLS

COMSTOCK—HEFFERNAN.

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening, Aug. 30, at the home of Mr. P. Heffernan, 640 Reid street, when his youngest daughter, Isabel, became the bride of Mr. George Comstock, of Utica, N.Y. Rev. Mr. Bradly, of Berlin, Ont., performed the wedding ceremony, after which the guests sat down to a dainty wedding supper. Many handsome and useful presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Comstock left Thursday on the noon train for Utica, N.Y., where they will reside in future.

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

No one believes all, and but few believe half they hear.

But without faith and confidence there would be no advertising, no credits, no banks, and business would be confined to very limited proportions.

We always try to merit the full confidence of our customers, in our anxiety to do this we often understate the qualities of the goods we advertise.

And as a result the most delightful thing about our business is the complete confidence between the store and the customers.

With the exception of Hair Goods and Combs, which nobody would ask us to exchange, everything else you get, you are always perfectly free to bring it back, and we never ask any questions, we always cheerfully hand back the full purchase price.

In our employ we have an expert practical wool man who has been trained as a judge of wool and cotton. He has a mixture that will dissolve the cotton and leave the wool and also another mixture that will dissolve the wool and leave the cotton.

In this way, with us, it is never guesswork, when we tell you it is wool, we will stake our reputation on our statement, and you can place full dependence upon it.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

OVER TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE WERE PRESENT AT THE LABOUR DAY SPORTS

Field Day Under the Auspices of the Trades and Labour Council Yesterday Was a Gigantic Success in Every Way.

PETES WON BALL GAME

The field day of sports at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Trades and Labour Council was a gigantic success in every way, and the result of the efforts of the committee was so satisfactory that an annual Labor Day celebration along the same lines is assured. Over two thousand people—the biggest crowd that ever saw an athletic event at Riverside Park—was on hand and they were entertained with a fine programme of events splendidly contested and successfully handled. The grandstand was crowded and the track all around the field was lined with people who took the keenest possible interest in the events, and who were delighted with the programme provided and the quick manner in which it was run off. In addition to the other events the list of attractions included one of the best ball games of the season, Peterborough defeating Belleville 3 to 0, and this feature was alone worth the price of admission. The officers of the Trades and Labour Council are to be congratulated upon the success achieved, which was in proportion to their energetic efforts.

A feature of the programme was the splendid showing made by Harold Hall and W. Willis, who between them carried off all the open running events. Both are members of the Y.M.C.A. and their work yesterday was a credit to that institution. Hill won both the sprints in a manner that won the hearty applause of the crowd and he was given a great hand at the finish of the quarter mile. The "Y" youngster showed a great turn of speed in both events. He carried off his heat in the one hundred yards race by yards in the fast time of 10 3-5 seconds, drawing away from his field without difficulty. H. Wood and Harold Smith were the other two heat winners. Wood was fancied in the final, but Hill outsprinted his opponents and won on the bit. In the quarter mile Hill once more showed his heels to the field. He ran the quarter with fine judgment, laying back until two hundred yards from home and then coming through with a sprint that pulled the corks of his opponents and allowed him to win by four yards in 52 3-5 seconds, a new record for Eastern Ontario. In addition to his success in the sprints Hill also carried off the pole vault with a vault of 7 ft. 3 in.

Willis had little difficulty in winning the mile event. He opened out a lead from the start and made his own pace all the way through, having practically no opposition from the field. In the five-mile event Willis adopted the same tactics, taking the lead at once and cutting out a pace that shook up the bunch behind him. He had a lead of half a lap at one time, but Frank Leahy, the winner of the Examiner's junior road race last year, cut loose in the last mile and, cheered on by the crowd, cut down the lead to a few yards. Willis, however, had enough left to stall off the youngster and carry off first prize.

Mike O'Brien, first baseman for the Peterborough ball club, got away with more than his share of prizes, winning the running high jump and the shot-put and taking second in the running broad jump. Police Constable Kidd was one of the contestants in the shot-put. The husky "cop" peeled off his helmet and brass buttons and tossed the iron ball thirty feet, giving him second place.

The base-running contest was an interesting event and was captured by Fred Ashton, the startpitcher of the Belleville team, who was the only Grand Trunk entry. The Peterborough players who tried it were O'Brien, Shaw, Campbell and Rahmel. O'Brien, Rahmel and Ashton were tied, but Ashton made the fastest time, 15 3-5 seconds, in re-running the event and got first place.

The sports were under the able direction of Mr. J. J. Thompson, physical director of the Y.M.C.A., to whose experience and energy a great deal of credit for the success of the meet is due. Mr. Thompson worked unceasingly in preparing for the programme, and the snappy way in which the events were run off is due to him.

The 57th band, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, enlivened the proceedings with a choice programme in front of the grandstand.

Following is the complete list of results:

Running high jump—1, M. O'Brien, 5 ft.; 2, J. McCartin, 4 ft. 10 in.

Running broad jump—1, H. Wood, 18 ft. 3 in.; 2, M. O'Brien, 18 ft.; 3, J. Crapp.

Shot-put—1, M. O'Brien, 31 ft. 10 in.; 2, P. C. Kidd, 30 ft.; 3, W. Norther.

Pole Vault—1, H. Hill, 7 ft. 3 in.; 2, J. McMartin.

Base running—1, Ashton, 15 3-5 secs.

100 yards (union men, married)—1, Morden; 2, Miller, 3, Brown.

100 yards (union men, single)—1, J. McMartin; 2, O'Dette; 3, T. Williams.

100 yards, open; 1st heat—1, H. Hill, 2, J. Mahoney—Time, 10 4-5 secs. 2nd heat—1, H. Wood; 2, J. McMartin—Time, 11 sec. 3rd heat—1, H. Smith—Time, 11 3-5 secs.; 2, Miller.

Final—1, H. Hill; 2, H. Wood; 3, H. Smith—Time, 11 secs.

Quarter mile—1, Hill, 2, J. Mahoney; 3, H. Smith—Time, 52 4-5 secs.

One mile—1, W. Willis; 2, J. McMartin; 3, W. Northey—Time, 5 min. 4 sec.

Five-mile—1, W. Willis; 2, Leahy; 3, Worthey—Time, 30 min. 45 sec.

Peterborough Won Ball Game

The Peterborough Midland League Team extracted sweet revenge from the crack Grand Trunks of Belleville in the ball game which was one of the features of the programme. The Petes not only won the game, but administered a coat of kalsomine to Ashton and company by a score of 3 to 0after a hard fought and interesting tussle. It was a pitchers' battle between Quinlan for Peterborough and Ashton for Belleville, and the Petes heaver had the edge on the spit-ball artist from Montreal.

Quinlan pitched a great game of ball after the first two innings, and the railroaders were never dangerous after the opening pair of stanzas. Quinlan was especially effective with men on the bases, and his support was also at its best in the pinches with the result that Belleville's chances to score were cut short. A lightning fast double play started by Quinlan himself pulled the Petes out of a bad hole in the first when Belleville had three on with one man gone. In the second they populated the three stations with no one out, but once more the Petes got themselves out of the difficulty without allowing a counter. Quinlan allowed only six singles and after the first two innings the railroaders could do nothing with his delivery and he was going stronger on end than at any time in the struggle. Ashton pitched nice ball for Belleville, giving Peterborough only five hits but three of these were bunched and resulted in the loss of the game.

The battle was full of interesting features in which the Ty Cobb stunt pulled off by Bill Wilder the Petes catcher who stole second, third and home in the fourth innings was predominant. The fielding features were a running catch by Wilder of a difficult foul fly, Gerow's one handed grab of Craig's line drive over first which the Belleville one sacker had to leap high in the air for, and a fast double play by Quinlan, O'Brien and Wilder in the first innings.

Dan McCabe umpired the game most satisfactorily.

Belleville started off as if they were going to make a runaway of the game. Goyne the first man up flew out to Shaw but Carew came through with a line drive over Campbell's head and Connell followed with a safety between first and second. O'Brien fumbled Saunder's grounder and the bases were full. O'Neil rolled a grounder to Quinlan who heaved the sphere home forcing Gerow and Wilder by a pretty throw O'Brien headed O'Neil off at first, retiring the side.

In the second innings, for Belleville Brennan and Minorgan both got on on errors and Brown beat out a bunt leaving the sacks densely populated. However Quinlan fanned Ashton Rahmel threw Brennan out at the plate and Wilder wound up the innings by spearing Goyne's high foul in spectacular fashion. Belleville had little chance to score afterwards. The few batters who got on were either nailed stealing on good throws by Wilder or were left stranded as Quinlan had the hard hitting visitors eating out of his hand for the rest of the game.

The Petes broke the ice in fourth when Wilder singled, stole second and third and finally home. The last theft was a daring and sensational piece of work that delighted the crowd. Wilder got a long lead off third and as Ashton wound up he tore to the plate and fooled Brown by a long slide.

Peterborough cinched the struggle in the sixth. With two out Quinlan cracked out a pretty single to centre. Wilder followed with a ripping hit over second and Brennan in trying to head off Quinlan at third threw low the ball getting away from Connell, Quinlan scoring and Wilder going to third from which station he scored on Campbell's lively hit through the pitcher's box. This ended the scoring.

The teams were as follows:

Belleville—Coyne lf, Gerow 1b, Connell 3b, Saunders 2b, O'Neill rf, Brennan cf, Minorgan ss, Brown c, Ashton p.

Peterborough—Murphy 3b, Shaw 1, O'Brien 1b, Quinlan p, Wilder c, Campbell 2b, Rahmel ss, Craig rf, McFadden cf.

The hits for Peterborough were made by Campbell, 2; Quinlan, Wilder and Craig, while for Belleville Cerow hit safely twice and Cornell, O'Neill, Brennan and Brown once each.

MR. STRATTON WINS ONE FIRST AND ONE SECOND AT CANADIAN NATIONAL

At the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday, two classes in which Peterborough horses were competitors, were shown. In the carriage pairs, there were nine pairs exhibited. Mr. Stratton's pair ,"My Pride" and "Premier" won first in Class 15.2 and over. In the combination class Mr. Stratton's "None Nicer" won second, Mr. Sifton's "Florcham "Flirtation" taking first. This order was changed at the Montreal Horse Show, when the judges selected Mr. Stratton in preference to Mr. Sifton. This time the standing is reversed. Following are the Peterborough results:

Class 168—11 entries, pair of horses over 15.2.—1 J. R. Stratton, Peterborough, "My Pride' and "Premier"; 2, Crowe and Murray, Toronto, "Princess Royal" and "Princess Mary."; 3, A. Yeager, Simcoe, "Earl Grey" and "Sir Wilfrid"; 4, Col. H. Sir H. M. Pellatt, "Casa Loma Lad" and "Casa Loma."

Best Combination Saddle and Harness Horse.—1, Hon. C. Sifton. Ottawa, "Torham Flirtation"; 2, J. R. Stratton, Peterborough, "None Nicer"; 3, Sir Henry M. Pellatt, "The Widow."

RECIPROCITY WOULD BE A SOURCE OF IMPERIAL STRENGTH

PORTSMOUTH, ENG., SEPT. 5.—"The Canadian Nationality is too great a force to be swallowed up in the United States." This was the statement to-day before the British Association contained in a paper read by Charles E. Mallet, ex-financial secretary to the war office. He strongly approved of Canadian-United States reciprocity agreement and declared that it would by no means adversely affect Canada's loyalty and adherence to the British Empire. It was not in province of the Mother country to criticize or in any way interfere with commercial policies of colonies and anything which increased national development of Canada would be a source of Imperial strength.

JOHNNY CANUCK TALKS PLAIN SENSE PLAINLY

Peterborough, Sept. 4, 1911.

To the Editor Examiner:

Sir,—As I am a Johnnie Canuck, and as far as my country and British connection are concerned, outside of my duty to my God, there is nothing that I hold more sacred, and I believe that the greatness of a country depends upon the character and intelligence of her people. Now is it any wonder that when we are called upon to witness the display of inexcusable ignorance and prejudice, so prevalent around and about election time, that a Johnnie Canuck of the right sort, who believes in a square deal to all mankind, is ashamed and humiliated, and if he is true to himself and his country, he will denounce with the contempt they deserve, the men who, both in Ontario and Quebec, are taking a cowardly and mean advantage of this prejudice and class, in order to advance their political interests.

If some of the latest arrivals of the British born, conscientiously believe, after studying both sides of the question, that the electors are called upon to decide, that they are doing right by supporting the Conservative party in this election, such an action, in my opinion, is a lack of good judgment, but nothing discreditable; but, on the other hand, if any of the British born, have so far forgotten the true principle of British fair play in so short a time as to lend themselves or to be influenced by any dark lantern methods, he is a poor example of what we believe the average English workman to be. We know that it is not characteristic of a Briton to be a cur at any man's heels, or to stab a man in the dark.

"I cannot conceive how a true man of the British kind whom we have always admired for their boldness in asserting themselves openly and fearlessly, can be so influenced, to say nothing of the sacrifice he would have to make in order to link himself with a combination which practises cowardly, underhand and secret methods, that injure the good relations that should exist between neighbours and whose actions should be a real national danger if it were not for the setback that I believe the people of Canada will have the good sense to give them on the 21st of this month. Let me ask what benefit would it be to Protestantism and the British Empire if the Conservative party came into power, who all admit that the change cannot be brought about except by the Conservative and Nationalist alliance. If the French Canadians and others of the same creed have too much power in the land, as we are told, who will be the dominating power if the French elect the "Tory" party to office? Does it look as if Henri Bourassa will give up what he holds? Will he not rather make use of the commanding position he will be in, to get more? Well, I guess, yes.

I believe, Mr. Editor, with Hugh Guthrie, that those danger signals in regard to British connection and Protestantism are only effective with cowards; and they have my sympathy, as I believe some are really and truly afraid. What are those poor spineless Tories going to do after the Liberals go back into power on the 21st? They hate Uncle Sam so much that they will have nothing to do with him, and what is worse the Mother country has a Liberal government in power. They should cheer up when they come to think that the Liberal party never did or never will, take a mean advantage of the intellectually weak.

JOHNNIE CANUCK.

Funeral Of Mrs. Annie O'Brien

"Blest Are The Departed"

The remains of the late Mrs. Annie O'Brien, who passed away on Friday last were laid to rest yesterday morning at St. Peter's Cemetery. Mass was sung in the Sacred Heart Church at 9:30 at which Dr. M. J. O'Brien, son of the deceased officiated, assisted by the Very Rev. Archdeacon Casey of Lindsay, and Rev. Father McCauley of the Sacred Heart Church. The following priests were also present: the Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Connor, Rev. Fr. Fitzpatrick of Enniscore, Rev. Fr. McColl, Rector of St. Peter's, Rev. Fr. Roche of Toronto, Rev. Fr. Conway, John O'Brien.

An appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. Fr. Roche of Toronto who in part said:

"Our works follow us. We have the making of our own future under God, and whether our works are good or whether our works are bad we have to answer for them before the judgment throne. There is one thing and only one thing necessary and that is the salvation of our immortal souls. Is it not well that we bring the thought home to ourselves on such a day as this? These are the words that are spoken to us from yonder coffin this morning. Let us take heed. It is well that we pray for the dead. This poor soul has gone full and hopeful of immortality. She has call for our prayers. If St. Monica needed prayers, is it not so that others need them? Lead good lives, for as we live, so shall we die."

At the end of the Mass the hymn, Nearer My God to Thee was sung.

On emerging from the Church, upwards of three hundred members of the T.A.S. marched in the procession, which collectively must have covered a distance of nearly a mile, to the cemetery, where Dr. O'Brien read the burial service.

The pall bearers were, Messrs. Bibby, Drain, Latalier, Edward O'Brien, Peter Molloy and Joseph Picard, Sr.

STOMACH DISTRESS AND DYSPEPSIA GO

Diapepsin Makes Upset Stomachs Feel Fine in Five Minutes

As there is often someone in your family who suffers an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapepsin in the house handy

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour gassy stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other diseases go in five minutes and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour, undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or any out-of-order stomach with the common, everyday cures advertised that they have made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe theirs is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

District Meeting Here To-day

The financial district meeting of the Methodist church is being held in Charlotte street Methodist church to-day. There are a large number of delegates from outside points. The result of the meeting will be made known to-morrow.

Annual Excursion

Court Chemong 330 I.O.F. held their eighth annual excursion to Idyl Wyld yesterday. The good ship Otonabee left the Wolfe Street Wharf at 8 o'clock with a good crowd on board. The day was an ideal one, and during the trip down some of the more supple-footed indulged with enthusiasm in the terpsichorean art to the music of Tucker's Orchestra. The Pavilion at Idyl Wyld was the scene of more dancing. After dinner had been participated in a good list of sports was run off as follows:

Children's race—M. Waterman E. Foley, Miss M. Pearson (every child was presented with a consolation prize).

Boys' race—H. Rogers, A. Reid.

Girls' race—Miss B. Castle, Miss G. Collinson.

Men's race—P. Masterson.

Young ladies' race—Miss Lola Waterman, Miss Stella Wallace.

Three-legged race—J. Brownlee and P. Masterson.

Largest family represented—Mr. Thos. Dorriel (number of children, seven).

Married men's race—P. Francis, E. Metcalfe.

Married Ladies' Race—Mrs. James Haggart.

Foresters' race—P. Francis, G. Metcalfe (members only).

Tug-of-war (married v. single) was won by the married men.

Baby competition—Mrs. Robert Cox, Mrs. T. Castle.

The members of the committee organising the event were as follows: G. Metcalfe, W. G. McKee, D. Wallace, J. W. Byers, and G. W. Powell. To these gentlemen great credit is due for the manner in which they handled the excursion, which was an enjoyable one to all.

SAVE YOUR HAIR

While You Have Hair to Save, Use Newbro's Herpicide

Every woman who is obliged to wear false hair, or man a toupee feels that it is a misfortune. What makes the burden so doubly hard to bear is the knowledge that the loss of natural hair, could, in most instances have been easily avoided.

The arch enemy of good hair is the dandruff germ. This is now a well established scientific fact. There is one remedy on the market, which used regularly will kill the germ and keep out every trace of dandruff.

This remedy is Newbro's Herpicide long known as the Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer. By keeping the scalp clean, Herpicide not only prevents the hair from falling out, but allows it to grow as nature intended. Begun in time and its use persisted in, this valuable remedy insures a nice healthy head of hair.

Herpicide imparts a life and lustre to dull, dead, brittle hair making it light fluffy and beautiful.

Don't wait. Begin now to save your hair.

Herpicide is sold and guaranted in one dollar size bottles by all druggists.

Applications may be procured at the better barber shops and hair dressers.

A nice sample and booklet on the care of the hair will be sent to any one upon receipt of 10c in postage or silver. Address the Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

WHOSE DOG IS THIS?

Chief Thompson of the Police Department is in receipt of the following letter, which explains itself:

Fairbank, Ont., Sept. 2, 1911.

Dear Sir:

I have a dog here with a Peterboro tag No. 65 on it. Has been here about a week, but I have seen nothing in the Toronto papers yet. So I thought I had better write you and you could send me the name and address of the owner, or else you could let him know, and he could write me.

Respectfully yours,
G. Frank Carruthers.
Fairbank, P.O.

Tag No. 65 on the register shows the dog to belong to Mr. Gerald Dunsford, of 240 Rubridge street. If the dog belongs to him he will note the above.

Death Of Well Known Cleric

On Sunday afternoon at about 2.30, the Very Rev. Joseph Browne, late Vicar General of the diocese of Peterborough, passed away. His illness was a very lingering and painful one, extending over a period of several years. His end therefore was not wholly unexpected.

Father Browne was born in Ireland some seventy-one years ago. When at the age of fourteen or fifteen he came to Canada. He later went to Regiopolis College, Kingston, and his course was afterwards resumed in Quebec Seminary. He has officiated respectively in Perth, Napanee, Port Hope and Douro, and for the past eight years had led a retired life at St. Peter's Rectory.

Three brothers survive him in the persons of Father Michael Browne, of New York, Father James Browne and Timothy of Brockville. He has also two sisters, one the wife of Senator Sullivan of Kingston, and the other living in a convent in Ireland.

The body was conveyed to St. Peter's Cathedral last evening. At 9 o'clock this morning Pontifical High Mass was sung in the Cathedral by Father Hogan of Kingston Diocese, assisted by Father Murray, Archbishop of Cobourg, as deacon, and Father Scanlan, parish priest of Grafton as sub-deacon. The M. C. was Rev. Dr. O'Brien of the Sacred Heart church. The following priests were also present: Bishop O'Connor, Very Rev. N. Roche, C. S. B. Provincial of the Brazilian Fathers, Fr. McColl, Rector of St. Peter's, Rt. Rev. M. J. Spratt, Archbishop elect of Kingston, Fr. Duffus of Kingston, Fr. McWilliams of Kingston, Fr. Michael McGuire, Fr. Galvin, Fr. Casey of Campbellford, Fr. Fitzpatrick; Fr. Conway and Fr. Frank O'Sullivan, Port Hope.

Archbishop Casey preached an appropriate sermon and after the mass interment took place at St. St. Peter's Cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Fathers O'Connell, Phelan, Hurley (of Toronto) McCauley, Peter McGuire and John O'Brien.

ENGLISH RUGBY FOOTBALL.

Old Country Style of Game Is Making Rapid Strides in the Dominion.

In the past year an effort has been made to revive the English game of rugby football in the province of Quebec, and three strong teams have been formed in Montreal playing the game under the British Rugby Union rules. The three clubs are McGill University, Montreal English Rugby Football Club, and the Canadian Pacific Railway, E.R.F.C. In Ottawa the Royal Naval College also hopes to take up the game. English rugby football is further played to a great extent in Winnipeg, extreme Eastern Canada, British Columbia and California, where it has in recent years taken the place of the American game.

While it is not the wish of English rugby clubs in Canada to try and make converts to the British game, yet they feel that it is time that Canada, especially on account of her close situation to Great Britain, be able to put a fifteen in the field under British rugby rules and capable of holding its own against representative teams of Great Britain, or any of her overseas dominions.

This would make one game of rugby throughout the Empire and induce British, as well as the teams of South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand to visit Canada.

Almost 800 first-class clubs are members of the British Rugby Football Union, and these clubs are spread all over the world, the head office of the rugby board being in London, England.

The rules governing the British game have changed considerably since the game was last played in these parts of Canada, now many years ago, and the game as played to-day is, no doubt, the fastest, exciting and most spectacular game of football in existence.

There are lots of men in this country who know and have played the grand old game, and many will probably come forward now and help the game along in the Dominion.

An English International team will probably visit Canada in the spring of next year.

Montreal Is Changing.

The aspect of the City of Montreal—in fact, the Island of Montreal—is changing rapidly, day by day. The spread of the residental areas westward, and northward, is simply phenomenal. The downtown section, which at the present time, is extending as far as Ontario street, is being rapidly given over to the ever-increasing demands of business. Numbers of old churches have already disappeared, within the last few years, and more will disappear in the near future. Old landmarks are disappearing and new ones are taking their place.

For years to come there will continue a succession of pulling down and building up, each fresh instance showing that the founders of Montreal never realized the proportions to which it would attain. A few figures will show succinctly what the growth of Montreal has been, and what may be expected in the future.

The population in 1800 was 9,000; 1816, 16,000; 1825, 23,000; 1852, 57,700; 1900, 262,200; in 1908, there was an estimated population of 391,093; in 1908 after the annexation of St. Henry, St. Cunegonde and Villeray, it was 387,493 and in 1909, 392,500. The present population of Montreal and its suburbs is probably about half a million.

The rapid growth of the City of Montreal, is shown by the fact that in 1885 its area was 4,694 acres; which had grown to 5,972 acres in 1909. Ten years later with various annexations, it had reached the extent of 20,747 acres, or over 40 square miles.

Since 1889 the taxable real estate of the city had increased in value ten times over, from $30,174,120 to $319,341,616 in 1910. In the same period the value of exempt property had increased from $6,617,280 to $109,192,469.

Church Union Experiments.

While church union is being discussed throughout Canada, the experiment will be tried in Kingston as a vacation expedient during the next two months.

Rev. I. A. Montgomery of Knox Presbyterian Church takes his vacation this month, and during his absence his flock unites with the Methodists of Dominion square Methodist Church under Rev. E. I. Hart.

In August it will be the turn of the Methodist divine to take a holiday and his congregation during that month will go under the spiritual guardianship of Rev. Mr. Montgomery.

The union of Presbyterian and Methodist Churches at the Village of Portsmouth is also likely owing to the fact that the membership of both congregations is very small and it is difficult to keep up expenses. A committee from each church has been appointed to discuss the matter.

Vanadium.

Vanadium, a costly metal, the ores of which are very widely distributed, occurs, according to one authority, in all primitive granite rocks, but in small quantity. It is difficult to obtain in a state of purity and is of value in processes connected with the manufacture of steel.

PLAYED A SHELL GAME.

A Parliamentary Joke by a New South Wales Solon.

Australia once had a great political joke, which was played openly in the New South Wales state parliament by a member who afterward became attorney general.

A bill had been introduced to protect native flowers from ruthless destruction. The honorable member approved and sympathized. He informed the introducer of the bill—a somewhat pompous gentleman—that he heartily approved. But why those invidious distinctions? The bill protected—and he quoted all the botanical names in the bill.

But why were other flowers equally deserving neglected? Why were—and here he reeled off a long list of the Latin names for cactus, mesquite, cyclamen, etc.—why were those great flowers to be blighted in their bloom by being plucked by any prowling excursionist who wanted something in his buttonhole?

The introducer of the bill promptly offered to extend the list to include them. So half the shellfish on the coast, including the periwinkle, were added to the flowers worthy of protection.

The officials of the house discovered the hoax next day and set it right. But the joke was too good to be kept quiet, and all Australia chuckled at the response of the pompous legislator. —Youths' Answers.

DON'T MIND BIG NOISES.

But Slight, Rustling Sounds Make Giraffes Tremble With Fear.

Among the curious characteristics of the giraffe is its strange indifference to loud noises as contrasted with its peculiar "craziness" with reference to slight sounds. Noisy sounds, like that of a man walking near in hobnailed boots, the giraffe does not appear to notice, but should it be approached by a woman whose skirts give out but the slightest rustle the sound thereof causes the giraffe to start up with pricked ears and eyes distended in fear.

Officials of a zoological institution situated near a canal, tell of a curious instance of this peculiarity of giraffes. After a terrible explosion of gunpowder on a barge on the canal the keepers were astonished to observe that the giraffes took little notice of the tremendous blast. They jumped to their feet, but almost at once lay down again when they found that nothing extraordinary had happened in their enclosure. But were a keeper at night to creep along outside that inclosure in his stocking feet the queer beasts would exhibit such terror that one would imagine them about to dash themselves in terror against the fences.

Giraffes fear the lurking foe, and a big bang scares them hardly at all. To them the faint, rustling sound is a token of the greatest danger. In that respect they are like deer.—New York Press.

Many Things Different in Holland.

Holland is to me one of the most interesting countries in Europe, writes George R. Sims. Apart from the excitement of having to do a bit of Blondin, with the edge of a canal for your tight rope, at intervals of a few minutes all day long, the Dutch themselves furnish you never ending study. I love to see the little Dutch boy of six smoking his clay pipe or his cigar as he clings to his mamma's skirt. There is something at once novel and startling in finding Dutch cheese and a penny bun placed in front of every guest at the breakfast table. In a land where a public company is a Maatschappij and nearly every house of restauration announces that the thirsty traveler can there obtain "Tapperij, Slitterij and Stomp," there is always something to amuse you.

Oath of the Turkish Doctor.

The oath which young doctors take in Turkey when they come before the medical examining board contains the following pledge: "That when I am called at the same time by two different patients, the one rich and the other poor, I will accept the call of the poor without taking into consideration the money offered and will do my best for his treatment, and that I will never decline to answer any call, day or night, during the reign of common diseases or of an epidemic of contagious diseases."

Her Criticism.

"I wish Fritz would write his figures plainer. I can't possibly tell from his letter whether it is 1,000 or 10,000 times that he sends me."—Pittsburgh Gazette.

AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

REAL PROTECTION FROM FIRE.

The fire loss in Canada in 1909 and 1910 amounted to $42,000,000, to say nothing of the number of lives that have been sacrificed.

Every factory, warehouse, store, home and barn should have the best system of fire protection available, and that is the May-Oatway Automatic Fire Alarm System of self-adjusting automatic detectors. Visitors to Toronto are invited to call at the offices of the Ontario May-Oatway Fire Alarms, Limited, 92 Adelaide street west, and inspect their system, investigate its merits and see an actual fire test. The property protected and connected with the principal fire stations by the May-Oatway automatically self-adjusting automatic detectors, exceeds in value by several hundred million dollars, that protected by all similar systems in the British Empire put together.

JOHN'S GLASS BLOWERS.

The Midway would not seem complete without John's Glass Blowers. This year they are here with a new staff of expert operators. They make birds, bouquets, animals, lamps, and a thousand different kinds of curiosities out of the magic crystal. A present is given to every visitor.

WHITE HORSE WHISKEY.

The artistic booth of Mackie and Co., Distillers, Ltd., Glasgow, in the Manufacturers Building, has come in for much deserved commendation. The White Horse is the predominate feature of the display, and to those who desire quality, "White Horse Cellar" stands for all that is admirable in Scotch Whiskey. The high standard which this whiskey attained years ago has been strictly adhered to. Mr. J. E. Turton is the Canadian representative and George J. Foy, Ltd., the distributors for Ontario.

DEAN'S FINE DISPLAY OF BOATS

It is doubtful if there is another firm in Canada manufacturing canoes and small boats which has gained the prominence that Walter Dean, of Sunnyside, has. His display, which is immediately to the left of the main entrance to the manufactures annex, under the grand stand, already has attracted a great deal of attention. The main feature of the exhibit this year is a perfect attachment to convert a row boat into a motor boat in two minutes. The engine, gasoline tank, and screw are attached to a row boat in the same manner and quite as easily as a rudder, and the price is so reasonable that no one need hesitate before purchasing.

PULP BOARD HOUSE.

Among the exhibits of interest to every Exhibition visitor, and especially to the prospective home-builder, is the miniature house erected at the west end of Machinery Hall, by the Granville Board and Pulp Co., of Thorold, where lath and plaster is replaced by the new patented "pulp board" wall facings. This novel material is made from pulp wood, chemicalised, and is said to be not only more durable than the old materials, but is actually cheaper. An inspection of the "pulp board house" shows how effectively this new facing can be papered, painted or alabastined, and the result is a cleaner, neater surface. The board is easily nailed directly to the studding with common wire nails — anyone can put it on—a hammer and saw are the only tools required. There is no dirt, as from plaster, and no delay waiting for plasterers and for the plaster to dry. Pulp board is practically fire and waterproof, and is a perfect insulator against heat, cold and sound.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

Food Dear In England

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year. September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

MRS. JOHN LONDRY.

The death occurred on Saturday evening last, at 431 Bethune street, of Mrs. John Londry, aged fifty-one years.

The deceased was the second wife of Mr. John Londry, the gateman at the Reid street G.T.R. crossing. She had no children of her own, and is survived by her husband only.

The funeral took place at the Little Lake Cemetery this afternoon at 3.30, the Rev. Isaac Couch officiating.

MRS. J. J. ARMSTRONG.

The death occurred on Sunday morning, at Nichol's Hospital, of Mrs. J. J. Armstrong, of Cavan.

The deceased, who was thirty-eight years of age, was the eldest daughter of Mr. John Irwin, of Ormemee, and was born in Emily Township. She ultimately became a resident of Peterborough for some four or five years, afterwards going to live in Cavan.

She is survived by a sorrowing husband, five sons, John, Henry, Albert, Lawrence and James, and two daughters, all living at home.

Her demise is also lamented by her parents, in addition to one brother, William John Irwin, of Cavan, and one sister, Mrs. Frank Deacon, of Peterborough.

The interment took place from the house of her brother-in-law, Mr. F. Deacon, of 691 Stewart street, to the Little Lake Cemetery at 3.30 yesterday afternoon.

GEORGE EDWARD RAWLINGS

The death occurred this morning of George Edward Rawlings of Crescent Street. The deceased who was fifty five years of age was born in New York. He was for many years in the pottery business and for the past ten years has taken sole charge of Allin's Pottery. Originally a member of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, when that church combined with the George Street Methodist Church formed the mission of St. James, Mr. Rawlings became a member of the latter's congregation. He was a member of Court Little John, C. O. F., Otonabee Lodge I. O. F. and of the Loyal Orange Lodge.

His sorrowing wife is his sole survivor.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been decided upon.

MRS. J. SEATON.

Death came with startling suddenness on Sunday morning to a well known Cavan lady, in the person of Mrs. J. Seaton. Deceased, who was a widow, lived on the 12th line Cavan, about six miles from Peterborough. She lived alone, with the exception of a small boy, whom she kept around the premises.

On Saturday evening she retired as usual, apparently in good health, but on Saturday morning when she failed to get up at the usual hour, the boy became alarmed and went in to investigate, and was horrified to find her cold in death. She had evidently been dead some hours. Apoplexy is thought to have been the immediate cause of her death.

Deceased was widely known and highly respected, being possessed of a very kindly disposition and her demise will be regretted generally by a wide circle of friends. The late Mrs. Seaton was prominently identified as a faithful worker in Fairmont Methodist church and her many estimable characteristics won for her the esteem and respect of all with whom she came in contact. She was 58 years of age and leaves two children to mourn her loss. They are Mrs. Murray McBain and Norman Seaton, the latter being away on his holidays. Her husband predeceased her about six years ago.

A brother and two sisters also survive. They are: Mr. Richard Dundas, Mrs. Grandy of St. Thomas, North Dakota and Mrs. J. Cathcart of Cavan. Particulars of the funeral will be announced to-morrow.

GOOD POSITIONS

The Peterborough Business College is a worthy link in a chain of Seven Business Colleges, located in the cities of London, Peterborough, Welland, and the towns of Orangeville, Walkerton, Wingham, and Clinton. Owing to its high-grade work it is affiliated with the Commercial Educators' Association of Canada. It is freely admitted that owing to these connections, its students get the very best positions. Fall openings are on Aug. 28th, and Sept. 5th, but at this school each student is instructed privately at his or her own desk; students may enter any day. Many students study all at home, and others partly at home and finish at the College. As Spotton Colleges are the largest trainers in Canada, and have thirty years' experience, it would be well for young people to get their training there. Last year Mr. Spotton trained over 1,200 young people and placed them in good positions. What he has done for thousands of others he can do for you.

BOY WAS DROWNED

Little George Simpson Slips Off a Wharf at Foot of Antrim Street and Loses His Life

BODY RECOVERED

Little George Simpson, the four-year-old son of Mr. Geo. Simpson, of Harvey street, came to an untimely end on Sunday afternoon.

He was playing with his brother and sister and another child on the banks of the river at the corner of Harvey and Antrim streets, and walked on to the wharf at that place. By reason of his wearing new shoes, he slipped off the edge of the wharf into the water. One of his playmates ran instantly to the residence of Mr. Simpson and hurriedly told him what had happened. Mr. Simpson rushed madly to the spot, and, without hesitation, dived in for the lad, but without success; nor did the efforts of the neighbors in attempting to locate the body prove of any avail.

Shortly, however, Mr. Beebee arrived with his punt, and after a search of nearly an hour, their efforts were rewarded. One of the searchers caught his pike pole in the lad's clothing and pulled him to the surface.

In the absence of Coroner Greer, Dr. Eastwood was called, after which the body was taken to Mr. Simpson's house.

The funeral notice will be found elsewhere in these columns.

Orrine for Whiskey and Beer Habit

Orrine is the standard remedy and is everywhere recognized as the most successful and reliable home treatment for the "Drink Habit." It is highly praised by thousands of women, because it has restored their loved ones to lives of sobriety and usefulness, and the weekly wages which at one time were spent for drink are now used to purchase the necessaries and many comforts of home. Any wife or mother who wants to save her husband or son from "Drink" will be glad to know that she can purchase Orrine from Wm. Madill, Druggist, and if no benefit is obtained after a trial, we will refund the money.

Orrine is prepared in two forms. No. 1, secret treatment, a powder absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink. Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for those who desire to take voluntary treatment. Orrine costs only $1.00 a box. Write for free Orrine booklet (mailed in a plain sealed envelope) to Orrine Co., Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. Orrine is recommended and is for sale in this city by Wm. Madill.

GEO. SPOTTON - President
E. R. Logan, Principal

PREMIER AT COBOURG

Cobourg, Sept. 6.—For two or three startling moments yesterday afternoon it seemed probable that the great Laurier demonstration might end in a tragedy. Sir Wilfrid's address was over, and he had just risen to acknowledge the applause, when there was an ominous crack, followed immediately by a second, a frightened shout from the crowd, and the centre of the temporary platform on which the Premier stood collapsed. It was thronged with humanity at the time, and there was a precipitate scramble, which threatened further disaster. A couple of officers with presence of mind, however, stayed the incipient stampede, and the hundred odd occupants were conducted down from the ten-foot elevation one by one. Finally only the chairman, the Premier and Hon. Mr. Graham remained standing at the extreme edge supported by the corner wooden upright.

The Minister of Railways relieved the tension by commencing his address with the observation: "It is hard to dislodge the Liberal leader from his platform."

J. D. Hayden, president of West Northumberland Liberal Association, was chairman and spoke briefly. Short addresses were made also by J. B. McColl, Liberal candidate for West Northumberland; A. Weatherston, East Northumberland, and T. A. Kelly, Durham.

The Premier extended the heartiest welcome to those present, who did not belong to the Liberal party. If the Conservatives would remain true to the policy of their former leaders, Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir John Thompson, all disparities of party would be dropped and they would be one with the Liberals in this contest. The Premier said he was not here to do violence to any man's conscience, or to quarrel with anyone, but to advocate a measure of free trade that had united the best men, who had presided over the destinies of Canada. He reviewed the various attempts made to enter into freer trade with the United States up to the time that Canadian representatives were summoned to Washington by Mr. Taft. The United States, previous to a few years ago, had regarded Canada as a neglible quantity. He dwelt upon the circumstance that the last pilgrimage was not from Ottawa to Washington, but from Washington to Ottawa.

Canada was not much fifteen years ago, when the Liberal administration assumed power. "To-day," he said, "it is the magnet that is drawing population from all countries, who pack their trunks, and come to it as the land of promise. A new era had dawned for Canada. The American Government had come with an offer to trade. To refuse to enter into reciprocal trade relations with them would be a crime against civilization. He went into the matter of the twelve nation treaty, claiming that there was nothing that would endanger Canada's interest. Neither did he fear American competition. The leaders of the Conservative party to-day, he said, had gone back upon and trampled under foot all the traditions of their leaders in the past. He represented the party since the leadership of Sir John A. Macdonald, as being like a ship without a rudder or captain, and, while Mr. Borden might destroy his own platform it was not so easy to destroy the one made by Sir John A. Macdonald.

Conservatives in Waterloo.

Waterloo, Sept. 6.—A very successful meeting was held in the skating rink here last evening in support of the candidature of W. G. Weichal, who is standing for the Conservative party in Waterloo County against Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King at the coming election. The speakers, included the candidate, W. G. Weichal, Harvey Hall, W. F. Maclean and others.

King at Sarnia.

Sarnia, Sept. 6.—Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King last night addressed the railwaymen of Sarnia in behalf of Mr. Pardee, the Liberal candidate.

Conditions Better.

Boston, Sept. 6.—A change for the better occurred in many cities, towns and villages of New England yesterday, when textile mills employing an aggregate of 55,000 persons resumed operations, after a shut-down varying from eight days to two weeks or more.

Suicide Came From Toronto.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 6.—Chief Lyons last night learned that the man who Monday committed suicide by going over the falls was John Ready of Thompsonville, Conn., who until the middle of last week was employed by the Toronto Carpet Co. at Toronto.

Alleged Smuggler Under Arrest.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 6.—The Canadian immigration officials are holding Kroker Averdussen of Galt for trial on a charge of bringing three foreigners into Canada under false pretences, Moses Boagvsian, Asedian Aredusian and Anick Bedrosian.

Want More Trains.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 6.—The Boards of Trade of this city and of Niagara-on-the-Lake will jointly petition the Michigan Central to operate three trains daily to Old Niagara during the winter months.

A Serious Charge.

Kingston, Sept. 6.—Accused with committing a criminal assault on a fifteen-year-old girl, Thomas Walker of Arden is locked up and will be arranged before Judge Price.

Two Drowned.

Rainy River, Sept. 6.—Dick Lepage of Saskatoon and Frank Mowan of Barwick, Ont., were drowned in the Rainy River, just east of the town, about 7.30 Monday night. The two men were employed as log pushers and were paddling down the river for Beaudette, Minn., in a canoe, after their day's work, when the accident occurred.

About an hour later the upturned canoe and the hats of the two men were found floating in the river. Lepage was a strong swimmer, but probably lost his life in trying to save Mowan. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

Four Dead, Forty Hurt.

Freemont, Wis., Sept. 6.—Four men are dead and forty passengers hurt as the result of a wreck on the Soo line early yesterday, when a limited passenger train from St. Paul for Chicago ran into an open switch. Engineer Kuesser and two tramps and a passenger, names not known, are dead.

It was not for hours after the wreck that there was any help sent, for the first word of the disaster was brought by an injured brakeman. He was forced to almost crawl two miles from the scene of the wreck to this city.

FORCES ARE MOBOLIZING

Paris, Sept. 6—The Minister of Marine, Theophile Delcase, at the close of Monday's review at Toulon said:—"The vessels which you have just seen file past you are ready to be commissioned. Their powder magazines are full, and all of them could be mobilized immediately."

La Patrie, in headlines running across its entire front page, announces a movement of French troops toward the French frontier. Inquiries made at the Ministry of War elicited the information that this movement is connected with the manoeuvres of the French army, which, beginning yesterday, will last until Sept. 13.

In addition to the garrisons stationed in the district, 50,000 troops are now moving toward the eastern boundary for concentration at Belfort, the almost impregnable frontier fortress, which is the objective of the army.

The aeronauts participating in the army exercises, numbers forty experienced airmen.

Kaiser Reviews Fleet.

Kiel, Sept. 6.—The fleet that assembled here yesterday is believed by German experts to give Germany for the first time the rank of the second naval power of the world, the three great Dreadnoughts of the Ostefriesland class and the two Dreadnoughts, cruisers Von der Tann and Blucher, commissioned during the year, ousting the United States from the position which it held by a slender margin last year.

The total displacement of the great fleet gathered yesterday amounted to about 500,000 tons in round figures. Its engines were capable of developing 1,400,000 horsepower, while it was manned by 1,900 officers and 20,000 men. The armament consists of 188 big guns, 488 of middling calibre and 670 smaller cannon, without counting machine guns, while the vessels are fitted with 400 torpedo tubes.

Belgium Sharpening the Sword.

Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 6.—Thirty field pieces arrived yesterday at the fortified town of Namur, thirty-six miles from Brussels, from the National Arsenal at Antwerp. Last week two special trains arrived at Namur carrying sixty field guns, twelve Hotchkiss guns, and five carloads of ammunition.

Run on German Banks.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—Wild rumors are being circulated in the German provincial towns. At Stettin large sums of money have been withdrawn from the savings banks, this action on the part of the people being influenced by rumors that war was impending.

There was no meeting yesterday between M. Cambon and Herr Von Kidderlein-Waechter. It is possible another conference will be held today.

Drowned at Jackson's Point.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—While bathing in the lake at Jackson's Point on Sunday during the heavy windstorm, Margaret Creasey, employed at the Beach, was drowned.

The girl had gone out alone late in the afternoon, and before she was noticed to be in trouble she was seen battling for her life. Boats were put out to the rescue, but before they arrived on the scene she had gone down for the last time.

Yesterday morning the body was recovered in 18 inches of water in a badly battered condition. The girl had been out from England only about a year, and was 17 years old.

Motor Turned Turtle.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—F. H. Anson, a prominent official of the Ogilvie Milling Co., met with a rather serious accident Monday evening when the motor car in which he was riding in company with Elwood Hosmer, overturned not far from Lacolle, Que.

Mr. Hosmer was thrown clear of the machine and escaped injury, but Mr. Anson was caught and pinned underneath, with the weight of the car on his chest. He was brought into Montreal and taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where it was found that his chest and back were bruised. He also received a painful cut on his head.

Mr. Anson is president of the Automobile Club of Canada.

Didn't Know Where He Was.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—While on his way from Toronto to visit his wife at Longuequil, James Gould, 80 years of age, suddenly became bewildered on his arrival in Montreal and was unable to give any account of where he came from and where he was going. The old man left his daughter in Toronto on Tuesday last to join his wife at Longuequil, and together they were going to Boston to visit a son.

He was held at the International Refuge and Monday's communication was received by Chief Carpenter from the Toronto police, which lead to his identity being established. He was taken to Longuequil by friends Monday evening.

Says Player Struck Him.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—A warrant was sworn out yesterday against Henry Scott, home player and captain of the Montreal Lacrosse Club, by Dr. J. E. Bolvin, dentist, 121 St. Denis street, on a charge of striking him on the chin with his lacrosse stick during a dispute at the Montreal-National match at the Montreal grounds Monday. Scott went to the police headquarters and surrendered himself. He denied every statement made by Bolvin when brought before the magistrate. The trial was deferred for two or three days in order to give both sides time to get their witnesses.

A PLUCKY MOTORMAN.

Overtakes Runaway Train in Car and Stops Them.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—"One of the bravest things I've known," said Mr. A. C. Lewis, who has a butcher store at Queen street and Woodbine avenue, referring to the skilful manner in which a motorman stopped a runaway team near that street about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

A team of horses, harnessed to one of Bredin's Bakery wagons, took fright while the driver was delivering near Belledair avenue, and tore towards the city.

They overhauled a stranger driving a nice black horse in a light rig. Hearing the rattle behind him, the driver turned and saw the maddened team. With whip and voice he then urged his horse onward, and twice crossed to the other side of the street to give the runaways a clear passage, which they did not take advantage of.

The motorman on a King car going west, had seen what was happening and put on full speed. He passed the runaways near the fire station and, pulling up at Woodbine avenue, jumped from the car, and grabbed the bridle of the nearest horse, and quickly pulled them up.

No person was injured and the motorman was allowed to go on with his good work of taking car loads of people to the exhibition, without leaving his name and address behind him.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Grand Trunk station at Stevensville was burned.

Leopold Elameng, the noted French engraver, is dead aged 80 years.

The Co-operative Union of Canada is talking of starting a cannery.

Another advance of ten cents in the price of all grades of sugar is announced.

Louis Robert, a 70-year-old millwright, fell off a hundred-foot trestle at Three Rivers and was killed.

A Cleveland company is to build a million-dollar chemical plant at Hamilton that will employ 1,000 men.

Prince Arthur of Connaught will be tendered a magnificent reception by the city of Montreal upon his arrival there.

The Duke of Connaught at the farewell banquet to the Canadian artillery team said he would be sailing for Canada one month hence.

Miss Mina O'Malley, youngest daughter of Col. O'Malley, committed suicide at her father's home. While temporarily insane she severed her jugular vein with a carving knife.

Hamilton Fireman Rewarded.

Hamilton, Sept. 6.—The heroism of City Fireman Thomas Fitzgerald, who rescued five patients from the asylum fire on the night of August 1, last night received official recognition at the hands of the fire, police and jail committee of the City Council, by his being promoted from the ranks to the position of lieutenant of hook and ladder truck No. 2. This action was taken as a result of the recommendation of Fire Chief Tom Eyek. Fitzgerald's new position has been created especially for him. Ald. Anderson mildly protested against the fireman's promotion on the grounds that there were other men in the department who were probably as brave as Fitzgerald. The alderman thought conspicuous bravery among the city firemen should be recognised by medals rather than by promotion.

Thieves Busy in Barrie.

Barrie, Sept. 6.—Thieves were busy around Barrie on Labor Day. Peter Kearns, a local grocer, had a horse stolen from his barn and T. A. Sibbald, another grocer, lost a buggy. The office of the Mickle Dyment Coal & Lumber Co. was broken into, but the burglars got nothing for their trouble.

Crushed on a Steamer.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—Joseph Labonte, a married man and father of six children, was cut in two Monday afternoon while working on board the ferry steamer North. Labonte had gone under the engines to clean them without warning the engineer. When the boat was set in motion he was chopped in two by the machinery.

Found Eating Grass.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 6.—After tourists complained that a strangely acting man yesterday threatened to go over the Falls, John Diamond of Elmira was found eating grass in the state reservation and declaring he'd take a chance of going over the cataract. He is being held as to his mental condition.

Fractured His Skull.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 6.—William Clapperton, 460 East King street, Toronto, lies at the Memorial Hospital on the American side with a fractured skull. Late Monday night he jumped aboard a Buffalo-bound train by mistake and leaped off when he learned his error. His conditions is serious.

Eighty-One Drowned.

Lima, Peru, Sept. 6.—The Chilean steamer Tucapel has been wrecked and is a total loss. Eight-one persons were drowned.

The steamer Tucapel was engaged in trading on the west coast of South America. She was of 1918 tons net and was commanded by Captain Marrow.

Accidental Shooting.

Kingston, Sept. 6.—A. E. Hunt, a barber, was accidentally shot in the side while out with a party near Collins Lake. One of the party shot at a stump for practice, and the bullet glanced off and struck Hunt in the side. He will recover.

State Railway Wire.

Kingston, Sept. 6.—The street railway for some time have been missing large quantities of bond wire from their tracks. It is believed thieves have been at work nights with instruments, taking wire from the tracks.

PRAISE FOR THE TEAM

London, Sept. 6.—Last night's farewell banquet in the Connaught rooms, given under the auspices of the National Artillery Association to the Canadian Artillery contingent, who are homeward bound to-day, proved a brilliant spectacle, and one which will live long in military annals of the Dominion and the Motherland. The Duke of Connaught presided, and among the prominent guests were Lords Strathcona and Stradbroke and the Lord Mayor. At the cross table with His Royal Highness were Lieut.-Col. Renaut and Col. MacMachtan. The duke, in proposing the toast of the Canadian artillery team, said it was wonderfully creditable to the Dominion that they should have been successful in winning the Prince of Wales' Cup, the association's second principal trophy, and congratulated them in fitting eulogy on the many trophies they were taking back, including the King's Prize for coast defence, and the Canada and Londonderry Cups. He was delighted at their coming to England, as nothing could do more to promote comradeship than rubbing shoulders with the British soldiers. In conclusion the duke said he was sailing for Canada exactly a month hence, and hoped to meet them all on the other side of the Atlantic.

Earl Stradbroke jokingly said that while the association was not jealous of the Canadian artillery's prowess in taking back to Canada more than the lion's share, they did resent the carrying off of their president, too.

What Is a Publication?

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—Just what class of matter is entitled to be called a publication and to receive publishers' privileges is a point over which some friction has developed between the Postoffice Department and some societies which publish official organs.

A deputation yesterday waited on the Deputy Postmaster-General in regard to one of these publications, "The Co-Operator," issued by the Canadian Co-Operative Union. The Postoffice Department recently declined to grant publishers' privileges to it and this the union claims is somewhat unjust. The reason given for the Government's action is that as the magazine is not supported by individual subscription, but is bought by members by different local societies, it is not properly a publication. As opposed to this its publishers claim that different fraternal organs such as those of the Sons of England, are granted publishers' privileges, although not supported by private subscription.

Consideration was promised by the Postmaster-General.

Night Watchman Run Over.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—Run over by a C.P.R. light engine at the Ryding avenue crossing, ward seven, Henry Hembert, aged 40, of 248 Ryding avenue, was instantly killed at 6 o'clock last night. He was riding a bicycle on his way to work. Some trees are thought to have obscured his view, for evidently he did not see the engine.

Hembert was a night watchman in the employ of the Campbell Milling Co., and he was on his way to work. He came out from England only a couple of months ago, and the widow and several children are over there now.

Coroner Rowe will open an inquest at Speers' undertaking establishment this afternoon at three o'clock.

Increases Its Capital.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—The Bank of Montreal shareholders met yesterday and ratified the change in the bylaw increasing the capital from $14,400,000 to $16,000,000.

The motion was made by Sir Edward Clouston, seconded by Mr. E. B. Greenshields, and carried unanimously. The price at which the stock will be offered to the shareholders has not yet been decided upon by the directors.

Wilson on Reciprocity.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 6.—Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson delivered an address at the Nebraska State Fair here yesterday advocating the reciprocity agreement with Canada, and dwelling on the beneficial results which he believed would accrue from the adoption of the agreement, which, he believed, would be to the advantage of both countries.

Fatal Runaway.

Lindsay, Sept. 6.—W. B. Singer of Kirkfield was killed when a team belonging to Sir William Mackenzie's estate ran away. It appears that the box on the wagon slid on to the horses' heels, causing them to make a bolt for liberty. Singer was thrown out and run over, dying from internal injuries.

Will Pay Church Debt.

Hamilton, Sept. 6.—The debt on the First Methodist Church, amounting to $9,000, has stood in the way of the erection of a new church. One of the members of the congregation, Alanson Moore, to overcome this, has undertaken to pay the entire debt off himself.

Poisoned by Toadstools.

New York, Sept. 6.—The fourth member of a birthday party held on Sunday night died yesterday from eating toadstools in mistake for mushrooms. The death of a fifth victim is expected, and three others are in a critical condition.

FIVE INQUESTS IN DAY.

Persons Implicated Are Exonerated by Toronto Juries.

Toronto, Sept. 6—Five inquests were conducted in this city yesterday.

Roy Stafford of Belleville, Ont., was absolved from blame for the death of five-year-old Eddie Collis by Chief Coroner Johnson's jury. It was shown that the boy's approach had been hidden by a street car beside which Mr. Stafford's motor car was running west on Queen street, near Rhodes avenue. The car stopped and the boy was only five feet away when he came into view of those in the machine.

Coroner A. R. Morgan's jury added a rider to their verdict of accidental death in the case of Samuel Linton, whom they found to have been killed by a fall from part of a derrick while at work at the Dominion Bridge Co.'s plant Aug. 29.—They added that they were of opinion "that sufficient precaution was not taken in erecting the derrick."

Coroner Fred. Winnett's jury found that no blame attached to the motorman of College car 1,470, which struck Albert Chartern at College and Marguerett streets Aug. 30. He had ridden from behind one car in front of another on his bicycle, so that he died in the Western Hospital.

Coroner R. J. Wilson opened an inquest at the morgue yesterday afternoon into the death of Jos. Hepburn, who was killed by a fall from the "Racer Dips" at the island on Labor Day. It was adjourned till September 11.

Coroner W. A. Young opened an inquest at the General Hospital yesterday into the death of Wm. Johnstone, who was killed by a street car in East Gerrard street Monday.

Says Her Husband Eloped.

Kingston, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Hepburn has asked the police to locate her husband, Charles Hepburn, aged 28, who, it is alleged, has eloped with Mrs. Comper, aged 26, a widow. Hepburn until a couple of days ago was employed as chef in King's Cafe and Mrs Comper washed dishes. They are both missing and it is alleged they went to Toronto. Mrs. Hepburn says her husband not only deserted her, but also robbed her of all the money she had before he left. Mrs. Comper's husband committed suicide early this spring. Hepburn has a wife and child.

Bedlam.

Bedlam is a name derived from Bethlehem hospital in London, which was used as early as the first years of the sixteenth century for the reception of distracted persons, had very limited resources and frequently discharged patients who were not yet cured.

OUT OF THE SKY

A Fourth of July Story

By Clarissa Mackie

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The grass was starred with dandelions, and a robin hopped perkily among the yellow blossoms. Mrs. Secor watched the red breasted bird with resentful eyes that finally filled with tears.

"Seems as if it isn't just right for a bird to be so happy when the Lord denies happiness to Alice—not that she shows it, because she's too proud, but I understand; seems as if all the light went out of her face the day Martha Fane came over and told her she thought it was a step down for Henry to marry her. Humph—as if a Secor wasn't better blood than a Fane any day!"

The door opened just then, and Alice Secor came into the room, surprising her usually busy mother with idle hands folded on her knitting.

Mrs. Secor resumed her knitting with furious energy. "Got any mail?" she asked.

"Nothing except the paper," responded Alice in her low voice.

"See anybody you know?" asked her mother, with assumed indifference.

"I met Henry Fane," she said, with a note of sharpness in her voice.

"What did he have to say, Alice?"

"Nothing, mother. I just bowed to him and passed along."

Mrs. Secor said eagerly, "Are you going to do anything, Alice?"

Her daughter lifted her head proudly. "No, mother; I'm going to let the Lord take care of the matter."

The older woman reddened. She felt rebuked. "The Lord helps those that help themselves. It ain't a day of miracles," she said.

Alice Secor looked across the lawn and the stretch of road beyond to where the prosperous farm of the

"ALL RIGHT, MOTHER, I WILL."

Fanes lay under the summer sunshine. The large house and barn were painted white as snow, and the fences marked the various inclosures with unvarying regularity and whiteness. Due cows dotted the rolling pastures in the background. The wide open barn doors showed a glimpse of carriages, and there was the distant pounding of horses' hoofs from the stables.

A sudden booming sound rent the air, and the robin on the lawn darted into the apple tree.

"What's that?" asked Mrs. Secor sharply.

"A cannon, I think, mother. Tomorrow's the Fourth of July, you know."

"I don't suppose you'll go over to the horse trot same as usual with Henry," remarked Mrs. Secor.

"No, I'm not going," said Alice.

"I wonder if Henry will ask Lucy Jennings to go. Martha Fane thinks the Jenningses are all right, they're so well off."

Alice did not reply. She was mentally computing the value of the Fane farm and wondering how Martha Fane could ever estimate the worth of land and houses far above the love and happiness of her only son.

* * * * * * *

It was a cloudy Fourth of July, and the noisy demonstrations of the patriotically inclined only added to the general muskiness and depressing heat of the day.

For three years past Henry Fane had taken Alice Secor to the horse trot at the heights. Once he had a colt entered for the races, and when he had triumphantly placed the winning purse in Alice's lap the occasion had been as joyful to her as to the tall, strong young farmer she had promised to marry.

This year, however, Henry Fane set forth on the drive all alone. His mother's insistence that he should ask Lucy Jennings to accompany him had stirred him from irritation to positive anger, and he had spoken harshly to her for the first time in his life.

"But what will she think?" complained Martha Fane.

"Think?" repeated Henry impatiently. "Why should Lucy Jennings expect me to take her to the trot when I've never taken her anywhere in my life? I never took but one girl, and if I can't have her I don't want any."

"Henry, wait. I told Lucy I would not be surprised if you asked her to go to the trot. I don't know what she'll think," called Martha Fane.

"I guess she'll think you're a mighty poor prophet, mother," Henry laughed shortly and drove out of the yard. He did not ride past the Secor cottage. Instead, he turned to the left and took the long way around. He would have stayed at home that day so as to have shown Alice that he did not care to go unless she accompanied him, but he had been appointed one of the judges of the races, so he could not very well refuse. He hoped Alice would hear of it and understand.

His mother watched him drive around the long road, and she understood, and for the first time there came into her heart a doubt of her own wisdom. Martha Fane had always been sufficient unto herself and her family. Her son Henry was different from the meek husband who had died and the submissive daughters who had married and gone away. Henry had a dominant spirit of his own, but she had exacted his promise not to marry without her consent, and then after his engagement to Alice Secor had been an accepted fact for three years she had set her face against it.

She was jealous of the girl and of Henry's devotion to her. So she had made family pride and money the vehicle of her displeasure, and after awhile, when she had explained her views to Alice herself, the engagement was broken off. She wondered now if she was any happier. True, she had her son all to herself, and he had passionately declared that he would marry nobody else. But he was changed from the happy young man of three months ago, and in his serious, brooding face she read bitterness and sorrow. She was afraid, and she was ashamed, and yet she did not know how to make amends. Perhaps it would come out all right, she argued, although she had doubts, for the Secors were proud, too, and would never make the first advances.

Dusk was falling when Henry drove into the yard again.

After Henry had eaten his supper he went with his mother to the high hill back of the barn to watch the display of rockets from all around the valley.

They roared up into the firmament, broke into rainbow showers of stars or sent streamers of red fire down to earth with their dropping sticks.

"That one fell on the barn, Henry!" cried Martha suddenly. "I wish I'd let you renew the insurance on it as you wanted to, but—there, I guess it's come out. Oh, look, Henry; it's awful—like a judgment!" She pointed upward where by a strange freak of circumstances six great skyrockets, like blazing comets, tore toward the earth from all points of the compass. Just above the Fane house and barns they poised an instant and then broke all together in a fiery rain that fell on the Fane farm buildings like a heaven sent disaster.

"Oh, Henry, that was awful!" cried Martha, almost hysterical with fear. "We better get down to the house and see that everything's all right. I wish I'd let you renew the insurance."

Henry spoke not a word as they hurried down the slope. When they reached the barnyard the barn was afire in a dozen places where the cinders had ignited the dry shingles. While Martha flew to telephone to the hose company Henry tore open the barn doors and led the frightened stock into the pastures. Then he rolled the carriages to a place of safety, threw a canvas cover over them and turned to the house.

Through the dormer window of the attic there glowed a red light, and a little tongue of flame licked the roof. He called his mother, and they worked frantically to remove their choicest possessions from the house, for there was nothing else to do until help came from the village. Suddenly Mrs. Secor and Alice appeared and worked side by side with the mother and son.

When the hose company came it brought half of Little River with it, and before long the house was denuded of its contents while the fire burned slowly downward, checked little by little by the streams of water pumped from the artesian well.

The three women, Martha Fane, Mrs. Secor and Alice, huddled in one corner of the yard. Somehow or other their arms had become interlaced, and once Martha Fane's quivering lips had pressed against Alice's dark hair.

"It's a judgment on me for being proud," she moaned continually.

Long after midnight the fight ceased. The barn lay a heap of smoldering ruins. The house was gutted by the devastating fire, and the household furniture of careful Martha Fane was heaped about the yard.

Henry came and placed his arm around his mother. "I guess we're poor enough now, Henry," she sobbed—"not a penny of insurance on anything and not a place to lay my head."

Mrs. Secor took her arm and gently led her toward her own house. "Poor or rich, Martha Fane, my house is yours as long as you want to stay there. Uncle Benjamin will watch over the ruins and the furniture. He doesn't mind, because he can sleep all day tomorrow. Maybe it's all for the best, Martha. You know you never liked the upper floor of that house. You can build it to suit now."

"I guess it's a judgment come direct from heaven to straighten out a whole lot of things," said Martha Fane meekly. She looked back over her shoulder at Henry and Alice following. "You take good care of Alice, Henry!" she called in a meaning tone, and Henry responded with his old boyish cheerfulness:

"All right mother, I will."

DOCTOR SAID SHE WOULD DIE

"Fruit-a-tives" Saved Her Life

RIVIERE A PIERRE, QUE., May 9th 1910

"I look upon my recovery as nothing short of a miracle. I was for eleven years constantly suffering from Chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation. The last two years of my illness, I was confined to my bed nearly all the time. I was so thin I weighed only 90 pounds, and I vomited everything I ate. Even water would not stay on my stomach.

The doctors gave me up to die as the stomach trouble produced heart weakness and I was frequently unconscious.

At this time, a lady friend strongly advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives" and how thankful I am that I did so. When I had taken one box, I was much better and after three boxes, I was practically well again and had gained 20 pounds.

I have taken thirteen boxes in all and now weigh 150 pounds and am absolutely well—no pain—no indigestion—no constipation—my heart is sound and complexion clear".

Tired In Body and in Mind

Worn Out by the Monotonous Indoor Life of Winter

Spring Finds the Blood Weak and the System Run Down—Vigor is Restored by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Just at the time when the buds are bursting and the birds are chirping merrily in the treetops, many people feel most keenly the debilitating and enervating effects of indoor winter life.

The blood is so thin and watery that it fails to supply nutrition to the nervous system and to the vital organs. You feel tired, weak and discouraged, appetite fails, digestion is impaired energy and ambition are lacking, and strange depressing feelings come over you.

But nature has provided certain restoratives to be used at this time of year to form new, rich blood and create new nerve force. These elements are found in condensed and easily assimilated form in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Thousands of men and women have learned to escape this spring depression and weakness and discouragement by using this great restorative.

Vitality is increased, strength and confidence return, buoyancy is felt in every movement of the body, pallor and weakness and disease give place to the glow of health and vigour of mind and body.

New King George Coppers.

The new King George cent, which is being made at the Canadian mint, will differ considerably in design from the King Edward cent.

A proclamation has been issued with this description:—"For the obverse impression, the effigy of His Majesty King George the Fifth, consisting of head and bust, wearing the Imperial crown and the robe of state, with the collar of the Garter, and looking to the left, with the inscription, 'Georgius V. Rex et Ind. Imp.,' and for the reverse the words, 'One cent, Canada,' and the date of the year, within a headed circle surrounded by a wreath of entwined maple leaves, with a plain edge."

On the King Edward cent the head of the monarch faces to the left, with the inscription, "Edwardus VII. dei Gratia Rex Imperator," and the word "Canada" appears on the obverse of the coin.

Independently Miserable.

A day or two ago, having joined the boat train at Dover harbor station, the writer found a fellow passenger resting a heavy head on worried looking hands. The weather was quite pleasant, but one can never judge the channel by the appearance of Dover beach, so the question was asked sympathetically, "Was the crossing very rough?"

"No," said the passenger; "this is a personal matter."—London Globe.

FRIENDS WERE TOO KIND

An Amusing Mistake Which, However, Had Unpleasant Results

A resident of Paris has had an unpleasant experience at the casino at Inghien. He was playing baccarat on a system of his own. By this system he loses only a fixed sum. When that is gone he refuses to stake any more. He had reached his limit losses, and, turning to a lady next to him, said: "There goes my last louis. I shall not play any more."

At the same moment he took a little box out of his pocket and slipped a white lozenge into his mouth. Four attendants instantly caught him from behind, lifted him out of his chair, and carried him to the police-station. The doctor in attendance there poured a strong emetic down his throat, and the poor man became very ill indeed. It was not until too late that he was allowed to explain. The casino authorities thought he had lost his last louis in a literal sense, and had decided to "save his life" without allowing him to explain that he was not taking poison.

How to Be Miserable

If you wish to be miserable, think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you; and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spell everything you touch, you will make misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you; you will be as wretched as you choose.—Charles Kingsley.

LUNCH-ROOMS FOR WOMEN

Lunch-rooms for women employes are rapidly growing in popularity in every up-to-date factory. A short time ago this was looked upon as an unnecessary luxury, but the progressive employer of to-day realizes the advantage gained by considering the comfort and health of his employes, and a bright, clean lunch-room is a stimulus to a higher standard of service and loyalty.

Regularity

of the bowels is an absolute necessity for good health. Unless the waste matter from the food which collects there is got rid of at least once a day, it decays and poisons the whole body, causing billousness, indigestion and sick headaches. Salts and other harsh mineral purgatives irritate the delicate lining of the bowels. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills—entirely vegetable—regulate the bowels effectively without weakening, sickening or griping. Use

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dredging Fort William, Ont," will be received until 4 P.M. Wednesday, September 13, 1911, for dredging required at Fort William, Ont.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Only dredges can be employed which are registered in Canada at the time of the filing of tenders. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 25, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

Branch Line of Railway from Guysborough to Sunny Brae Through Country Harbour Crossroads with an Extension from Country Harbour Crossroads to Deep Water of Country Harbour.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Guysborough-Country Harbour Line," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock on Friday, September the 15th, 1911, for Section No. 1 of the above line of railway, comprising that portion extending from Guysborough to Country Harbour Crossroads and from the latter point to Deep Water Country Harbour.

Plans, profiles, specification and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 15th instant at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton; and at the office of the Board of Trade of Halifax. Forms of tender may be procured from the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals or from the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $100,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

Department of Railways and Canals,

KING CORN'S GIFT TO AMERICA

BESTOWING Upon Us the Title of the Most Civilized Nation, as the Producer of the Best Bread, He Is Causing Federal Agents to Scour the Globe in Quest of Further Excellence.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

EMINENT scientists of to-day are advancing the theory that there is no better way to measure the civilization of a country than by observe the quality of the bread that is made and eaten by its inhabitants.

This at first thought may seem strange, but a little consideration usually makes the proposition clear. In the first place it is pointed out that it is only in the highly civilized nations of to-day that really good bread, made of good flour and properly baked, is to be found, while it is well known that the savage peoples of to-day grow the poorest sort of wheat and make the poorest and least palatable bread.

Scientific experts of the Department of Agriculture explain it this way. They say that as the farmers of a country are successful in reclaiming exhausted and impoverished soils, in conserving the fertility of the newer wheat lands and in developing varieties of wheat better in quality and adapted to wider ranges of growth, so will the ideal of efficiency and economy in production of the staff of life be approached. The healthy industrial activities of a nation, they declare, depend upon efficiency and economy of production. Carrying the pyramid a stone higher, they point out that the foundations of the twentieth century civilizations are purely industrial.

Q. E. D., the quality of the wheat or bread of a country is the barometer of its civilization.

Measured by this test the United States is far in the lead of the other countries of the world. As a producer of good wheat and flour no other people can touch its inhabitants. Its farming methods are more advanced and generally approved and the men behind the great machines that are used on our Middle Western plains are the most intelligent wheat raisers in the world. So says the Department of Agriculture.

The only equal of the American in this respect is the Canadian farmer, but for all practical purposes he is the same. With the Canadian reciprocity agreement in operation and no artificial barrier to prevent the free interchange of grains across the border the two great countries of the North American continent will be industrially one.

Nevertheless, the food experts of the government are not content with the progress that has already been made. They are not content that the United States has outdistanced all competitors and has become the food giver of the world. The Department of Agriculture, assisted by the agricultural experts of the country, is working constantly to raise the standard of the wheat grown in this country. Experiments are constantly being made with new varieties to determine their food value, their bread making qualities and their yield. Farmers are being educated to raise better wheat, so that each generation will do better than the last.

Nothing has done more in recent years to make wheat a topic of scientific discussion than its high price. This, of course, is the result of the law of supply and demand in the long run. It is not believed by the government wheat experts that speculators can materially affect the price for any length of time. Nature will assert herself in this, her greatest gift to man.

New Lands to Conquer.

The demands of the world's stomach are appalling in the matter of bread, and in order that none of the earth's inhabitants need go hungry King Wheat must ever be extending its dominion and finding new lands to conquer. The wheat map of the United States shows that forty-three States and Territories raise wheat in considerable quantities, but in many of the older States there has been a steady deterioration in the crop. The great harvests of the Northwestern States have, of course, rendered this unsatisfactory condition of little or no importance up to this time, but the Department of Agriculture has realised that it must have thought for the future and provide against the day when the United States will begin to see the limit to the growth of wheat in its present granaries.

The work has been prosecuted along a number of lines. In the Great Basin, lying between the Wahsatch Mountains on the east and the Sierra Nevada Mountains on the west, and including the States of Utah, Idaho and Nevada, experiments are being conducted in the growing of wheat and other crops on unirrigated and unirrigable lands. In California efforts are being made to restore the soil to a condition in which good crops of wheat may again be produced. In Wyoming and Montana winter wheat has been established as a dry land crop, and the government is working to the same end in South Dakota. From Russia has been brought a variety of wheat called emmer, which can be raised profitably under almost any condition of soil or climate.

In Palestine an agent of the Department of Agriculture has discovered a variety of emmer growing wild under the most extreme climatic conditions, which by selection and crossing should produce strains capable of cultivation in soils and climates which our native wheats cannot withstand. And finally, most notable of all has been the growth in popularity and consequent use of crops of a Siberian species known as durum wheat.

The headquarters of the dry land grain investigations in the Great Basin are at a farm of 102 acres six miles south of the town of Nephi, Utah, in the Juab Valley. At this station the land was covered with a heavy growth of sagebrush, a condition typical of hundreds of thousands of acres in the arid sections of the West. But this sagebrush was cleared away and the farm laid out in plots, upon which many varieties of spring and winter wheat have been cultivated. The best time for ploughing, the depth of planting, the value of permitting the ground to lie fallow in alternate years and the best method of sowing have been ascertained, and the conclusion has been reached that the farmer who gives his land approximately as much careful attention as the successful business man devotes to his business, and who enters into the construction of the animal cell.

But in the course of time the deep soil will also become poor if seeded continuously to a wheat crop. To prevent this, rye and peas must be grown as a winter crop and turned under in the spring before the land is too dry for deep ploughing. When this has been done the process of decay which they undergo supplies to the soil a rich humus, giving it body and increasing its moisture retaining capacity, and an abundance of nitrates, the nitrogen for which is taken from the air by the nodules on the roots of the pea vines. Results? Gratifying, indeed, from every aspect. The yield has been doubled and the secret discovered by which the coming generations of farmers may hold the fruitfulness of the soil in perpetuity.

Two new varieties of wheat, chul and fretes, have also been introduced in California and sold out rich premiums. The chul variety was brought from the Russian steppes, where it is grown without irrigation. The average yield to the acre of chul wheat has been forty four and a half bushels, as compared with thirty-six bushels for the old varieties. The fretes variety came from Algeria. It is a soft wheat, particularly noted for its early maturity, and is often extensively planted in the Sahara Desert in seasons when the winter rains occur so late that the hard varieties usually grown would not have time to mature. Fretes wheat in California is yielding some farms fifty-six bushels to the acre.

Emmer occupies a unique position. In the United States it has been used only for stock feeding, but a great deal of the food of the peasants of the northern Volga River section, in Russia, is made from emmer, and in the portions of Germany, Switzerland and Italy where no wheat is raised this grain plays the same role. It was first grown in this country in Dakotas by German-Russian farmers, who brought it over from Russia.

One of the characteristic qualities of this cereal, which commends it at once to cultivators, is its ability to make a good crop with almost any condition of soil or climate. Almost all varieties are drought resistant, the winter varieties are usually quite winter hardy, and the damaging effects of rains upon grain at harvest time in wet districts do not usually occur with this cereal. It will thrive also on poor lands, in stony ground, in forest regions and on the prairies. The attacks of rust and smut do not affect it as they do ordinary wheats. For these reasons emmer will prove to be very valuable for improving our ordinary wheats, and in the experimental crossing that has been done there has been a marked increase in general vigor and hardiness.

The lineage of emmer is very old and distinguished; it is the only species of wheat which has been cultivated since the very beginning of civilization. Up to a few years ago the original wild wheat plant from which our cultivated species have sprung had not been discovered, but from Palestine there has lately come an account of the finding of a primitive type of emmer growing wild, in company with wild barley. By the selection and crossing of this wild cereal, which prefers poor, rocky, shallow, dry soil, and thrives without any cultivation, it is hoped to develop varieties adapted to the semi-arid regions of the United States.

In the entire history of the country no other cereal seems to have made so remarkable a record as durum wheat. Previous to 1901 it could not usually be sold at the elevators or mills at any price, and was rarely grown—in small quantities only, for stock feeding. Ten years ago the annual durum wheat crop was 100,000 bushels; in his report for 1910 the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture gave 56,000,000 bushels as the 1909 crop, and stated that it was no longer possible to give even approximate figures of the production.

In the sections of Europe where this wheat is well known its excellent qualities have been recognized a long time. France, the greatest bread eating country in the world, for many years has used durum wheat flour in its baking, and in the region from Greece to Roumania it forms a large part of the annual crop. Much the largest production of durum wheat is in East and South Russia, and the price at the principal Russian markets is always higher than that of the hard red spring and winter wheats, although the latter easily equals in quality the similar wheats of the country.

The slow coming into use of durum wheat for bread in the United States was due to the stress put upon its incomparable value in the manufacture of macaroni. In fact, no other wheat, except perhaps Polish, will make good macaroni. It is as impossible to make typical Minneapolis flour from California wheat as it is to make first class macaroni from other than durum wheat. The excellence of Italian macaroni is not due to superior methods of manufacture; the real reason is that only durum wheat is used, though it is true that the methods are occasionally superior to those of many American factories.

Value of Durum Wheat.

In 1902, however, through the efforts of a number of flour mills, many families were induced to use this wheat for bread over considerable acres in North and South Dakota, although it is in these sections that the best quality of ordinary hard spring wheat is grown and the people had abundant opportunity to obtain bread of the same class as that produced from Minneapolis flour.

In the spring of 1908, at the conclusion of a series of baking experiments and chemical analyses with durum wheat flour, the Department of Agriculture had baked 890 loaves of bread, 640 loaves from durum and 250 loaves from hard spring wheat flour, and sent one of each to prominent millers, bakers, flour inspectors, chemists and teachers of domestic science, no intimation being made of the nature of the flour from which the loaves were made. A list of questions was sent relative to comparative freshness, flavor, color, texture, moisture, crust and other general qualities, and more than two hundred replies were received out of the total of two hundred and fifty. The general opinion of the value of the durum wheat loaves as against those made from other flour was 108 to 74 in favor of the durum wheat loaves, although in the matter of color of the bread and color and taste of the crust the answers were slightly unfavorable to the durum wheat loaves.

But a thorough study of the situation has shown that the matter of color is largely relative one and is almost entirely under the control of the baker. With the experience of the last few years he has produced a whiter durum wheat loaf, although it must be remembered that no bad bread made to-day from Western or Northwestern wheat is white, nor is the flour white. Many Minneapolis flours, which may be taken as good standards, are a creamy color and not white, although they must underwent the greatest of difficulties in becoming established, just from the fact that they were not white flours. The durum wheat flour at most produces a wheat that is only a little more yellow or creamy than the best hard spring wheat.

The possibilities in reach of our farmers and commercial men in this new grain have just begun to be revealed. There are enormous areas of semi-arid and even arid districts not yet touched by agriculture which are admirably adapted to it. Even under irrigation the wheat succeeds very well, but over by far the larger portions of the dry districts irrigation will be unnecessary, something which is true of but very few other drought resistant crops.

Aside from the export outlet for durum wheat, either in the form of the wheat itself or semolina in France and Italy, for the production of macaroni, there should be other outlets in other countries where bread of a rich flavor is desired, without regard to color. This is particularly true of those districts of the Far East where there has been unusually rapid development in recent years. Should the Chinese and Japanese and other Oriental peoples become fully acquainted with the use of wheat bread the exports of American flour made from this variety of grain would be practically unlimited. It would seem, therefore, to be greatly to the interest of the millers and grain dealers to encourage the production of durum wheat in all undeveloped semi-arid areas, as it is becoming more and more evident that it is just as great importance to them as it is to the farmer.

QUEBEC'S EMPLOYMENT AGENCY IS A SUCCESS.

The Effort of Hon. L. A. Taschereau Minister of Public Works and Labor to Abolish the Innumerable Evils of Private Agencies Has Had a Splendid Result—No Fee Is Required—No Mantlin of Greed.

Without, as yet, being confronted with the complex economic problems which exist in older countries, Canada embraces the wholesome idea that no willing worker should look three meals each day and a place to sleep at night. She has not yet labored under the delusion that it is her duty to see that her population, and the ever-increasing number of settlers from over-seas, are all provided with remunerative tasks. On every hand opportunities offer, and the unwilling can take the consequences of their habits.

Nevertheless, the rapid development and growth of the country has resulted in precipitating, in a minor manner, conditions which show a tendency towards some of those problems which are the curse of Europe, and in the Province of Quebec the Government has taken it upon itself to aid the willing in their search for work.

The new arrival from the Old Country, too frequently under the impression that the Dominion has halted her forward step until he has arrived to direct her destiny, starts his career under some disadvantage, and before he has properly settled gets as severely "up against it" that he ships home again with opinions of Canada which are seized upon by the English editors on the hunt for a hot sensational feature.

Some years ago the writer travelled to England on a cattle "tramp," a board of which was a band of disgruntled natives of the British Isles, says St. George Burgoyne in Canadian Century. The tenor of their complaint was that they had been "done" ever since leaving the vessel which landed them at Quebec, and in almost every instance their venom was directed against employment agencies. Their experience has been one of pay, pay, pay. They had been sent to places where there was already a glut in the labor market, and where some of them had been fortunate enough to secure employment it was frequently not of the nature represented by the "agents," and the monetary consideration was dollars below what had been promised. They were unanimous in declaring the Dominion a "bloomin' 'ole," and landed on English soil with determination to tell their comrades at home the truth about the country.

Although the employment agency evil has time and time again shown itself to exist, those interested have usually found more profitable material in the immigrant ignorant of the English language. The provincial authorities have promised sweeping reforms for some time past, and it is confidently expected that a thorough investigation into the methods of these agencies will be undertaken in Montreal shortly. The civic business tax will, it has been stated, be supplemented by a license from the provincial authorities to be granted gratis when their officers have satisfied themselves as to the bona fides of the business carried on.

The move of the Provincial Government in opening in both Montreal and Quebec a Free Employment Office has already had the effect of drawing away from the various privately-operated labor agencies a considerable number of applicants, and the success of the undertaking, despite the fact that the bureau in Montreal was only opened on April 3 has more than justified its existence.

Thus far the applications received have run into the thousands each week, a large percentage of which numbers has been for work as laborers—a class of applicant which is hard to place until navigation is well open. At the same time there has been a surprisingly large list in the skilled branches, and these, with a reasonable delay, have all been placed.

No fee is exacted from the applicant who states his want, which is kept on file. There is no question of creed in the application form—the designation of religious belief being optional. If a request is already on hand from an employer for the class of applicant applying he is sent out with a card detailing his capabilities, and if engaged the employer returns the card to the bureau, where it is filed away for future reference should the applicant again apply for work. This method, apart from its statistical value, serves as a trace on the career of the worker placed by the bureau.

The need and possibilities of such an aid to the searcher for work was for some time evident to the Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Provincial Minister of Public Works and Labor, and he instructed Mr. Louis Guyon, Provincial Inspector of Factories and Public Buildings to visit the United States in search of the best model on which to operate the office in Montreal, and after consideration it was decided that the method followed in the Free Employment Office in Boston was best suited to the requirements of Montreal, and the bureau was opened here, Mr. Louis Payette as superintendent.

The staff is qualified to deal with the work and the tactful manner in which it handles the crowds which pass the counter has removed all elements of distaste which the more sensitive of the applicants might have felt in making their wants known.

Two competent women have charge of the female side in placing domestic servants, cooks, seamstresses and other lines of feminine industry, and it is on their side that the human interest element has more readily shown itself.

"STONEHENGE."

Origin of Famous Monument Veiled in Mystery.

The first serious inquiry into the origin of Stonehenge came from a characteristic quarter, no less a person than the British Solomon, King James I., who, says The London Globe, directed Inigo Jones, the famous architect, to undertake the task. At the time of his death Inigo had prepared some notes only. These were edited by a relative at the desire of two famous men, Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood, and Selden, the lawyer; the theory advanced being that Stonehenge was "a temple after the Tuscan order." It would be interesting to know how much of the work was really Inigo's, as it was based on certain geometric measurements which proved to have been less accurately done than might have been expected from an architect. The popular theory that monuments such as Stonehenge, or the circles at Keswick and elsewhere in the Lake district, were Druids' temples, originated with Dr. William Stukeley. Stukeley was a man of great learning, but allowed his ideas to run away with him.

His arguments formed a remarkable study. He had seen the circles, apparently temples without priests; he had read of the Druids, apparently priests without temples. He wished to connect them. Then he found in Pliny a fantastic story that in Gaul the serpents congregated at midsummer, and produced from their saliva an egg to which magic virtues were ascribed. This they cast into the air, seemingly after the modern ritual of tossing the pancake, and he who would possess himself of the talisman must catch it ere it reached the ground and fly for safety beyond running water; for all the terrors that Tam o' Shanter or Elsie Vanner braved were his. Pliny crowns the whole by saying that he had seen one of these eggs; so when he adds that they were regarded as a charm by the Druids, Stukeley had no hesitation in saying that the circles were erected by the Druids for serpent worship.

But why were they circles? Because, said Stukeley, they represented the coils of an enormous snake, worked in boulders, the image of their deity. To demonstrate this he made a survey of the lines of stones near the circle at Avebury. The resulting snake was semi-detached, neither continuous nor convincing, and it was only by the help of artistic license that he was able to produce the required diagram. Later he supplemented this by a plan of certain remains at Shap, Westmoreland. He himself remained at Carlisle—he was a wise man, for the weather was bad—and sent a young surveyor to do the work. He was a wise man also, for he knew what his master wanted to find and he found it, having prepared, it is said, a plan of all the stones in a day — an utter impossibility. Yet Stukeley's theories created an extraordinary sensation at the time, and are accepted to some extent even to this day.

Jack Tar's Letters.

It is easy enough for you to drop your letters in a pillar-box and know that they will be delivered with all due speed. But Jack, especially when he is cruising in foreign waters, has to wait weeks or even months to get a reply to his correspondence.

On every British war vessel a corporal or lance-corporal of the Royal Marines is specially told off to collect and dispatch letters and parcels. He is the local postoffice and postmaster, for he sells stamps and generally acts for and gives information to the members of the ship's company about their mail. All the letters for England are fastened up in private bags and addressed to the G.P.O., London. These bags are sealed with the design of a British ensign around which are the words, "The Seal of His Majesty's Ships."

Many of the letters that are received from Jack Tar bear English stamps and the London postmark, which rather puzzles recipients. But the foregoing paragraph explains this simply enough. These mail bags, when properly sealed, are taken ashore by the ship's postman and delivered to the nearest postoffice. Very often the latter is twenty or thirty miles away and consists of a dignified barn.

RACHEL'S GUITAR.

It Was Traded to Play a Costly Air For Banker Fould.

Rachel, the famous actress, did not neglect any means of turning a more or less honest penny. In his new life of her Francis Gribble tells the following story of a guitar:

Rachel first saw and admired it in an artist's studio. "Give it to me," she said. "I want to pretend that it is the guitar on which I earned my living as a street singer."

The jest seemed a pleasant one, and the artist handed over the instrument. Rachel embellished it with ribbons and hung it in her own apartment, where it duly attracted the attention of Achille Fould, the banker. Hearing its story, he expressed the wish to possess it. "Very well," said Rachel, "you can have it for a thousand louis."

"Five hundred," said the banker, trying to bargain.

"No, a thousand," said Rachel, expressing her disdain for those who haggled.

And the banker actually paid a thousand louis for the worthless knick-knack. It is said that he learned the truth when he tried to sell his treasure at the Hotel Drouot and that the discovery of the hoax nearly sent him into a fit on the floor.

MEASURING THE EARTH.

Eratosthenes Made the First Attempt and Did Fairly Well.

The earliest attempt to measure the circumference of the earth was made by a Greek, Eratosthenes, who was born 276 B. C. He found that at Syene the gnomon, or upright pillar, used by the Greeks to measure the height of the sun in the sky, showed the sun to be exactly overhead at midday at the time of the summer solstice, while at Alexandria the gnomon cast a shadow upon the same date, showing that the latter point was one-fiftieth of the earth's circumference north of Syene.

Eratosthenes reasoned correctly that the length of the shadow at Alexandria bore the same relation to the circumference of the small circle described from the top of the gnomon as a center that the distance between the two cities bore to the circumference of the globe. This latter was 5,000 stadia, or about 625 miles, which when multiplied by fifty gives 31,250 miles as the circumference of the earth. This result is not quite correct, but as nearly so as could be expected from the first rough attempt to estimate it.—New York Mail.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can keep the heart she endeavors. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One brief will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look just right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

BY MARKET REPORTER.

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Higher, Chicago Lower—Live Stock —Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Profit-taking on a large scale by owners of wheat more than wiped out to-day an advance due to light shipments and to unfavourable crop conditions in Europe. The close was 2-8 to 1-2 under Saturday night's figures. Corn finished unchanged to 1-8 down; oats off a shade to 7-8 and hog products varying from the same as the previous close to 17 1-2c below.

The Liverpool market closed to-day 1¼d to 1½d higher than Saturday on wheat, and 1¼d to 1½d higher on corn. Antwerp closed 1½c higher on wheat; Buda Pest, ½c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—There was considerable demand from foreign quarters for old and new crop Manitoba spring wheat, and as the prices bid were higher a fair amount of business was worked.

American corn was very strong, and prices have advanced two cents per bushel with sales of No. 2 yellow ex-store at 72c. Oats are strong and prices are 1½c to 1¾c per bushel higher. Sales of round lots of extra No. 1 feed were made at 44¾c and 44½c.

An active business has been done in ocean freight room during the past few days, and rates are steadily advancing for grain, and flour space is two to three cents per 100 pounds higher. There continues to be a good demand from European sources for spring wheat flour at advanced prices, and further large sales were made. The local trade is active and firm. Demand for mill feed good and supplies light.

Cheese quiet and steady. Butter easier in tone, but no actual change in prices. Provisions firm under a good demand.

ECZEMA AND WHAT IS DONE TO CURE IT

Desperate Efforts, Disheartening Failures and Final Success.

Eczema is a skin affection to which men and women alike are subject, from the first to the last day of their existence. It may come as a little tiny spot, appearing and disappearing with such change in general health or internal ailment as certain exposure; at the other extreme, the whole body may be tortured in a torturing eruption. The latter condition may gradually arise through the neglect or improper treatment of lesser troubles or an apparently healthy skin may, in a single day, become a mass of eczema.

But whatever the form of the affection, the distressing itching, burning, scaling and crusting, the serious disfigurement and the constant dread that the disease will become chronic, make a speedy cure the aim of every sufferer. Unfortunately, such a cure is not always readily obtained. The most skilled physician is often at a loss and even hospitals are forced to discharge the patient as incurable. Then a wide variety of remedies are resorted to, many patently harmless and equally ineffective, others so offensive to every sense that, were it not for the relief they are supposed to afford, no person of refinement would tolerate them for an instant.

To such sufferers, discouraged by repeated failures of even these latter methods, the lament relief followed by the first bath with Cuticura Soap and gentle application of Cuticura Ointment is almost incredible. They stop the itching and burning at once, make sleep possible and, in most cases, point to a speedy cure. So pure and sweet are Cuticura Soap and Ointment and so free from every trace of a disagreeable or harmful nature that they can be used without hesitation on the youngest infant or tenderest skin. Besides, they are most economical, a single set being often sufficient for the treatment of even the severest cases.

In proof of the efficacy of the Cuticura Remedies it will be enough to quote here a single letter, from Mrs. Edward Manning, 11 Lenox Block, Watertown, N.Y.: "Four years ago I suffered with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to foot and for six months confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor, I was advised to try Cuticura. After the first cake of Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the most quiet sleep I had known for months. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for three weeks. At the end of that time I was entirely cured and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies, as I know what they did for me."

Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent and Pills are sold by druggists everywhere. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., Boston, Mass. Mailed free, on request, latest 32-page Cuticura Book, a guide to the speedy and economical treatment of skin and scalp affections, from infancy to age.

GOLD FOR JEWELERS.

Most of the Raw Material is Bought From the Government.

Jewelers derive their gold supply from various sources, such as old jewelry, banks and refineries, but the greater part of the raw gold used by the manufacturer comes from the government.

From the refiner the gold comes to the factory in the form of buttons or granules. The refineries employ the waste of the jewelry shops and by burning off the material portions and subjecting the result to certain processes recover much gold that otherwise would be lost to the trade.

For many years there was a steady drain on the gold coin in circulation, caused by the use of the coin by jewelers in search of raw material. The fact that our government turned out a coin that after passing through the assay office was of twenty-two carat fineness, only two grains below the pure gold standard, and had also been worked over, the silver and copper forming the alloy having been mixed thoroughly in the gold before the coin was minted, made the gold coin particularly attractive to the jeweler. The manufacturer experienced no trouble when the gold coin was used, inasmuch as the alloy always had been combined with the metal, and all that was necessary for the commercial utilization of the coin was to alloy it sufficiently to bring the gold down to the point required; also, from the jeweler's viewpoint, a lot of time and difficulty was saved, inasmuch as this scheme did away with much bookkeeping and rendered unnecessary the tying up of considerable amounts of money in the purchase of raw material to be held as stock. Later, however, the government made up the pure gold in brick or bar form, and it is in that shape the greater bulk of the supply is now derived.

Thousands of dollars pass between the banks and the manufacturing jewelers every year in the forms of bars of gold, the banks handling these for the benefit of their clients. The bricks vary in value according to weight from $200 to $500 and come with the government assay office stamp as a guarantee of purity and fineness.—New York Press.

STANDARD MEASURES.

The Old Bucket and the Half Bushel Basket Were Alike.

Farmer Giles had heard rumors of the short weight scandal; but, as for himself, he was honest in thought, word and deed. He was naturally incensed when an apple buyer from the city objected to his half bushel measure.

"I've used that red bucket five years," he said, "and I know it's correct."

"A dozen years' use wouldn't affect its correctness," was the reply. "Have you any other reason for thinking it is correct?"

The farmer controlled his anger and after a moment's thought led his critic to the corncrib and showed him a basket woven from hickory splits. "That measure twice full fills this," he said. "And this holds exactly a bushel."

"How do you know it does?"

"Because Bill Sullivan made it, as he makes baskets for everybody, and he said it was a bushel."

Still the man was not satisfied. They went to interview Bill.

"Why, of course," said the basket maker, "I weave every one of them of an exact size. I make only one pattern basket to hold a bushel."

"But how do you know the pattern holds a bushel?"

"How do I know? I'm sure of it. I made it originally to hold two of this half bushel basket."

"And this half bushel basket?"

Bill frowned and pulled his hair in an effort to remember. Then his face brightened.

"Why, yes," he said, "I'm sure of it. I tried it one time, Giles, by that old red bucket measure of yours!"—Youth's Companion.

The Way to Bake Beans.

To make baked beans soak one and one-half pints small white beans overnight in soft water. In the morning drain and parboil, but not enough to crush the beans. Place in the bottom of a bean pot several slices of bacon (salt or fresh pork), then put in about half the beans, over which sprinkle salt, a heaping spoonful of brown sugar or New Orleans molasses, then more slices of the bacon. Over this place the rest of the beans, with the salt, sugar or molasses and bacon on top. Cover with soft water and bake at least eight hours, though they are better if baked all day. Add soft water as needed.

General Anglican Synod.

London, Ont., Sept. 6.—The preliminary meetings of the General Synod of the Anglican Church in Canada, which opens here to-day, have already commenced. The committee reporting on the raising and distribution of funds for both home and foreign missions fixed $167,000 as the minimum amount to be raised, and may later raise this sum $40,000.

Western Harvest Goes On.

Winnipeg, Sept. 6.—With warm sunshine following a day of cold rain, machines resumed harvesting through the west by noon yesterday. Conditions continue favorable with cutting practically ended in Manitoba, and threshing well under way. Half the wheat is in stook in Saskatchewan and Alberta with yield and grade higher than normal.

C.N.R. on Rideau Lakes.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—That the Canadian Northern Railway Co., whose Ottawa-Toronto line will touch at many points along the Rideau Lakes, has also brought out the Rideau Lakes Navigation Co. with the intention of adding to the service and booming the lakes as Canada's premier summer resort, is announced as the latest move of the new road.

SOUVENIR FURNACE

(New Idea Series)

Keeps the house warm and cosy in the severest winter weather, and heats all rooms equally well.

It is very simple to operate—just touch the lever and you dump the ashes; there never can be dead coals at the sides of the firepot; the ashes are readily removed.

It is easy to control the heat and regulate the fuel consumption, which means a saving of 20% to 30% in fuel bills.

It is a clean and healthful furnace—gas and dust cannot get into the hot air chamber and then into the living or sleeping rooms. It forces pure air through the whole house.

The Souvenir Furnace is made in Hamilton, the stove centre of Canada, by

BENSFORT TURNS OUT IN THE WET TO CHEER MR. STRATTON

Some Time is Devoted to Mr. Burnham's Vagaries and Mr. Stratton Shows How Protestantism Almost Lost This Champion Not Long Ago

In spite of the bad roads and wet weather, the electors of South Monaghan piled into the hall at Bensfort last night to listen to reciprocity and Mr. Stratton. Chairman James Wood commented on the earnestness of the meeting. He said he hadn't seen South Monaghan so interested in a fiscal question for years.

Even the small boys crowd into the meetings and sit well up to the front so as not to miss a point. The signs go to show that South Monaghan will contribute liberally to a good, old-fashioned Stratton majority.

Burnham Gets His Bumps.

The meeting last night gave South Monaghan something to think over, and something to chuckle over. Reciprocity was intelligently discussed, and J. Hampden Burnham got his comings-up from both speakers, the candidate and Mr. R. R. Hall. Mr. Burnham's pretty, pink-wool poetic sentiments are confined to mass meetings in Peterborough. When he goes out into the country, it is not to advise the people to look at the beautiful moon and to consider the lilies of the field, but to blackguard his opponent and discuss anything but the real merits of the issue.

"He doesn't discuss reciprocity," said R. R. Hall, "because he doesn't know much about it. Figures bewilder his poor head. Like the little boy, he says, the rule of three it puzzles me, and multiplication drives me mad.'

"His wits are always wool gathering. You say to him, "Let's go into the trade figures," and he answers "Baby soap is good for the skin." You say, "Tell us something about wheat and barley and horses" and he says, "Isn't that rainbow just too lovely."

"I don't think," said Mr. Hall, "that you want a representative who is forever chasing butterflies up side paths. Mr. Burnham's placid personality wouldn't feel at home in the hustle and bustle of politics at Ottawa. Those hard-headed fellows would put it all over him down there, just as they would over any other man who thinks that life is all jelly cake and ladys' fingers."

"But I mustn't go any further a-maying with J. H. Burnham," said Mr. Hall, getting back to his reciprocity talk.

There Are Others.

"I want to tell you," he said, "that Canada isn't the only pebble on the beach. This reciprocity agreement with the United States is a bargain that won't go begging long. If we don't snap it up somebody else will. The lamp will not always hold out to burn. If we don't take it now, Canada may not have a second chance in another generation."

Whereupon Mr. Hall proceeded to show the audience that Russia's wheat could be shipped as cheaply from Odessa to New York, as Canadian wheat could from Winnipeg to Toronto. Russia has two and a half times the acreage of Canada, has one hundred and sixty million people, has cheap labour, and last year produced 755,000,000 bushels of wheat. It grew four times as much wheat as Canada, and exported to Great Britain twice as much wheat as Canada grew. Much of the Russian wheat is still handled with cradle and sickle. The labour efficiency of the country and its grain output will be enormously increased when the self-binder becomes generally used.

"This country of Russia," said Mr. Hall, "can grow in Siberia, just as good wheat as our Manitoba No. 1 hard. Suppose the United States should say, "Well, Canada won't trade with us, how about you? You send us over your wheat and we send you back our manufactures." Don't you suppose Russia would reach for it?"

"We," said Mr. Hall, "mustn't think we're the only peach in the basket. There are others. There's the Argentine Republic for instance. Its climate may be described as a combination of the Mississippi and Saskatchewan valleys. It grows fairly good wheat. It raises horses, cattle and sheep. It is an agricultural country. You can ship as cheaply from Buenos Ayres to New York as you can from Winnipeg to Toronto. What if the Argentine Republic should make up to the United States?

"What I say is, don't be foolish. England gets her five annual billions of foreign trade by dealing with any nation in the world. What England does we need not be ashamed of doing. The English market is a good one for Canadian products, but it is open to all. The United States gives us a ninety million market that keeps up its tariff wall against the rest of the world."

Mr. Stratton Tells a Riddle.

Candidate Stratton was warmly applauded when he referred to his faithful stewardship of twenty-five years. Almost any man could vote for him on such a record of public service.

"Although," said Mr. Stratton, "some have other reasons. I met a certain Conservative in the street in Peterborough the other day and I said to him, "William, how are you going to vote?"

"I'm going to vote the way I always did.'

"I suppose that means you're going to vote against me. You haven't given me a vote in twenty-five years."

"No, I'm going to vote for you, but I'm going to vote as I always did."

"How do you make that out?"

"Well, I'm a Conservative and always will be. I voted for reciprocity when Sir John Macdonald was alive, and he advocated it, and I'm going to vote for it now. What was good enough for Sir John Macdonald, is good enough for me.'

"And," added Mr. Stratton, "there may be others like him who want to be consistent and vote for reciprocity. The way to do it is to vote for J. R. Stratton. This reciprocity is not politics. It's just business."

And Mr. Stratton proceeded to analyze the agreement and show the business benefits that a measure of tariff relief on natural products means, both to the producer and consumer.

"Speaking of duties removed or reduced," said Mr. Stratton, "if I had my way I would like to se the duty on hard coal from the United States wholly abolished. Here in Ontario we cannot get coal from Nova Scotia or British Columbia owing to the freight charges for the long haul. We have to get it from Pennsylvania. Nearly every city man uses coal now instead of wood. Many farmers use it, too. The manufacturers of Ontario paid three and a half million dollars duty on Pennsylvania coal last year. I should like to have saved that duty. Anything that cheapens the cost of production, cheapens the price to the consumer. I hope some day to vote for a measure removing the duty on coal.'

Deals With Mr. Burnham.

Mr. Stratton apologized for going into personal matters, but he liked to meet misstatements and misrepresentations on the spot.

"This man Burnham," said Mr. Stratton, "will not talk reciprocity. He has no head for it. When he quotes figures he gives you the wrong figures. I am surprised that the fate of Ananias has not overtaken him before now. Ananias was only half as bad as Burnham for he held the truth out just once. Burnham holds it out from you and also from the Peterborough Review when he reports his own speeches."

"When I say give us an argument, on the subject of reciprocity, he replies—Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a Roman Catholic. And that's about as near as J. H. Burnham ever gets to the case in point."

"I needn't tell you," continued Mr. Stratton, "what a good Canadian Sir Wilfrid Laurier is, for what he has done for the Empire, nor how they speak of him in England as the foremost statesman of Greater Britain. You know all about that yourself. All I want you to do is to dwell for a few minutes on the spectacle of J. H. Burnham, either as the champion of Protestantism in particulaar, or of religion in general.'

"Without going into the long list of what Liberals have done for Protestantism in Peterborough, I would like to see any monuments to religion or Protestantism which J. H. Burnham, or those behind him in his sectarian strife movement, have ever erected."

Consistency No Jewel Here.

"Why," said Mr. Stratton, "it wasn't so long ago that Protestantism thought it was going to lose him. From what he said here in Benafort Hall, you might conclude that he was the only man that could save Protestantism from annihilation—that he was the sole prop of a tottering institution. He may think this himself, but I know this, that no man in Peterborough ever coquetted or toadied to the church he is now condemning, as Mr. Burnham has done."

"It is well known, and he cannot truthfully deny that he toadied to them, fawned upon them, fairly crawled to them and thrust his good offices upon them. He put himself at their service to become chairman and make addresses at entertainments and gatherings under the auspices of the Roman Catholic Associations. This seeking to make himself solid with them was carried on so openly and industrially, that it became a current street rumour that Mr. Burnham was to become a member of the Roman Catholic church.

"Mr. Burnham had a perfect right to do all this if he felt like it. But a change came over the spirit of his dream. He has nothing to say now but condemnation. What has happened to work this change? Conditions have not changed. Protestantism is in no more danger now than two or three years ago. Mr. Burnham then regarded his Roman Catholic neighbour as "a friend and a brother," but a sudden change came on. He invited a Peterborough Roman Catholic to offer himself as a candidate, and then Mr. Burnham packed the convention and seized the nomination himself. Why this sudden change of attitude? A man that acts for principle does not change. But the man that acts from self interest changes and takes the stand he thinks will be best for himself.

A Stalking Horse.

"Judged by his attitude in the past and his actions since, if Mr. Burnham can ride the Protestant horse into Parliament, he will turn him out to grass when he has no further use for him."

"But who," said Mr. Stratton, "expects J. Hampden Burnham to be consistent. It's not so many years ago at a banquet to Principal Hutton, in Peterborough, that Mr. Burnham was naming the Hon. J. R. Stratton as responder to a toast of "The Political Institutions of Canada." I remember that he said then that I had done much for Peterborough, and that Mr. Stratton's constituents felt that the course of abuse to which he had been subjected, had about reached the limit and that it was time the Conservative party brought forward some policy more creditable to it than that of abuse."

"Course of abuse!" exclaimed Mr. Stratton. "That from J. H. Burnham! Reached its limit! It is to laugh."

The meeting closed with cheers for the King and the candidate.

APPALLING LOSS OF LIFE IN THE CHINA FLOODS

Special to The Examiner

PEKIN, CHINA, SEPT. 6—One hundred thousand lives were lost, thousands more people are dying of starvation and at least a million are homeless. This is the latest authoritative report from the interior provinces, where the Yangtze river has been overflowing its banks for the last two or three days. The disaster is one of the most appalling in the long list which have befallen the yellow kingdom. This was a great rice growing country and as the crops are entirely ruined the price of this staple article of food has doubled all over the empire. Imperial edicts have been issued preevnting the exportation of cereals until further orders. The river flows through Sze Chuen province, where there are hundreds of Canadian missionaries.

$25,000 To $35,000 To Be Spent In Peterborough At Early Date

Mr. Stratton Has Arranged for Government Breakwater Building—Advantage to Peterborough of Having a Live Representative

Peterborough has been and is prosperous, but it must be kept moving; we must have something to promote the expenditure of money in the city. We have not had recently many large additions to our manufacturing industries, which are a gold mine to the city, to our merchants and business men, through the money put in circulation for the purchase of supplies and the expenditure of the large sums given working men, which must be spent in the city.

Recognising that everything that must contribute to the circulation of money in Peterborough is a distinct and direct advantage, Mr. Stratton has used his influence with the Department of Railways and Canals to have brought to Peterborough construction work that will mean a very considerable expenditure in the city.

He has been instrumental in having brought to Peterborough for Lake Simcoe the work of building dredges and scows for the Trent Canal system. Therefore in a short time there will be begun here the construction of a new and large clam-shell dredge and a consort scow 110 feet in length, 8 feet in depth with a beam of 26 feet.

This work will employ eight or ten skilled mechanics and involves an expenditure of $25,000 or $30,000 in wages, materials and supplies. This will be a considerable advantage to Peterborough, and the work would not have been done here if Mr. Stratton had not used his representative influence; for this work could have been done elsewhere and would not have been of the direct benefit to Peterborough it now is.

This illustrates the fact of how greatly it is to the advantage of Peterborough to have had, to have now and to have in the future a representative of energy and influence, who will do something to advance the material interests of Peterborough. It is not here necessary to enter into details of examples of how this policy has been carried out by our late, and our future representative, to impress the importance of Peterborough having a representative who represents.

The above illustration is only one of many. In the same line, as far as the expenditure of money in the city will benefit, is the proposal already provided for; to build a splendid new system of wharves on George street between the Matthews Company's plant and the McDonald Mills, a distance of about 400 feet, and to extend into the lake to deep water about 200 feet. The sum of $20,000 has been voted to be expended upon a work that will, before completed, cost between $75,000 and $80,000.

From the material standpoint is it not well for Peterborough to be represented by a man who initiated such an enterprise, and whose help is needed to see it pushed to completion?

This is one of many of the enterprises and imvrovements Mr. Stratton has under way, whose completion needs his interest, experience and energy. Among these may be mentioned the new Rifle Range to be established in the vicinity of the city, the arrangement for which are well under way. A tract of about 700 acres of land will be devoted to this purpose, and the expenditure in addition will amount to between $40,000 and $50,000.

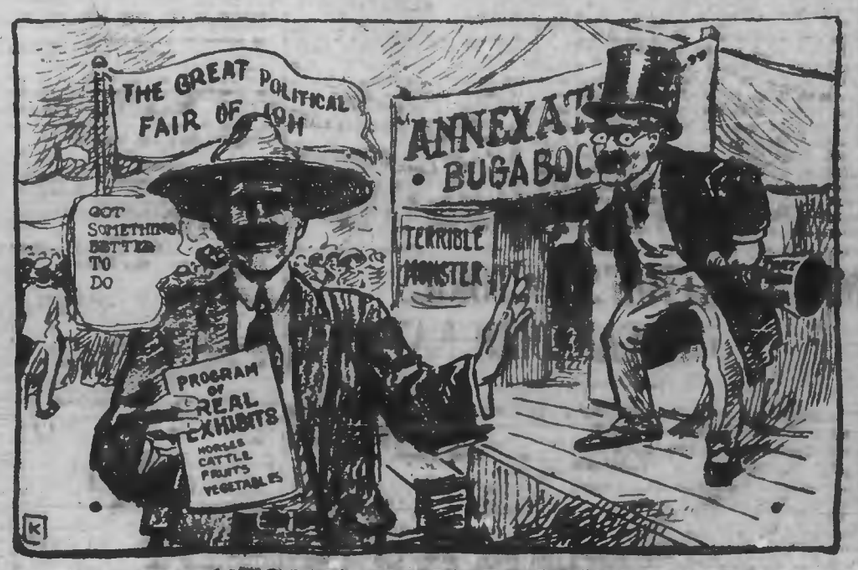
The people of Peterborough know where their best interests lie in selecting a representative.

TURNCOAT TACTICS OF J. H. BURNHAM

At Bensfort Mr. Burnham was very offensive and disgusted the audience by his attacks on the minority and Mr. Stratton. During Mr. Stratton's remarks he said it was not his intention to take up any of the time of the meeting in discussing Mr. Burnham's attack or to draw in some of his ravings over Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion. But perhaps he would be pardoned if he referred briefly to the question. Mr. Stratton then went on to say:

"In his meeting at Bensfort Mr. Burnham touched on the religious question and one would judge from the tenor of his remarks that he was a self-ordained champion of Protestantism—the only man who could save it from destruction and annihilation. Mr. Burnham may be all that he claims to be, the prop under tottering Protestantism. He may think this, but this I know that no man, in Peterborough, ever coquetted with or toadied to the church he is now condemning, as much as Mr. Burnham has done. It is well known and he cannot deny that he toadied to them, fawned upon them, fairly crawled to them and thrust his good offices upon them. He put himself at their service to become chairman and make addresses at entertainments and gatherings under the auspices of the Roman Catholic Associations. He sought out their clergy and showed friendliness to them to such an embarrassing degree that his importunities became a little of a nuisance. This friendly attitude to Roman Catholics, this seeking to make himself solid with them, was carried on so openly and industriously that it became a current street rumour that Mr. Burnham was to become a member of the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Burnham had a perfect right to do all this if he felt like it. But a change came over the spirit of his dream. He has nothing to say now but condemnation. What has happened to work this change? Conditions have not changed. Protestantism is in no more danger now than it was two or three years ago. Mr. Burnham then regarded his Roman Catholic neighbour as "a friend and a brother" but a sudden change came. He invited a Peterborough Roman Catholic to offer himself as a candidate at a convention and then Mr. Burnham packed the convention and seized the nomination himself. Why this sudden change of attitude? A man that acts from principle does not change. But the man that acts from self interest, changes his tune and takes the stand he thinks will be best for himself.

Judged by his attitude in the past and his actions since, if Mr. Burnham can ride the Protestant horse into Parliament he will turn him out to grass when he has no further use for him."



MERELY A SIDE-SHOW

BLACKGUARDLY JOURNALISM IN MR. BURNHAM'S INTERESTS

The Review's Maliciously False Report of Mr. Stratton's Centreville Meeting

Perhaps for downright lying, misrepresentation, and absolute disregard of decency and facts, the Review's report of Mr. Stratton's meeting at Centreville outstrips anything that has occurred in disreputable journalism in Canada. There was no one asked Mr. Stratton for a chance to speak at his meeting. There was no elector brought up the matter of the Farmers' Bank. The meeting was one of the best, without any exception, ever held in the Township of South Monaghan, by either party. There were no verbal bouquets handed by the audience to the Liberal speakers. They were not once interrupted by a gentleman in the audience. Mr. Stratton had a splendid hearing. Inside the hall, one could hear a pin fall throughout his whole remarks, and Mr. Stratton had nothing to say on the barley issue, only a passing remark, as Mr. Hall had dealt with the subject. No one started asking any questions with regard to the barley imported to Peterborough from the United States, but Mr. Stratton explained the misrepresentations of Mr. Burnham that "barley was brought into Canada from the United States in competition with Canadian barley," by showing the only barley imported by the Quaker Oats Company was that of the most inferior quality, to be mixed with other grains for stock feed for export only.

Mr. Joseph Clarke never asked Mr. Stratton for a chance to speak. Mr. Clarke evidently was primed to try and make a disturbance. Advantage was taken of his age to push him forward as a cat's paw, but he did not intimate any intention of discussing reciprocity. The audience seemed pleased when he retired.

The only possible grounds for the "Review's" report was the blackguardism of a few boys in the interest of Mr. Burnham, who created a disturbance outside, but the meeting was in no way disturbed.

From the feeling of the meeting and from the statements made by the electors, Mr. Stratton will poll a larger vote than usual in this Conservative stronghold, and there is not one single syllable of truth in the report published in the "Review," with the exception that Mr. Clarke was there, but he was as harmless as a dove.

The arguments advanced by Mr. Burnham, at his meetings, are so silly, so weak, and so far from being correct, that if the electors voted in this contest according to their honest convictions, Mr. Burnham would not get a dozen votes in the Riding. They unhesitatingly tell Mr. Stratton that Mr. Burnham does not know what he is talking about, and his meeting at Young's Point, where a large part of the audience got up in disgust and retired, ought to have taught him a lesson on decency on the platform. Mr. Burnham must think that the members of the Conservative party in the rural districts have taken leave of their senses.

Evangelistic Campaign Probable Outcome Of The District Meeting

The Methodist Autumn meeting of the Peterborough District was held yesterday in the Charlotte Street Church. There were two sessions presided over by the chairman of the district, Rev. Geo. W. Henderson. Nearly all the circuits and missions in the district were represented.

Arrangements were made for the Missionary, Educational and Temperance and Moral Reform anniversaries throughout the district.

The delegates were entertained at a luncheon given by Mrs. Henderson in the parsonage, and before leaving the table an hour of most profitable conversation and prayer, led by the chairman, Rev. Geo. Brown of Hillcrest, was spent. At the outcome of this quiet hour, arrangements were made looking to general evangelistic campaign during the fall and winter months.

A committee of four laymen, of which Mr. H. B. Hawley is convener, was appointed to arrange for a district convention of local preachers, class leaders and other lay agencies to be held at such a time and place as may be determined by them.

The meeting, which was of unusual interest and profit, was brought to a close by Rev. H. M. Manning offering prayer and pronouncing the benediction.

TAKE THE "CASE" OF FRUIT.

"One man in my town, who works for a commission house in Detroit, has bought berries near Winona, Ontario, paid a duty of 16c a case, and competed with Michigan growers in the Detroit market. The fruit growers, not only of Michigan, but fruit growers of New York, Ohio and other States, do not desire to give to Canadian fruit growers the markets of this country which we have helped to build up."—C. E. Bassett, Secretary Michigan State Horticultural Socity, before United States Senate in protest against reciprocity.

COMPARISON IN LIVE STOCK.

Average price of export steers in Toronto in the six years ending 1911	$5.51
Average price of prime steers in Buffalo in the six years ending 1911	6.48
Average price of hogs in Toronto in the six years ending 1911	6.66
Average price of hogs in Buffalo in the six years ending 1911	7.35

This may be no news to farmers who are wide-awake enough to know that prices are generally higher in the United States for staple farm products—to know the value and profit of free admission to the United States market.

While the prices as quoted above are higher in the United States for the raw material, the finished products, fresh meats and bacon, are cheaper. How can it be explained that prices for animals are dearer in Buffalo and that the consumer pays less. The explanation is simple. The food products are manipulated in both ways. The middlemen combine, work together, pull together in such a way that they make profits at both ends. They bear down the prices to the producer and build up the prices to the consumer. The completion of a free market by reduction of duties—by reciprocity—will spoil the game that forces low prices on the farmers and exacts high prices from the consumer.

PROFESSION AND PRACTICE

The Toronto Globe nicely traps two of the "noble eighteen" class, and shows that while they think it treason for farmers to trade with the United States, they are hand and glove with American trusts; that they oppose reciprocity because they think it might at some remote time and under some possible, but extremely improbable conditions injure United States manufacturing interests.

The Globe shows W. K. George, president of the Standard Silver Co., and W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., president of the American Watch Case Co., sitting on the platform in Massey Hall, warmly applauding the announced determination of Mr. R. L. Borden to prevent the entanglement of Canada in the net of the United States.

Then it exposes the company records kept by the Ontario Government, with the result that Mr. George is found to hold $100 stock in the Standard Silver Co., all the balance being owned by the American Silver Plate pool; and Mr. McNaught's share in the other company is also discovered to be but $100, with the balance of half a million held by the United States Watch Trust.

What is the secret of the opposition of Mr. McNaught and Mr. George to reciprocity? pertinently asks The Globe. And the same question might, with profit, be addressed to many another opponent of reciprocity who is these days waving the flag.

SIR JAMES CRITICIZED.

Sir James Whitney is taking a loud part in the campaign against the reciprocity agreement, which both Liberals and Conservatives largely favour, especially the farming interests. Sir James was elected by the help of Liberal votes, as he himself acknowledged. Now he is fighting against Liberals, who, apart from a few combinations in the cities, are in favour of reciprocity in natural products. How do these Liberals like it? How do Conservative farmers by the thousand relish the machinery of the Conservative party being turned against what is in the best interests of the farming community? Sir James Whitney must know that he cannot play the game of bull-dose beyond a certain point. There will be reaction as there is bound to be against any attitude that antagonizes the public interest. Members of Sir James Whitney's own party are not in sympathy with his stand in fighting for the food monopolists. One of them, Mr. O. A. Robinson, a Hamilton traveller, sent him yesterday the following letter:

"I will predict for you the greatest defeat for the Conservative party ever was known. I travel out of Toronto to Montreal and west to Windsor, and I'm in touch with the people. It is nothing more or less than a landslide.' Mr. Robinson adds: "The people are thoroughly disgusted at the part you are taking in the campaign. You were elected by the Liberals, not by the Conservatives. I am a Conservative myself, but I am and thousands of others are going to vote for Laurier and reciprocity."

POLITICS SWALLOW BUSINESS.

The Conservative party politicians have made the reciprocity agreement, which is a pure matter of business, a mere matter of party. They have deserted Sir John Macdonald and all the great party leaders and even deserted themselves in the matter of reciprocity. Here are a few of the many opinions expressed by the party which have deserted themselves and are now fighting reciprocity in the interests of Mr. Borden and Mr. Bourassa:

Mr. T. Chisholm, Conservative, East Huron, November 24, 1910, Revised Hansard, page 258:—"Personally, I would favour reciprocity if I thought we could get a fair deal."

Mr. Northrup, Conservative, Hastings, Nov. 29, 1910, Unrevised Hansard, page 408:—"An arrangement may be made which will admit many of the products of the Dominion into the United States, on satisfactory ters. (Extract from Speech from the Throne).

"Why, of course, we would hold both hands up for that." and again:—"Everybody will hold up both hands for any arrangement to enable us to send our goods on satisfactory terms to us to the United States."

J. W. Edwards, Conservative, Frontenac, January 21, 1910, Revised Hansard, page 2,200:—"But when this Government took the duty off American corn they neglected a splendid opportunity of conferring a great benefit upon the farmers of Canada in not exacting from the United States a quid pro quo that they would remove the duty from Canadian barley."

J. A. Currie, Conservative M. P., North Simcoe, December 17, 1909, Revised Hansard, page 1,715: — "The Americans send thousands of bushels of potatoes into Canada because their potato crop ripens earlier than ours, and yet the Canadian farmers in New Brunswick are practically prohibited from sending potatoes into the United States."

These are only a few of many similar examples. What does such an attitude mean? Could inconsistency and desire for party advantage go further?

LABOUR AND THE TARIFF AGREEMENT.

(Montreal Herald)

The workingman's sheet anchor is work. He may be a protectionist, or he may be a free trader. He may be a believer in aristocracy, or he may be a Socialist. He may be for a navy or against a navy. He may think trusts and mergers good or bad: But work he must have, steady work, well paid work, to keep the wolf from the door. The wolf is always just around the next corner, waiting until he gets out of work.

For the past fifteen years there has been work in plenty. In Montreal (and proportionately the same in Peterborough) there has been so much of it to do that ten, twenty, forty thousand people a year have come in to help do it. Only in one year, 1907, was there anything approaching a standstill in the population. What was it made that year different? Not the tariff; it was the same then as before and after. Not protection, not free trade, not conservatism, not socialism. Simply there was not enough wealth in the country. Trade, it must always be remembered, is only an exchange of services. The man who makes boots in Montreal exchanges his services for those of the man who grows potatoes in Ontario or wheat in the West. He will not be asked to make the boots unless the other fellow grows the wheat. What all the farmers of Canada get for all the stuff they grow and sell is what, in the main, decides how much work is going to be done in the cities. In 1906 the farmers had not produced nearly enough stuff to keep all the men going in the cities. So there was trouble in all trades.

But the farmer was working before 1896? Assuredly. The difference was that after 1896 the Laurier Government set itself the task of putting more farmers on the land, and also to seeing that the farmers got more for what they had to sell. Before 1896 there were perhaps 35 per cent. enough farmers to keep the country prosperous on their earnings. Soon, as new farmers came in their tens of thousands, it was 100, then 110, then 125, then 150. All the while the cities kept levelling up. We are still at it, to judge by the figures of the census man and directory men.

No doubt there will be other crop failures. But the more farmers there are, and the better they are doing, the less is the chance that the market the city we must have for exchange of services will fall below the point where work must cease, where pay must stop.

Everything about this agreement leads to the belief that it will increase the purchasing power of the farmers we have and, by the splendid advertisemnt Canada has had, steadily increase the number of farmers. That means work, and work is what the workingman needs most of all and always.

Practical Cattle Man Gives Simple Example Of Loss Through Tariff

There is no name in the counties of Oxford, Brant, or Waterloo better known than that of Walter Robson of Washington, Oxford County, Ontario, as a shipper and exporter of cattle. If there is an authority in this Province on the subject of good cattle and the best places to market them, it is the same Mr. Robson. It is this fact that gives special importance to any opinion offered by Mr. Robson on any question to the marketing of cattle. Mr. Robson was asked the other day what he thought of the proposed reciprocity agreement in relation to the cattle question. His reply was as follows:

"A few days ago I sold in Toronto six cars containing 120 cattle, principally two-year-olds, and averaging 1,300 pounds in weight, for 6¼c. per pound. One lead was selected for exhibitoin purposes. The cattle were slaughtered at the Harris abattoir, and afterwards placed in a glass case at the Toronto Exhibition, where they can be seen by any visiter to the Fair.

"Why I speak of these being selected for exhibition purposes is simply to remove all cause for quibbling as to their class or grade. They were clearly toppers on any market in America. The same class of cattle in Chicago to-day are bringing 8 cents a pound; in Buffalo 7¼ cents. But grant that there was only the difference of one cent per pound, I received $13 a head less than I would have received in Buffalo, which on 120 head makes an aggregate difference of $1,560 between the two markets on my bunch of cattle.

"I am not going to argue pro or con, leaving that to political experts: but these are the facts, and, in view of these I am of the opinion that reciprocity would mean a great thing for the Canadian cattle raisers."

Higher Prices For Horses Harland Smith Tells Why

Valuable Trade That Was Killed by the Imposition of the McKinley Tariff--It Will All Come Back and More With It, When Duties Are Off.

"Before the McKinley tariff was put in force," said Walter Harland Smith, the reciprocity candidate in Halton, in speaking at Omagh, "Bandell & Son, a firm of American horse buyers, purchased an average of a thousand horses a year through the old reciprocity. These purchases were made among the ordinary classes of commercial horses.

"The McKinley tariff put an absolute end to that trade. The only trade that was left possible after '96 was a trade in very high class animals. Trade even in this line has been practically destroyed by the manner in which the American tariff laws are enforced. While the duty on horses entering the United States is, on the face of it, only 25 per cent. on the actual value of the horse, a customs officer may put on a tax of a good deal more than 25 per cent. on the price at which the animal was actually purchased on this side. If an animal is bought in Canada at, say, $300, and taken to the border for the purpose of entry into the United States, the customs officer may say the horse is worth $500 and charge you duty on that valuation. Thus, instead of paying $75 you would have to pay $125 in duty.

"Sometimes worse than that happens. Some years ago an Ohio buyer came over here and purchased four pairs of fancy horses—one from the County of Halton, two in Orillia, and one from the old Repository. On taking these horses into the United States this buyer paid duty according to the price at which the horses had been bought, and thought his troubles were at an end. Shortly afterwards he sold one of the teams at a very high price to a rich buyer, who happened to take a fancy to them. It was purely chance. The importer did not know such a buyer would be found when he took the horses into the United States. But what happened? The American Customs authorities heard of the sale; they charged the importer with undervaluation when the importation was made; they seized not only the one team in question; they seized the whole four and it cost the importer $1,200 over and above the duty first paid before he got through. Naturally enough we have never since seen that buyer in this country.

"Now, under reciprocity, not only will the American tariff of 25 per cent. on Canadian horses be removed, but all these annoying uncertainties will be removed as well. There will be as free entry for Ontario horses into Buffalo or New York as there is now into Toronto or Montreal. Ontario horsemen must profit under that change. Buyers who were with us years ago will come back, and the result will be keener competition and higher prices for Ontario horses, more particularly those of the higher grade."

WHITNEY GOVERNMENT COULD GET DR. BEATTIE NESBITT IF THEY WISHED

The Tory Boss and Wrecker of Farmers' Bank Asks "Why Don't They Come After Me"?---He Is In Detroit.

"If they want me in Toronto, why don't they come after me?"

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt asked a Toronto man this question a few days ago in Detroit.

Mr. T. N. Clark of King street, west told The Globe Saturday that a friend whom he met at the Exhibition Friday night informed him that last week he met Dr. Nesbitt in Detroit. He said he was leaving the next day for Chicago. He also said: "If they want me in Toronto, why dont they come after me?"

The doctor is considerably thinner than when he leftT oronto, this man says, but looks prosperous, and said that he was "picking up a few dollars every day."

Mr. Clark has been closely acquainted with Dr. Nesbitt for some years, having been with him in a joint stock company, or what was supposed to be such, engaged in the manufacture of dental chairs at Gravenhurst. Through this connection he parted with $10,000, over which he prosecuted an unsuccessful law suit for two years. Like other people in this country, he would very gladly see Nesbitt brought to book. "If it had not been for him," he said, "Travers would not be behind the bars now, for Travers was a respectable citizen till he met Beattie Nesbitt."

"Why don't they go after him?" he asked. "If they tried they could easily get him. If they would offer a reward sufficient to make it worth while there are plenty of people who could get him. I would do so myself, but $200 is not enough to make it worth the trouble."

"If it had been an ordinary citizen," said Mr. Clark, "he would have been serving time now in Kingston. I do not say if it had been a poor man, for nobody could be poorer in his own name than he."

MR. STRATTON'S VICTORIES AT CANADIAN NATIONAL

In the gentlemen's turnout, 15.2 and over, high steppers, at the Toronto Exhibition yesterday, Mr. Stratton's "My Pride" and "Premier" were awarded first prize. Concerning this the Toronto World says:

"Class 167 saw five pair of well-matched high steppers. There was not much to choose between the first four. J. R. Stratton's "My Pride" and "Premier" a sorrel pair, were awarded first. Col. Sir Henry Pellatt's Casa Loma Lad and Casa Loma Lady were as well a matched pair of bays as any man would wish to drive. Robert Beith of Bowmanville, showed a pair of classy horses, winning second prize.

In the ladies' turnout for the King Edward Hotel Silver Cup, Mr. Stratton's "Perfect Dream" won the prize. Of this the Toronto World says:

Only two entered for the King Edward Hotel Silver Cup for lady's turnouts. J. R. Stratton's "Perfect Dream" won the prize. This horse was exceptionally well driven, was splendidly broken, and presented an excellent appearance as he circled the ring.

This turnout of Mr. Stratton's has never been beaten in the Toronto. Ottawa, Montreal, and Cobourg shows.

In the high-stepping-class "Perfect Dream" against eleven competitors carried off the first prize.

In class 170, saddle horses, it took considerable time for the judges to decide on a winner, so close were four of the contestants. The winner was Hon. Clifford Sifton's "Florham Flirtation," a beautiful chestnut and particularly well broken. Mr. Stratton's "None Nicer," took second. This mare was a beautiful chestnut, but a little lighter than Mr. Sifton's.

Jos. Kilgour of Toronto, showed a handsome horse in this class, called Huck, getting fourth prize.

In the 15.2 and under class there were eleven entries. Mr. Stratton's "Lochryan Princess" and "Latest News" took fourth. "Latest News" which is of splendid conformation and a high stepper of excellent ability, did not do her share of the work yesterday, proberly, feeling too good and acting a little badly, hence the position.

It is generally admitted by horsemen that Mr. Stratton's exhibit of high steppers is the best string at the Toronto Exhibition.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

No one believes all, and but few believe half they hear.

But without faith and confidence there would be no advertising, no credits, no banks, and business would be confined to very limited proportions.

We always try to merit the full confidence of our customers, in our anxiety to do this we often understate the qualities of the goods we advertise.

And as a result the most delightful thing about our business is the complete confidence between the store and the customers.

With the exception of Hair Goods and Combs, which nobody would ask us to exchange, everything else you get, you are always perfectly free to bring it back, and we never ask any questions, we always cheerfully hand back the full purchase price.

In our employ we have an expert practical wool man who has been trained as a judge of wool and cotton. He has a mixture that will disolve the cotton and leave the wool and also another mixture that will dissolve the wool and leave the cotton.

In this way, with us, it is never guesswork, when we tell you it is wool, we will stake our reputation on our statement, and you can place full dependence upon it.

PETERBOROUGH GUN CLUB HELD SUCCESSFUL SHOOT

The Peterborough Gun Club held a prize shoot Monday afternoon with a fairly good number of members. Owing to some unaccountable reason, the scores were very poor, being as follows, at 25 birds each:

H. Routley	15
J. Brightman	13
R. Tivey	13
C. Mills	11
J. Bothwell	11
C. Lech	9
C. Wood	9
C. James	8
K. G. Lech	8
E. B. Clegg	7
E. Graham	5
H. Finlay, 5 out of	15

The prizes for members only were won as follows: 1st H. Routley, gun cover, presented by the Club; 2nd, R. Tivey, 2 boxes shells, presented by the Peterborough Hardware Co.; 3rd, C. Mills, 1 pocket knife, presented by the Kingan Hardware Co.; 4, C. Lech, 1 box cigars, presented by A. W. Clysdale; 5th, C. Wood, 1 pipe, presented by Mitchell Bros.; 6th, K. G. Lech, 1 box shells, presented by the Club.

Following this match, a ten bird sweepstake was shot, the proceeds being divided into four prizes and won by the first four named, as follows: C. Mills 10, R. Tivey 8, H. Routly 7, C. Wood 7, C. Lech 4, J. Brightman 3, E. Graham 3, C. James 2, H. Rothwell 1. H. Routley winning the tie for third place.

This will probably be the last shoot of the season, which has been one of the best in the Club's history.

Mr. Stratton will address the Electors of HARVEY as follows:

At ROCKCROFT, on Monday, September 11th, at 8 o'clock.

At LAKEHURST, on Wednesday, September 13th, at 8 p. m.

Annual Meeting Of The Peterborough Rugby Club

At a meeting of some of the Rugby enthusiasts of the city last night in the Oriental Hotel it was decided to call the annual meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club for next Tuesday night in the West End Club rooms, George street. Every player and every follower of the game in this city is cordially invited o the present at this meeting. The larger the attendance he better, and he assistance of everyone will be needed in placing the game on a sound basis. Dr. McPherson has received word from Mr. Livingstone, secretary of the O.R.F.U., that that body would allow Peterborough to form a city league as a group of the junior O.R.F.U., the winners to have an opportunity of going into the second round for the Ontario championships. Dr. McPherson believes that a four-club city league could be organized without any difficulty in Peterborough and would like to see the different bodies take the matter up and try to enter same. Remember next Tuesday's important meeting in the West End Club rooms.

PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, SORES, ULCERS AND BLOOD DISORDERS GO IN A FEW DAYS

Pimples, eruptions, blotches, scales, ulcers, sores, eczema and chronic swellings are caused by bad blood, but don't become discouraged—no other trouble is so easily overcome. Cascarets are wonder-workers in the cure of any disease caused by bad or impure blood. They eliminate all poisons, build up and enrich the blood, enabling it to make new, healthy tissue.

Pure blood means perfect health, and if you will use Cascarets they will give you good health and a pure, clean skin, free from pimples and blotches. To try Cascarets is to like them, for never before has there been produced as perfect and as harmless a blood purifier, liver and stomach regulator as Cascarets Candy Cathartic! Be sure to take Cascarets and you will surely have good, pure, healthy blood and no more eruptions or disfigurements. A 10-cent box of Cascarets will truly amaze you.

WEDDING BELLS

DAIGNAULT—THIBEAU.

A quiet, but pretty, wedding was solemnized at St. John's church, the contracting parties being Noel James Pitchford of 307 Bethune St., and Miss Florence Annie Entwisle, of Concession street, East City.

Much interest was evinced by their many friends on the occasion, as was evidenced by their attendance at the church during the service. The bride was charmingly attired and was attended by her sister, Miss May Entwisle, who very ably filled the role of bridesmaid.

The bride and groom left on the 4.28 C.P.R. train for Toronto, where they are spending a few days before settling in their new home on Cluxton street.

TAYLOR—EDWARDS.

The marriage took place yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock at Mr. Thomas J. Taylor of Medicine Hat, Alta., to Miss Laura M. Edwards, of Peterboro'. The bride wore a pretty dress of paillette silk with seed pearl ornaments. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. Couch of the George street Methodist church, under an arch of asparagus ferns and mountain ash berries. Miss Leonore Nicholls of South Battleford, Sask., a cousin of the bride, attired in a white embroidered gown, was the flower girl. Miss Ida M. Grant, of Paisley, played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" and Miss Bertha Curtis sang, "O Perfect Love." The outside guests included Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, of Calgary, the groom's parents, Mrs. J. Nicholls and daughter, of South Battleford, Miss Ida M. Grant of Paisley and Mr. and Mrs. David Edwards of Toronto.

ROGERS—WELLS.

TORONTO, SEPT. 6.—The marriage of Miss Ehrma Wells, daughter of Mrs. Robert Wells, to Mr. Claude H. Rogers of Peterborough took place at half-past two o'clock this afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother on Brunswick ave. The bride, who was given away by her great uncle, Capt. Jessop, wore a graceful gown of white satin, with some beautiful old honiton lace and tulle veil and organge blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Beryl Wells attended her sister, in pink satin, with overdress of striped ninon and mob cap of lace and carried pink roses. Miss Marion McLaren and Miss Amy Myles were ribbon bears, in white satin frocks. Mr. Harry Rogers of Peterborough, cousin of the groom, was best man. After a reception and dejeuner, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers left to spend their honeymoon in the north, the bride travelling in a suit of green cloth, with hat to match On their return they will reside in Peterborough, Belmont avenue.

BULLER—REYNOLDS.

St. Paul's church, Bethany, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Monday, Sept. 4th, when Miss Mary Kathleen Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds, of Bethany, was united in marriage to Mr. Clarence Mason Buller, of Buller Bros., Brantford, and son of Ald. Buller, 274 King street, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Poston. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and ferns by the bride's friends, the guests' pews being marked with white satin bows. Mrs. McGrath played the wedding march and Miss Bessie Armstrong sang "Because" during the signing of the register. The bride who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory duchess satin, the bodice being draped with embroidered chiffon and sprays of hand embroidery in pearl and crystal. She wore a veil of silk embroidered net in the Juliet effect, caught up with lily-of-the-valley and carried a shower bouquet, while she wore her gift from the groom, a handsome ring, set with diamonds and emeralds. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Clara Reynolds, who wore a lace gown, with picture hat, and carried a bouquet of pink flowers. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Firth Buller, while Mr. Harold Burns of Peterborough, acted as usher.

Over one hundred guests, many from Toronto, Peterborough and other outside points, were present. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, the bride's table being adorned by the wedding cake and decorated with ribbons and flowers. A feature was the presence of Mr. Frank Weir of Otonabee, who carried his burden of 87 years lightly and who made a neat congratulatory speech.

Mr. and Mrs. Buller left on a wedding trip to Buffalo and Detroit, the bride wearing a neat travelling costume of blue with hat to match.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Buller will take up residence in Brantford.

OBITUARY

On Sunday evening, at 595 Patterson street, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sedgwick passed away. The funeral took place at Norwood Monday afternoon.

GEORGE SIMPSON.

On Sunday afternoon little George Simpson of Harvey street met his death with tragic suddenness.

The little fellow was only four years of age and his parents have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their bereavement.

In addition to his parents he is survived by one brother and one sister, both of whom are very small.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery, Rev. Carpenter officiating.

ALEXANDER ARMSTRONG.

At the ripe age of 83 years, Mr. Alexander Armstrong of 480 Sherbrooke street, passed away last evening.

The deceased was born in Ireland and came to Canada when only two years of age. Settling in Cavan, he devoted the greater portion of his life to the farming industry and on retiring five years ago he came to reside in Peterborough. In creed he was a Presbyterian.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. West, of the above address, and two sisters, Mrs. Hummil of Toronto, and Mrs. Benson of Bewdley.

The body will be conveyed by the 11.45 train to Millbrook to-morrow, where interment will take place.

SUMMARY OF THE POLITICAL SITUATION

Special Wire to the Examiner.

TORONTO, SEPT. 6.—With the Canadian general elections just two weeks off, there is considerable speculation as to the probable result. It is admitted on all sides that owing to many generally Conservative supporters going over to the Liberal side and vice versa, because of private business interests that this is probably the most difficult election in Canada's history to speculate on, as a result of Bourassa's admitted influence in Quebec and reciprocity's great favour in the West, are also factors that upset the calculations of the election forecaster. Considerably strong Government supporters are of course quite sure that Laurier will be returned with a good working majority to put through the reciprocity pact, while old-time Conservatives are gambling strong on a Conservative sweep. However, consensus of opinion here of those who look on the situation with really experienced but politically impartial eyes, and who have received reliable information, and have figured it all out out say that the Government will go back with such a small majority that the Nationalists will hold the balance of power and force another election within a short time.

GOOD SHOWING

Peterborough dogs made a good showing at the Dog Show at the Toronto Exhibition yesterday. "Toll Bar Lil," an English bull bitch owned by Mr. H. Preston, Water street, won third prize in the limit bitches' class, forty pounds and under, and also third in the open for bitches class, forty pounds and under. "Rydal Beauty," an English bull bitch owned by Mr. J. J. Hickey, Peterborough, and bred in the Rydal Kennels, New York, took third in the novices bitches class.

Dies For Brother

Examiner Special:

LONDON, ONT., SEPT. 6.— Wm. Coward, of Exeter, died as a result of giving a piece of his own skin to help heal a wound inflicted by an enraged stallion on his brother.

Bad Day For Boating.

At a fashionable seaside resort a lady visitor, in charge of some half dozen youngsters, spent a good deal of her time in attempting to make bargains with the boatmen on the beach.

She came to be pretty well known, and her patronage was not particularly desired.

"Well, John," she remarked to a boatman one morning, "what will you charge to row us round the point?"

"Well, mum," said John, critically surveying the group, "I couldn't possibly do it under 10 shillings."

"Ten shillings!" gasped the lady. "That is simply preposterous. That man over there," indicating another boatman, "has offered to take us for half a crown."

"That may be, mum," calmly responded John. "Jer see, Bill's riskin' very little. His old boat's full of holes, while I've only got a few in mine."

The lady didn't go rowing that morning.—Ideas.

Very Foxy.

A fox was once seen to take a bunch of moss in his mouth and swim out into the river, where, after sinking himself to the very point of his nose in the water, he let go of the moss and came ashore.

"No doubt," remarked a well read bystander, "you did that to rid yourself of fleas which were driven by the water to seek refuge in the moss."

The fox glanced furtively and slinkingly about and around.

"Hist!" he whispered, with a sly wink. "I did it to make some people think that was what I did it for."

Moral.—There is no greater mystery than motive, take it up one side and down the other.—Puck.

Corroborative Testimony.

Mrs. Diplo—My husband and I never dispute before our children. When trouble comes up we send them out.

Kind Neighbor—Oh, that's why I see them on the streets so often!

Better Than Medicine.

"Did you t-tell my wife t-that I had m-made my will and left her e-everything?" gasped the sick man.

"Yes," answered his lawyer.

"W-what did she s-say?" queried the invalid anxiously.

"Oh, she sobbed a little, then asked me about how much the property was worth?" replied the attorney.

And tha s why the undertaker lost a job.—Pittsburg Sun.

The Only Excuse.

"They say," remarked the party with the unbobbered hair, "that a true poet writes poetry because he can't help it."

"I guess that's right," rejoined the magazine editor. "Nobody should write poetry who can help it."—Chicago News.

Science Master Of Collegiate Hands In His Resignation

Mr. Hodgson Severs His Connection With the Institute After Six and a Half Years Faithful Service---Board of Education Met Last Night.

The Board of Education met last night for the first time in two months. Considerable business of an important nature was subjected to the merciful disposition of the Board who attacked it in a business-like manner. Several surprises were in store for the Board, among them being the resignation of Mr. J. E. Hodgson, science master at the Collegiate Institute, who has accepted the position of Principal of Lethbridge High School.

A letter was read from Mr. Hodgson ,expressing his regret at having to sever his connection with the Institute after six and a half years satisfactory service.

On motion of Mr. Hill, it was moved that Mr. Hodgson's resignation be accepted and that it take effect on November 1st. In the meantime the Board will endeavour to secure a successor.

Mr. Firth, who has been assistant to Mr. Hodgson, was mentioned as a possible successor.

Letters of acceptance were read from Miss Rannie and Miss Maud Gordon, respectively, the former accepting the appointment as musical supervisor of the Public School, and the latter a position on the public school teaching staff.

A letter from W. Naish, janitor of the East City school, was read, asking for an additional $60 per year ris in salary, to cover the cost of attending to an extra room at the school.—Received.

A letter was read from Mr. W. McWilliams, permanent secretary of the A. O. F. High Court, thanking the Board for the use of the beautiful lecture room in the Collegiate Institute for their Convention sessions.

Mr. F. J. A. Hall, secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, asking if the board would be good enough to allow the pupils to have a half-holiday on the afternoon of Sept. 15th, in order that they might attend the Fair on that day. This was granted.

The report of the Committee on Appointments was then taken up, which was as follows:

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report as follows:

Owing to Miss Rannie's appointment to the position of Musical Directress, rendered vacant by Miss Davies' resignation, a vacancy was left on the Public School staff, which has been filled by the appointment of Miss E. Maud Gordon of Deseronto. Salary to be according to schedule, and duties to start Sept. 5th.

Miss Gordon is the holder of a second-class professional certificate; is a recent graduate of the Peterborough Normal School, and has had over two years' experience.

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. Hill, Chairman.

It was moved by W. H. Hill and seconded by R. Fair that the report be adopted.

A letter was read from Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, requesting that the Board of Education purchase two works, one in French and one in German, for the use of Miss Weir as the pupils are not allowed to purchase them.

On motion of Mr. Hill, it was moved that the books be purchased.

The Board then adjourned.

Those present were Messrs. John Crane, chairman; T. H. Adams, V. Eastwood, R. Fair, Col. Miller, Dr. Morrison, W. H. Hill, L. M. Hayes and Dr. Burnham.

YOUR FUTURE APPEARANCE DEPENDS ON THE CARE YOU ARE GIVING YOUR HAIR TO-DAY

If your head is itching and you are constantly digging and scratching it with your finger nails, you are preparing yourself to be a bald-head. You cannot kill the dandruff germ by scratching your scalp; and until you have killed it your hair will be unhealthy and lifeless and will fall out. SAGEINE is a preparation endorsed by leading men and women everywhere as an ideal scalp cleaner and dressing. SAGEINE is so sure in its action that W. H. Kent guarantees it to accomplish all that makes the hair attractive and healthy. The price of a large bottle of SAGEINE is only 50c. so as to bring it within the reach of all. Don't neglect your hair, it means more to your appearance than all else. Get a bottle to-day, it will clean your scalp and grow your hair in thick and soft. SAGEINE is not sticky or greasy.

Presented With An Address

A number of the employees of the Central Milling Company gathered together this morning for the purpose of expressing their regret at the departure of Mr. Hewston who is leaving for Saskatoon to accept a lucrative position with a prominent milling company there. They presented Mr Hewston with the following address:

Dear Mr. Hewston,—It is with regret to us that you have seen fit to withdraw from our friendly associations and labours which have been so harmonious to all under your charge. We have always found you ready and willing to help and instruct all of us in such a way that the ties of friendship have become so endeared to us that we could not see you depart without some recognition of your sterling consideration to all your co-workers. Kindly accept this suit case as a reminder of our friendship, and that while you have left our association, you have not left our memories, as we will ever cherish the ties that have been woven in our daily toil, and we are confident that you will be as successful in your new field of labour and that you will make new friends wherever you go, as men of sterling character, uprightness and of industry will always lead their fellow employees to appreciate kindness.

Signed on behalf of the Peterborough branch employees of the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL MEETING HELD IN THE INTERESTS OF MR. KERR

The evident advantage of free trade in natural products with the United States appeals to the common sense of the farming community. At Stewart's Hall Friday night the farmers of Otonabee gathered to hear the trade question discussed. Let well enough alone is not the motto of Otonabee farmers, and the businesslike way in which the trade question was discussed by the various speakers met with an attention and an approval that augurs well for the success of their candidate, Mr. Kerr. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Robt. Harstone of Peterborough; Mr. Kerr, the Liberal candidate, and F. E. Ellis of Farm and Dairy.

Mr. Harstone, from his large knowledge of Western conditions, was able to speak with authority of the advantages that the United States market will be to the Western farmer. Mr. Harstone owns land both in the Canadian and the United States West. He has sold wheat in both countries and has always found that the United States market ruled higher. The idea that trade would be diverted into north and south channels was most effectually dealt with by the speaker. The farmers of Otonabee are particularly interested in reciprocity, as it will affect horse prices, and Mr. Harstone by comparative quotations showed that we in Ontario have close at hand the greatest and most profitable horse market in America, that of the cities of the Eastern States. At present we are held out of this market by an adverse tariff. But with reciprocity the value of every horse in Ontario will be increased. "This reciprocity," concluded Mr. Harstone, "is just a business proposition. We are simply adding another market, and what business man objects to another customer?"

Mr. Kerr reviewed the history of reciprocity in Canada and showed that up till a few months ago there was not a public man in Canada, either Liberal or Conservative, but favoured reciprocity. As late as 1910 Mr. Smyth had in the House upbraided the Government for not opening to Canadian farmers the United States market. "Too much of what the consumer pays for farm produce in Canada," said Mr. Kerr, "goes to the millionaire middle man and too little to the farmer who produces it. Down to the south of the line we have a market of 90,000,000 people who are not producing as much as they require. Give the farmer free entry to that market and our middle men will have to give him a fairer share of the wealth that he produces." The importations of sheep were dealt with by Mr. Kerr, who proved from statistics that for every sheep the Americans sent to us we sent five to them and got a better price for them too. "Not bad business," commented the speaker. The assertion of the Toronto World that the American farmer "can lick the Canadian farmer out of his boots" was more effectually dealt with by Mr. Kerr, who showed that last year in spite of a high adverse tariff Canadian farmers had shipped to the United States millions of dollars' worth of farm produce.

"Reciprocity," said Mr. Ellis, the last speaker of the evening, "is a farmer's question. Had it not been for the great deputation representing all of the farmers' organizations in Canada that went to Ottawa last December reciprocity would not now be before the country. If we farmers vote against reciprocity, we vote against the thing that we ourselves asked for and our influence in the political world will be gone for a generation. This is an opportunity for us farmers to show that what we want we intend to get." Mr. Ellis then went on to show that in practically every line of farm produce the United States prices were higher than the Canadian. Barley, which we have almost ceased growing because of the low price received, is at the present time selling for 67 cents in Toronto and $1 in Buffalo. In cheese and butter, also, average quotations proved that the farmer stands to gain by reciprocity.

Mr. Deyell, the chairman of the evening, made many good points and knocked the "let well enough alone" stand on the head by stating that the farmers in his own section of Otonabee were not making bank interest on the investment in their farms.

Miller's Granules will make a clear complexion.—Wm. Madill.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

NEW MUSIC FOR REGIMENTAL BAND

The 57th Regiment Band has received some important new music which they will begin rehearsing at once and which will be heard in a short time. Among the new numbers may be mentioned John Philip Sousa's big selection, "Dwellers in the Western World" in three parts, (a) The Red Man; (b) the Black Man and (c) the White Man, which is being featured by Mr. Sousa in almost every programme on his present tour of the world. Another is the number, "Neapolitan Scenes" which the famous Coldstream Guards Band are using in their present engagement at the Toronto Exhibition. A new suite by Nevin, "A Day in Vienna" a big descriptive selection, "A Shepherd's Life in the Alps" a new medley of popular songs by Ted Snyder and a new march, "Children of the Regiment" by Lincke, composer of the "Glow-Worm," are among the other selections added to the band's library. The band left on the 7.42 C.P.R. train to fill an engagement at the Toronto Exhibition.

ATTENDING MEETING OF SYNOD

The Rev. J. C. Davidson left yesterday afternoon to attend the general Synod of Canada. This Synod meets every three years and directs the policy of the church in Canada. It is composed of representatives elected by the different dioceses from the the Atlantic to the Pacific. There are eight clergy and eight laity representing the diocese of Toronto, which has 225 clergy on its roll, and the other dioceses are represented in proportion.

Very important questions will come before this Synod, especially in regard to Mission work in the Northwest and in Japan, to which a Canadian bishop may be appointed. The clergy fro the diocese of Toronto are: Ven. Archdeacon Ingles, Archdeacon Cody, Archdeacon Warren, Rev. Prov. Macklem, Rural Dean Cayley, Canon Davidson, Canon Sprague of Cobourg, Canon Plumptree of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto.

SCOUT BOATS AT STONEY LAKE

Surf boats, or Scout boats—the latest style in water craft—made their first appearance in Stoney Lake this summer, and were very cleverly demonstrated at the regatta much to theenjoyment and interest of the spectators.

To see them to advantage one must view them in their proper element; the surf, or rough water, where they glide through—not over the waves, ensuring their lone occupant a smooth though wet, ride.

Their dimensions are eight feet by two, tapering to a sharp point at each end, with a uniform thickness of six inches. They are constructed of half-inch basswood, made perfectly water tight, and can be sailed either upside down or right side up. This feature renders them peculiarly fitted for small children to paddle around on while in swimming.

In fact, they are a blessing in disguise when used as an adjunct to bathing, as the little ones can spend an unlimited time at their bathing operations and yet not be in the water too long.

They tend to develop confidence in the timid child, who can swim but a little, and to set at ease the mind of the anxious parent, as they cannot be upset and filled in the same way that a canoe can be overturned and submerged in the water.

The idea seems to have emanated from the fertile mind of Professor Michael Mackenzie, of "Lochend," near Kawartha Park, who had four constructed for his children. Master Hughie MacKenzie rode his boat, the "Slippy Dip" at the regatta. Mr. Fred Roy was fortunate in securing an excellent photo of the race, which is now on exhibition at the Toronto 'Industrial.'

—Simon the Sailor.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

Artistic Housefurnishings

Our complete stock of new rugs, draperies and wall papers is now ready for your selection. Many new features that will add a distinctly artistic touch to the home are included in our showing.

The housefurnishing department is situated on the 3rd floor. We would like to emphasize the advantage of procuring Rugs, Draperies and Wall Papers all on the same floor. By this arrangement much dissatisfaction and confusion is dispensed with in securing harmonizing colours. The importance which we attach to housefurnishings is demonstrated by devoting our entire front to their display.

See our Window and Interior trims to-night.

SWAM ENGLISH CHANNEL

Special to The Examiner.

DOVER, ENG., SEPT. 6.—William Burgess, who has been trying for years to emulate the feat of Capt. Webb, has successfully swam the English Channel, reaching a point near Calais at 10.30 this morning, just about 24 hours after leaving this place. He was up against heavy seas and was thought drowned until this morning. This was his ninth try and he said before starting it would be his last. The distance is twenty miles, but the tide is so strong that Burgess swam at least thirty-five or forty miles in making the trip.

FOR BALD HEADS

A Treatment That Costs Nothing If It Fails

We want you to try three large bottles of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic on our personal guarantee that the trial will not cost you a penny if it does not give absolute satisfaction. This is proof of our faith in this remedy, and it should indisputably demonstrate that we know what we are talking about when we say that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will grow hair on bald heads, except where baldness has been of such long duration that the roots of the hair are entirely dead, the follicles closed and grown over, and the scalp is glazed.

Remember, we are basing our statements upon what has already been accomplished by the use of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, and we have the right to assume that what it has done for thousands of others it will do for you. In any event you cannot lose anything by giving it a trial on our liberal guarantee. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

NOTORIOUS COUPLE SENT TO GOAL

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., SEPT. 6.— Mary Ferguson, an actress of Detroit, America and a renegade Russian Prince, Alexander Ivanovitch, were sent to prison for five years each. There were several charges of shop lifting and bank robbery against them. The woman formerly toured Michigan and Ontario threatres under the name of Annie Grant or Annie Gleason.

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats, which is due entirely to this new discovery.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McDermid and Jury, your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into Peterborough, and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 50c.

No Opposition To German

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, SEPT. 6.—Berlin despatches received to-day seem to indicate that Germany has decided to accept the French proposals for the settlement of the Morrocco dispute, as outlined by Ambassador Cambon. While these despatches are unofficial and both Governments are maintaining silence the report gains credence that this will end the dispute for the present.

A GREAT TRIBUTE

"Musical Canada" has the following to say of Miss Mary G. Chalmers, who will be associated with the Peterborough Conservatory of Music this season and who will also succeed Miss Davies in St. Paul's choir:

"At the Conservatory of Music a vocal recital was given by Miss Mary G. Chalmers, pupil of Miss H. Ethel Shepherd on the evening of May 9, with conspicuous success. Miss Chalmers has a voice of sympathetic timbre and considerable compass, and her manner is free from self-consciousness or exaggeration. With ease and fluency she gave three artistic short songs in English, which were received with hearty applause, the young artist bowing her acknowledgments over a handsome offering of roses. In a totally different selection, the grand aria from Wagner's 'Reinzi' she rose fully to the occasion and displayed dramatic power and a surpassing degree of force and abandon. Upon her third appearance she gave a group of compositions by Strauss, Debussy and Schubert in which both French and German characteristics of tone-colour were well suggested. The final number consisted of the Song-Cycle, "A Dream of Egypt" by Amy Woodforde-Finden, most enthusiastically received by the audience and forming a brilliant conclusion to a striking demonstration of great talent.'

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

LEAVING THE CITY

On Sunday evening Rev. Canon Davidson referred in his sermon to the departure of Mr. Sutcliffe, who has acted as lay reader of the church for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Sutcliffe will be greatly missed, and he (Canon Davidson) expressed the best wishes of the St. John's congregation, for his success in Stirling, where he will take up business life.

FINE MASKINONGE

A splendid specimen of maskinonge was consigned from the lakes this morning to Mr. Elcombe, of Harvey street. The fish, which is said to be one of the finest caught in the lakes, tipped the scales at twenty-one pounds The consignees were Messrs. Pammet and Simpson.

CAR OFF TRACK

Car. No. 10 of the Peterborough Radial Railway jumped the track at the D-rail sat the Charlotte street G.T.R. crossing on Saturday night about ten o'clock and tied up traffic on the line for a while. No damage was done. The passengers had to be transferred fro mone car to another while the car was being put on the rails.

ALWAYS BUSY

WHY Because we do better repairing than some others do; the public show their appreciation of this fact by keeping us busy.

A PRESENTATION

At the close of the evening service on Sunday last, a beautifully bound copy of the new Anglican hymn book was presented by the choristers of St. John's church to Mr. Reginald H. Sutcliffe, who has been actively associated with St. John's, both as chorister and lay reader.

On Monday the choristers, numbering nearly forty, were entertained splendidly by Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie at their beautiful summer home near the mouth of the Otonabee.

A delightful day was spent and Mrs. Ritchie was the recipient of many thanks for her kindly hospitality.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, who died Sept. 3rd, 1910:

O, mother, thy gentle voice is hushed;
Thy warm, true heart is still;
And on thy pale and peaceful face
Is resting death's cold chill.
Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast,
We have kissed thy marble brow,
And in our aching hearts, we know
We have no mother now.

The board then adjourned for two weeks.

The Patriotic Honour Roll; Men Who Place Country Before Party

Conservatives Who Believe in Reciprocity and---Themselves

JAMES JOHNSON, president of the Fruit Growers' Association, of Norfolk County, a Conservative, is supporting reciprocity.

S. S. NESBITT, a Toronto Conservative, is out strongly in favour of reciprocity.

THOMAS HAMMILL, a Conservative, of South Simcoe, has consented to become a reciprocity candidate in opposition to Mr. Haughton Lennox, nominee of the Conservative party.

H. J. DAVIS, cattle breeder and judge of live stock, of Ingersoll, says that while it is hard to turn one's back on his party, he must support reciprocity and principle.

LESLIE MANN, Thorold, a Conservative, favours reciprocity and may run as a candidate in Welland County.

PETER LUND, Wardner, B.C., a supporter of the Conservative party in British Columbia, advocates reciprocity because it will take the taxes off the necessities of life, such as food, fuel, and shelter.

JOHN PRITCHARD, who never cast a Grit vote in his life, is working for A. M. Martin and reciprocity in North Wellington.

WILLIAM McDERMOTT, ex-Reeve of West Garfraxie township, a life-long Conservative, is supporting A. M. Martin and reciprocity in North Wellington.

ALFRED HUTCHISON, of Arthur township, who has voted both ways, but mostly Conservative, and is president of the East Wellington Farmers' Institute is out for reciprocity.

CHESTER NICHOLSON, a Conservative, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College and ex-secretary of the East Wellington Farmers' Institute, supports reciprocity.

L. H. EDMONDS, Blenheim, Ontario, known all over the country as a Conservative, writes to the papers that he is not Conservative enough to miss the opportunity to open up an unlimited market for horse dealers and farmers. He thinks that every farmer, who has his own interests at heart, will drop politics for this time and vote for reciprocity.

GEORGE M. BALLAGHY, a Conservative farmer of West Brantford township, declares himself in favour of reciprocity.

RICHARD JOHNSON, a Conservative of Norfolk county, will vote for reciprocity, as will also his sons and other relatives.

JOHN HERRON, Conservative M. P. for MacLeod in the last Parliament, says he will support reciprocity, believing that its advantages will far outweigh any possible disadvantages. He "can find no one in his constituency who thinks otherwise."

C. E. HAMILTON, a Conservative of Weyburn, Saskatchewan, predicts that all the candidates who oppose reciprocity in Saskatchewan will lose their deposits.

EX-MAYOR BRICHER, a Conservative of Berlin, is supporting Mackenzie King and reciprocity.

EX-MAYOR HAHN, of Berlin, is supporting Mackenzie King and reciprocity.

JOSEPH ATKINSON, a Conservative, of Tuckersmith Township, South Huron, says he thinks reciprocity will benefit everything the farmer has to sell.

GEORGE LAYTON, another Conservative farmer of South Huron, says the agreement will give him a better market for cattle and hogs.

J. G. IRVINE, of Leadbury, who is described as not merely a Conservative, but a real Tory, says the reciprocity agreement is just fine.

S. O. TAYLOR, member of the Durham Conservative Association, says he will find it awfully hard to go to the polls and mark his ballot for a Grit, but he is convinced that the tariff agreement is a benefit to rural Canada, and he is prepared to stand by his opinion.

GEORGE ANDERSON, Mountain View, Prince Edward County, a former Conservative M.P., says he is proud to say that he will not stick to the Conservative party when such a course is folly. He estimates that not one farmer in twenty in his neighbourhood is opposed to the agreement.

WM. BARKER, a prominent Conservative of Prince Edward County, says he is certainly in favour of reciprocity.

AUSTIN HAZZARD, of Wallaceburg, described as not merely a Conservative, but a real Tory, says this reciprocity business looks all right to him.

WILLIAM TROTTER, Conservative, Chatham Township, favours reciprocity as a farmer.

FRANK SHAW, Conservative, of East Branch, favours reciprocity as a farmer.

JAMES McCORMACK, Conservative, Deputy-Reeve of Harwick Township, says the only trouble with the agreement is that it does not go far enough.

EDWARD HEA, of Raleigh, says he is a Conservative, but wholly in favour of reciprocity.

J. H. DOWNEY, Conservative Mayor of Whitby, expresses himself as strongly in favour of the agreement.

DAVID GALBRAITH, Whitby, a Conservative, favours reciprocity.

MR. SYPHER, a young Conservative, of Durham-Oxford county, is stumping for the Liberal candidate and reciprocity, basing his stand on market quotations compiled by himself during the past five years.

MR. ARMSTRONG, who describes himself "as a John A. Macdonald Tory," is stumping for W. A. Buchanan, the Liberal candidate in Medicine Hat.

JOHN A. ACAMERON, manager Kent Farmers' Produce Company, Township of South Harwick, says he has always been a Conservative, is now, and will continue to be one, but he doesn't care who knows that this time he will vote for McCoig and reciprocity, thus, as he says, voting for the benefit of himself and all farmers.

ALBERT LAFFERTY—Conservative farmer, North Essex, has taken the stump in favour of reciprocity.

HENRY ARKELL—of Arkell, a well-known sheep breeder, life-long Conservative, in interviews and articles supports reciprocity.

G. A. BRETHEN, Conservative farmer, of Asphodel township, is on the platform for Mr. F. D. Kerr, the reciprocity candidate in East Peterborough, against Mr. Sexsmith, whom he formerly supported.

DR. F. C. GRENSIDE, V. S., who is known throughout the county by horsemen and the public generally as an expert in the horse business and as a life-long Conservative, writes a strong letter to the press advocating reciprocity.

HARRY GRINSTEAD, a foremost Conservative farmer of East Elgin, writes to the press appealing to his broad-minded Conservative farmers to support the traditions of John A. Macdonald and vote for reciprocity.

COL. J. Z. FRASER, Burford township, Brant county, who ran as a Conservative candidate for the Legislature of Ontario, strongly favours reciprocity

LEWIS WIGLE, South Essex, a life-long Conservative, has taken the stump for reciprocity. Mr. Wigle sat for two terms in the Legislature as a Conservative, and one term in the House of Commons under Sir John A. Macdonald. His brother, E. S. Wigle, is the Conservative candidate's campaign manager.

JOSEPH DUROCHER, Conservative, Sandwich East, a large market gardener, is out for reciprocity.

OLIVER REAUME, whose Conservative affiliations and convictions may be judged by the fact that he is a brother to Hon. Dr. Reaume, and one of the most prominent farmers of Anderdon township, is out for reciprocity.

PAT MARENINETTE, ex-Reeve of Sandwich West, and for many years a Conservative, vice-president, is out for reciprocity.

W. W. E. HILBORN, Leamington, one of the largest fruit-growers in the Province, has published a letter favouring reciprocity.

LEONARD HANKINSON, of Grove End, says he has been a Conservative all his life, but that he cannot understand the inconsistent stand of his party at the present time, and will vote for reciprocity.

JOHN DOUGLAS, of South Dorchester, a Conservative, says he is ready to give reciprocity a trial.

JOHN GILBERT, of Yarmouth, a Conservative, is ready to give reciprocity a trial.

JAMES CULBERT, of Crewe, says he never voted for the Liberal party in his life, but knows reciprocity is a Conservative policy. He will vote for reciprocity, and knows many other Conservative farmers who intend to do the same.

WILLIAM KICKLEY, of Mafeking, a Conservative, who says he believes the proposal as a whole is just the thing for the farmers.

MR. LEWIS, Burford Township, Brant County, a Conservative, is supporting reciprocity.

A. G. BEDFORD, Conservative horseman, west Kent, has written the Liberal candidate that he will support him because reciprocity will benefit horsemen and farmers generally.

ALBERT S. SWIM, senior partner of A. S. Swim & Co., Clark's Harbour, Shelburne Co., N.S., one of the largest fish dealers on the coast, says he is a strong Tory, always has been, and supposes he always will be, but he strongly supports Mr. Fielding and reciprocity for the great benefit of the fishing industry.

THOMAS FORD, a Cooksville fruit-grower, writes to The Star that he has been a Conservative all his life, but he is disgusted with his leaders because they will not accept the "greatest gift Canada has ever had offered."

F. B. LOVEKIN, former president of the Conservative Association of Durham, is campaigning for T. A. Kelly, the Liberal candidate.

JAMES ANDERSON, Conservative, of Prince Edward County, is campaigning for Dr. Morley Currie, the Liberal candidate.

WILLIAM COTTRELL, and his five sons of Sundridge, who "never voted for a Liberal Government" are throwing all of their influence for reciprocity.

CHEERS FOR BOURASSA WERE VERY WEAK

Special to The Examiner.

MONTREAL, SEPT. 6.—A little straw, which shows which way the political wind is blowing in Quebec, was thrown into the air by one of the speakers at a meeting held by Boyer and Monk, rival candidates, in Jacques Cartier, in Ville Emard, a suburb of the city, last evening. The speaker was Athanase David, son of Senator David. He made a rousing speech, and was given uninterrupted attention of the audience, until he happened to mention Bourassa. There were several interruptions and some at the back of the hall shouted "Bourassa"; then cheer for Bourassa, if you want to, said Mr. David. "Go ahead." A very weak, wobbly cheer was heard. Now cheer for Sir Wilfrid Laurier," cried Mr. David; the sound that went up nearly raised the roof of the crowded hall.

Mrs. Thomas G. Minten and daughter Mary left for their home in Boston after spending a very pleasant three weeks' visit here with Mrs. James Sutherland.

Miss Margaret Nelson, of Galt, was visiting at Mr. and Mrs. A. Peters, C. P. R. store, Aylmer street, over the week-end. On her return home yesterday Miss Pearl Peters accompanied Miss Nelson for a short holiday in Galt.

Miss Maude C. Bradley, concert directress, Brockville, was in the city yesterday, making all arrangements here of her Concert Company, headed by Aptommus, the peerless Welsh harpist, supported by an excellent vocal and elocutionary artist.

Mrs. Robert Henderson and daughter of Carberry returned home last night after a month's visit with her mother, Mrs. Wm. Young, Maple Grove, Smith, and also her sister, Mrs. Alex. Davidson, 607 Water St., and Mrs. Wm. Quinn, Burnham St.

Bert Murphy, the hard hitting, fast fielding third baseman of the Peterborough Midland League team left this morning for his home in London. He will be greatly missed by the local team as his consistent playing has been a feature of the games this season and he was a favourite both with his fellow players and with the fans. He has been a resident of Peterborough for nearly a year, having been employed in the plant of the Quaker Oats Company.

Mr. J. H. Simmons, president of the Simmons Publishing Company, New York, returned home this morning after a delightful week in Peterborough—his first visit to Canada. Mr. Simmons returns enthusiastic over Peterborough, our lakes, and other summer resorts, and of Canada and Canadians generally. While admitting our energy and effective progressiveness Mr. Simmons says that after the hurly-burly, hustle, and feverish life of a great city, Peterborough speaks so appealingly of restfulness and repose, that he would like and will likely spend the autumn of his days here.

AQUATIC CHAMPIONSHIPS

The Peterborough Aquatic championships which will be held next Saturday, September 9th, promise to be an event of unusual interest to the lovers of aquatics. Mr. McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, has kindly consented to allow the events to be held just above the lift lock. This will be an excellent place for the spectators to get a good view of the contests. The first event will be called at 2.30 p.m.

The events are filling up nicely and anyone wishing to enter please notify J. J. Thompson of the Y.M.C.A., who is secretary of the meet.

The events are 100 yards senior, 440 yards senior, 50 and 220 yards junior (16 years of age and under) canoe singles, canoe fours, life saving competition.

The Wm. Lech shield will be awarded to the contestant who has the best all round average in the swimming races, also the best showing in life saving. All that is needed now to make this meet a great success is a fine day and a little sunshine.

TUG TURNED TURTLE

CHICAGO, ILL., SEPT. 7.—Lake Michigan was swept by a terrific storm early this morning. Several vessels were caught and had narrow escapes in the harbour of this city. One tug turned turtle within view of the wharves here, but the crew were rescued after much difficulty. Great fears are entertained for boats out on the lake.

BRING BACK THAT GRIP

Last evening a grip was carried away from the Oriental Hotel and unless it is returned at once there is liable to be a considerable amount of trouble for the guilty party. The identity of the offender is pretty well known and he will get into trouble if he does not bring back the grip, which contains papers of value to the owner, but of no use to anyone else.

Splendid Opening Meeting Of Mr. Stratton's North Country Tour

Mr. Stratton Receives Enthusiastic Reception—Best Meeting Ever Held in North Harvey Last Night in Ventress' School House.

BOBCAYGEON, SEPT. 7—Mr. Stratton opened his tour of the north country last night most auspiciously, when he held a rousing meeting in Ventress' School House, North Harvey. The spacious school building was jammed to the doors with an enthusiastic audience and a number of electors were unable to get inside at all. Mr. A. Dewdney occupied the chair.

Mr. Stratton, Mr. Harstone, of Peterborough, and Mr. Dewdney, addressed the meeting in rousing speeches on the great question before the people of the country—the proposed reciprocity agreement. They pointed out logically and convincingly the great benefits the pact would confer upon all classes of the community, and showed how the farmer would get a big market right at his door for his produce. Other matters of public importance were discussed by the speakers and the meeting was intensely enthusiastic for Mr. Stratton, while the hearty applause that punctuated the remarks of the speakers left no doubt as to the feeling of the electors of North Harvey in regard to the benefits of reciprocity. It is a winning issue in this district and the people will show by their votes two weeks from to-day just what they think of the measure.

It was the most successful meeting ever held by either party in North Harvey.

ALARM FOR SAFETY OF CANADIAN MISSIONARIES

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 7.— The Methodist mission headquarters here to-day are more alarmed over the safety of the Canadian missionaries in the stricken provinces of China as the result of a message received from the Boston headquarters of the Baptist Missions. They have received a cable from their representatives in China that serious riots have broken out there and the American Consul has advised them to leave the Mission fields at once. The Methodist Mission rooms here have failed to get answers to the cables sent to Chengtu, where the Canadian missionaries are located.

TORONTO, SEPT. 7.—The Methodist Mission Headquarters here this afternoon received a cable that the situation around Chengteau, in which district nearly one hundred Canadian missionaries are stationed, was positively alarming, on account of rioters following the floods and pleasues. On this advice orders are given, cancelling for the time being, the party of Methodist Missionaries, who were to sail from Vancouver shortly. Further details are anxiously awaited.

PEKIN, SEPT. 7.—Owing to the ominous behaviour of the people, the missionaries in outlying districts have been ordered to concentrate in the larger towns and all foreigners in Chengtu are taking refuge in the Canadian Methodist Missionary Compound. The general opinion here is that a big uprising is imminent with Chentu as the chief storm centre.

HENRY CLAY BEATTIE, WHOSE FATE HANGS IN BALANCE FLIRTS WITH MANCHESTER GIRLS AT COURT

Special to The Examiner:

CHESTERFIELD COURT HOUSE, VA., SEPT. 6.—With all the testimony in, it only remains for the oratory of the lawyers and the deliberation of the jury to end the trial of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., for murder of his wife.

Beattie, with his fate hanging in the balance, gave expression to gaiety and openly flirted with a number of Manchester girls, many of whom were personally known to him, who had gathered outside of his window. The girls were all young, some not older than was Beulah Bedford when he first met her. She was then thirteen.

Beattie waved his hand to the girls and they drew near the window.

"I hope pretty soon, girls, we'll all be out on a joy ride together," he said, grimmingly.

"We certainly hope so, Henry; we wish you all the luck in the world," returned the girls.

But their countenances were by no means so hopeful as his.

He apparently noticed this, and said voluntarily: "Don't worry; it's a sure thing."

Seated in his cell this morning he gave expression to the same sentiment.

"I expect to be home Sunday. I feel that my story has impressed the jury and believe they will give me a square deal," he said.

Uneasiness or nervousness were not visible in his countenance or manner. He possessed the same outward calm that has characterized him either at the prisoner's bar as he heard witness after witness testify against him, or in the witness chair when he himself recited in a matter-of-fact way the story of his association with Beulah Binford and the alleged brutal attack of the highwayman which caused the death of his wife of a year.

The court house and its pastoral vicinity were clothed in peaceful quiet to-day. The twelve men in whose minds is locked the secret of Beatties' fate, rose as usual with the break of day and after breakfast in the tiny hotel here strolled on the green. They no whave heard all the evidence, and it remains only for counsel on both sides to knit together the revelancy of the various testimony into consistent argument. Upon the argument, it is generally conceded, much will depend, as the defence expects to make its strongest plea on the dangers of accepting circumstantial evidence.

The prosecution's main broadsides will be delivered along the same lines as characterized its rigid cross-examination of the prisoner, and will centre about the one question: "How did the same gun which Paul Beattie bought for his cousin Henry on Saturday, July 15, come to be in the hands of the alleged highwayman on Midlothian turnpike on the night of Tuesday, July 18."

The determination of fine technicalities of law and the laying of the legal basis for the argument of counsel tomorrow were expected to consume the entire day's conference. Another question, however, was expected to be settled by Judge Watson at the conference—namely whether Beulah Binford and Paul Beattie, held in jail since the arrest of the accused, should be given their freedom.

Bitter Charge Against Henry Clay Beattie

Special to The Examiner.

CHESTERFIELD COURT HOUSE, SEPT. 7.—In one of the most powerful and bitter denunciations ever heard in a murder case in the United States, Prosecutting Attorney Gregory commenced his argument in the case of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., charged with killing his wife. The Jury was visibly against the prisoner.

Frost In The West

TORONTO, SEPT. 7.—Observatory weather reports state that a heavy frost occurred last night in Saskatchewan and Southern Alberta. No reports of any damage to the wheat crop have been received this morning by Toronto banks and business institutions, but anxiety is felt. "It all depends," said an official in the Department of Agriculture here, "whether the wheat is mature enough to be free from the attacks of frost. If it is not, serious damage may result."

"BIG STICK" AGAINST IT

NEW YORK, N.Y., SEPT. 7.—Theodore Roosevelt is out with an article in Outlook, saying that the proposed arbitration is very defective because it is not straightforward and does not state definitely enough the disputes with which it is supposed to deal. He picks many holes in the treaty.

Many who fail with the older and heavier systems prove highly successful with 20-Day Syl-la-bic Shorthand.

THREE AVIATORS KILLED

Special to The Examiner.

BERLIN, GERMANY, SEPT. 7. — Three persons were killed here to-day whilst making experiments in an aeroplane. They were, Lieut. Newmann and Paul Songe, Germans, and M. Leconte, a Frenchman. All were attached to the German Aeronautic Corps. The sudden explosions of machinery and aeroplanes crashing to the earth was the cause of death in all three cases.

A VOICE FROM THE WEST

In writing to renew their subscription to the Examiner, Messrs. Dixon Bros., general speechants of Maple Creek, Sask., say: "The West is having a wonderful crop this year. Harvesting is practically over in this district. Threshing has started. We have had no rust or frost to damage the crops. Reciprocity will be a great benefit to the Western farmer. He will be able to get a better price for his wheat, barley and flax, as well as a large increase in the value of his farm lands."

SOCIAL EVENING

On Tuesday evening a social evening was given in honour of Mr. Vincent Sullivan, of the Nugent Drug Co., on his leaving for Toronto University. A number of his friends gathered at his home in East City where music and dancing were indulged in and at the close of the supper he was presented with an address and a beautiful signet ring.

ONE IS A FACT; THE OTHER A DREAM.

The weekly payment plan under the Canadian Government Annuities System affords wage-earners an easy and sure way of making provision for old age, for the time when their earning powers have ceased. For example, if a man at present aged 40 years were to deposit with the Canadian Government $1 a week until he was 65 for the purpose of buying a Canadian Government Annuity, he would receive $281 a year for the remainder of his days. And if he died before he was 65 what he had paid in accumulated at 3 p.c. compound interest would be refunded to his heirs.

This is the fact—it is already in operation; it is available now. It is a way that encourages habits of thrift, that encourages clean living, and independence of spirit. There is no pauperism, in the government annuities plan of making an independent and honourable provision for old age. The annuitant makes his payments out of little savings, and the government pays him the equivalent of compound interest on his deposits; he owns his annuity; it is and he can accept it without any sense of being an object of charity.

Mr. Burnham's "old age pension" scheme, has two defects—one is that it pauperises the recipient, who holds out his hat for alms. The other is that his scheme is merely a scheme—in the air only a dream—a proposal that cannot easily find a place in a young, prosperous country like Canada.

UNWORTHY OF MR. BORDEN.

Mr. Borden does not cut a very heroic figure when he allows the mouth of the statesman to be used for the utterances of a demagogue, and a very much milk-and-water and flapdoodle demagogue at that. Speaking at Megantic, Quebec, he used this extraordinary language in addressing the electors on the reciprocity agreement. He is thus reported by the Ottawa Journal:

You will not be true to your forefathers," he declared, "if you sell your birthright. Your ancestors faced great difficulties in clearing the forest for their homes, defended their homes against great dangers and established here the religion of Christ. You will be unworthy of them if you barter away your national life for any of the advantages offered you." (Cheers).

"You live here under a system of government which gives you great privileges and rights for your language and your religion. All these rights and privileges go into the melting pot if you adopt this agreement. (Cheers).

All this rhodamontade and bathos are very much like the language of Mr. Bourassa, Mr. Borden's Quebec lieutenant, who tells his hearers that if they vote for reciprocity they will be rivetting fetters to their limbs, and that they will be made 'meat for cannon' in British wars and 'disemboweled' on Canadian warships.

Mr. Borden is mistaken, the French Canadian or the Ontario Canadian in voting for reciprocity will be "true to their forefathers, especially the fathers of Confederation—Sir John Macdonald, Hon. Geo. Brown, Sir Charles Tupper, et al., who worked for, and hoped for, reciprocity, with all their might and mind. Mr. Borden also tells his French Canadian auditors that reciprocity will take away their peculiar rights—separate schools—which his allies in Ontario are condemning with so much righteous unction.

It is not worthy of Mr. Borden to play the double game and talk the buncombe that would stultify a "back-bencher," not to say a statesman of Mr. Borden's calibre and pretensions. He must be sadly cornered when he talks of reciprocity in turnips putting "all these rights and privileges into the melting pot of you adopt this agreement." When a statesman uses unworthy language and insidious appeals does he not become somewhat unworthy, himself?

DECEPTION EXPOSED.

The opponents of reciprocity do not legitimately argue. They assert and assert falsely in face of reason and facts. Mr. Sifton, the typical representative of the interests"—the moneyed and monopolistic "interests"—declares that reciprocity would mean a tremendous drop in the values of land in Canada, particularly in the Canadian West.

This is what Mr. Sifton says. But a better judge of conditions, an authority more interested in western land values than Mr. Sifton, contradicts him flatly. The Canadian Pacific Railway would regard anything that would depreciate their lands as hostile to its interests. It regards the subject from a purely business point of view, and is not influenced by loose assertion and unfounded maudlin appeal to sentiment. It wants to sell its lands at the highest value.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has land agencies in the United States. It has one in Seattle; and here is what the placard in this office window says:

CANADIAN PACIFIC RY LANDS

RECIPROCITY will increase CANADA LANDS 100 Per Cent.

Can. Pac. R'y Lands Dept.

This placard was in the window of this office on Aug. 29, when it was photographed, and is probably there yet.

Why was it put there Because it stated a fact, for which the Canadian Pacific Railway vouched. Would an honourable corporation, whose future depends upon the extent to which its pledges are realized, be foolish enough and dishonest enough to publicly make, and placard, a business statement for purposes of deception? Such a corporation cannot afford to make a statement, which it believes it cannot back up.

Therefore we must assume that the advertised statement is true. It shows that the Canadian Pacific Railway believes that Reciprocity will double the value of its Northwest lands, and if of its lands, of all lands.

Now, does any sane man believe that ruin and decay can go with increased land values?

Mr. Sifton speaks as a politician as to the effects of Reciprocity on Canadian land values in the West. The C. P. R. is talking business, not partisan politics, when it declares that "Reciprocity will increase Canadian lands 100 per cent."

Which will you prefer, Mr. Sifton's opinion, made from political motives, or the business opinion of the greatest business corporaton in the world?

Mr. Sifton and those who follow him are, therefore, deceiving the public for partisan ends.

Do your own thinking—with the help of the hard-headed business sense of the C. P. R.—and form your own opinions.

A FEW PERTINENT POINTS.

Dr. Macdonald, speaking at Brantford, in the interests of Mr. Preston, the Liberal Candidate, in the course of his address uttered the following epigrammatic pointers, which deal with facts, as well as principles. They are as follows.

• • • •

Reciprocity in food products in Canada is part of a great world movement of the unorganised, unrepresented masses against the organised few.

• • • •

Every agricultural paper and the millions of farmers in the United States is opposed to the pact which shows that it is a pretty good measure for the Canadian farmer.

The proposal to open negotiations came from Washington and not from Ottawa.

• • • •

Why will the producer and consumer both benefit? Every man who has a little intelligence can see it knocks off two duties at once and not one.

• • • •

The consumers of this country have a great voice yet to be heard from.

• • • •

President Taft said: "It is to our own interest that Canada remain outside the republic and within the Empire; the power of America for the power of the United States and Canada, plus Britain." Why don't they quote that?

• • • •

The men of the United States have learned that blood is thicker than water and that there is a common tie between the men who speak the same language as Shakespeare and hold the same morals as Milton.

• • • •

Sir William Whyte has declared that Saskatchewan alone will produce inside of ten years enough wheat to feed and seed Canada, and to supply the needs of Britain three times over. What sense is there talking about home markets in that case?

• • • •

You can't make a millionaire without making a pauper, whose share the millionaire takes. We desire to build up a new nation, which hasn't so many millionaires, but has the opportunities of life distributed and a square deal to every man.

• • • •

The question is, shall we give the producers and consumers of foodstuff a better chance, or shall we continue class legislation to encourage a small group of middlemen, who have become millionaires?

• • • •

Mr. Borden has not dared utter one word of disapproval of the Nationalists of Quebec. It is dangerous to allow such inflammatory traitors to become organized and hold the balance of power. They are the ones who are hastening disintegration.

• • • •

Mr. Borden could no more throw over Bourassa than he has been able, although he has tried, to throw over Geo. E. Foster.

• • • •

I found that the American manufacturers of steam plows were making a great ado about the agreement. The head of one large plow manufactuory told the Washington authorities that he would not be able to stand against the competition of the Canadian manufacturers. I found that one of our Canadian firms had opened an establishment in Preoria, Illinois, and its four-hundred-dollar steam plows were making headway against those made in the United States. That Canadian firm was the Cockshutt Plow Company of Brantford.

The reading of the above will only be instructive and of value to men who think; who are balanced by their brains.

BUNCOMBE AND BOMBAST.

The Review newspaper, splashes, in big type, across the top of its front page, the following misleading and essentially untruthful legend:

"The Peterborough workingman who votes for reciprocity, is walking hand in hand with the western grain growers who demanded at Ottawa only last December the abolition of protection on manufactures, and direct taxation. Can the workingman afford to bolster up the cause of those who would take the bread out of his children's mouths."

Does our contemporary take the workingmen of Peterborough for fools or children, to be led away by sophistries or frightened by bogies.

What in the name of sense or reason, has the "demand" of the farmers to do with the facts—with the real situation?

The farmers demanded reciprocity in natural products, and they got it—that is, free mutual exchange of farm products.

The farmers demanded great reductions in the duty on manufactured articles, an equivalent of the protection they enjoy and they didn't get it, and will not get it.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has publicly pledged himself in Parliament in these words, "We have not hurt the manufacturer and will not hurt him."

Hon. Mr. Fielding, Finance Minister, who helped negotiate the agreement, refused to even consider reciprocity in manufactured articles—because in these lines, Canadians could not compete with the more highly specialized United States manufacturing system.

He only would consider free exchange of farm products—Canada with her soil and her acres and intelligent producer, can compete successfully with any country in the world.

Reciprocity will help both farmer and manufacturer. It will make the farmer more prosperous, and increase his power to buy manufactured articles. It will help release the consumer—the workingman — from the clutch of the food combines, and thus give him a double benefit—it will put more and cheaper "bread in his children's mouth."

Will any one say that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who has done so much to help manufacurers and bring prosperity to industry—to give increased employment to working men will do anything to undo the work of the past fifteen years, by doing something to injure the manufacturer or the workingman?

He rearranged the protective tariff so as to make it protective in fact instead of in name only.

He reduced the tariff on raw materials and so helped the manufacturer, so that we—manufacturers and workingmen—have had the greatest reign of prosperity the country ever enjoyed.

Manufacturers are able, owing to the liberal rearrangement of the tariff, to import yearly 100 million dollars worth of raw material to help him to work to better advantage—to do more work, give more employment, pay more wages.

The Liberal government helped the manufacturer and the workingman by reduction of duties.

It now helps the farmer, both the producer and consumer, by removal of duty on farm products only.

These are facts, but they are only of interest to men who think, men who use their own brains. They will not appeal to men who let their prejudices make them the victims of undigested opinions and hysterical appeals to buncombe and bombast.

The Last Word About Horses; Drafts $400 To $500 In Buffalo

Prices of All Stock and Feed Soaring—Buy $20 Ton in Barn in Ohio—Oats Goes Up to 50 Cents Per Bushel—Advice and Facts From a Man Who Knows.

The "American Invasion" is a phantom. The following letter received by Messrs. Beswitherick Bros., live stock dealers, Hagersville, Ont., from a firm of Buffalo dealers, is self explanatory and shows what are the actual conditions. The letter has created something of a sensation in Haldimand County, where it has been read on the platform. It is from the Crandall Horse Company, of which H. P. Madden is president and A. D. Cronk treasurer and general manager.

East Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.

Messrs. Beswitherick Bros., Hagersville, Ont.

Dear Sirs:

In reply to your enquiry in regard to the prices of horses on the Buffalo market:

I don't think it would be possible for you to buy horses here that could be sold in Canada to get the money back, to say nothing about the duty.

A good draft horse weighing from 1,600 to 1,800 pounds would bring on this market, if we could get them, from $400 to $500 per head, and we could sell any number to the New York trade, if they could be bought. They are very scarce, and it is almost impossible to get hold of a top draft horse at any price.

The Ohio feeders are not feeding them this fall, something that has not occurred before in a long time; on account of the high price of feeders, and of hay and corn, etc.

Hay is worth $20 a ton, in the barn in Ohio, and not a good quality at that.

It looks as if corn would bring 65c and oats 50c before they stop.

There is a great shortage of cattle, hogs and all classes of feeders, and the farmers of this country are getting all the money.

I fully believe if the reciprocity bill passes, and I have no doubt that it will in Canada, that you had better get yourselves in condition to ship everything in the line of stock to this country for a time at least.

If I were in your place I would contract grain, horses, cattle, hogs, and everything I could buy in the live stock line to take immediately after the bill passes.

I would not overlook apples, as they are going to be high and scarce. Also potatoes are bringing $1.50 on this market at present.

Now get busy, and if you can contract a lot of stock, to be taken after the bill passes, and want a partner, I would be glad to take an interest with you. I believe it is the time of your life to make a lot of money quick and easy.

If you can get hold of a good farm, that you think will suit me at a fair price, secure it, as I am sure if I did not want to take it myself, I would be able to sell at a good profit.

There will be a great immigration into Canada, no doubt.

Now, keep this to yourselves, and take advantage of conditions, and let me know what you are doing.

We have had a good and prosperous year, and the boys all want to be remembered to you. With best wishes, I am

Yours very truly,

(Signed) A. D. CRONK.

ELLIOT'S

WEDDING BELLS

MILLAGE—NORTHEY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the parsonage, George street yesterday afternoon when Miss Edna Northey, of Smith, was united in marriage to Mr. Alexander Millage, of Douro. Rev. I. Couch performed the ceremony.

HURLEY—DORIS.

St. John's church, Keene, was the scene of a pretty wedding on the morning of September 6th, when Miss Lena, youngest daughter of Mr. John Doris of Otonabee, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Frank Hurley, of Peterborough.

The bride, who was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of navy blue serge, was given away by her brother, and was attended by her sister, Miss Agnes, while Mr. John Twohey, of Lindsay, supported the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Casey, of Campbellford and at the conclusion of the nuptial mass which followed, the wedding party drove to the residence of the bride's father, where a sumptuous dinner was served to a number of guests.

The happy couple left on the 4.28 train for Detroit, and after a short honeymoon trip will take up their residence at 286 Wolfe street, city.

O'BRIEN—BIBBY.

(Strathcona Plaindealer)

On Tuesday, August 15th, at 7.30 in the morning, an interesting marriage was solemnized in St. Anthony's hCurch, the contracting parties being Mr. Maurice M. O'Brien, formerly of Douro, and Miss Bridge V. Bibby, two well-known young people of this city. Rev. Father Jan was the officiating priest, and despite the early hour, a large number of friends and acquaintances assembled to witness the ceremony. The bride and groom were unattended. The bride wore a stylish tailored travelling costume of fawn rustle serge, with a black tailored hat finished with a large black bushy.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien were passengers on the 8.30 morning train for Banff, where the honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will make their home on 1st Avenue N., between 2nd and 3rd streets west.

The bride and groom have many friends in this district, and the wedding presents are numerous and handsome. The home of the bride, who is the sister of Mrs. D. J. Connelly, of this city, was in Campbellford, Ont., before coming west, and the groom, who has been a resident of Strathcona for some years, holds a government position in the Department of Education.

ROBINSON—SMITH.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at 532 Gilchrist street last night, when Mrs. Lucinda Smith was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. W. A. Robinson. The ceremony, which took place at 7.30 p. m., was performed by the Rev. Jas. Rollins, B.A.

The bride was attended by Mrs. A. Walker and the groom by Mr. A. Walker. After the ceremony an enjoyable time was spent in playing games, etc. Music was also indulged in. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, and also the congratulations and good wishes of a wide circle of friends. They will reside at 532 Gilchrist street.

RANGERS TO PARADE

Headquarters, 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

By order of the Commanding Officer, 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, the Regiment will parade at the Armouries at 8 o'clock, Tuesday, September 12th, and each Tuesday at the same hour, until further orders.

D. Walker, Major-Adjt.

FUNERAL HELD ON SUNDAY

The funeral of the late Frank Lefave took place on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 and was largely attended. The floral offerings were large and beautiful and included a wreath from Geo. Matthews Co. Anchor from A. Huffman, bouquet, Mr. and Mrs. J. DeLaire, bouquet, R. R. Glover, bouquet, sons and daughters. The funeral services at St. Peter's Cathedral were very impressive and were conducted by Father J. O'Brien, whose address was listened to with rapt attention by every one present, at the conclusion of which the cortege proceeded to the cemetery, where interment took place. The pall-bearers were Thomas Desutel, John DeLaire, T. O'Connel, Geo. Aherne, J. Archambault and E. Archambault.

LAID TO REST

The remains of the late Mr. George E. Rawlings were laid to rest in the Little Lake Cemetery this afternoon at 2.30. The funeral arrangements were under the auspices of the I. O. O. F. of which the deceased was a member and a large representation of that society was present.

The beautiful display of flowers denoted the love and respect in which he was held by his friends and relations, who assembled in large numbers as a last mark of esteem.

The Rev J. G. Brown officiated at a very impressive service.

COURT OF APPEAL

The first sitting of the Court of Appeal in connection with the manhood suffrage registration was held last evening in the city council chamber and the results thereof [illegible] from a liberal standpoint. Several appeals were heard, all three Burnham appeals were allowed, while judgment was reserved in the other two cases. The court consists of the County Judge, His Honour Judge Huycke, Police Magistrate Denistle, Registrar E. Morrow and Clerk of the County Court, Sheriff. There will be another session to-night.

REMARKABLE RESULTS MIDSUMMER EXAMS.

At the Board of Education meeting Tuesday night the Chairman, Mr. John Crane, made special reference to the remarkable results which had been attained at the midsummer examinations of the Collegiate Institute. He considered it nothing short of phenomenal, and it was a matter of congratulation and satisfaction for the Board, teaching staff, taxpayers, and all concerned, to know that the untiring efforts of the Board to secure capable teachers was not without results, and that good value was received for every dollar expended. Twenty-five per cent. of those who passed took honours; ninety-two per cent. of those who tried were successful, or in other words, a grand total of 66 out of 72 passed.

In the Royal Military College examinations, in which 93 candidates from all over the Dominion tried, 53 were successful.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in retaining good teachers, as other institutions of a similar nature were constantly endeavouring to "steal them," as one of the members of the Board described it.

DEATHS.

CAHILL.—At the family residence, 481 Gilmour street, Peterborough, on Thursday, September 7th, 1911, Ellen Sheehan, relict of the late Thomas Cahill, aged 65 years.

Funeral from the family residence, to St. Peter's Cathedral, at 9 o'clock a.m. Saturday, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

FRUIT PACKING NUMBER.

The method adopted by fruit associations in California and elsewhere of rapidly cooling their fruit designed for shipment, by forcing a current of cold air through the loaded cars, is described by J. A. Ruddick, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, in the September issue of The Canadian Horticulturist, published at Peterborough, Ont. By "pre-cooling" the fruit in this manner, it can be shipped longer distances and will arrive in much better condition, thus ensuring a much higher price to the producer.

"Commercial Box Packing" is another subject dealt with in this number by Robert Thompson, Manager of the St. Catharines Cold Storage and Forwarding Co. This article is well illustrated, and contains much valuable information for the fruit grower interested in this up-to-date method of handling high-class fruit. Illustrations in connection with this article and another by R. M. Winslow, Provincial Horticulturist for British Columbia, show the different styles of box packs for apples, and the methods of packing.

The possibilities of New Brunswick as an apple producing province, are dealt with in an article by A. G. Turney, Provincial Horticulturist. A description of conditions in Nova Scotia, and the advancement which has been made in the fruit growing industry of that province within recent years is given in another article by G. H. Vroom, Dominion Fruit Inspector.

Many other interesting and timely articles relating to fruit, flower and vegetable growing appear in this number, which is called the "Special Packing Number." An attractive cover, printed in three colours, adds much to its general appearance. Fruit growers wishing to secure a copy may obtain one by writing to the publishers.

BAND WAS WELL RECEIVED IN TORONTO

Thirty-one members of Peterborough's crack 57th Regimental Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Gliddon, journeyed to Toronto yesterday and gave three concerts at the Exhibition. Two of these were given on No. 2 band stand, while the third was given in front of the grandstand, the latter being considered a compliment ot the efficiency of the band. The men returned home last night on the midnight, much fatigued by their strenuous trip. They were delighted with the courtesies which were extended them by the Exhibition authorities.

Price Of Sugar Continues To Soar

Sugar took another jump yesterday, of 10 cents per cwt. and indications are that the price will continue to soar until it reaches $6.00 per cwt.

A prominent wholesaler to-day remarked that it would in all probability go higher before it dropped, and that there would be no decline until the condition of next year's crop is known, which will not be before May or June. The price, as it stands now is $5.78 for No. 1 granulated, and $5.38 per cwt. for yellow.

Rice has also avisted to the extent of 35c per cwt.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

AREN'T you too hard on your own sex, Miss Cameron?

So one of my reader friends questions me.

I wonder.

It is a new point of view on myself, to me.

But really I don't think I am.

To be sure I may point out feminine foibles more frequently and forcibly than I do the masculine, but that's only as a man could tell you the weak points and inconveniences of the house in which he lives better than those of a neighbour's house.

I assure you, I do not find more fault with my sex, because I think they have more faults.,

Not by any means.

Please attend, Mrs. Critic, while I try to vindicate myself from your criticism.

I know five obstinate men to one obstinate woman.

I know ten overweeningly conceited men to one extremely conceited woman.

The very pretty, unusually attractive girl may think that every man is ready to fall in love with her, and not be so very far out of the way either.

But almost every man, however homely, however stupid, however unattractive, fancies himself an all powerful lady-killer.

As Elinor Glynn put it: "It does not matter what the size of a man is, his vanity is just the same. A shrimp of five foot is unable to understand why a lovely goddess does not drop like a ripe peach into his mouth."

I know five egotistical men to one egotistical woman.

I know five families where the pathway of some lord of creation must be paved into smoothness by the inconveniences and comfort sacrifices of the feminine members of the family, to one where the case is reversed.

The contrast between men's fidelity and women's fidelity is too much a truism to need mention.

On the other hand, it seems to me that women are seldom as broad-minded as men, almost never as altruistic, as interested in the good of humanity in general.

They are naturally more petty and inclined to cast the first stone, and they seldom have much sense of business honour.

Women, I think, are more jealous after marriage, men before.

Men are more just; women more merciful.

Women are more patient in small things, men in large.

There, perhaps I am still under indictment, but I hope not, for I have truly tried to borrow a masculine virtue and be neither hard on my own sex nor the other, but simply "just" to both.

DUMMER ELECTORS HEAR MR. F. D. KERR

Enthusiastic Meeting on Wednesday Night---The Liberal Candidate Made a Splendid Address---Reciprocity a Live Issue.

The electors of Dummer Township showed that they were strong for Mr. Kerr and larger markets by turning out in large numbers to greet the Liberal Candidate for East Peterborough at Hall's Glen on Wednesday night. Mr. Jacob White, who has presided over gatherings at Hall's Glen for so many years, occupied the chair. Mr. Edward Hawthorne, the Liberal candidate for the Local Legislature, spoke approvingly of Mr. Kerr's candidature. He then took up the questions involved in Reciprocity, and pointed out the benefit it would be to Canadians. He strongly recommended and advised the election of Mr. Kerr the Reciprocity Candidate.

Mr. F. D. Kerr, the Liberal Candidate, followed with a thorough review of the political situation, and clearly demonstrated to the satisfaction of the audience the benefits to be derived from Reciprocity. He exploded the annexation and disloyalty cries, and showed from the Blue Book that Canada was able to hold her own in the markets of the United States and obtain the higher prices that they have in the American markets. At the conclusion of a most interesting address Mr. Kerr was greeted with hearty and prolonged applause.

Mr. F. E. Ellis, one of the Editors of Farm and Dairy, made a very able address, and from his intimate knowledge of the prices on the United States market and the Canadian market showed the benefits of Reciprocity to the Canadian farmer on all the things he had to grow and produce. Mr. Ellis' remarks were well expressed and made a deep impression on the audience.

Mr. Willie Payne made a short address on behalf of Mr. Sexsmith. Among other things he advocated the extension of the British Preference, in spite of the fact that the Conservative party had always opposed the granting of the present preference not to mention the increasing of it.

The meeting closed with hearty cheers for the King and the Liberal Candidate.

First Rugby Practice Of The Season Saturday

All local enthusiasts are asked to turn out at Riverside Park at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon for the first practice of the season. Owing to the ball game having been called off the field will be available, and a large turnout of players is expected. The number out in uniform will furnish a criterion as to whether or not Peterborough will have a team this season, so it is hoped that as many as possible will be out. Everyone who has played, or is anxious to play the game, is invited. Get in line and boost the great fall game.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 8th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

As Hon. George P. Graham put it at Brockville: "Did you ever hear of the removal of taxation on food increasing the cost of living?"

MORE MAINS TO BE INSTALLED

A meeting of the Water Commissioners was held yesterday afternoon and some business of a minor nature was dealt with. Messrs. T. F. Matthews, chairman, and W. H. Moore were present.

The following mains will be installed: On Romaine street, from Lock street, west, to connect with Main on Aylmer street.

On Caddy street, 150 feet, east, on Concession street.

A petition for a main on Smith street, from Reid street to Downie street, was received, but as the revenue to be arrived from it was not sufficient to justify the expenditure, no action was taken.

A petition for a water main into Houdrey's pea factory was also received and the Commissioners decided that if the company will pay ten per cent of the cost of laying the pipe they will put it in.

The following accounts were read and moved to be paid.

T. Roberts & Co., $161.35; Peterborough Hardware Co., $32.05; Gartshore Pipe and Foundry Co., $500.73; R. Hicks & Co., $27.50; W. J. Henry $3.45; McDonald estate, $89.85; E. W. Jones, $42.00.

Some other minor business was dealt with.

A meeting of the Peterboro Poultry Association is called for to-night at 8 p.m. at their hall, Simcoe street. 1d-56

Saturday's Game Is Off

Owing to the fact that several of the Peterboorugh players will be out of the city Saturday the baseball game scheduled for that date between the Peterborough Midland League team and the Dufferins of Toronto, has been called off, and the locals will likely put away their spike shoes and well-oiled mitts for the season. Bert Murphy, the third baseman has left town. Catcher Gonter and First Baseman M. O'Brien will be back at St. Michael's College, and other players would be unavailable for Saturday.

MR. WM. O'BRIEN LEAVING CITY

Well Known Local Boy Secures Excellent Position on Faculty of St. Michael's College

WILL BE GREATLY MISSED

Mr. William O'Brien, for the past three years principal of St. Peter's Separate school in Peterborough, and son of Separate School Inspector M. O'Brien, Gilmour street, is leaving for Toronto towards the end of this month to accept an exceptionally good position on the faculty of St. Michael's College. The appointment is a decided advance for Mr. O'Brien and his many friends here will congratulate him upon his success, while regretting his departure from Peterborough. He has been prominent in athletics through his connection with the Peterborough Baseball Club and Rugby Club and as assistant secretary of the Hockey Club and will be greatly missed in social, educational and sporting circles in Peterborough. His friends are sorry to see him go, but rejoice in the splendid position he has attained.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— I notice Mr. Burnham has discovered that some four hundred thousand bushels of American barley has been imported into Peterborough during the past 2 years and is issuing this fact as an argument against the present trade pact. A statement of this kind may deceive a few, but to the thinking man, and most men in the country do a lot of thinking, it is really an argument in favour of freer trade. The kind imported could only be a low grade of barley for feeding, which would net the U. S. farmer 45c. at most after we paid 15c. per bushel duty on it. Our high grade American grown barley has sold in Canada during the past 2 years at from 60 to 70 cents per bushel and in Buffalo at 90c. to $1.00. Now, if the Canadian farmer and stock man can buy the U. S. barley under the trade pact at 45c. for feeding purposes and sell of his superior home grown article to the U. S. consumer at 90c. to $1.00, he will quickly find out that it will pay him better to do this—even if it does make more business for the railroads and kill another of Mr. Burnham's predictions.

The barley question is the weakest argument Mr. Burnham could advance, as it presents one of the few cases of duplex duty against the Canadian farmer. The latter has to pay now, 15c. duty on the cheap barley and submit to a duty of 30c. on his superior product going into the U. S. I am aware that, as a rule, the consumer pays the duty, but in the case of barley the U. S. market controls the situation, as they usually have a surplus of the one, and are always short of the latter. Try something else, Mr. Burnham.

Yours, etc.,
RURAL BORN.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

POLICE COURT

A well known local character, in the person of Richard McBride, was arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty, but was remanded for a week in order that the extent of his disorderly conduct could be ascertained. According to information to hand, Richard made his way into the temple room of a local hotel, where he coaxed some men to purchase a drink for him. The bartender ordered him out and Richard objected to such ill treatment and picked up a glass off the counter and aimed it at him. Unfortunately for Richard, the glass missed its mark, and struck the large mirror and smashed it.

Another man from an outside point was dismissed on a charge of drunkenness.

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

With the opening of the big Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, just a week away, the directors are working overtime in completing the arrangements for what will undoubtedly be the most successful event of its kind ever held in the Midland District. With a fine new steel and concrete grandstand, $3,500 in prizes, the greatest list of attractions ever offered at the Peterborough Industrial and a record list of entries all that is needed is fine weather to ensure the success of the undertaking. The satisfactory results of the last couple of years have placed the Peterborough Industrial on a sound footing, and the reputation established is sufficient to make it certain that there will be a banner crowd here during the two main days of the Exhibition. Secretary Hall informs the Examiner that the entries are coming in in an unprecedented manner, and that everything points to a record exhibition.

A feature of the evening performance will be a grand display of fireworks, which will be worth coming many miles to see. The grandstand attractions this year are superior to anything that has been offered at the Industrial. Altogether, the Peterborough Exhibition of 1911 will be a record-breaker. Don't forget the dates—Sept. 14, 15, and 16.

THROUGH PULLMAN TOURIST SLEEPING CARS SEPT. 5, 19

Wireless Operator's Heroic Act

CHARLESTON, S. C., SEPT. 7.—To the courage of Wireless Operator Sheesley, a 16-year-old lad, the liner Lexington's twelve passengers and crew of forty-three say they owe their lives. Storm-racked for twenty-four hours, her nose driven deep in the quicksands of Hunting Island,, with seas dashing over her, the Lexington threatened to break up and fling her human cargo to death in the seething waters. It is said she will be a total loss. Sheesley, the wireless operator, tioked out his call for help and kept the terror-stricken passengers from abandoning hope. Finally a terrific wave swept the ship and wrecked the wireless station. For a moment it seemed that hope was dashed, but Sheesley climbed into the rigging and hastily fixed up a station. In imminent danger of his life from the high wind which threatened to tear him from his seat, and blinded by the spray, Sheesley sent out his plea for aid. Suddenly through the storm he was answered by the revenue cutter Yamacraw, which had heard his call and came on the way to save the lives of the Lexington's crew and passengers.

The twelve passengers, a steward and the negro employees on the Lexington were brought brought here early to-day by the Yamacraw, which left the captain and crew of forty-three men on board. Two firemen were reported to have been burned to death and a third terribly scalded when the vessel grounded. First Officer Chamberlain fractured his right shoulder. When the captain realized the danger of the liner breaking up any minute he had life-preservers strapped on every passenger.

THE LESSON OF LABOUR DAY

The Benefits the Holiday Called to Mind and the Moral To Be Drawn.

One good story leads to another. "That reminds me," says somebody, and so the ball is kept rolling. Candidate Stratton made a particularly good speech at last Saturday's rally. It was the last week night before Labour Day, and that suggested many things to him which he thought would interest the workingman. Mr. Stratton delivered a speech in his happiest vein—not a long speech, but full of good points and unassailable facts. In fact, the facts are more than facts; they are laws and may be read in the statute books. The gist of the speech is that the workingman has an active benefactor in the Laurier Government and a consistent friend in the Hon. J. R. Stratton. We reprint the report without further apologies:

"You're all going out on strike on Monday. You're going to quit work for Labour Day. And we're all going to join with you in the strike, and we want the strike to be as pleasant and agreeable as possible. So we want you to remember just a few things the Liberal Government has done for the working man."

A WHITE MAN'S COUNTRY

"Remember," said Mr. Stratton, "that the present Government has always stood by the unions and tried to make this a white man's country."

"The Liberal Government," Mr. Stratton continued, "has always been warm to the workingman. If it hadn't it would not be living up to its reputation as the party of the people. The Liberal Government has given special consideration to labour by creating a Department of Labour with a specially assigned Cabinet Minister. This Cabinet Minister is the grandson of a man who fought and endured many hardships to secure the rights of the people, William Lyons Mackenzie. The Hon. Mackenzie King is a highly practical humanitarian. He has studied labour conditions in Europe and the United States, as well as in Canada. Labour has in him more than an official; it has an enthusiast. The Labour Gazette is a useful feature of this department in keeping track of amendments to labour laws, causes and results of strikes, accidents, rates of wages, hours of labour, cost of living, food prices, court decisions affecting labour—of everything, in fact, that can interest, inform and keep up to date the Canadian workingman."

THE LAST OF THE SWEATING SYSTEM

"Perhaps," said Mr. Stratton, "you have not heard of the sweating system which the sub-contractors for mounted police and militia uniforms were using. Women and girls working for ten hours a day in stuffy shops for three cents an hour. Well, that was something the Government had direct authority over, and so the Government put a stop to that as soon as they found out about it. This work has to be done now under proper sanitary conditions, current wages have to be paid, and the hours of labour are specified. What's more, the principle was applied to all Government interests. This is popularly known as the fair wages policy, and it has a fair wages officer to enforce it."

"You mustn't forget," continued Mr. Stratton, "a powerful trinity of Acts of Parliament dealing with the prevention and settlement of labour disputes. They are (1) The Conciliation Act; (2) The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act; (3) The Railway Labour Disputes Act. The Conciliation Act, which has settled over fifty industrial disputes since it came in force, puts at the disposal of both parties to the differences, if they are willing and ask for it, the Government machinery for an impartial inquiry. We are all agreed that strikes and lock-outs are things to be avoided if possible, and if impossible, to be settled as quickly as may be, if capital is not to suffer, and if labour is not to eat up its savings in unemployment. The Conciliation Act proceeds on the assumption that both parties are anxious to get together. It has nipped many useless strikes in the bud and has saved perhaps a hundred thousand wage earners from bitter idleness."

"The Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, better known by its short name, the Lemieux Act, is the logical expansion of the Conciliation Act. It provides that when any dispute connected with public utilities threatens to result in a strike or lockout it shall be submitted to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation, appointed under the Act, before a strike is declared. Public utility industries are defined as those associated with the great agencies of transportation and communication, railroads, steamships, telegraphs, telephones, gas, electric light, water and power works and mining properties. The reason for this is, of course, because a strike or lockout in the case of a public utility involves not only loss to the employers and employed, but great inconvenience to the public at large."

PROTECTING THE WORKINGMAN

"The Railway Disputes Act, whose principle is really included in the larger scope of the Lemieux Act, authorizes inquiry into the causes of dispute between railways and their employees. As the railways get their charters from the people, the Act takes more upon itself in the way of intervening than an Act dealing with private capital would be warranted in doing. The general inconvenience to the travelling public, and the mail service and the general dislocation of trade caused by a railway tie-up is in the nature of a national calamity.

"So much," said Mr. Stratton, "for the wise measures the Government has taken to keep the workingman in work. What has it done to keep the other fellow, the cheap labour scum from Europe, the scabs and underbidders from the United States, the yellow and brown man from Asia, from crowding him out?"

"Well, there's the Alien Labour Act, which prohibits the importation of Alien Labour under contract; the British Act, making it a criminal offence to get Old Country mechanics to come to Canada under false pretences, and those clauses of the Immigration Act which make a Hindu show $200 before he can get in, the Jap $50, number limited, and the Chinaman pay a head tax of five hundred dollars. The five hundred dollar poll tax has practically barred the Chinaman; the Jap comes to us in constantly decreasing numbers because we have a treaty to that effect, and as for the Hindu, he is a family man and he can't have his family with him, and the climate is against him, and so he has stopped coming."

LOOKING AFTER LIFE AND LIMB

"Having done its best to keep the workingman in work and to keep the foreigner from crowding him out, what has the Government done to protect his health and safety while he is at work?" This was the next question Mr. Stratton asked.

"Well, the Government has composed regulations regarding the sanitary conditions of railway construction camps. They must have medical inspection, medical attendance and hospital and nursing attention wherever necessary. With two transcontinental lines in process of building and the three extending their branches, this is a very important measure of reform. Also it has amended the Railway Act so as to require all trains to be equipped with safety appliances, such as air brakes, automatic car couplers, proper outside ladders and hand grips for freight cars. A special officer of the Railway Commission reports on the causes of railway accidents and the Labour Department also keeps track of industrial accidents,, whether on railways or in other classes of employment."

LEST WE FORGET

"And I want you to remember," said Mr. Stratton, "that, whether it was in the Legislature or in the House, I always stood by the legislation for the workingman. I have always recognized labour's rights. You know what side you will find me on. I want you to understand that labour has friends in the Liberal party. And what has the Conservative party done for the benefit of labour? I have looked through the books and all I can find is that you were given, after a great struggle, "Labour Day," that you may enjoy at your own expense. Which party is the mechanic going to support? Which party has recognized labour? Should there be any doubt in the mind of any workingman, how he should vote in this election? I don't think so," said Mr. Stratton amidst ringing cheers. All over the country workingmen, labourer and producer, were joining hands in favour of the agreement. They now understand, he said, its true meaning, and there could be no doubt but that reciprocity would reduce the cost of living for the industrial classes.

"The high prices," Mr. Stratton said, "were unnatural and artificial. There were many food products that could be purchased across the line cheaper than here. Take the agreement, look it over, stop and think, and no workingman will vote against it, when things are going to make life easier for the man with the family to support."

"Reciprocity in natural products," Mr. Stratton concluded, "was the only thing that would equalise and relieve the situation, and every workman and producer should support it with the manufacturer, for whatever assisted the mechanic and producer helped the manufacturer. Your opportunity, gentlemen, may never come again. Do not miss it."

THE CRY OF QUEBEC.

All hail to thee great leader, champion of our cause,
Who cares not for the British flag, nor yet for British laws;
Who stands before all Canada, while round the Tories dance,
As to your heart you tightly clasp the beloved flag of France.
The great and only Borden, England's bitterest foe,
Is carrying England with him, their power to overthrow;
Side by side he's with thee, to move at your command
To drive the Liberal leader and Britons from our land;
Our morning and our evening prayers to Heaven's eternal throne
We send to bless you, Henri, to get us back our own,
To tear the accursed Union Jack from all our public places,
Unfurl the beloved flag of France, thrice blessed, H. Bourassa.

THE REPLY FROM PETERBOROUGH.

Shall you or I of British blood stand idly looking on
And see our beloved Union Jack so basely overthrown;
We have the powerswithin our hands to keep our standard flying,
While Bourassa and the Tory bands, to us are basely lying;
Step forth, ye noble Britons, the blood runs in your veins
Of men that feared no foreign foes, that burst all slavery chains,
Return that gallant leader, that gives to us our rights
That's all in all for Britain, that bears no party strife;
Awake, awake old England's sons, your help your mother needs,
Heed not the annexation wail, nor Tory cry of creeds,
Nor yet their waving little flags, 'tis only base presumption
To turn thee from your mother's side, to lure thee to destruction.
My blood doth boil each vote that's cast for Bunham helps Bourassa,
Oh turn then, be not blindly led by base flag waving asses,
We cannot, will not, must not see, our flag so filthy spat on.
But like a torrent rushing we, will vote for good old Stratton.
—South Ward Bard.

ENDS N.B. TOUR.

Mr. Borden to Now Going to Try His Luck in P.E.I.

Sussex, N.B., Sept. 7.—Despite the heavy rainfall, a large crowd attended R. L. Borden's meeting held in the rink here last night. The Conservatives of King-Albert were out in force and a number of prominent Liberals were also observed in the audience.

Col. H. H. Campbell presided, and the principal speakers besides Mr. Borden were J. A. Murray, M.P.P., and George W. Fowler.

Mr. Fowler dealt chiefly with local issues, claiming that the announcement of Hon. Wm. Pugsley, of the Liberal policy of taking over the Albert Railway was merely an election dodge.

Mr. Borden was the next speaker, and seemed in better voice than at any time during his tour of New Brunswick. After dealing with the reciprocity issue, he took up other planks in the Conservative platform, laying especial stress on the pledges of assistance for permanent highways and for the improvement of agriculture knowledge for the farming class.

This is the last appearance of Mr. Borden in New Brunswick on his present tour, as he leaves for Prince Edward Island to-day, accompanied by Premier Hazen.

Caught Italian With Bomb.

New York, Sept. 7.—With a dapper young Italian, believed to be one of the country's master criminals in their hands, the police yesterday spread their nets for the gang of bomb throwers, black mailers and kidnappers that have terrorised the Italian settlement here for the past four years. Giuseppi Castabile, who was arrested Tuesday with a dynamite bomb under his coat, will be arraigned under the new law which makes the mere possession of a deadly weapon a felony, but the police hope to prove against him far more serious crimes in connection with the numerous bomb-throwing in the Italian colony. The prisoner is known as "The Fox."

R. M. C. Cadets Suspended.

Kingston, Sept. 7.—Seven cadets of the second class of the Royal Military College were on Tuesday suspended for two months for the part they took on the night of the college closing last June, in playing a prank upon Cadet Henri A. Joly de Lotbiniere, a member of the graduating class.

The party of cadets secured an automobile, and after running about six miles or more, dumped Lotbiniere on the road side, and started back for Kingston without him. He reached the college early in the morning. The sentence of the commandant was not announced until the cadets assembled for the new term.

Rev. R. J. Campbell Coming.

London, Sept. 7.—Rev. R. J. Campbell, pastor of the City Temple, will sail for New York on the Adriatic on October 19.

The evangelist said he would make a tour across the American continent preaching in the important cities and towns.

NORTH BAY NORMAL SCHOOL

The Next Session of the North Bay Normal School Opens on September 26th

Applicants who hold the academic qualification required in the case of the other Normal Schools, but who will not be 18 years of age until some time prior to the close of the session in June are eligible for admission. Teachers-in-training at North Bay whose homes are outside a radius of three miles from North Bay will be granted special financial assistance to meet the expense of board and lodging and railway fare from their homes and return thereto. The certificates granted are of the same character as those granted by the other Normal Schools, except in the case of teachers who receive financial aid. Such teachers will be granted a certificate valid only in a district or provisional county until they have taught for three years therein or until they have re-imbursed the Department of Education at the rate of one-third of the total financial aid for each unexpired year. The above conditions apply to applicants from any part of the province. Forms of application and full information may be obtained from the Deputy Minister of Education.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause soreness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can walk with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure those obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

THE SYNOD IN SESSION

Anglican Primate Discusses Bible Reading in the Schools—No Joint Sessions Decided Upon

CHURCH UNION

London, Ont., Sept. 7.—The discussion on the motion made by Canon Welch at the last session of the general synod three years ago that the two bodies—the synod of Canada and the [illegible] should meet last evening's session of that body almost in its entirety. Mayor Beattie's official address of welcome being the only other event of the evening.

The final vote, though it gave an overwhelming majority of the lay vote and a straight majority of the clergy for the motion was insufficient to meet the two-thirds requirement of each party of the house of delegates on questions touching on changes of constitution.

At the afternoon session nothing save the election of the executive officers was finished, following the conclusion of the presentation of the primate's charge.

After three ballots Rev. Canon Powell, principal of King's College, Windsor, N.S., was selected prolocutor of the lower house in succession to Bishop Farthings, whose elevation to the house of bishops occurred since the last meeting. Canon Tucker of St. Paul's was a close second.

Dr. Davidson, LL.D., of Montreal, was the unanimous choice for temporary chairman and he presided over the election of the head of the lower house.

The primate's address was a lengthy one. On bible teaching in public schools he said: "If this synod represents the thought of the Church of England on this subject, let it express that thought, and also appoint a well-selected committee to confer with the highest councils of other Christian bodies with a view to some joint action in a matter, which concerns most vitality the whole future of your country."

With reference to church union, his lordship advocates the calling of a conference such as has been already recommended and leaves the matter in the hands of the synod. "Some important results," he adds, "would ensue, I believe." His lordship deals vigorously with the need for church extension in the Canadian Northwest, urging that present opportunities be not neglected, but that a strong foundation be laid.

Canada Will Withdraw.

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—It is semi-officially stated that the Canadian Government will withdraw from the Food Fisheries treaty signed at Washington April 11, 1908. Regulations affecting fisheries in contiguous waters were drawn up by Prof. Prince for Canada and Prof. Starr Jordan for the United States. After these regulations were drawn up, they were strongly opposed by the United States interests on Lake Michigan and the Pacific coast. An attempt was made by these interests to have further changes made for their benefit. The Canadian Government refused. Since then the treaty has been hung up and Canada will now, it is said, withdraw altogether from it.

Lightning Works Havoc.

Chatham, Sept. 7.—Lightning struck the barn on the farm of William Crafts, north of the village, yesterday afternoon, burning the barn and all the season's crop, also the horse stable. Threshing was going on at the time and a new separator belonging to Sanford Hart was destroyed. The men were partly stunned, and it was only by great efforts that a valuable hog pen was saved.

COLLINGWOOD FOR PACT

Residents of District Give Great Welcome to Premier — School Children Sing the "Maple Leaf" in His Honour

A BIG MEETING

Collingwood, Sept. 7.—That Mr. Leighton McCarthy will carry the banner of reciprocity to victory in North Simcoe was the message yesterday's mammoth meeting conveyed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It was punctuated by hearty enthusiasm, and emphasized by one of the largest and most representative gatherings in the history of the riding. Collingwood's welcome to the Premier was a wholesouled one. The town was thronged with enthusiasts, who lined the elaborately decorated streets, and cheered the big procession en route to the Exhibition grounds. Stretched right across the front of the great factory of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. was a streamer: "Let us build the ships that carry the grain that feeds the mouths of millions." Outside of the public school the pupils were ranged as the procession passed, and Sir Wilfrid cordially greeted them. They responded by the hearty singing of "The Maple Leaf."

John Birnie, K.C., was chairman, Sir Wilfrid, he said, was "the leading statesman and most central figure in Canadian politics," and reciprocity the goal so long sought by Liberals and Conservatives alike.

Addresses were then given by three Liberal candidates in this district: C. W. Hartman, East Grey; F. W. Harrison, North Grey; Leighton G. McCarthy, North Simcoe.

Mr. McCarthy said he had met the statement on the sidelines that because Laurier is a Roman Catholic, he should not be supported. This was the insidious campaign being conducted by his opponents.

The Premier on rising was received with prolonged cheers.

The offer of the United States was for reciprocity in manufactures as well as natural products. "We were not willing to give them reciprocity in manufactures, because we believed that in manufactures they had too much advantage over us. Our policy has been to have stability in tariff with regard to manufactures, and we would not change our tariff until we have had opportunity for examination."

Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster, he believed, were not good judges of human conscience and human traditions for they would not oppose the pact.

Referring to the 12 favored nations which will come in under the agreement, Sir Wilfrid said the argument of the Conservatives would be serious if we were afraid of their competition. The products we got from those countries were in no way affected by the agreement.

Mayor Hugh B. Currie read an address from the mayor and corporation; Dr. McFaul presented an address from the Liberal Association of North Simcoe; and David Williams read one from the Collingwood Liberal Association.

Seized American Boat.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 7.—The Canadian Government has seized the Gloucester schooner Arbutus at Louisburg. The Arbutus put into Louisburg on her way to Gloucester, Mass., and there took on a consignment of fish destined for her owners in Gloucester. This constituted a violation of the treaty of 1818 under which United States fishing vessels may put in at Canadian ports only for supplies of water or shelter. The Canadian authorities promptly seized the vessel and will confiscate her with her cargo. It is the first seizure ever made under this part of the treaty.

Inspecting Ontario's Roads.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—W. A. McLean, provincial highways engineer, and E. A. James, the York good roads engineer, are inspecting the road built under the Good Roads Act in western Ontario, and when they have completed their trip, will motor through Ohio to look over the roads in that state, which have been aided in building by state aid.

Engineer James has been instructed to arrange for the letting of contracts for the Don Mills, Lake Shore and Vaughan Plank roads. The price of crushed stone has dropped during the past month, and this will mean a great saving to the good roads commission.

New Mining Stampede.

Ashcroft, B.C., Sept. 7.—Something like the feverish activity of the early mining days seized Ashcroft at daylight yesterday morning when stampeders started for the Spring House Pastake claims on a silver, lead and gold ledge recently located by a prospector named Perkins, who reached town Tuesday with news of his strike. It is declared the ore, which is reported to come off an eight-foot ledge, is 70 per cent. pure, and it is estimated that it runs $200 to the ton. Spring House is in Cailleotin County, northwest of Clinton, and about 250 miles from Ashcroft.

An Organized Gang.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 7.—After Krakier Anerdussean, a Galt Armenian, had been fined $100 yesterday by Magistrate Fraser for assisting fellow-countrymen to enter Canada, Chief Immigration Inspector Goodair admitted to the press that he believed a well-organized gang was systematically smuggling undesirable aliens into Canada. The authorities hope soon to have the chief of the gang under arrest.

Took Carbolic Acid.

Windsor, Sept. 7.—The body of Daniel Mayville, 45, bachelor, of Amherstburg, was found in a cornfield near his home here yesterday. He had taken a large dose of carbolic acid. Mayville was last seen alive on Sunday.

SCARE FADES AWAY.

It Is Rumored That Moroccan Agreement Is Reached.

Paris, Sept. 7.—Tension over the Moroccan situation, regarding which negotiations are now going on between France and Germany, has been somewhat relieved by impressions derived both from Berlin and from official quarters in Paris that an agreement is more likely since the French proposals have been read by the Emperor and the Imperial Chancellor. The anxiety, however, has by no means disappeared, but a certain confidence has been inspired by the published statement of sober-minded journals, such as The Temps, that the probabilities of an accord being reached have sensibly increased.

The Foreign Office maintains a complete silence regarding the progress of the negotiations.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—M. Cambon, the French ambassador, and Herr Von Kiderlin-Waechter conferred yesterday evening for forty-five minutes, during which the German reply to the French proposals was delivered.

According to The Cologne Gazette's semi-official despatch, the German counter-proposals demand a full guarantee on important economic interests in Morocco, concerning which technical advice must be taken before the conclusion of the agreement. This will require care and time. Much preparatory work, however, has already been accomplished in the details of the guarantee and territorial compensation, so that with good will on both sides an early result may be hoped for.

Twin Brothers Shot.

Aberdeen, Wash., Sept. 7.—The bodies of the 19-year-old twin sons of Henry Bonner, a farmer, were found covered with leaves by deputy sheriffs in a lonely spot, twenty miles from Montesano and near the shack of the boys' uncle, John Turner. Bullet holes in the heads of both boys indicated the manner in which they met death. A posse is in search of Turner, who is missing. The boys had killed a bear, which was also found.

Knocked Down by Steer.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—An escaped steer from the Wild West Show exhibiting on the Midway at the Exhibition grounds, knocked down Mrs. Telfer, of Milton, yesterday morning, and she had to be taken to the emergency hospital. She was struck on the chest by the horns, and had the back of her head cut.

Some of the cowboys chased the steer and lassoed it near the grand stand entrance.

No Desire for Food

The Stomach Seems Played Out and the Appetite Fickle.

The Digestive System is Overloaded With Poisons—Relief Comes With the Use of

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Weak stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion and all the accompanying symptoms of energy, tend to make the springtime anything but joyous for many people.

The system is full of poisons, the blood is impure, the liver and kidneys have been overworked in an effort to remove the waste matter and have failed. This accounts for the biliousness, the constipation, the backaches and headaches.

How is this condition to be overcome? There is no quicker or more certain way than by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treatment gets the liver and kidneys in action at once and ensures regular movement of the bowels.

The poisonous waste matter which has been clogging the digestive system is removed and the organs of digestion are enabled to properly perform their duties.

Appetite is sharpened, you eat your food with a relish, the stomach is strengthened, the vital organs get the nourishment they require, and vigour and energy are restored.

BANISH THOSE GRAY HAIRS!

Kill the Dandruff Germs—Stop Hair Falling

Thousands of mothers are looking younger. Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY

Dandruff Cured
Three applications removed all the dandruff and left my scalp clean, white and smooth.
Wm. Croak,
Rochester, N. Y.

Restores Gray Hair to Natural Color

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored
My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching; my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.
MISS E. A. ROSE,
Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head
For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

SUCCESSFULLY SWAM THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Burgess, After Many Attempts Succeeds in Duplicating Capt. Webb's Feat—Was in the Water Almost 24 Hours

LONDON, SEPT. 6.—Wm. Burgess, a Yorkshire man, to-day successfully swam the English Channel from Dover to Cape Grisnes.

The swimmer landed at Cape Grisnes at half-past ten this morning, almost exactly twenty-four hours after leaving Dover.

Burgess' success, to-day in swimming the English Channel followed nine plucky, but unsuccessful attempts to negotiate the narrow span of water between the French and English coasts.

Webb Did It In 1875.

Numerous attempts have been made to swim the channel since 1875, when Captain Matthew Webb swam from Dover to Calais in 21 hours and 45 minutes, but no one has been able to duplicate Captain Webb's feat until to-day.

Burgess made his first try for the honour on Sept. 6, 1904, but gave up after a struggle of about 15 hours. The next day he started again, but after covering 22 miles in about nine hours was forced to abandon his attempt because of a gale. In his successive tries Burgess each time was forced by the receding tide to abandon the attempt when the goal was almost within his grasp.

Tide is Very Strong.

The channel between Dover and Cape Grisnes is only twenty miles wide, but the tide through the straits is very strong, and swimmers are obliged to cross at a wide angle.

On this occasion, which Burgess declared would be his last attempt, he started from South Foreland at 10.50 o'clock yesterday morning. A strong tide was flowing, and the swimmer had a tough task to get past Goodwin Sands. Four hours after his departure the swimmer was only six miles on his way.

Were Fearful For Him.

This was the last heard of him until the news of his success in reaching the French shore arrived here, and considerable anxiety was being felt as to his fate. A heavy fog enveloped the channel last night, and the crossing steamers failed to sight the swimmer.

* * * * *

The only previous successful attempt to swim across the English Channel was made by Capt. Matthew Webb, who accomplished the distance from Dover to Calais, 28½ miles, in 21 hours, 45 minutes, on Aug. 24-25, 1875. (Capt. Webb was drowned July 24, 1883, while attempting to swim the Whirlpool Rapids at Niagara).

Between 1902 and 1905 Montague Holbein made more than six unsuccessful attempts to swim the Channel. He nearly reached the goal on August 27, 1902, when he got within two miles of Dover, from Cape Grisnes, after remaining in the sea 22½ hours. He attempted the feat again in 1903, but made a worse record. In 1905, T. W. Burgess and Miss Kellerman also failed to reach the goal. Jabez W. Wolffe, Scottish amateur, also made attempts in 1906 and 1907. On the third attempt, Aug. 5, 1907, he gave up after being in the water 15½ hours, and getting within three-quarters of a mile of the French shore, covering 40 miles. On Sept. 19, 1908, Wolffe did better still, as he reached a point within half a mile of the French coast near Calais, swimming from England. In 1910 he again failed, getting within six miles of his destination. T. W. Burgess made a second trial in 1906, when, after swimming for 22 hours, 45 minutes, he left the water when at a point within 1½ miles of the French coast. James Mearns and a Dutchman named Meyer essayed the feat in 1910, but failed.

MARQUARD PRIZE TWIRLER OF McGRAW'S STAFF

NEW YORK, SEPT. 6.—John McGraw's confidence in Rube Marquard has finally brought forth results. For two years the fans penned the shrewd little leader of the Giants to scrap for hanging on to the erratic twirler, but he realized that in time Marquard would develop into a high class box-man. And right now this same pitcher is the sensation of the big leagues.

If the Giants win the pennant this season, it will be because of Marquard's grand work. When Mathewson suffered his slump fandom the country over figured the Giants out of the race, but it was right here that Marquard stepped in and by some marvelous heaving held the team right up near the top, and, now that hte peerless Matty is back in form, and Marquard still traveling like a house afire, New York has a corking chance to cop the gonfalon.

There was never any doubt in regard to Marquard having the "stuff." There never was a hurler who could do more with the pellet. But his assortment was spoiled through his wildness. He could not locate the plate and time and again he "went up." Still McGraw refused to listen to the talk that Marquard should be traded or leased outright.

McGraw saw that Marquard could gain control by practice and for two seasons he made the tall, blonde-haired boy report at the ground in the morning doing nothing but pitching across the plate. McGraw would do the officiating himself, and, when he wasn't able to devote all his time to Marquard he would assign Larry Doyle to the job.

And during last winter Marquard spent all his time in a gymnasium perfecting his control. When the Giants went down to Texas for their spring training last February, Marquard went with the first batch from New York. McGraw joined him five days later and the first time he saw Rube work he marveled at the fact that the heaver had perfect control of the ball, and it didn't matter how much "stuff" he put on it either.

Some people figured that Marquard didn't possess the gameness to make him a big league twirler and that on this account he always ascended. But that was not so. Rube feared no team in the league, but simply lacked that one essential thing which every pitcher must have to remain in fast company.

A newspaper man really deserves the credit for bringing Marquard to the front. Henry P. Edwards, baseball expert of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, saw the big fellow pitching for an amateur team on the outskirts of Cleveland one day and after the game induced him to pitch for the Cleveland Wheel Club, which played on Saturdays and holidays.

Marquard acquired fame in Napville by blinking the Salem, Ohio, semi-professional aggregation in a rattling 13-inning game. That winter Edwards recommended him to the Lancaster Club. Rube did well in exhibition games prior to the opening of the season, but the manager of the team depended upon his older pitchers when the season started.

When the season was about ten days old and with the game 7 to 1 against the Lancaster team, Marquard was sent to the mound to show what he had. Nine runs were scored off him and that night he was released. But an hour after the club had given him the "move-on" sign the Waterloo Club, of the Iowa League, heard that Marquard could be developed and wired the manager of the Lancaster Club asking what price they wanted for the pitcher, and also whether Marquard would be willing to join the Waterloo team.

Lancaster at once tried to resign Rube in hopes of getting the purchase money, but Rube gave him the laugh and sold himself to Waterloo. He had a lame arm, however, as a result of pitching on cold and windy days, and Waterloo was finally forced to let him go. He went back to Cleveland and again pitched amateur ball. His work was so sensational that the Cleveland fans advised the club to sign him. And Rube himself even begged Charley Somers to give him a chance. Finally Somers offered him a contract that didn't call for much more than bread and butter money, and Rube was just about to affix his John Hancock to it when he was tipped off that he would be immediately farmed to the Toledo Club.

Rube then wired Charley Carr, at that time manager of the Indianapolis Club, that Toledo was after him and asked Carr to offer him a job. Satisfactory terms were made and Rube went to the Hoosier City, but was soon turned over to the Canton team, of the Central League.

He was a tremendous hit in the circuit, and led the pitchers in shut-out and strikeouts. The Cleveland Club sent Manager Larry Lajoie and Scout O'Brien down to look him over but both decided he wouldn't do. That was in 1907.

Boston drafted him from Canton, but the National Commission threw it out as Marquard was rightfully the property of the Indianapolis Club. In 1908 he pitched wonderful ball for the Hoosiers and the Giants secured him that fall. While in the minor league Rube had many of the eccentricities of Waddell, wanting to be the entire team himself.

But Marquard has forgotten all about frivolties and is now a most serious personage on the ball field. He realizes that baseball is a serious proposition—a means of livelihood—and that he must settle down and put his heart and soul in the business. And from the minute he settled down and took matters seriously he became a great pitcher.

Do not weigh anything in a second, but take a second thought when a druggist or dealer asks you to accept a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.
This preparation has been on the market for over 65 years, and so far as we know has never yet failed to either relieve or cure the worst case of, DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, SUMMER COMPLAINT, OR ANY LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS.
Mrs. A. J. McLellan, London, Ont., writes:—"It is with much pleasure I write to say that I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with great success. Last summer my little boy, 18 months old, was attacked two or three times with Diarrhoea, but each time, after one day's doses, he was all right again. My husband was also taken bad one night. The next day three doses cured him. I always insist on Dr. Fowler's being given me."
If you want to be on the safe side, ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and insist on getting what you ask for.

When the Giants went down to Texas for their spring training last February, Marquard went with the first batch from New York. McGraw joined him five days later and the first time he saw Rube work he marveled at the fact that the heaver had perfect control of the ball, and it didn't matter how much "stuff" he put on it either.

Some people figured that Marquard didn't possess the gameness to make him a big league twirler and that on this account he always ascended. But that was not so. Rube feared no team in the league, but simply lacked that one essential thing which every pitcher must have to remain in fast company.

A newspaper man really deserves the credit for bringing Marquard to the front. Henry P. Edwards, baseball expert of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, saw the big fellow pitching for an amateur team on the outskirts of Cleveland one day and after the game induced him to pitch for the Cleveland Wheel Club, which played on Saturdays and holidays.

Marquard acquired fame in Naperville by blinking the Salem, Ohio, semi-professional aggregation in a rattling 13-inning game. That winter Edwards recommended him to the Lancaster Club. Rube did well in exhibition games prior to the opening of the season, but the manager of the team depended upon his older pitchers when the season started.

When the season was about ten days old and with the game 7 to 1 against the Lancaster team, Marquard was sent to the mound to show what he had. Nine runs were scored off him and that night he was released. But an hour after the club had given him the "move-on" sign the Waterloo Club, of the Iowa League, heard that Marquard could be developed and wired the manager of the Lancaster Club asking what price they wanted for the pitcher, and also whether Marquard would be willing to join the Waterloo team.

Lancaster at once tried to resign Rube in hopes of getting the purchase money, but Rube gave him the laugh and sold himself to Waterloo. He had a lame arm, however, as a result of pitching on cold and windy days, and Waterloo was finally forced to let him go. He went back to Cleveland and again pitched amateur ball. His work was so sensational that the Cleveland fans advised the club to sign him. And Rube himself even begged Charley Somers to give him a chance. Finally Somers offered him a contract that didn't call for much more than bread and butter money, and Rube was just about to affix his John Hancock to it when he was tipped off that he would be immediately farmed to the Toledo Club.

Rube then wired Charley Carr, at that time manager of the Indianapolis Club, that Toledo was after him and asked Carr to offer him a job. Satisfactory terms were made and Rube went to the Hoosier City, but was soon turned over to the Canton team, of the Central League.

He was a tremendous hit in the circuit, and led the pitchers in shutout and strikeouts. The Cleveland Club sent Manager Larry Lajoie and Scout O'Brien down to look him over but both decided he wouldn't do. That was in 1907.

Boston drafted him from Canton, but the National Commission threw it out as Marquard was rightfully the property of the Indianapolis Club. In 1908 he pitched wonderful ball for the Hoosiers and the Giants secured him that fall. While in the minor league Rube had many of the eccentricities of Waddell, wanting to be the entire team himself.

But Marquard has forgotten all about frivolities and is now a most serious personage on the ball field. He realizes that baseball is a serious proposition—a means of livelihood—and that he must settle down and put his heart and soul in the business. And from the minute he settled down and took matters seriously he became a great pitcher.

Contemplate!
Do not weigh anything in a second, but take a second thought when a druggist or dealer asks you to accept a substitute for DR. FOWLER'S Extract of Wild Strawberry.
This preparation has been on the market for over 65 years, and so far as we know has never yet failed to either relieve or cure the worst case of, DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, SUMMER COMPLAINT, OR ANY LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS.
Mrs. A. J. McLellan, London, Ont., writes:—"It is with much pleasure I write to say that I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry with great success. Last summer my little boy, 18 months old, was attacked two or three times with Diarrhoea, but each time, after one day's doses, he was all right again. My husband was also taken bad one night. The next day three doses cured him. I always insist on Dr. Fowler being given me."
If you want to be on the safe side, ask for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and insist on getting what you ask for.
The original is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name is on the wrapper. Price 35 cents.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look 'just right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

OBITUARY

EDWARD COSTELLO.

Ennismore lost one of the most well known of its residents last evening, when Edward Costello passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital.

His was a long and painful illness, extending over a period of several years; the end, therefore, was not altogether unexpected. The deceased, who was sixty-six years of age, was born in Ennismore and was a lifelong resident thereof, devoting the whole of his time to the farming industry. He had many friends by whom he was well respected.

He is survived by two sons, John and Daniel, and one daughter, Margaret, all of Ennismore. One brother also laments the demise, in the person of John Costello of St. Joseph, Missouri, and one sister, Honora, of Kansas.

The remains will be conveyed from the residence of Mr. Lane, Hunter street, to Ennismore, to-morrow morning, where, at St. Martin's cemetery, interment will take place.

MRS. THOMAS CAHILL.

This morning, Thursday, Sept. 7th, Mrs. Ellen Sheehan, relict of the late Thomas Cahill, died at the family residence, 481 Gilmour street, at the age of 65 years. Mrs. Cahill's demise was not unexpected. For many months she has been afflicted with painful illness, borne with true Christian fortitude and patience, her sufferings being great ameliorated, by the filial devotion and tender care of her daughters.

From the public aspect, Mrs. Cahill is better known as the widow of the late Mr. Thomas Cahill, a citizen for many years, intimately and effectively associated with the public spirited citizenship and civic life of Peterborough. For many years, he was a member of the city council, and it is only the simple truth to say that he was one of its most important members, safe and loyal to the public interests in counsel, of sound judgment in action, and showing the same qualities of effective, faithful and acceptable service in Her Majesty's customs, with which he was for some time connected. In all the vicissitudes of his life, in all the struggles and successes that brought Mr. Cahill to a prominent position in the esteem and gratitude of the citizens of Peterborough, Mrs. Cahill bore her share in her own sphere, showing herself to be a true helpmate—a dutiful wife and model mother. She earned in the latter capacity a dear and sacred place in the memory of those left to mourn her loss, as well as by her high qualities as a neighbour and associate, in the respect and esteem of the wide circle of friends, she made in the years of her residence in her native city.

Mrs. Cahill was a devoted and faithful member of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral church, and not only there, but in all the associations of life, she will be as greatly missed as she will be held in loving remembrance.

She is survived by five daughters, her only son, Joseph, having died about two years ago. The daughters are, Mrs. English, Hastings; Mrs. J. W. Fitzgerald, city, and Misses Hattie, Maud and Clara at home.

The funeral will take place from 481 Gilmour street on Saturday morning, at 9 a.m., to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

NO NEED OF WORRYING

Canadian Missionaries Are in No Immediate Danger—Messages Received From the Field

ALARMING SITUATION

Toronto, Sept. 8.—There is little occasion for anxiety as to the lives of the Canadian missionaries in West China, despite the alarming reports that have been published as to unrest and disturbances occasioned, it is said, by the Government's railroad policy. Rev. T. E. Egerton Shore, general secretary of foreign missions of the Methodist Church of Canada, is of the opinion that as the demonstration of native feeling is not against the foreign missionaries or foreigners at all, the missionaries are in no immediate danger, unless the Chinese should become seized with an idea that the "foreign devils" have some connection with the Government's plans or policy.

A cable message received on Wednesday said: "Excitement. Hopeful." Another came yesterday morning, however, from Rev. Dr. D. L. Kilborn, the corresponding secretary of the West China Mission Council, which, when translated out of the code read: "Situation alarming. Fear we shall be obliged to leave the work. If we do, shall take refuge at Chungking under protection of foreign legations. Think it best for you to postpone departure of party." This refers to a party including seven men and their wives and one or two young women under the general synod, and six young women under the W. M. S., who were to start next month.

Attacked by Pet Bear.

Kingston, Sept. 8.—Gunner Norwebb of the Tete-de-Pont barracks had his right hand badly lacerated by a pet bear. His little girl was near the animal and as he took her away the bear stuck his claws in his arm. The bear was at Petawawa camp, but since the battery returned, has been in an angry mood.

Holland Apprehensive.

Amsterdam, Sept. 8.—The Dutch reservists are being kept under arms for an extra period of twenty-three days, and naval manoeuvres are being carried out in the North Sea. This, it is said, is due to Holland's anxiety over the Moroccan negotiations.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Ontario Cheese Factory at Wolfe Island, owned by David Southall, has been burned to the ground. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Census taking in Vancouver, completed yesterday, shows over 100,000 people in the old city limits, with a total of 180,000 in Greater Vancouver.

Lieut. Ellyson, U.S.N., slid down 150 feet on a wire cable at Hammondsport, N. Y., yesterday, in his hydroplane and leaving the wire safely, flew over the lake.

In a critical condition, with a bullet in his abdomen, Napoleon Lalonde was taken to the Western Hospital, Montreal, last night. Lalonde says he does not know who fired the bullet.

As a Hamilton Grand Trunk train approached Toronto last evening a missile thrown by an unknown hand struck Engineer Thomas Tracey on the side of the head, breaking his jaw and injuring his scalp.

An official denial that the price of carbide has been increased as a result of an American trust having taken over the Ottawa Carbide Co., was issued by Mr. T. L. Wilson, a large shareholder in the Ottawa firm.

Reduced Cable Rates.

London, Sept. 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The representative of the Pacific cable board states that negotiations for the establishment of a reduced rate for unurgent messages gives promise of a satisfactory outcome. The postmaster-general thinks the advantage of the reduction will be such as to make it highly desirable to adopt it throughout the cable service of the empire and between the British dominions and external states. He said he had approached the British and American cable companies, and, after obtaining their approval, had negotiated with foreign Governments. There was now every prospect that within the next few months it will be possible for messages in plain language to be sent at half the existing rates, the charges being subject only to the conditions that the transmission must wait for a period not exceeding 24 hours.

Drowning at Huntsville.

Huntsville, Sept. 8.—In twenty feet of water at the tannery, shortly after noon yesterday, Joseph Draper, a well-known citizen, lost his life. Draper was unloading a scow of hand when he fell, unnoticed. His hat, floating nearby gave rise to suspicions, and grappling soon recovered the body. He was an employe of the Navigation Company and well known and respected.

A THIRD PROVINCE

Anglican Synod Begins the Organization of British Columbia—Recommended by the Bishop

OTHER BUSINESS

London, Sept. 8.—Legislation for a third ecclesiastical province of the Anglican Church in Canada was inaugurated at the general synod meeting yesterday, when the recommendation of the House of Bishops for the establishment of the Province of British Columbia was placed before the house of delegates.

The recommendation of the upper house, which outlined the proposed organization of the province was by vote of the lower house sent on to committee of canons, who will present their report prior to the general discussion over the new province.

This, according to the outline of the house of bishops' recommendation will comprise the dioceses of British Columbia, Kootenay, Caledonia and New Westminster.

It is likely that this third province if it be established at this synod, will be different from the two present provinces—Canada and Rupert's Land—for there is now before the synod a notice of motion by the Bishop of Caledonia that in the event of the establishment of the Province of British Columbia, the two houses, bishops and delegates, will sit together. It was for the establishment of just such a system that the long fight of Wednesday was waged.

Further than this, the same bishop has a second notice of motion that there be no archbishop of the new province and that its metropolitan cannot assume the title of archbishop until there at least five diocesean bishops within the province.

First on the order was the debate on the proposed canon on missionary dioceses and bishops. The question was whether the bishops of the new diocese in foreign mission fields, outside of Canada, should first be nominated by the house of bishops or the board of management of missions.

Dean Crawford's amendment to the original motion, that the board of management first nominate the missionary bishop, changed the selection from the board to the house of bishops. Put to a vote the amendment of Dean Crawford was defeated, 97 to 45.

After other amendments had been put and lost, the original canon was returned and the battle, whether the bishops or the board would select the missionary bishops, was decided in favor of the latter.

On the question of what would constitute a quorum of the board of management of missions, 50 was finally accepted as the prescribed number.

Then arose the question of the return of the bishops from their foreign dioceses and a limitation of five years following their consecration before return was inaugurated. A probation of five years was also passed.

Just who could be consecrated a missionary bishop was something that necessitated lengthy debate and much reference to the church canons, but it was finally accepted and passed that a "bishop or other clergyman" could be appointed, thus leaving the way clearer for the appointment of a bishop from another diocese.

Will Establish Canadian Board.

Listowel, Sept. 8.—Mr. Schell, secretary of the Pella Manufacturing Co. of Pella, Ill., who is in town at present, has announced that his company, which manufactures horse and cattle powders, will establish a Canadian branch at Listowel. Unlike the Electrical Supply Co., which will locate here conditionally, the new company has asked for no loan or concessions, but has merely selected this place as the most convenient point from which to obtain the ingredients for its product. Mr. Schell will be the local manager and he expects to commence manufacturing within a month.

Silver Strike In B. C.

Hazelton, B. C., Sept. 8.—Mining circles here are agog over the reported rich strike on Hudson's Bay Mountain, south of here.

A prospector arrived yesterday from that locality, bringing in about ten pounds of ore, which runs 8 per cent. native silver. Native leaf silver, weighing up to two ounces to the leaf, has been taken from the specimens brought in here.

There are also reports of lead already traceable for 600 feet. A large number of prospectors and mining men here are preparing to leave immediately.

Steamer Struck Bridge.

Port Colborne, Sept. 8.—The steamer Pellatt of the Merchants' Mutual line, westward bound, struck the Air Line Railway bridge early yesterday morning, moving it three or four feet from its bearing, completely blocking railway traffic for some hours. All Wabash trains had to come via Port Colborne until the bridge was placed back in its former position.

A New Industry.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 8.—E. C. Hill and E. M. Preston of Toronto are in the city negotiating for a location for the plant of Gaso-Electric Motors, a new motor car company, here. The City Council will consider granting concessions to this million-dollar corporation.

PREMIER AT SUDBURY

Workmen of North Superior Town Realize the Position of Former Whom Sir Wilfrid Gives a Parallel to Their Own Trade

A WARM WELCOME

Sudbury, Sept. 8.—This town extended an enthusiastic welcome to Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday. The long route of the procession was lined with people and gaily decorated with flags and bunting. At one corner a group of hardy French Canadians had secured a place of vantage, and with cries of "Vive Laurier" started the cheering, which reached a great volume as it ran along the line of spectators. The Premier was kept busy acknowledging the reception. Special trains brought scores of electors from North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie.

President Allard of the Liberal Association occupied the chair, and Mr. A. J. Young, the Liberal candidate, spoke briefly. He declared for reciprocity as a benefit to both producer and consumer. Short addresses were also delivered by Messrs. Z. Magean, provincial candidate for Sturgeon Falls, and J. L. Regan, federal candidate for East Algoma.

"I thought I was an old man," began Sir Wilfrid, who was received with long continued acclaim. "It is true, according to the calendar, that I have reached the end of the span of life allotted to man, but whatever the effect of advancing years, I feel as young as ever. God has blessed me with good health, and I rejoice that I can carry on this campaign to victory.

"I asked the miners," he observed, "where they secured the market for their ore, and they told me it was marketed in the United States. Every pound of metal goes to the United States. Let me ask of you if there was a duty of twenty-five percent. on this metal, such as exists on agricultural products, would it be well for you in Sudbury?"

Cries of "No, no!"

"That is as I believed," said Sir Wilfrid, "and there you have in a nutshell the policy upon which we come to you. For it I take no credit. I am but the expression of the will of the Canadian people."

"Forward is our watchword," said Sir Wilfrid, in dealing with the let-well-enough-alone doctrine.

Burglars at Chatham.

Chatham, Sept. 8.—On Tuesday night thieves attempted to gain entrance to the residence of Sheriff Gemmill, Victoria avenue, by placing a ladder to an upstairs window. They purloined the ladder from the yard of Richard Knight nearby, but it had a defect in it and broke, when they attempted to climb it. They evidently feared detection at the noise and ran away. The police are mystified, though they are working on the case. This is the third attempt which has been made recently by unknown parties to gain entrance to the sheriff's house.

Spoiled Their Game.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 8.—Immigration Inspector Carter yesterday arrested John Lao and Angelo Stinto of Newark, N.J., on charges of violating the immigration laws as they were preparing to board the train for Toronto. Questioning on the part of Carter brought out the fact, reluctantly admitted by Lao, that he had received a night telegram from Stinto asking his aid in coming into Canada. Lao was fined $50 and Stinto was deported.

Great Trust Merger.

New York, Sept. 8.—Negotiations have been practically concluded for another great trust company merger in Wall Street, this one to bring together the Equitable Trust Co. with deposits of $44,000,000, and the Knickerbocker Trust Co., having deposits of $38,000,000. The Equitable probably will be the surviving corporation, and with total deposits of $82,000,000, it will rank among the most powerful trust companies in the United States.

Apple Shippers Protest.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—A special meeting of the Ontario Apple Shippers' Association was held in the Walker House yesterday morning at which the association put itself on record as opposed to the system of "closed" auction rooms in England.

It appears that these auction rooms are run by a few large firms of privileged middlemen, who discriminate against other merchants, not members of the combine.

Found Body of Boy.

Montreal, Sept. 8.—The body of a boy about 13 years of age was picked up from the river at about noon yesterday, in front of the King Edward Ferry pier. It was removed to the morgue pending identification.

It is believed that the body may be that one of the Liveray brothers, who left their home at Maisonneuve on Sunday last to attend mass, and have not been seen since.

Chief of Police Marsheesa has been informed that two boys were seen in a rowboat on Sunday last opposite Longueuil. They were drifting with the rapid current and did not seem able to control the boat properly.

WHITNEY IN NORTH.

Ontario Premier Makes Speech at North Bay.

North Bay, Sept. 8.—Sir James Whitney addressed an audience of electors from this town and the vicinity last night.

Sir James spoke one hour and ten minutes, devoting the time almost entirely to the reciprocity agreement. Premier Whitney prefaced his address with an outline of the growth and prosperity of New Ontario.

Taking up the question of reciprocity, the speaker touched on a very warm local topic, when he asked what early use would the Georgian Bay canal be if reciprocity was adopted.

The Dominion Government seemed to have a fancy for canals, Newmarket being an instance of their attempt to make water run up hill. The people of Canada were the most happy, contented and prosperous people on the face of the globe, a condition achieved after times of suffering. The law of compensation decrees that nothing is obtained without giving something in return. The hard times following the abrogation of the former treaty of reciprocity with the United States and the bitter feeling which remained should not be forgotten, reminding us that our neighbors always had the long end of the whiffletree.

Canada to Mexico.

New York, Sept. 8.—A new through route from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, which is expected to rearrange the railroad map of the west in important particulars, is provided for in plans made known yesterday by Newman Erb, who, with Edwin Hawley, is actively engaged in the undertaking.

The first step in the project is to be the leasing of the Iowa Central Railroad to the Minneapolis & St. Louis Arrangements also have been made to extend the Iowa Central to St. Louis, and the Minneapolis & St. Louis to the Canadian border, thus giving the Hawley-Erb group of railroads the through route from the wheat fields of Northwestern Canada to Galveston.

It is expected that both the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific will connect with the new extension of the Minneapolis & St. Louis. The new route also will afford an entrance to Minneapolis and St. Paul to the Canadian Northern.

Museum Cracking Again.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—The famous crack in the walls of the new Victoria Museum has again broken loose and is now beginning to cause some real alarm on the part of the employes in the building.

The fissure, which extends in the form of an ellipse across walls, ceiling and floor, inside the main entrance, was, a week or so ago, patched up afresh, as has been done almost a score of times since it first developed. It has now opened, however, wider than ever, and is large enough to permit of an index finger being inserted in it, in some places.

A new evidence of the stress at work within the building has developed in the breaking of the plumbing fixtures in a few of the offices.

Not "Your Excellency."

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—According to an official notice issued by the Secretary of State's Department, Canada's new Governor-General will be known, while in the Dominion, as "His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada."

It has been the custom to address the Governor-General as "His Excellency," and as many enquiries were received from cities and towns throughout the country desirous of presenting addresses of welcome to the duke, official notice has been promulgated.

The duchess will be known as "Her Royal Highness, the Duchess of Connaught."

A Modern Enoch Arden.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 8.—The little American village of La Salle, opposite here, is agog with excitement over the modern Enoch Arden case that came to light yesterday when Frank Stevens returned home after an absence of seventeen years, to find his wife married to Clarence Baker. His daughter, a baby when Stevens left home, is also married. Stevens says he has no idea of separating his former wife from her present husband.

Murder or Suicide?

New York, Sept. 8.—Finger-prints on the revolver with which she was shot to death yesterday are relied on by the experts of the local detective bureau to determine definitely whether Mrs. Edward Hart, formerly a dancer known to the stage as Irene Hart, was murdered or took her own life. The woman's body, bearing four bullet wounds, was found in the kitchen of the rooming-house she purchased recently, with the revolver lying beside it.

Hart, who called the police, declared that his wife had shot herself. He said he found her body on the floor when he got up yesterday. When he was arraigned in the police court a detective who investigated the case testified that in his opinion the wounds could not have been self-inflicted, and Hart was held for the coroner without bail.

Accidentally Shot.

Fredericton, N.B., Sept. 8.—A young English boy was seriously and perhaps fatally wounded in a shooting accident, which occurred at Maugerville Wednesday evening. About dusk Murray Gilbert, with whom the boy lived, saw a large owl alight on the top of his barn, and rushed into the house to get his shotgun, hoping to have a shot at the owl. The young English lad heard Mr. Gilbert preparing to go out to shoot the owl and went to the verandah. He was just passing through a screen door leading to the verandah when Mr. Gilbert was snapping the breech-loading shot gun together, after having placed a cartridge in the proper place. Suddenly there was a discharge and a number of the shot lodged in the boy's arm and side.

Motor Car Fell Into River.

Three Rivers, Que., Sept. 8.—Dr. Ferron, his wife and three friends from Stefleve were crossing by the ferry boat to Doucett's Landing in a motor car on their way to Sherbrooke on Wednesday and in getting off the boat the machine suddenly started backwards. Breaking the rail of the ferry, it fell into the St. Lawrence with all its occupants. They were all rescued safely.

Ambushed and Murdered.

Pottsville, Pa., Sept. 8.—Dead in their carriage, the bodies of Joseph Zeyner and Samuel Hopkins, of Lansford, were found on the top of a mountain yesterday afternoon. Both had been shot, evidently from ambush.

A box containing about $8,000 to pay about 60 hands employed at the coal strippings, was gone.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

YES we are going to get out somewhere at least twice a week. Sometimes we'll go calling, and sometimes we'll go to church or to a concert or lecture or to the threatre. But wherever we go, we're surely going somewhere together at least twice a week, and maybe more. We made that our wedding anniversary resolution. You know we had been married seven years last Wednesday."

The lady who announced that determination, is one of the brightest little women in our neighbourhood. She has two children to whom she is devoted. One is four, and the other six years old.

"You see," she went on in explanation, "Harry, and I got to talking things over the other night, and we just decided that we had slipped into a rut. When children were little babies, of course we couldn't go out very much. But now that they are older and we have a very trustworthwy maid, there really isn't any reason on earth why we shouldn't go out more and yet we are so in the habit of staying in that I don't believe we go out anywhere together once in two weeks. Harry plays with the children until they go to bed, and then reads the newspapers, and the magazines, and I read or sew, and half the time we go to bed at nine or half past.

"On our anniversary, some friends of ours whom we visited on our honeymoon, invited us to go to dinner and the theatre with them and we did enjoy it so much that when we got home we sat down and talked it all over and we made up our minds that we had gotten into a rut, and we ought to get out of it.

"We think we owe it both to ourselves and the children to keep alive and young and in touch with things, and we can't do that if we sit down and stare at a book or each other every night.

"Harry works hard, but not so hard that he needs to drop into a chair and doze or read all the evening, and he says he felt better and more alive the day after our little 'spree' than he had for weeks.

"So we're just going to drive ourselves out. We're going to look up some of the friends we lost sight of when we were so tied down by the babies, and we're going to take in a good play or concert or lecture occasionally, and we're going to take some part in our church life, and we're just going to get out of this married folks rut.

"I know it may come a little hard at first—we've vegetated so long, but I'm sure we'll enjoy ourselves and everything else better, once we get thoroughly waked up, and I think, too, that when our children get old enough to want to be friends with us, we'll be better able to be friends with them than if they kept on vegetating the way we are."

Does the lady's resolution appeal to you?

I must say that it does to me, and that I know more than one married couple who would benefit both themselves and future generations, by making—and keeping—a similar one.

Eczema Worse in the Spring

The Blood is Watery—Difficult to Get the Healing Process Started.

But Whatever the Cause You Can Relieve the Itching and Heal the Sores With

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Salt rheum and eczema are usually worse at this time of year because of the sudden change of temperature and the watery condition of the blood.

It is not necessary to refer to the suffering caused from the intense itching nor to the tendency of these ailments. The essential point is how to bring about cure, and if you have been reading the cures reported from time to time in this paper you will already know that there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and every form of itching skin diseases.

This ointment stops the itching almost as soon as applied, lessens the discharge from the vesicles or blisters, cleans out the morbid growth and stimulates the process of healing.

Because other treatments have failed, you may feel discouraged. But in Dr. Chase's Ointment there is a cure for you. We know this because of the reports we have received from so many thousands of cases.

For instance, there is the cure of Mrs. Nettie Massey, of Consecon, Ont., who had psoriasis or chronic eczema so bad that almost the whole body was covered with sores, and three doctors failed to cure her. One doctor said she could never be cured. Write to Mrs. Massey about her case.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60c. a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

HASTINGS NEWS

Examiner Special :-

HASTINGS, SEPT. 2.—A number of our citizens took in the excursion to Healy Falls on Wednesday and report a pleasant sail with the exception of a few shocks, caused by the steamer striking a rock and causing considerable consternation among those on board. However, all reached home in safety and without loss of life.

On Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church met at the parsonage to transact matters of business in connection with the church and talk over schemes for future development. Mr. and Mrs. (Rev.) Anderson received them most graciously and a real sociable hour was enjoyed by those present.

Rev. D. A. Thompson and family returned during the week from Toronto where they have been spending a month's holidays. The union services, therefore, will be discontinued, for the present at least, as Mr. Thompson has again resumed the duties in connection with the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Henry Beavis, of Lakefield, has been visiting his brothers, Messrs. John and Nelson Beavis.

Mr. Charlie Anderson of Toronto, was in town last week.

Mrs. Gilchrist is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Robt. Scott, Campbellford.

Quite a number of our people drove over to Bethany on Tuesday evening to attend the social which was held in the church there, and were well repaid for the drive as a most enjoyable time was spent and a very pleasant drive home. The company are loud in their praises of the Bethany people to provide refreshments etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Brisboes and daughter left on Thursday evening for their home in Peterborough after spending a holiday in town.

Mrs. Harold Beavis of Percy, spent Thursday iwth her brother, Mr. Jas. Stevenson, Jr.

Mrs. Byers left this week to spend a holiday with friends out of town.

Miss B. Lobb has been the guest of her friend, Miss Violet Oakman during the week.

Mr. Jas. Ridpath and family, who have all been very seriously ill with typhoid fever, are now on a fair road to recovery.

His many friends will be pleased to hear that Mr. Joseph Maud has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness are attack of typhoid fever as to be able to return to his home in the village.

Master H. Atwood who has been spending the past two weeks visiting his grandparents, returned on Thursday to his home in Peterborough.

EXPORT TRADE IN BUTTER

From Farm and Dairy.

S. W. McLagan, Mgr. Dir., Lovell & Christmas, Montreal.

The export trade in butter has this season taken on a new lease of life, although not coming up to the record of former years. From May 1st to August 12th, this year, there have been shipped to Great Britain, from Montreal, 67,837 packages, compared with 17,034 packages for the same period of last year. This increased business has been caused, partly by the increase of Canadian production, obtained by the practical cessation of the export of cream to the United States, butter prices there not being sufficiently high to permit of it, and partly by the unprecedented drought conditions which have prevailed all over Northern Europe and Siberia, thereby heavily reducing the supplies of butter coming to the British market from these countries.

These conditions have created such a dearth of general supplies as has enabled us to obtain this season high prices beyond all recent precedent, and have made the value of the best creamery butter coming to this market 24 1-2c to 25c a lb. to-day. The conditions which have made these high values possible are of course abnormal and cannot be expected to occur frequently, but the experience proves that British buyers appreciate our butter and are prepared to pay the fullest prices for it, which market circumstances will permit. The pity is that our surplus productions in recent years has fallen off so seriously. This year the receipts of butter in Montreal from April 1st till August 12th are reported as being 300,410 packages, compared with 468,931 packages for the same period of 1905 Of course there has been in the meantime a great increase in the local consumption, but it is extremely creditable to the people of a country so rich in natural resources as is Canada that production should not keep more than pace with consumption.

FUTURE OF EXPORT TRADE

The future of the export butter trade depends altogether upon the steady increase of production all over the country. There must be a great extension of mixed farming, particularly in the North-West. It is profitable from every point of view. It makes money for the industrious farmer who pursues the work with industry and knowledge. It enriches the land and increases its powers of production, where continuous cereal growing impoverishes the soil.

The reciprocity agreement, if it should be confirmed, will doubtless modify considerably the course of the export butter trade. We shall sell to and buy from the United States Part of the Canadian surplus will find its way abroad via United States ports, and part of the United States surplus via Montreal at times. In this connection it is well to point out that Canadian creamery makers should not expect to obtain for the average Canadian production the extreme prices current in the American market. Butter across the line is closely graded, and the grade of "specials" for which the highest price is paid, represents a comparatively small percentage of the total receipts. "Fresh creamery" varies in value in the larger States markets, six cents a pound.

ABOUT CREAM

From Farm and Dairy.

L. A. Zufelt, Kingston, Ont.

A rich cream has many advantages over a thin cream of the same quality. A rich cream will keep sweet much longer. More and better butter can be made from it. A thin cream requires too much starter. A thin cream cannot be pasteurised profitably and hence the creamery man is not able to use commercial starters and develop the flavor desired.

Starter is added in proportion to the amount of fat content in the cream vat. If we have a rich cream we will use a large percentage of starter. Lactic acid bacteria control the development of flavor and give us the flavor we desire. The more lactic acid therefore that we are able to add to the vat, the better will other germs be controlled and the butter will have a better flavor. It should be the object of the creamery man to induce his patrons to deliver a cream testing from 30 to 35 per cent.

EGG PRODUCTION

From Farm and Dairy.

A. W. Foley, Edmonton, Alta.

Many people have conceived the mistaken idea that artificial heat is necessary in winter to secure the highest results in egg production. Egg-laying strains associated with proper care and feeding have a greater influence upon winter egg production than the supplying of artificial heat. There is no difficulty in constructing a house that will be sufficiently warm to ensure good laying results. Under ordinary circumstances the scratching shed section of the house is sufficient protection for the fowl during the day, because the exercise gained in scratching for food keeps the bird in proper condition.

Winter egg production is more seriously affected by dampness and cold caused by the accumulation of frost on the walls and roof of the poultry house as a result of lack of ventilation than by lack of heat. Any of the low comb varieties of poultry can stand severe cold when necessary with little or no danger of frozen combs, providing the air is dry.

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. SMUGGLED FIRST RUBBER SEEDS

Mr. H. A. Wickman Tells How He Laid Foundations of Gigantic Industry.

CALLED A VISIONARY

London Financiers Refused to Back Him, But He Got Precious Grains from Brazil.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

MR. H. A. WICKMAN, the man who first "smuggled" seeds of the "hevea" tree from the Upper Amazon to the East and so laid the foundation for the gigantic rubber industry which has grown up in recent years, has been telling the story of how he smuggled out of the country the seeds which were the beginning of the Eastern industry.

It was in 1869 that he found himself in the valley and between the Tapajos and the Madeira, two tributaries of the Amazon, at a high tableland, he saw specimens of the "hevea" trees. He knew what the best kind of Para rubber. Finally, considering the price they offered for plantations, he returned to England and endeavored to induce his friends in the City to take the matter up.

"I was treated like a visionary," he told a Daily Chronicle interviewer, "and the only answer I got was a request for a proposal with some basis in it. When I spoke of the cultivation of a forest tree growing wild in the jungle I was laughed at.

"Fortunately, I came across Sir Joseph Hooker, then at Kew Gardens. He had been endeavoring to induce the government of India to take up the cultivation of rubber, foreseeing its possibilities in that country, and the growing demand for the commodity. From him I obtained a commission to go out and try my luck on behalf of the India Office.

"As it turned out it was very lucky for me that I was entirely unhampered by instructions. The Brazilian government was doing its best to keep the knowledge of the existence of these trees a secret, and was quite certain to forbid the export of any seeds. But I had carte blanche. All I had to do was to get the seeds over in a state in which they would germinate.

"I went back to Santarem, and waited for my opportunity. It was a long time in coming. I was trying all sorts of ways to get some of the seeds out of the country, but without success. At last my chance came. One day the few Europeans who lived on the Upper Amazon were startled by the appearance of a big ocean steamship, which turned out to be the first of a line which was to bring the outside world into touch with the region only open to it by canoe.

"Soon after this I was astonished to hear that the supercargoes had cleared all their cargo and left the ship on the captain's hands. I did not hesitate to charter the ship on behalf of the government of India, and then started off up the Tapajos in a canoe to gather the seeds.

"It was terribly hot work.

"I was working against time. We all labored with furious energy, and many long days tramping lay before us until we got back to the banks of the Tapajos with our precious harvest of seeds. Then we started off in our canoe and got down to the junction with the Amazon, where we picked up our steamship.

"It was both fine weather all the voyage home, and I did not lose much time in getting to New when we reached England. Sir Joseph Hooker was delighted. The seeds of the 'hevea' did not fail to respond to all care I had taken with them. A fortnight after we had 70,000 plants in the greenhouses, all flourishing. Some of them were despatched to the Eastern Botanic Gardens at Colombo.

"It is from these plants that the whole of the 'hevea'-trees now growing in the Eastern tropical countries have sprung. It was some years before the planters woke up to the great possibilities which lay before them, but now they have done so."

What has come of it may be judged by some of the figures of rubber production. British Malaya, for instance, grew 1,036,-000 pounds of rubber in 1906. Last year the production was 17,946,864 pounds. In the past four years the output of Ceylon went up from 146 tons to 1,061 tons. Now the cultivation has extended to Southern India, which promises in the near future to supply the world with large quantities of rubber.

Only lately Mr. Wickman has been out in Java, Sumatra, to advise on the starting of the rubber industry on that island.

SCOTCH GOLD MINE A CASTLE IN SPAIN

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

The Scottish Klondyke has proved a fraud, as many indeed foretold it would.

Sleepy Kildonan soon became a hive of industry, but after an expensive trial the result has proved a disappointment.

The boasting of the reputedly auriferous gravels has been abandoned, as gold in appreciable quantity was only to be found in a stream to which had been given the name of Golf Burn. Even there the prospects of remunerative working were small. Now the gold miners are turning again to the cutting of peat, which, after extracting of their

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

THE alarmist story of which many English newspapers made the most, that owing to the drought in India the visit of King George and Queen Mary would have to be cancelled, was very promptly killed, and that by the King himself. There never was even a suggestion at Court of cancelling the trip.

The visit of King George and Queen Mary, according to letters from India, is being looked forward to with interest that cannot properly be described. The Rajahs are to have the time of their lives. Every jewel and trinket that lies hidden in their coffers is to be brought to the light. India is going to glitter as it never glittered before. No one, save the discontented Indian student, has any adequate idea of the wealth of India.

The Gaekwar of Baroda has three famous stones in his possession, the "Star of the South," the "Akbar Shah" and the "Eugenie." The first weighs 125 carats and is a Brazilian crystal of the first water. In the rough it weighed 254 carats, and the Gaekwar is said to have given $400,000 for it when cut.

The Maharajah of Patiala still owns the famous Sancy diamond, a stone which has had a checkered career. From Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, Emanuel, King of Portugal, and Nicolas de Mariay, Sieur de Sancy, who gave to it its name, it seems to have passed through the hands, at one time or another, of King James II. of England, who sold with it and others of the crown jewels in 1688; of Louis XIV., of Louis XV., of Napoleon, of Napoleon's brother, Joseph, King of Spain; Prince Demidoff and of the Maharajah of Patiala. It weighs a trifle more than fifty-three carats. Another stone that has found its way back to India in recent years is the Agra diamond. Some twelve years ago it formed the subject of a curious lawsuit in London. It is of exquisite form and rose color and is about thirty-five carats in weight.

At the 1903 durbar the blaze of diamonds surprised even the Indian princes themselves. They had not realised their neighbors' wealth, and some parures highly prised seemed but of little consequence there. The Maharajah of Darbhanga was wearing the "Naulakha," the famous $450,-000 necklace that Jang Bahadur, Regent and Marshal of Nepal, took from the terrified fugitive Nana Sahib.

The pearls of Gwalior are famous, but it is seldom that the extremely modern taste of Scindia cares to put them on. Besides a necklace of twelve or thirteen rows of perfectly matched pearls as large as filberts, the Prince of Gwalior wears on state occasions a curious sash of crimson velvet depending from his left shoulder to his right knee, the material of which is almost hidden by similar stones.

The only native chief who can "call" Scindia in the matter of pearls is perhaps the Maharajah of Travancore. His domains abut on the Ceylon pearl fisheries for one thing, and for another he claims the throne by female descent. These two advantages endowed the Maharajah with a parure of pearls with which the finest European sets cannot for a moment be compared.

Thousands of elephants are being massed for the display, beautifully decorated howdahs, some of them of silver, are being furnished for the broad backs; jewelled trappings made for their caparison, and in the procession of Dacca, Mirchi and of Bassora visitors to India will see revived the costliest splendors of legendary Hind's sovereigns. Out of the stables of Maharajahs' palaces will emerge wonderful silver-gilt chariots that did everyday duty when automobiles were undreamed of, and these are to enhance the dazzle of the mile long procession of elephants clothed from trunk to tail in gems of great price.

Not only are English and wealthy Colonials planning to peep at the Durbar festivities, but hundreds of Americans are seeking lodgings and invitations to the historic ceremony. Undeterred by the expense of travel and accommodation, they are determined to procure a place at Delhi where the King-Emperor arrives in December in the ancient capital of the Indian Empire.

Invitations within Westminster Abbey for the coronation were not to be had for the proverbial "love or money" if one had no official claim or status to recognition at the hands of the Earl Marshal. From this point of view the Durbar will be a far less exclusive function, and Americans, if they can provide themselves with satisfactory credentials through the Embassy or State Department at Washington, probably will be able without much difficulty to procure an invitation to the great scene to be witnessed within the sacred walls of Delhi.

The Medina is the new P. and O. vessel which has been retained by the Admiralty for the voyage of the King and Queen to and from India. Her fine lines, her graceful sheer and the compact yet imposing arrangement of her upper decks and bridges combine to form an unusually beautiful model. Her sister ship, the Malaja, will leave on her first voyage to India in November, conveying distinguished visitors to the Durbar. For the King's voyage the Medina will be painted white, with a ribbon of royal blue and gold, and a third mast will be temporarily stepped amidships from which the royal standard will be flown.

One of Three Cardinals Is Likely To Be Next Pope

[Special Despatch.]
Rome, Saturday.

PIUS X. has recovered, the alarm his illness caused has passed away, and he may live for many years yet. But he is in his seventy-ninth year, and he suffers from a disease capable of producing surprises and complications from one moment to another. His heart, kidneys and respiratory apparatus are subject to functional disturbances; every slight attack of gout leaves him weaker than before, and he is mortal like the rest of men.

Who Will It Be?

Sooner or later he will have a successor; another Pius, or Leo, or Gregory. Who will it be? The ancient prophecy, attributed to St. Malachy of Armagh, and in any case many centuries old, picked out future Pontiffs by Latin words characterising their native place, family, character or pontificate. Thus Pius IX. was "Crux de cruce,"—a cross from a cross," and the cross of his life came from the "Cross of Savoy;" Leo XIII. was "Lumen in coelo"—a light in the heaven," and not only did his coat of arms contain a flaming star, but his pontificate and personality were regarded as singularly brilliant.

Pius X., elected on August 4, in the mid-heat of summer, on the Feast of St. Dominick, whose well known symbol is a dog holding a burning torch in its mouth, was foretold as "ignis ardens," or "burning fire," because, perhaps, his pontificate was to be one of rapid reconstructions and reforms, clearing up much that was antiquated in the government of the Catholic Church.

And Pius X.'s successor? Pius X.'s successor is to be known by a motto which is an omen, the most fateful of all the prophetic phrases, except the last of them, which alludes to the end of the world. His pontificate is to be "Religio depopulata," "Religion depopulated," a great apostasy of nations and individuals from the Catholic Church—and there are many who will tell you that the air is already teeming with signs of this falling-away in France, Portugal, Spain, Italy and even Germany.

Prophecy No Help.

But prophesying in this case does not help one to pick out the successor of Pius X. That can be done only by a careful analysis of the present situation. The electors of the Roman Pontiff are the College of Cardinals, and now, for the first time in more than a thousand years, the Cardinals exclusively. One of the most striking acts of Pius X. was to abolish the veto of France, Spain and Austria, by which these Powers excluded, for political reasons, one prominent Cardinal from the Papacy. According to the new legislation, not only is such a veto absolutely invalid, but should any Cardinal introduce it, directly or indirectly, into the conclave he becomes thereupon by the very act excommunicated and subjected to other severe penalties.

The College of Cardinals.

The full number of the College is seventy, but there are always a few vacancies. On the death of Leo XIII. there were sixty-four Cardinals. Cardinal Moran failed to arrive in time from Sydney and Cardinal Celesia, of Palermo, was prevented by illness from taking part in the election. So the actual number of voters was sixty-two. Of these thirty have since died, and Cardinal Sarto has become Pius X., so that just half, thirty-one, of the members of the last conclave are still alive. During the last eight years Pius X. has created only seventeen Cardinals, of whom two have died.

At the present moment the College of Papal Electors numbers forty-seven, one (Cardinal Oreglia) "created" by Pius IX., thirty-one by Leo XIII. and fifteen by the present Pontiff.

But, as matters stand at present, the Cardinals who could vote would not be forty-seven. Cardinal Albuquerque, of Rio de Janeiro, could not arrive in time unless the conclave was unduly prolonged, and Cardinal Pusyna, who introduced the "veto" of Austria against Cardinal Rampolla, will not be able to come on account of illness. This leaves only forty-five Cardinals for the conclave.

The important element to be considered is that of nationality under its broad aspect of Italian and non-Italian. Twenty-eight of the Cardinals are Italian, the rest belong o other nations. The two who at present would not be able to take part in a conclave are non-Italians. Thus the voters would be twenty-eight Italian Cardinals and seventeen of other nationalities. That fact alone would be sufficient, humanly speaking, and under present circumstances, to prevent the election of a non-Italian Pope. Besides, it is an open secret that none even of the non-Italian Cardinals is anxious for a non-Italian Pope while the Roman question remains as it is. The choice is therefore necessarily limited to the Italian Cardinals.

Eight Years After.

Eight years have greatly changed the possibilities of election of those who received votes at the last conclave. Many of them obtained only one, two or three suffrages, but nearly all of them have now reached an age when election would be practically impossible. Capecelatro is eighty-seven; Di Pietro, eighty-three; Oreglia, eighty-three; Agliardi, seventy-nine; Serafino Vannutelli, seventy-seven. Cardinal Gotti, who in the early stages of the conclave received nineteen votes, the highest number after Cardinal Rampolla, is not only seventy-seven years of age but is in a very precarious state of health.

The others who received a vote or two are Gennari, born December 29, 1839; Cassetta, born August 12, 1841; Respighi, born September 22, 1843, and Richelmy, born November 29, 1850.

Finally, there is Cardinal Rampolla, who received twenty-nine votes and who was sixty-eight years of age on August 17, 1911, which is the very age were elected to the Papacy. The other Cardinals of Leo XIII.'s time who have come into some prominence during the present pontificate are Cardinals Ferrata, Prefect of the Congregation of the Sacraments, who was sixty-four last March, and Martinelli, Prefect of the Congregation of Rites, who is just sixty-three.

Some Possibilities.

Of the Italian Cardinals created by Pius X. only three stand out as being "papabili." They are Cardinals Gasparri, President of the Commission for the Codification of Canon Law; who is in his seventieth year; De Lai, Secretary of the Consistorial Congregation, who is fifty-eight, and Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa, not quite fifty-three. These may be said to exhaust the list of Cardinals who would obtain one or more votes if a conclave were held under the present Sacred College. The significance of the list will become clearer if we look at it from different aspects. Taking the Cardinals in it according to age, it would look like this:—First, Gennari, seventy-two; second, Cassetta, seventy; third, Gasparri, sixty-nine; fourth, Rampolla, sixty-eight; fifth, Respighi, sixty-eight; sixth, Ferrata, sixty-four; seventh, Martinelli, sixty-three; eighth, Richelmy, sixty-one; ninth, De Lai, fifty-eight, and tenth, Maffi, fifty-three.

Three Cigaritos Daily for Prince

Heir to British Throne Allowed to Smoke Now He Is Seventeen Years Old.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

SINCE his seventeenth birthday, it has only just become publicly known, the Prince of Wales has been promoted to enjoy an occasional cigarette. Like the King of Spain, he shows a preference for the genuine Spanish cigarettes, which are very small and made of choice Havana tobacco. They are not gummed, but are held together by a dexterous inward fold of the paper.

It would seem that the King and Queen did not wish their eldest son to smoke until his seventeenth birthday, and on that date he received many gifts representing the smoker's small luxuries. If rumor speaks truly the young Prince does not show very great enthusiasm as a smoker and is quite satisfied with the three cigarettes a day which are allotted to him until he reaches his eighteenth birthday.

The health of Prince Henry continues to cause anxiety. The experiment of sending him to school at Broadstairs has resulted in an improvement, but the gain in strength is hardly rapid enough to satisfy the royal physicians. It is hoped, however, that a quick change for the better will come during his holiday sojourn in the Highlands.

Prince Henry's lack of vigor is the more serious because he is growing too fast for his age. He is the tallest of the King's sons and he has the making of a fine, handsome lad. His continued weakness does not seem to affect the Prince's lively disposition, which has earned for him the family nickname of "Bluebottle." He is quite the humorist of the royal children, and his comicalities of manner and speech are the delight of all who know him.

SAYS JAPAN'S NAVY IS NOW VALUELESS

Captain Ota's Speech Before Military Committee Causes a Sensation.

HE MAY BE DISCIPLINED

Officer Expected To Be Punished for His Expose of Conditions in Marine Department.

[Special Despatch.]
Tokio, Saturday.

QUITE a sensation has been caused in naval circles by an address delivered by Captain Ota before the War Affairs Investigation Association. It is not often that a Japanese naval or military officer permits himself such latitude as did Captain Ota on this occasion; and there is some talk about the application of the disciplinary law by way of punishment for the views he ventured to express.

The gist of Captain Ota's philippic is that the naval authorities are making a mistake in being too eager to complete the works on land, seeing that the navy necessarily has its efficiency on sea and naval strength can be increased only by the construction of a powerful fleet.

To illustrate this contention Captain Ota pointed to the five naval stations on the coast of this country. In establishing these naval stations the country was divided into five artificial sections, a naval station being established in the best harbor in each division; but as coast defences none of these has any real significance. Each Japanese naval station is presided over by an admiral or a vice admiral, with a rear admiral for chief staff officer. Outwardly they are very imposing as compared with the big naval stations of the foreign naval powers, but viewed from a strategic standpoint most of them are valueless.

In this connection the Captain stated that attacks by an enemy's fleet would come on the southwestern side of the country, as more than once evinced in the late war. The Captain reviewed the various naval stations, denouncing Maizuru as not only useless but rather harmful, since its presence hinders the quick movement of the navy. He admitted that with the annexation of Corea the naval station projected at Chinhai Bay might be necessary, but even here he deprecated the outlay of gigantic capital. So long as Japan's main naval force is concentrated at Sasebo it is unthinkable that a small section of the enemy's fleet will trespass on the Sea of Japan to squander their stock of ammunition.

Captain Ota also says that in the Japanese navy official posts are given for personal considerations. A lieutenant commander may command a war ship, but in the Japanese navy officers of this rank occupy much lower posts. Again, under the present system of organization torpedo stations transact the business of fish torpedoes and submarine mines, whereas in England the management of submarine mines is left to the army. Seeing that the one is for offensive and the other for defensive purposes, the placing of the two under one and the same management is calculated to cause considerable inconvenience and friction. According to Captain Ota, if radical reforms were effected in the present Japanese naval organisation the annual naval expenditure could be reduced by one-third.

Another evil is the lack of uniformity in the guns with which Japanese war ships are equipped. Whereas 12-inch guns are recognised as composing the main battery, subsidiary 8-inch guns are generally carried. At first sight this may appear a happy combination, but in practice it is otherwise, seeing that the war ships have to store shells of different sizes, a circumstance calculated to entail great inconvenience and confusion in the supply of shells during actual engagements.

In the course of an explanation of his reasons for making this exposé of the defects of the Japanese navy Captain Ota is quoted as saying:—

"When I came back from Europe for the second time after the war with Russia I could not but muse when I saw the inner workings of the navy, especially in the light of the knowledge I had of European navies. I state emphatically that our navy is formidable only in appearance—the heart is rotten. If the existing defects are not speedily remedied the nation will some day have to pay the penalty and in the interim to bear ever larger and larger appropriations to no useful purpose."

The Captain said that he had resigned because the naval authorities had turned a deaf ear to his representations.

THINKS AMERICA IS PREPARING FOR WAR

Japanese General Remarks on Energy Being Displayed Preparatory to Opening of Canal.

[Special Despatch.]
Tokio, Saturday.

A Japanese general, quoted by the Mainichi, says it is easy to foresee what American will do after the opening of the Panama Canal. The tremendous energy which Washington is at present displaying in the expansion of the navy is clearly part of the nation's preparation for trouble with another Power.

Turning to Siberia, this officer remarks that the conversion of the trunk road into a double track line and the laying of the Amur railway may lead to a revolution in the political affairs of the Far East, and that if Japan does not speedily wake up to the realities of the situation it will be too late.

Hard to Suit.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look just right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

MARKET REPORTS.

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Short crops in Europe attracted non-professional speculative buying of wheat to-day and lifted the market notwithstanding heavy selling on the part of owners. The close was ½c to ⅝c to ¾c higher than last night. Corn showed a net loss of ⅛c to ¼c to ⅜c; oats finished unchanged to ⅛c to ¼c down, and provisions 7½c off to 7½c off.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ⅝d to ¾d higher than yesterday on wheat and ½d higher on corn. Antwerp closed ⅛c lower on wheat, Buda Pest ¾c higher, Paris ⅛c to ¼c higher, and Berlin 1½c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—There was a good demand for old crop Manitoba spring wheat from foreign buyers for September shipment and as bids for such were in line, a good business was worked, but bids for new crop wheat were fully six cents per quarter out of line. The demand for oats was also fairly good, but the prices bid were below exporters' views. The local market is very firm at the recent advance. The foreign demand for flour continues good and sales of round lots of spring wheat grades were made and 24s was paid for 90 per cents. The local market is firm and fairly active. The demand for bran for export account is good and now that France has suspended the import duty on fodder it will no doubt increase. Some millers have advanced shorts to $25 per ton. In dairy products and provisions there is no change to note.

Dressed hogs, abattoir, $10.10 to $10.75 per cwt. Beef, Plate, half bbls., 100 lbs., $7.50; barrels, 200 lbs., $14.50; tierces, 300 lbs., $21.00. Cheese Markets.

KINGSTON, Sept. 7.—(Special.)—The highest price in the history of the board was paid at the Frontenac cheese board this afternoon, when 13 11-16c was offered. There were boarded 320 boxes white and 600 boxes colored. Even at this high price several salesmen refused to sell, looking for better prices on the curb.

Barn Burned.

Cobourg, Sept. 8.—A serious fire in the property known for years as the Hoskin farm, now owned by Edward Budd, destroyed a fine barn and all of its contents, excepting two valuable horses, which were fortunately rescued. Threshing was completed here and a large quantity of fall wheat and oats were burned, as well as hay and straw, and all of the farm implements. Mr. Budd's loss is heavy. There is some insurance.

Winnipeg, Sept. 8.—The largest colonization scheme of recent years will be launched immediately in the northwest of Canada. W. C. J. Manning of Chicago, representing the Catholic Colonization Co., returned last night after having completed arrangements with western realty agents whereby four million acres of land went under option to be settled and purchased by Roman Catholics. It is predicted by Manning that between thirty and forty thousand Catholics of the Central States will be brought in within a year to purchase the lands.

Suing For $30,000.

Montreal, Sept. 8.—Following the finding of the wreck commissioner's court into the investigation into the collision between the vessel Hero and the tug Chieftain, in which the latter was sunk, an action for $30,000 was yesterday entered by the Calvin Co. of Kingston, owners of the Chieftain, against the Hero. The writ was issued from the registrar's office, but the Hero has not been arrested, as it is believed that the owners will furnish the necessary security.

New York, Sept. 8.—O. H. Hell has been granted by County Judge Grant in Brooklyn, an order changing his name to Otto Hill for business reasons.

"I am about to open a confectionery store," said Mr. Hell, "and I want my last name in the big electric letters over the door. I don't think it would look very well."

First Grain Shipment.

Fort William, Sept. 8.—The first shipment of the season's new crop, 19,000 bushels, was shipped out yesterday on the C.P.R. steamer Athabasca. This grain graded No. 1 and No. 2 Northern and showed a very good sample for the first arrivals. It was shipped, as has been usual for several years, for James Richardson, Sons, Ltd., Kingston, to Owen Sound. There will doubtless be a steady run of shipments now until the new grain becomes general. There is a general impression from inspections up-to-date that the average grain of this season's crop will be on a parity with No. 2 Northern.

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 8 1911

THREE GREAT MEETINGS FOR MR. STRATTON THE NORTH COUNTRY WANTS RECIPROCITY

Mr. Stratton Speaks at Simpson's, Silver Lake and Union Creek on Thursday and Gets a Splendid Reception.

CONVERTS ARE MADE

Mr. Stratton held three great meetings in the northern part of the riding yesterday and was most enthusiastically received at all three.

A meeting was held at Simpson's School House, on the Bobcaygeon road, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Alex. Irwin was chairman and almost all the electors in the locality were present. It was a good meeting.

Another rousing meeting was held at Silver Lake at three o'clock, with Mr. John Coulter acting as chairman. In his remarks Mr. Coulter stated that he had lived in the locality of Silver Lake for fifty-six years. He had seen all the members and their doings, and he was able to say that so far as he could see there had been only one representative for West Peterborough in all that period. Whatever he undertook to do he did it. Whatever he said he would do he would see that it was accomplished. He had voted both Liberal and Conservative, and probably this would be his last vote, and he was glad to be able to vote on this occasion for Mr. Stratton. He had lived in reciprocity time. He could see around and about him what was going on. He had voted for Sir John Macdonald and reciprocity. Sir John had passed away and he was now going to vote for reciprocity and Mr. Stratton. No person had ever attempted to do what Mr. Stratton had done for the riding, and he was glad if that this was his last vote to be able to poll it for Mr. Stratton.

In the evening at Union Creek House the building was filled to overflowing. Mr. Robert Young occupied the chair. Mr. Young had always voted Conservative but was not going to vote Conservative this time. He was in favour of the agreement and was going to vote for the candidate in favour of the pact. Mr. Stratton and Mr. Harstone spoke at all the meetings, explaining the terms of the agreement and the electors expressed themselves at all the meetings as being unanimous in favour of reciprocity in farm products.

WE HOE OUR OWN ROW

Canada cannot withdraw from a trade agreement with the United States, once formed, say the anti-Reciprocity shouters. But Canada is just now with drawing from a fisheries treaty with the States that has not proved satisfactory. We tried it for two years and a little over: it doesn't suit us; so we call the deal off. And we will do exactly the same with the Reciprocity agreement if it doesn't suit us.

DOURO ELECTORS HEAR MR. F. D. KERR

Splendid Meeting Held on Tuesday Night--Mr. G. N. Gordon and Mr. Ellis, of "Farm and Dairy," Also Speak

Mr. F. D. Kerr, the Liberal Candidate for East Peterborough, held a most successful meeting at St. Patrick's Hall, Douro, on Tuesday evening last. The chair was taken by Mr. William Walsh, and the first speaker was Mr. G. N. Gordon, who delivered an interesting address on the subject of Reciprocity. He strongly recommended the election of Mr. Kerr, and prophesied that he would prove to be an able, energetic and progressive representative for East Peterborough.

Mr. Gordon was followed by Mr. Ellis, one of the Editors of Farm and Dairy, and Mr. Ellis' address, which was instructive and interesting, was much appreciated. He pointed out that he was a Conservative in politics, but on the subject of Reciprocity was convinced that it was for the public benefit, and that he was supporting the Government on that issue. He maintained that the farmers and the labouring men of the country were united in their demands for Reciprocity, which would enable the farmer to get better prices for his goods, and by doing away with excessive profits now received by the merger men would result in actual lowering of the cost of the goods to the consumer. Mr. Ellis dealt with the hog, cheese, barley and butter questions in a most satisfactory manner, and at the conclusion of his address was greeted with hearty applause.

The Liberal Candidate, Mr. F. D. Kerr, being called upon received a hearty reception and delivered an able address, thoroughly reviewing the question of the hour, and particularly emphasized the fact that the Conservative leaders for the last fifty years had themselves been endeavouring to secure Reciprocity. Their present objections to it arise entirely from the fact that they were irritated that it had been the lot of their opponents to secure it instead of themselves.

A NEW BRUNSWICK M.P.P. WILL SUPPORT RECIPROCITY

Other Prominent Conservatives Join Him to Make a Clean Liberal Sweep in New Brunswick

ST. JOHN, SEPT. 7.—At a big Liberal rally here last night, addressed by Hon. Dr. Pugsley and others, Dr. Silas Atward, K.C., a prominent Conservative, who was elected to the local legislature from St. John, several terms as a Conservative, made a ringing speech favouring reciprocity.

Dr. Atward declared he had not deserted his party, but his party had deserted the "John A." principle he stands for.

Several other prominent Conservatives had a place on the platform. The outlook is bright for a Liberal sweep in New Brunswick.

CHAMPIONS OF BRITISH-BORN REFUSE BRITISH FAIR PLAY

OTTAWA, SEPT. 8.—Rev. G. Watt Smith, pastor of the First Congregational Church, stated that he had been threatened with personal violence if he took any more part in politics. He has been in Canada only a year and a half and strongly resents the appeals being made to the British born.

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS

"This naval scheme is one which will spill the life-blood of your sons on foreign shores all to bring to Sir Wilfrid Laurier the praise of an imperial press and the decorations of an Imperial Government. IF FRENCH-CANADIANS SO DECLARE, THE NAVY WILL DISAPPEAR." —Henri Bourassa.

"Such a man, then, is Bourassa, brilliant, cool, courageous, attacking evil wherever he sees it, a Nationalist standing for a strong and vigorous Canada."— London Free Press, Conservative, Aug. 20, 1911.

45 WORKMEN BURIED

Special to The Examiner:

VENICE, ITALY, SEPT. 8.—Forty-five workmen were buried in the ruins and killed in the collapse of the Eldorado Theatre, which was being rebuilt here, this morning. A number of tourists from the United States or Canada are also missing, and some fear that they may have been inspecting the theatre at the time, and were also caught in the collapse of the building.

BURNED TO DEATH

Special to The Examiner

COLES ISLAND, N.B., SEPT. 8.—The steamer Scincinnes, owned by D. J. Purdy, of St. John, was almost totally destroyed by fire here at an early hour this morning and Samuel Francombe of St. John, a cook on the steamer, was burned to death in his cabin. The fire is said to have caught from a lamp in the saloon, and the flames made such rapid headway that they could not be stemmed. The victim's cries for help were heard, and efforts made to save him, but they proved unsuccessful, and he met a terrible death.

WEDDING WILL TAKE PLACE DESPITE OPPOSITION

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., SEPT. 8.—It is understood that a clergyman has been found, who is willing to perform the marriage of the divorced John Jacob Astor and Madelaine Force, the Astor yacht is being hurriedly coaled up ready for departure, and that Miss Force's trousseau is almost ready, and that the wedding will take place within a few days, despite all social and religious oppositions.

Cool Reception

The Woman in Beattie Case Wanted to Go on the Stage

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, N.Y., SEPT. 8.—Beulah Binford, the girl who became notorious through the infatuation of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., will probably know his fate from the jury to-night at Chesterfield, Va., where he is being tried as wife-murderer. She arrived here to-night to go on the stage, but received a cool reception at the hands of the big vaudeville managers, as public opinion is not very favourable lately to such heroines as Beulah.

THE OPEN DOOR IN MOROCCO

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., SEPT. 8.— While nothing definite is forthcoming this morning as to the scope and character of the Morroccan settlement between France and Germany, the Daily Mail is out with a story that it is one in which both Great Britain and the United States are much interested and must give assent to, and includes the maintenance by France of the open door in Morrocco.

LEET-HANDED LOYALTY DOES NOT REACH POCKET

OTTAWA, ONT., SEPT. 8.—At a Liberal meeting Dr. Gordon Henderson made reference to the opposition to the reciprocity agreement on the part of W. A. Rowley, President of the Eddy Co., and also president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He said: "It is Mr. Rowley, the Imperialist, who places every cent of a million dollars worth of insurance on the Eddy Mills in the United States Companies, without patronizing a Canadian or a British Company, yet an agreement that allows the farmer to sell his products to the United States he denounces as disloyal and unright eous."

WESTERN CONSERVATIVES ARE IN FAVOUR OF THE PACT

Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, MAN., SEPT. 8.—Following the retirement of Howell, the Conservative in Battleford, Morrison, the new Conservative candidate in Alberta, announces that while he is criticising the present reciprocity pact, he is in favour of reciprocity with the States.

A. D. Chisholm, ppresident of the Winnipeg grain exchange, in public statements, says he is strong for reciprocity and says Laurier will win. He says he will get 23 sure Liberal seats in the west on the twenty-first.

E. H. Riley, former member of the Alberta legislature, whom the Conservatives claim is a Liberal, is out against reciprocity, and has not been connected with the Liberal party for years.

SIFTON AS MINISTER VERSUS SIFTON, MONOPOLISTIC ADVOCATE

Mr. Clifford Sifton no longer speaks for the West. He has abandoned the seat for Brandon he held as a Liberal. He is the mouthpiece in this campaign of a coterie of Eastern millionaires who arrogate to themselves the right to say what the tariff burdens and obstructions shall be upon both the producers on the farm and the workmen of the cities and towns. In 1902 it was another Sifton who discussed the tariff situation, a Sifton who still spoke for the West. Mr. Israel Tarte had been trying to get his colleagues in the Government to increase the duties on manufactured goods on the ground that American trusts would break into the Canadian market if the tariff was not increased.

The Globe published the following interview with Mr. Sifton on September 4, when he represented the West. How different was the Sifton of that day from the Sifton of this:

The Minister of the Interior was seen by your correspondent to-day and interrogated regarding the discussion of the tariff now going on in the press.

"Do the speeches of Mr. Tarte," was asked, "indicate action by the Government on the tariff at the next session in the way of a general increase?"

"I do not know," he replied, "that I have seen an exact report of any of Mr. Tarte's recent speeches, but if he spoke of favouring an increase in the tariff he was expressing his own views, and not those of the Government or the Liberal party."

"There seems to be a concerted movement in the direction of an increase in the tariff?"

"I think it will be found to be confined to somewhat narrow limits so far as the Liberal party is concerned."

"What is your own position as representing the Western Liberals?"

"My position is that the tariff as it stands is a compromise, well and carefully worked out. Its adaptability to the requirements of the trade of Canada is shown by results. Manufacturers and consumers are alike getting fair treatment. We would like the tariff lower, but we recognize that there must be mutual concession, and for the present we recognize the present tariff as a reasonable one."

"Will not some revision be necessary at the next session?"

"A revision of the tariff from time to time at reasonable intervals becomes necessary, and it may be that at the next session something will be done in that direction."

"That is when the attempt will be made to induce the Government to go back to high protection?" said your correspondent.

Mr. Sifton's reply was very explicit. He said: "Any attempt to increase the protective tariff in favour of manufacturers as against consumers will meet with the strenuous opposition that every Liberal elected west of Lake Superior."

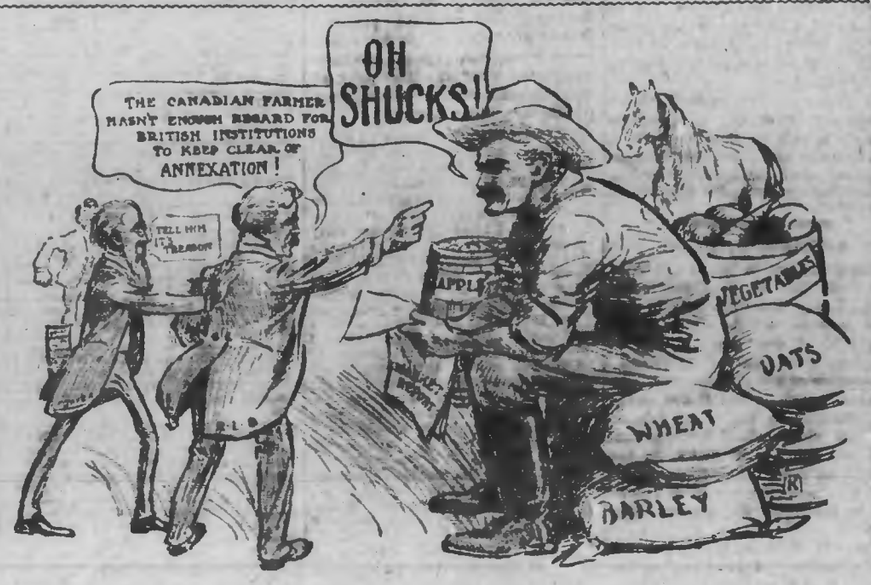
"You are absolutely determined on that?"

"Quite so. With a trade which was stationary under high protection now grown beyond the most sanguine predictions, and with the Western prairies, empty and desolate under Conservative rule, filling up with settlers and increasing their products by millions, we regard the position as extremely satisfactory, and we have certainly no intention of supporting an attempt to saddle ourselves with the discredited Tory policy which kept the country in a state of stagnation for fifteen years."

"Will you, with your Western supporters, stand alone in this attitude?"

"Not at all. I am satisfied that the great bulk of the Liberal party is sound on the question."

The Liberal party will stand by the manufacturer, producer and consumer. Where does Sifton stand?



VERDICT CENSURING BOTH C.P.R. AND C.G.E. CO'S

Jury Returned the Above Verdict in the Inquest into Death of Francis LaFave Held Last Night—Neglect on Part of Both Companies Was Apparent.

The inquest into the death of Frank LaFave, who was killed Sept. 1st at the C.G.E. Company's yards while loading a box car, was held last night. There were numerous witnesses called and a lot of evidence given. The jury, after a short deliberation, came in with the following verdict:

"We the jury, sworn to inquire into the death of Francis LaFave, who was killed on Sept. 1st, 1911, on the premises of the C.G.E. Co., find that the said Francis LaFave came to his death through the neglect of the C. P.R. Co., in moving one of their cars, having a defective car door, and through the neglect of the C.G.E. Co. in not moving their table track far enough to clear the car door."

The following were the jury empanelled:

Ambrose Edwards, Andrew Pearson, George Patterson, David Mason, R. Snelgrove, D. B. Denison, James Johnson, Thos. Duncan, Thos. McCabe, Jake Brooks, J. J. McDonald, John Hayes.

Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., represented the C. G. E., Mr. Angus MacMurchy, K. C., the C.P.R., Mr. R. E. Wood, Crown Attorney, appeared for the Crown, and Mr. G. N. Gordon attended on behalf of the LaFave family.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, of the C. G. E. was also present.

Mr. King's Evidence.

The first witness examined was Mr. N. King, yard man at the C. G. E. He was present at the time of the accident and saw the whole catastrophe. His evidence in part, was as follows: "I coupled the engine to an empty car, and backed up and coupled up with two other cars, and gave the signal to go ahead. The two cars that were loaded were to be taken out, but the empty one, was to be placed back to be loaded. The cars were loaded with big machines from the C. G. E. These cars were standing on the C. G. E. storage siding.

The building, where the cars were loaded, runs east and west, and the cars were on the south side of the building. The two cars that were loaded were coupled together, and the engine and one empty car, were backed in from the West, and was going to pull out at the west. J. Chambers was the engineer and John Martin the fireman. When the coupling was made, the signal to go ahead was given and the train moved ahead. The deceased, a minute or less, previous, was standing inside the door of the building, and as I was going in for a drink, he passed the remark: "You better watch yourself and not get caught! I presume he meant, in the same place, where he himself got caught less than a minute later. I did not see him come out, after I gave the signal, nor did I see him until he was between the table and the door frame. It is about three feet, I should judge between the building and the cars, and perhaps a little farther. There was a table about 15 feet long and about five feet wide projecting out through the door of the building. The doorway is probably 8 feet or 9 feet wide, and it stood about the centre of it. After the accident, the table had moved against the west casing of the door frame and LaFave was caught between the table and the door frame. I did not see the table move until the last car came, and then I saw the handle on the door catch the table. It was car No. 34488 C. P. R. box. The door caught the table and slewed it around. The table is about 3 feet 10 inches high, and the deceased was on about the same level as the table. I signalled to the engineer to stop, but he was looking at the crossing in front, and at the moment did not see my signal. Anyhow it was too late to save LaFave. The engineer told me that he felt a little jolt and put on the emergency brake, and as there is a little slack in the couplings of box cars, they moved back a little, allowing the body of LaFave to fall over. He just seemed to wilt and fell next the cars. The handle on the door stands out about six inches, but the door was hanging by one corner, allowing the handle to be somewhat lower than it otherwise would have been. I saw the door hanging down before we coupled on to it, but as it was not hanging out any more than natural, I did not think there would be any danger of it catching. If the door had been in its place and shut, I think it would have passed without catching. As a rule the man who seals the car, closes the doors. The doors were closed and in the proper position on car No. 34488, when it was put in on the C. G. E. siding, and after the accident it only required two men to put the door on. The table had only been moved back from the car about 6 or 7 feet, but this was not far enough; had it been back as it should have been, the accident would not have occurred.

Dr. McPherson was next called. He stated that Dr. Carmichael was there before he got there, and as Dr. Carmichael said the deceased was dead, he took his word for it, and could give no material evidence in the case.

Dr. Carmichael was called and gave evidence to the effect that the deceased was bruised about the abdomen and death resulted from shock, caused probably by some internal injury, which, in his opinion, existed.

Dr. Eastwood gave evidence. He was called after Dr. Carmichael. He stated that he only examined the injury and saw the man was dead, and he agreed with Dr. Carmichael on the cause of death. He also examined the car door, and the end that was hanging down was cut about seven inches from the car.

W. A. Elliott's Evidence.

"I am shipper for the C. G. E. I was standing between the door and the table, on the same side as LaFave. I was inside, but I saw Mr. King gave the signal to go ahead. All the cars went past, but this one and as it came up Mr. King gave the door a shove in. It caught the corner of the table but flopped out again and the iron handle on the door caught the east part of the table. The handle caught in the first of the three notches in the table. When I saw the handle strike I jumped, and I saw no more until the train stopped. I saw LaFave caught and I ran to telephone for the doctor, and when I returned they had carried him out on the grass. The door of the car was opened by the C. G. E. yard men, and two of my men tried to shut the door when the car was loaded, but they did not do it. Mr. Knight and Mr. Stewart were the men who tried to close the door. There was a space of about two feet between the table and the doorway, and the deceased was standing in there by my side. He never spoke after the accident occurred. The bill of lading was given to the C. P. R. on the night previous to the accident.

Mr. Cassil's Evidence.

Mr. Cassils, foreman of the Labour Department, C. G. E., was examined. He stated that he directed the unloading of the car on Saturday, 26th. The door was closed and sealed, and they broke the seal and pulled the door back. It fell off the track at one corner, as we pulled it back. There was no break in the door, except that the top hanger was broken. He had nothing to do with the loading of that car and so did not try to close it. The hook on the door was broken and he did not see it repaired.

Mr. Fred Thomas.

Mr. Fred Thomas, checker at the C. P. R., gave evidence to the effect that the car had been at the freight shed before the 25th of the month, for the purpose of taking freight out of the shed, and was then to the C. G. E. on the morning of the 26th, and at that time the door was in first class condition, and even after the accident the hook seemed to be all right. The door was put on the runners by him and another man, and stayed on, but he did not examine it, and so would not contradict Mr. Cassils.

Mr. James Milne.

Mr. James Milne, yard foreman, C.P.R., was next called. He said that Mr. King, the first witness, assisted him to close the door on Saturday evening, Sept. 2. It was then on the C. P. R. track. He said they raised the door up, and put it on the runners, and if it had been broken, it would not have stayed there, but it did stay. He admitted that it was his duty to see that all was clear, but he was not present when the accident occurred.

Mr. King was recalled. He admitted it was part of his duty to see that the track was clear, and stated that he thought it was at this time.

The C. P. R's. representative then stated that it had been proven if the table had been pushed back, the accident would have been averted. They also could see that the car door was hanging down, as it was stated the two men tried to put in on and failed, so he thought they should have taken precaution to pull back the table.

The matter was then left with the Jury, who returned the above verdict.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

FRIDAY, SEPT. 8, 1911

MILLIONAIRE VS. COMMON CITIZEN.

"It is such opposition as this (the letters of Mr. J. R. Booth and Mr. W. H. Rowley) that will make the average elector think before he votes," says the Ottawa Citizen, Conservative. Yes, answers the Free Press, we believe it will. The interests of the millionaire manufacturer have not always been the interests of the great Canadian public.

And, besides, when we read Mr. Booth's advice to Canadians to have nothing to do with Americans, we cannot help recalling an interview with this same respected gentleman about eight months ago. In that interview Mr. Booth complained very strongly that the threatened enforcement of the maximmum feature of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, which would add 25 per cent, to imports from Canada, would very seriously affect his business at the Chaudiere.

Mr. Booth is daily shipping large quantities of paper and other products to the United States, and in return for them he is importing large sums of American money. He has the closest relations with United States buyers; he has salesmen travelling all the time in the United States; he wants all the orders he can possibly get from the United States.

Has this business with the people of the United States affected in the slightest Mr. Booth's loyalty? Would he not strongly resent any suggestion that it had affected his attitude toward British institutions in the faintest way?

Yet Mr. Booth would withhold from the Canadian farmers the right to sell their products in the United States markets the same as he does. Does he suggest that their loyalty is any less staunch than his?

CONTRADICTORY CLAIMS.

No wonder the electors are confused in the midst of contradictory claims which are being advanced against reciprocity by the Conservatives.

It is claimed that Canada has no surplus products to export. The Guelph Herald the other day, declared that wheat was our only surplus article, whereas Canada exports thousands and millions in all lines of natural products.

It is claimed the United States market is not a market for our natural products as they already have a surplus, whereas trade figures prove that despite the heavy duties, the Americans have been among our very best buyers.

It is claimed that prices of natural products are higher in Canada than in the States, whereas market reports any day will prove the contrary to be the case.

It is claimed reciprocity will mean higher prices of foodstuffs in Canada, whereas the removal of a tax on food cannot but result in lower prices on the whole, when variations in seasons in the two countries are taken into consideration.

It is claimed the East and West railways will be ruined, whereas Chas. M. Hays says things will be benefitted by more traffic in manufactured goods from East to West, which is the really profitable traffic of the lines.

It is claimed it will result in lower wages for the workingman, whereas industrial expansion, and decreased cost of living must inevitably combine to greatly better his position financially.

It is claimed reciprocity means annexation, the most absurd and silliest claim of all, but why continue the list?

Suffice it to say that many of the claims are self contradictory. If you don't believe it, compare one with another and see for yourself.—Brantford Expositor.

FALSE ALARMS.

One of the deceptive posters plastering our dead walls—paid for and put up by the millionaire combines and moneyed interests, declares that reciprocity will prevent the investment of American capital in Canada, which has in the past ten years, amounted to "325 millions of dollars, and has given employment to 100,000 workmen."

This is a purely alarmist and misleading statement, and is one of the many inconsistencies employed in playing the game of the monopolists against the producer and consumer of farm products, who are alone affected by the agreement.

In one breath we are told that reciprocity will roll Canada, body and bones, into the arms of the United States; in the next we are told that Canada will grievously suffer for lack of investment of United States capital in the country. If there is to be no more Canada, what can that matter?

But reciprocity will have no adverse effect upon the introduction of capital for the other side of the border. Only a day or two ago it was announced that a United States firm had made arrangements to establish an immense chemical works in Hamilton, involving an outlay of a million dollars, and that is only one instance of many of the inflow of United States capital not being affected by the fear of reciprocity. It is the hope of reciprocity that has the effect of sending in this capital. There is no doubt in the minds of our neighbours that the electors of Canada will endorse the trade agreement, and they have no fear of that event endangering the profitable employment of their capital.

We were told in Peterborough, in the beginning of the campaign that reciprocity would kill the Quaker Oats industry in Peterborough. The answer to that is that the head of this great concern is supporting the Liberal candidate. And he knows as much about the business as the amateur political critics who advocate trade restriction in the interests of the monopolists.

When did we ever find these interests shedding tears over the woes of the working man? They are looking out for their own skins, and oppose any measure that will cut into their exorbitant profits and give a fair deal to the producer and consumer—of the products the working man lives upon.

The Canadian West is solid for the reciprocity agreement. It will bring prosperity, represented by a larger and higher-priced market and this prosperity cannot help over-flowing upon manufacturing Ontario. It will promote settlement. Every new settler, every new home set up in the West, means new demands upon the score of industries that supply the needs and furnishings of a home. Reciprocity removes no protection fro these articles.

New farms mean new towns and cities that will need electric appliances. This will mean increased demands upon the Canadan General Works, whose output enjoys all the protection it ever enjoyed and will continue to do so, whether the agreement is adopted or not.

The partisan politicians must think the workmen are fools to be deceived by such self-contradictory statements as are being made.

The elector who does his own thinking, uses his own brains, will know how to vote. It is only the elector who takes his opinions ready-made—who is made the catspaw of the monopolistic interests, who will go wrong, go against his own interests.

Let the elector do his own thinking and he will do the right kind of voting.

PLAYING THE DOUBLE GAME.

The strong card, played strongly in the Conservative, or rather Opposition interests in this campaign, and especially in West Peterborough, is the loyalty card. It is declared that British connection, and with it Protestantism, is in danger. Why? Because of the entanglements with Quebec, through the fact of the Liberal Premier being of French Canadian birth, though he has done more than any other Canadian Premier, to cement British connection.

One would think that the natural thing for Conservatives to do — for some Conservatives—was to oppose the Bourassa movement, in Quebec—one of the most formidable anti-British movements ever put into action in Canada.

Mr. Bourassa stands for a clear and complete cut of the bonds of British connection and the establishment of an all-French republic in Quebec. He is the bitterest enemy of British connection, and all things British, in Canada.

Yet we find Mr. Borden in political alliance with Mr. Bourassa. Mr. Borden is working hand and glove with the anti-British, and empire-wrecking Bourassa to defeat Laurier—to climb into power over the ruin of British connection.

All doubt on the point is removed by the fact of Mr. Bourassa appearing at Hull two days ago, on the platform of the Conservative candidate — the Borden candidate—in Pontiac county. Even the super-loyal Mail and Empire gloats over the anti-British ally of Mr. Borden. It cries out in fat headlines over the report of the meeting—"Bourassa Backs Conservative before vast Audience in Hull." Mr. Bourassa threw himself thoroughly into the arms of Mr. Borden, by renouncing reciprocity, which he formerly favoured. He made his stock, denunciations of Laurier as being "too-British" (while Mr. Borden curses him as being "not British enough"). He closed his speech by saying that fifteen or twenty members from Quebec, of the Bourassa-Borden type, could "dictate the destinies of Canada"— that is, could make Mr. Borden and the great Conservative party a tail of the anti-British Bourassa kite—and he urged the electors to send Mr. Cousineau, the French Canadian Conservative, Borden candidate, as "one of the group." The candidate himself used the same line of treasonable talk and, as reported in an Ottawa Conservative journal, the meeting in the interests of the Conservative-Borden candidate closed with "cheers for Borden, Bourassa and Cousineau," the Conservative candidate.

Now, ye flag wavers, look at that—a Conservative meeting ending without "cheers for the King!" Who took the place of the King? Was it Mr. Borden, who had the flag flapped in his face at Peterborough, till he winked? Was it Mr. Bourassa, the champion of the Conservative candidate with his knife sharpened to cut the tie of British connection?

What do the flag wavers in Peterborough—the self elected defenders of the faith think of the treason end of this unholy alliance?

The situation would be ridiculous, if it were not so serious. The idea of a great party reduced to such straits—stooping to accept the help of a political brigand and traitor to the Empire.

Will any self-respecting elector in Peterboorugh stand for such a coalition? Let him pause to think what it means for the future. If Mr. Borden wins with the help of Mr. Bourassa, will not Mr. Bourassa, who opposes Laurier because he is too British, and because he was refused office, neglect to demand his share of the spoil? Can he demand less than a place in Mr. Borden's cabinet? When, as Mr. Bourassa boasts, his fifteen or twenty French members can "dictate the destinies of Canada," what can they not dictate to Mr. Borden's government?

Do your own thinking, do a little of putting two and two together and you will see the hollowness, the hypocrisy of the race and creed cry, worked in this campaign. Who will be led astray by the cries raised in Ontario—in sympathy with the Quebec cry — "elect twenty Bourassa French members to dictate the destinies of Canada." Will you be a party to playing the double game?

To borrow the style of the Review—a vote for Burnham is a vote for Borden, a vote for Borden is a vote for Bourassa and a vote for Bourassa is an act of treason against Canadian unity, Imperial integrity and British connection.

A CHANGE OF HEART.

There appears to be no doubt in the world that Mr. Sexsmith, in his heart, knows that reciprocity in natural products with the United States would be of very great benefit to the farmers of Canada. As recently as January of last year Mr. Sexsmith made a speech in the House, drawing attention to the unfair balance of trade which existed between Canada and the United States, in the matter of natural products. Here are Mr. Sexsmith's words, as reported in Hansard, on January 14th, 1910:

"It will be seen, therefore, that the Canadian farmers and market gardeners have been able to sell to the 80,000,000 population of the United States, only $5,695,000 worth of these natural products, while the American farmer and market gardener have been able to sell to the 7,000,000 or 8,000,000 Canadians 21,546,000 dollars worth. Thus, the farmers of Canada are, to this extent, forced out of their own market and obliged to pay the freight for the transportation of their products to other markets of the world. This is the kind of treatment the farmers of Canada are receiving from this Government all along the line. I remember from my boyhood days hearing the Liberals, when in Opposition, talking about capturing the markets of the United States for Canadian farmers, and having reciprocity. The Liberals are in power. Have we reciprocity to-day?"

It will be observed that Mr. Sexsmith was complaining that in the tariff, as it then existed, and, in fact, as it still exists, Canada was placed at a decided disadvantage by reason of the fact that the American tariff wall was much higher than the Canadian tariff wall. Still, now, when Mr. Sexsmith has an opportunity of changing this and securing larger markets for the Canadian farmers, he wants to throw down the chance. If Mr. Sexsmith felt last year that the Canadian and American farmers should be placed on the same footing why should he change his ideas in this connection so suddenly, if it were not merely to serve his own political party ends? The whole idea of the proposed agreement is to place the Canadian and American farmer on equal terms. They are not now, and would not be, if Mr. Sexsmith has his way. The duty against Canadian farm products entering the States, as has been pointed out, is higher than the duty against American farm products entering Canada. If now the duty is, as intended, entirely removed by both countries, who concedes the most? The Americans by all means.

Mr. Sexsmith's position now is really absurd. The farmers of East Peterborough will attend to his case on the 21st instant.

SANE VIEW OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS.

The Monitor, of Boston, a non-partisan journal of wide circulation and influence, dispassionately deals with the charge of the opponents of reciprocity, who childishly put forth the alleged "designs" of the United States against the political and trade integrity of Canada. The Monitor's moderate and sensible view is worth reading carefully. It says:

"This matter can never be rightfully sproached or sanely discussed so long as an effort is made on either side of the line to overshadow the main issue by appealing to political or to national prejudices. It is true that the United States for forty years turned a deaf ear to Canada and denied that nation fair play commercially. But it is true, also, that there never was a time during these forty years when a very large and influential and earnest element in this country was not striving to bring about a proper recognition of Canadian rights. Reciprocity is not the outgrowth of partisan politics; it has had to fight partisanship for more than a generation. The reciprocity sentiment in the United States to-day is not born of a wish to advance any selfish interests; it has grown out of the increasing demand of good citizenship for righteous treatment of a neighbour. Reciprocity is not the political property of President Taft, or of the Republican party, or of any faction or of any class in this country; it embodies; crystallizes, the advancing thought of this republic in favour of the square deal for all.

If the sincerity of the reciprocity sentiment of the United States is to be doubted, then must also be questioned the sincerity of the sentiment of this country in favour of a peace alliance with Great Britain, to go no farther. For forty years, and longer, all overtures looking to such an alliance were discouraged, came to naught. Who will be so unjust as to say that the present public sentiment in the United States in favour of such an alliance is rooted in selfish or unworthy motives? Yet the change of sentiment in one case has been apparently no more sudden than in the other.

The plain truth is, public opinion in the United States has changed no more radically in recent months with relation to these subjects than to many others that might be mentioned, and instead of regretting these changes because of their apparent suddenness, right-minded citizens are proud of them. Failure of Canada to approve reciprocity, would pain no class in the United States more certainly or more deeply than the friends of the Dominion, because it would seem to them at least like a blow to the efforts they been making for years to bring the two people together in real neighbourliness and friendship.

How Reciprocity Agreement Will Lower Prices Of Canned Goods

Competition Will Lower High Prices---Artificially Created by the Man Between Producer and Consumer---Who Gets a Profit From Both Buying and Selling End

Here is an explanation of the way the cost of living is artificially increased and of how the reciprocity agreement will correct the evil and help both producer and consumer. They are typical examples of scores of other articles:

Down at Aylmer, Elgin county, the canning trust pays the farmer $25 a ton for peas. If a resident of Aylmer wants loose peas he pays 20 cents a quart, or at the rate of $320 a ton. Across the line the farmer receives $45 a ton for peas, yet the consumer pays less and receives a larger can than on this side of the line. The American canner will be able to buy Canadian peas at an advance on the price paid at Aylmer, pay the duty on the canned product, and undersell the Canadian trust in its own market. Do you think the home canner will lose his market? Not a chance of that. The price of his products will come down, to the consumer's benefit. If that conclusion is not correct, why are the food combine interests fighting the acceptance of the reciprocity agreement tooth and nail?

The Toronto produce man charges 10 per cent. of the cost price of eggs to handle eggs. On a dozen eggs costing 20 cents, his commission is 2 cents. The New York commission man charges 5 per cent. per dozen. That is a vast difference when eggs are handled by thousands of dozens. It will not be that the American farmer will enter into competition with the Canadian farmer in the egg business. But the American commission man will enter into competition with the Canadian commission man. Five per cent. will give him a wide margin on which to operate, and the consumer will reap the advantage. Do you understand now why the commission man is obstructing the passage of the agreement?

Do you see how the middleman is "getting the best of it" in every way in Canada at the present time?

Do you think it worth while to have the duty removed on all early fruits and berries at a time when they are not ripe in Canada, which now carry a heavy import burden?

Do you think it worth while to have oysters shipped into Canada duty free? (The present duty is 25 per cent.)

Do you relish early new potatoes and have sweet potatoes a good taste at certain seasons of the year? With reciprocity they will come into Canada duty free and will be sold at a substantial reduction.

Can you understand why the "Big Interests" which have got between the farmer on the one hand and the consumer and retailer on the other, are opposed to reciprocity?

BIG TURNOUT OF RUGBY PLAYERS IS EXPECTED AT RIVERSIDE PARK

Every rugby enthusiast in the city is invited to turn out in uniform at Riverside Park at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon for the first practice of the season. The boys have been growing enthusiastic over the prospects, and the "bug" is beginning to buzz around this good old town, so that it looks like a good team for a surety. There are a number of new players in the city whose services will be available, and altogether there is every reason to be cheerful over the outlook. All Peterborough people who are interested in the game, are invited out to-morrow, so get into the padded knickers and canvas jackets and see that a good start is made by a rousing practice to-morrow afternoon. And by the way, don't forget the annual meeting of the club in the West End rooms on Tuesday night of next week at 8 o'clock.

OFFICERS ELECTED

All Saints' Football Club Meet and Club Will Enter Team in Church League

At a meeting of All Saints' Football Club on Thursday evening, the following officers were elected for the fall season and the club decided to enter a team in the Church League:

Hon. Pres.—Rev. H. R. Trumpour.
President—Mr. David Beck.
Manager—Mr. Ern. Hooper.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. T. B. Moffatt.
Captain—Mr. Ern. Hooper.
Vice-Captain—Mr. T. Monk.
Selection Committee—Messrs. Beck, Hooper, Monk, Curtis and Moffatt.

The club's colours are dark blue shirts and stockings, with white pants. The entrance fee to the club was fixed at fifty cents per member.

The following players are asked to be at the Exhibition grounds at 2.30 Saturday for their first league game with St. James, winners of the Church League and holders of the V. Willis cup: Hall, Gamble, Robinson, Vickers, Hooper (capt.), Edwards, Monk, Gush, James, Williams and Dawson. Reserves: W. Downes, Hewitt and E. Yarrington.

The Reciprocity agreement saves the people from those who would monopolize their food supply.

AQUATIC SPORTS TO-MORROW

When? To-morrow, Saturday, Sept. 9th.

Where? On the Canal, just above the Lift Lock.

Time? First event called at 2.30 p.m.

Events? 100 yard swim, any style, Senior.
50-yard swim, any style, Junior.
Canoe singles, cruising canoes.
440 yard swim, senior.
220 yard swim, junior.
Canoe fours, cruising canoes.
Life-saving competition.

There will be a tent erected by the committee for the convenience of those taking part. And it is also requested that those who intend to take part in the events will be on time.

The life-saving competition will consist of going to the aid of a man who is struggling in the water, and towing him a distance of 50 feet with at least three different styles. The man with the best all-round averages in the swimming events and the life-saving competition will receive a handsome silver medal and have his name placed on the beautiful silver shield which Mr. Wm. E. Lech has so generously given to encourage swimming among the men and boys of Peterborough. It depends entirely upon the interest that is taken in the events to-morrow, if Peterborough is to have a monster regatta next year.

The entries for to-morrow's events include some of the best swimmers and paddlers in the city and nearby points, and the canoe singles and fours should prove to be most interesting events.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The first game of basketball of the season was played on the local floor last night. The weather being somewhat cool out of doors, the boys suggested that they play basketball, so off to the "Gym" and it was not long before they were at it hammer and tongs, and the spectators who were standing around marveled at the fast work done on the first night on the floor. But from now on this will be a regular thing at the local "Gym."

The Junior Leaders Corps will hold their opening banquet to-night, when the election of officers and other important matters pertaining to the work of the season will be discussed.

The Intermediate Leaders opening banquet will be held next Wednesday evening. Members of the corps are requested to keep this date open.

The first gymnasium class to open for the season will be the Junior Boy's class. This class will hold its first session on Saturday, Sept. 16th, at 9.15 a.m. The Business Boys will open on the 19th, and Mr. G. Galley will again have charge. The Intermediate Class will open on the 21st, and the Senior Men's Class on Wednesday, Oct. 11th, at 8 p.m. A full schedule of classes will be published later.

101 Years Old—Hale and Hearty

Mr. W. B. Yohn Is a Remarkable Man. He Has Lived a Very Active Life, But at This Advanced Age Still Retains His Health and Strength.

William B. Yohn, of 128 North Seventh Street, Reading, Penn., celebrated the one hundred and first anniversary of his birth on May 4. Mr. Yohn was born in 1810, and recalls many of his country's early struggles along the frontier. In 1837 he went to Reading, and has resided there with his family ever since. Since 1846 he has resided in the same house, which he built for his own use.

He has always been actively engaged in business, following pursuits that called for physical endurance and bravery, being at various times a miller, constable, deputy sheriff, and auctioneer. Notwithstanding this vigorous life, he looks and feels fine.

Mr. Yohn attributes a considerable part of the wonderful length of his life to Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which has been constantly used by him whenever he felt the need of a tonic stimulant. In a letter to a friend, recently, he said, in part:

"I was 101 years of age May 4th, having been born 1810. For a good many years I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, with very fine results. I always felt much better and stronger after using it. I attribute my long life to the use of pure liquors, taken moderately, all my life. As a medicine I could recommend nothing better than Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey."

When men and women pass the age of sixty they need a remedy that will quicken the circulation, bring restful sleep, invigorate the brain and prevent decay. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only agent that will produce these happy results. It improves the digestion and assimilation of the food and gives tone and vitality to every organ in the body.

BIG BOXERS ON WANE--FANS WANT THE LITTLE CHAPS

(By W. M. Naughton.)

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SEPT. 2.—Heavyweight pugilists are out of style, at least for the time being. Possibly the fact that Jack Johnson and a few other dusky-skinned men are on top of the heap, has nothing to do with the public's indifference toward the big fellows. But, whether such is the case or not, it is noticed that the promoters are not reaching out for heavyweight cards, and the promoters are supposed to keep a finger on the public pulse.

Some idea of the manner in which heavyweight talent is being slighted can be gleaned from the experiences of Jim Flynn and Carl Morris. This pair have been hunting a battle ground for months and there is grave doubt even now as to whether they have found one.

Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter, makes it his boast that he will have a whole herd of American heavies in Sydney before Christmas. Possibly he will. The heavyweight situation at present resembles a weed patch, and if Mac has secured the men he speaks of it may give those tender plants known as "white hopes" a chance to grow.

It is noticed, however, that McIntosh is not bragging about American lightweights he will introduce to fight lovers of Australia. No sir. The lightweights are having it made worth their while to stay at home and the heavies are being permitted to wander where they listeth. The moral stands out in his like a wooden peg in a cheap shoe.

Lightweight boxers will furnish the best of the pugilist entertainment in this country for quite a while. And, the better the lightweight, the oftener he will entertain.

Knockout Brown's manager, Dan Morgan, in declining a Los Angeles offer to match his man against Freddie Welch, said that Brown had a dozen contests to look forward to in the next two months, and that he would box Welch later. In the slang of yester-years, "that's going some." The question is, how long will a youngster like K. O., last, if he is sent along at such a breakneck clip? He is a youth so new to the game that his name does not appear in the 1910 records, yet we hear of him being committed to a dozen matches in the next two months.

It almost looks as if Morgan, in addition to claiming the lightweight championship for Brown, might claim the record for the greatest number of matches in the shortest space of time. Surely it must be a record.

Will "Knockout" train separately for each of those bouts, or will he condition himself to begin with and then figure that the first fight will constitute training for the second and so on, until he has finished the campaign? Whichever way he fixes it almost looks as though he will have to sleep in fighting costume and with boxing gloves tied to his wrists.

But perhaps, after all, Manager Morgan is drawing the long bow. Possibly he was afraid of offending Welch, if he told Freddie straight out that Brown wanted nothing to do with him, and preferred pleading a multiplicity of engagements.

Joking aside, it was evident that the new order of things in the East is going hard on giving poorer lights weights. If the K. O. B. date book is to be taken as a fair sample, the New York fight fans will be watching boys between faded boxers before the season is over.

"Bat" Nelson used to say that he would have preferred to box every day in the week. With that, the Dane would have to have a life tenure of the wonderful endurance with which nature endowed him. Now he knows that even fighting flesh has its limitations.

If K. O. Brown keeps crowding a dozen fights into a space of two months, he will not last anything near as long as Nelson did. When Brown can command such a number of engagements, what is in store for Champion "Ad" Wolgast? He is the most sought after young man at present in the pugilistic lights, and, in addition to being a mark for the boys in his own class, the promoters in every section are reaching out for him.

"Ad" might make a one-night stand of his business if he felt so inclined, but up to the present he has not evinced a hunger for matches as has his rival, "Knockout" Brown.

After what Morgan has said, it will be interesting to watch which of the pair—Wolgast or Brown—fights the more frequently in the months to come.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Breakwater and Dredging at Port Stanley, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P.M., on Wednesday, September 13, 1911, for the construction of a Breakwater and Dredging at Port Stanley, Elgin County, Ont.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, London, Ont.; J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Port Stanley, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the contract. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
E. C. DESBROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 16, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dredging Fort William, Ont," will be received until 4 P.M. Wednesday, September 13, 1911, for dredging required at Fort William, Ont.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Only dredges can be employed which are registered in Canada at the time of the filing of tenders. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
E. C. DESBROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 25, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

Open Day and Night

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

President Of Industrial Is Home From The West

Mr. R. H. Leary Tells the Examiner of the Wonderful Crop That Western Canada is Enjoying This Year---Is Back to Jump Into the Work of Preparing for the Exhibition

Mr. R. H. Leary, President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, arrived home last night after a seven-weeks' combined business and pleasure trip through the Canadian Northwest. Seen by the Examiner to-day, Mr. Leary avowed his intention of jumping right into the work of putting the finishing touches on the preparations for the great Peterborough Fair, and he was busy this afternoon in conferring with the directors and inspecting the work on the grounds. Speaking of his Western trip Mr. Leary stated that he had never seen such a magnificent crop as the present one. Although harvesting had been late the crops had suffered little damage from frost and hail, and the returns would be enormous. The whole West, he states, is most prosperous and he was pleased to find that the Peterborough people whom he met everywhere, are more than holding their own in the remarkable progress the country is making. Mr. Leary's party visited most of the cities of prominence in the West, from Winnipeg to Victoria and everywhere found indications of an unbounded prosperity.

The president arranged during his trip for a novel and educative exhibit for the Peterborough Industrial by completing arrangements for the showing here at the Fair next week of a fine display of fruit from the famous Okanogan Valley, British Columbia.

PETERBOROUGH MISSIONARIES IN CHINA ARE IN NO DANGER

In the list of Canadian Methodist missionaries in Chengtu, in the Sze-Chuen district, China, is the name of Mr. H. D. Robertson, whose wife (Miss Vieva Hunter) and child, are at present in Cheng tu. The district is in the neighbourhood of the damage zone in China, but the many friends in Peterborough of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will be glad to learn that the missionaries there are in no immediate danger, though for certainly of safety it is considered best that they withdraw from the neighbourhood, till all danger from the railway disturbances is over.

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD LOCAL BOY TAKES TO TRAVELLING

The following clipping from the Toronto News shows that little Denham Jones has again taken to travelling:

"Denham Jones, who says he came from Peterborough, was picked up while wandering around the Union Station. The lad, who is about 14 years of age, says he ran away with a band that was playing in Peterborough. When taken to the Children's Aid Society the remaining half of a ticket to Colborne was found in his clothes. His story will be investigated.

The Chief of Police received a communication about the lad and notified Mrs. Jones, the boy's mother, who arranged for him to be sent home.

On the 12th of July Denham went to Cobourg with the Orangemen and returned home all along, but this time, it appears, he had planned to take a longer trip.

CASCARETS FOR A SICK, SOUR STOMACH

Gently but Thoroughly Cleanse and Regulate Your Stomach, Liver and Bowels While You Sleep

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended for ever. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Registration Board Has Busy Session Last Night When Number of Italian Cases Were Investigated

MEET AGAIN TO-NIGHT

The Registration Board had a busy session, lasting for two and one half hours, last night in taking up a number of appeals made by the Conservatives against a number of Italians who had registered. In the case of six of these, naturalization papers were produced and Messrs. Ruddy and Moore, who were present in Mr. Burnham's interests, allowed their appeals to drop and they will remain on the list. Four others, for whom there were no papers, and who did not appear when their names were called, were struck off. A case of a Chinese resident of the city about the service on whom there was some doubt was held over, as were a number of other appeals. The Conservatives have appealed against a number of inmates of the House of Providence and the Protestant Home, and their cases will be taken up to-morrow night. Messrs. R. R. Hall, W. S. Davidson and G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. Stratton.

FORMER PETERBORO' BOY RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

MONTREAL, QUE., SEPT. 8.—Mr. J. M. R. Fairbairn was yesterday appointed Assistant Chief Engineer of all Eastern lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, with office at Montreal. He was born in Peterborough and is a nephew of Judge Rogers.

Indians Are Prosperous

OTTAWA, ONT., SEPT. 8.—Indian Commissioner Conroy and party have returned after a journey of forty-five hundred miles through Canada's almost unknown and totally unsurveyed Northwest. They found the Indians in good condition, having had a good season. They are prosperous and contented.

FROST IN WEST

Special to The Examiner.

WINNIPEG, MAN., SEPT. 8.— A maximum of nine degrees of frost in Saskatchewan and five in Manitoba last night, are reported. Little damage will result, as all the grain in Manitoba is harvested and all but a small percentage in Northern Saskatchewan and Alberta.

IT IS NOT IN THE BLOOD

Medicine Taken Internally Cannot Cure Eczema. It is Caused by Germs

Eczema cannot be overcome by ordinary treatment and the old-fashioned way of dosing the system with drugs. Eczema is caused by a parasitic germ that bores into the skin. It is generally a contagious disease. Until the parasite is completely destroyed and removed, eczema cannot be cured. Fully one-third of skin diseases are in the form of eczema.

We so thoroughly believe that Rexall Eczema Ointment will overcome eczema and allied skin ailments, that we unhesitatingly promise to promptly return the money paid us for it should it in any way be unsatisfactory to the user.

Because of its remarkable cleansing, antiseptic, germicidal, soothing and healing influence, Rexall Eczema Ointment has a very pronounced value in the treatment of skin diseases, especially where the form of ailment is of the chronic, aggravating sort. We highly recommend it for the dry scaly form or the weeping, type where there is a constant flow of ill-smelling excretion.

Rexall Eczema Ointment is very prompt in relieving pimples, blotches, skin discolourations, ringworm, acne, nettle rash, tetter, hives, ulcers, insect bites, and for healing sores and wounds. It is a pleasant smelling, grayish-white emolient, and it is very cleanly for use. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Sold only at our store,—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

Mary Jane will soon be qualified to write the initials L.D.S.C. after her name—Licentiate of the Domestic Science College. Mr. Beeby, the Minister of Education in Sydney, has announced his intention to establish degrees and certificates to domestic workers.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AT BURNT RIVER

(Lindsay Warder.)

Harry Major, an employee of the Britnell Quarries, Burnt River, had a very narrow escape from death on Wednesday afternoon about 1.30 p.m. while working. It appears that Major was engaged in drilling and blasting some rock and when one charge refused to go off, he proceeded to drill it out again. The result was that the concussion of the drilling acted as a fuse and the charge went off while the unfortunate man was bending over the drill. He received the whole of the terrible blast and the wonder is that he was not killed outright. His face and arms were literally peppered, while it is feared that he will lose the sight of one eye.

The drill which the young fellow was operating, was blown to atoms.

Drs. Graham and Johnson, of Fenelon Falls were summoned and attended to the man's injuries, after which he was brought to Lindsay and taken through to a Toronto hospital.

Major was married and his wife resides in England. He has been working at the Burnt River quarries for two years.

IS THIS MARY'S LAMB?

While Chief Howard was wending his way home to breakfast yesterday morning, he was more than surprised to observe that a large sized lamb was following in his footsteps. Without troubling to find out whether it was the reciprocity lamb, he showed his (reciprocal) regard for this new newly found friend by gathering it into the fold, where it now awaits an owner.

IN MEMORIAM.

Very Rev. Joseph Browne, V.G., died Sept. 3rd, 1911:

If this be death, then who would fear to die?
Above this bier are heard no vain regrets.
In sacred vestment garbed serene he sleeps,
His service paid to Him who ne'er forgets
The noble deed, the kindly thought, the will
To be about the Father's business.
'Twas this and more that moved him e'er to act
True priest of God, he walked with Jesus here,
Did good to all. And if his effort lacked
In heaven's sight aught of perfection due,
Ah, we will pray that He who died to save
Poor erring flesh, may cleanse in blood of price
The poor remains that moulder in this grave,
And to his soul may grant eternal rest.
In Isle of Saints, in sweet Tipperary home
They tell the beads for him who ne'er again
His mother's praise will chant with mortal lips,
And grey-haired men take up the sad refrain
In Napanee, and down along the bay,
To where Port Hope its prayerful tribute lays Upon his bier. And little children kneel
With tear-dimmed eyes, and look upon the face
Of him who loved the little ones of Christ.
How blest to live a life, how sweet to die
A death like this. May now his portion be
With him to reign who is the great High Priest,
From aught of earthly imperfection free,
To sit with Jesus at the nuptial feast.

—Rev. D. A. Casey.

Makes Hair Grow

McDermid and Jury has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by McDermid and Jury under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

SPEED IN SWIMMING

Swimming is a topical subject in this almost inclement heat, and the application of science to this finest of athletic exercises is illustrated by the reduction of the time for swimming a mile to 23 minutes, 35⅘ seconds, on Saturday. Four minutes have been taken off the mile record in eight years, and by eight successive steps. Swimming is one of those ancient sports in which it seems unlikely that the men of to-day would be physically better than their forefathers. Brains have counted in swimming, however, as in other sports. New methods of progression have been invented. First there was the single over arm stroke; then the double over arm or "trudgeon," which was more powerful; and then the "crawl," in which the arms and legs seem to be engaged in a mad fury of splashing water. That last came from America, and with it Mr. Daniells covered 100 yards in less than 56 seconds. We shall see other changes in styles, and he would be a rash man who would predict that new records will not be created almost continuously, for we are understanding progression in the water better, and keen minds are working out its problems.

THE CHIN HILLS OF BURMA

There are propably few people living in the British Isles who know anything about the Chin Hills, or who are aware that they form an integral part of Burma. There seems to be a remarkable amount of ignorance regarding Burma itself, although much of the lower portion has been a British possession for 64 years, and it is 57 years since Rangoon, its principal seaport, was annexed by Lord Dalhousie. The Chin Hills comprise a country somewhat larger than Scotland. They are almost as long and considerably broader. In the narrowest part they exceed the narrowest part of Scotland more than three times. The hills vary in height from 5,000 to 9,000 feet, and they are sparsely inhabited. Much of the country is covered with virgin forest. The climate is temperate, as the thermometer rarely rises to 80 degrees in the shade or falls below 25 degrees. In the winter months, November to February, 10 degrees of frost is not uncommon. Snow rarely falls, and never lies long even on the highest peaks.

DEATHS.

CAHILL.— At the family residence, 481 Gilmour street, Peterborough, on Thursday, September 7th, 1911, Ellen Sheehan, relict of the late Thomas Cahill, aged 65 years.

Funeral from the family residence, to St. Peter's Cathedral, at 9 o'clock a.m. Saturday, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

Help Is Scarce

Help of all kinds is scarce, and work is plentiful, or in other words the demand is greater than the supply. Mr. Chalmers, of the Peterborough Employment Agency, when seen by the Examiner this morning, said that he had received several calls from lumber companies for men to work in the woods, but he was not in a position to relieve the situation. The farmers were at present monopolizing all of the available hired help and would continue to do so for another month at least. Then the influx to the city would commence. The latter part of the month and the beginning of next, would in all probability see a big demand for able bodied men to work in the woods. Construction companies are also complaining of the scarcity of labour.

Mr. Stratton will address the Electors of HARVEY as follows:

At ROCKCROFT, on Monday September 11th, at 8 o'clock.

At LAKEHURST, on Wednesday, September 13th, at 8 p. m.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

WEDDING BELLS

MANN—VAN NORMAN.

At 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, the residence of Mr. C. O. Van Norman, 18 Carlton street, was the scene of the marriage of his daughter, Madeline Estelle, to Dr. Robert William Mann, son of Mr. G. W. Mann, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Thomas in the bow window of the drawing room, which was banked with pink roses, gladioli, lilies of the valley, and palms. To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by an orchestra, the bride was brought in and given away by her father. She was wearing a graceful gown of white satin duchess with rose point lace. Her veil, which was of tulle, was caught with a bandeau of pearls. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley, and wore the groom's gift, a sunburst of pearls. There were no attendants, and during the service Mrs. Holway sang "The Rosary."

Later in the evening, Dr. and Mrs. Mann left to spend their honeymoon in the north, the bride traveling in a grey tailor-made with black hat. —Star.

HETHERINGTON—UNSWORTH.

A quiet wedding was celebrated on September 6th at St. John's church, when Miss Ida Unsworth, eldest daughter of Mr. G. A. Unsworth, of Rugby, England, and Mr. Samuel Hetherington, second son of Mr. William Hetherington, of Manchester, England, were married by the Rev. Chas. Carpenter.

The bride was given away by Mr. W. Rogers, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Mrs. W. Rogers also attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington will reside at 397 George street.

PETERBOROUGH HORSES AT TORONTO EXHIBITION

The Peterborough horses at the Toronto Exhibition continue to make a good showing. Yesterday Mr. Stratton's "My Pride" and "Premier" carried off the coveted championship in pairs, while "My Pride" kept up the good work by getting a reserved championship for single harness horses. Mr. Stratton's entries were third in the four-in-hand class. On Wednesday Mr. Stratton's entries took second in the tandem, while in the single harness event "My Pride" was third and "Latest News" fourth.

OIL-ENGINE

Hardly ever before has so much been written and discussed about an engine type as is the case at present with the marine oil-engine. A number of boats fitted with such engines, with outputs up to 2,000 horse-power, are in satisfactory service. Reversibility can easily be attained, according to Mr. F. Schubeler, who read a paper at the Zurich meeting of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers. The space required for marine Diesel engines is smaller than for steam plants, the difference amounting to about 30 to 50 per cent., and the saving in weight is also considerable, reaching as much as 50 per cent. With marine Diesel engines it is possible to attain a radius of action for ships five to six tiems as large as that for ordinary steamboats. The taking on board of the fuel is also simpler, cleaner and quicker, than the coaling of steam vessels. An advantage, which must not be overlooked, is the saving in fuel consumption through the absence of preliminary heating and stand-by losses. Another important point is that the Diesel engine can be started at any time, and within the shortest period, no extensive preparations being required. The largest output per cylinder may be taken at present at about 500 horse-power, but considering the great efforts being put forward, 1,000 horse-power cylinders will soon be no rarity. As soon as this is the case, the marine Diesel engine will be in a position to compete successfully with the steam engine, and will certainly hold the field.

Important To Ladies

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at Hotel Oriental on Sept. 15 and 16.

THEOPHILE BRAGA

Although in nominal retirement as the result of his being defeated at the recent Presidential election by Manuel Arriage, Theophile Braga, the former Provisional President, is said to be still active in the affairs of the republic—a sort of "power behind the throne." New rumors of Royalist plots are being hear ddaily, and the problems confronting President Arriage are said to be too difficult for him—an inexperienced official—to deal with, and accordingly he is accepting the aid of his predecessor in power.

DANGER FROM HAT PINS

Offenders May Be Punished By a Fine of $225

Some time ago the Berlin police president, Herr von Jagow, issued a courteous appeal to the fair inhabitants of the city requesting them not to wear dangerously-long hatpins in their headdress without covering the points with protecting sheaths.

The appeal was the result of several serious accidents resulting from women wearing long hatpins in crowded cars, railway carriages, and other places. In one case a man had his eye torn out of its socket by the projecting point of a hatpin worn by the woman sitting next to him.

The police president's appeal, however, does not appear to have met with the desired compliance, and several more or less serious hat-pin accidents have since happened. Herr von Jagow has now proceeded to stronger measures, and a new police edict makes a woman whose unprotected hat pin inflicts a wound on another person liable to a fine of $225, to a term of imprisonment not exceeding two years. In addition to which the injured party may claim damages up to $1,500.

LANGUAGE OF TIPS

Secret Signs Written on Baggage for the Information of Porters

Tourists in European countries must in the future add another small item to their travelling outfit—namely, a pocket sponge. The reason for this necessary precaution has been divulged in the course of an investigation just carried out among hotel servants in several of the most popular resorts. As a result of the inquiry, tourists are warned to examine their baggage closely while passing from one place to another. If a traveller should discover somewhere near the lock three almost invisible chalked crosses or lines he may know that he is considered by the hotel servants at the place at which he last stayed as "mean" in the matter of tips, and he may expect bad service wherever he may put up. Two crosses or oblique lines indicate that he is rather "close." One cross by itself will secure him better treatment, for he is then regarded as ready to give reward for services rendered, but still is not "generous."

A small circle with a line drawn through it will bring every hotel servant, from the "head" to the porter (who is, of course, the "grand visier" in all hotels), at a trot to attend to his smallest desires, for it means in this secret language, "Attention! This is a fine fellow! Serve him well!"

It will be evident from these indications, which come from authoritative sources, that the use of the suggested pocket sponge may often be necessary, for many people on their travels are inclined to think that in giving any "tip" at all they are acting generously, and are unpleasantly surprised to find themselves unwillingly served whenever they stay in hotels. The fact is that most of these servants do not receive any wages at all from their employers. On the contrary, in some instances, they are obliged to pay over a percentage of their "tips" in order to retain their situations.

In a few cases hotel proprietors are in complete accord with the use of the secret signs, and have even added several of their own to indicate that a traveller constantly questions his bill or delays its payment.

Celebrated Coster's Donkey

Lazy Lightning, the fifteen-year-old donkey belonging to a costermonger named Witt, of Sidney Street, Goswell Road, has passed away. He won renown in 1907 by winning the first prize at the Horse Show at Olympia, and has appeared on the stage in two companies. He earned his nickname by reason of the fact that he always needed a donkey to pass him in a race before showing his turn of speed.

Olivette (as they encounter a vicious bulldog):—"Go on, Percy; you know you said you would face death for me."

Percy:—"But he isn't dead."

THE FAMILY HEARTH

A man thinks he knows it all, until a woman begins to enlighten him.

Consider that your visitors come to see you, and not your pantry.

Let the children have a good time—childhood does not last long. Age is incapable of the fine enthusiasm of youth.

A hovel is often more a home than a palace. If the spirit of congenial friendship links not the hearts of the inmates of a dwelling it is not home.

There are too many fathers who will tie up the dog at night and let the boy run loose.

The woman who has a home and keeps it well, has no narrow sphere in life. In the home is the hope of the nation and the church.

This world is but the stepping stone of an immortal life. Every action of our life touches on some chord that will vibrate in eternity.

Times are not near so hard with some men when they want a plug of tobacco as when their wives ask for a pair of shoes.

Better appreciate your mother before your appreciation of her will be no kindness to her, and the post mortem regrets will be more and more of an agony as the years pass on. Big headstones of polished Aberdeen and the best epitaphs which the family put together could compose and a garland of whitest roses from the conservatory are often the attempt to atone for the thanks we ought to have uttered in living ears and the kind words that would have done more good than all the calla lilies ever piled up on the silent mounds of the cemeteries.

Let us all remember that the higher and happier our home life, the more wisely and better we may hope to do the work that lies waiting for us beyond it. A pleasant place to "come home to" is the greatest energizer a man can have. Then let us strive with an earnest and constant purpose to make and keep the home cheerful, inviting and pleasant.

We often find farmers who lose no chance of securing machinery for saving labour on the farm, but who don't think anything about the machines that save labour in the house. That is out of their province and they don't seem to care enough about it to give the matter any attention whatever. Such treatment is calculated to discourage the woman. It is the worst kind of selfishness.

In the ideal home the ruling principle will be love. Love to the Supreme Ruler of the universe and love for each member of the family. Base the golden rule will be followed in all intercourse of one with another. Perfect harmony exists between parents in regard to the management of household affairs and the training of the children. The same rules of courtesy will be observed that we expect to find in society.

A girl who is gentle, brave and spirited; who is unselfish, high-minded and intelligent; who has sweetness and depth of character; who does not think of herself, but works for the happiness of others; who is merry and dainty and wholesome, as a girl should be, will never lack either lovers of friends. She is the light of the home, a good friend to her sisters and brothers, and the sunshine of the old folks. God bless her.

Home is a magic word, and we seldom try to analyse it. A little Polish girl in a public school was asked recently to write a definition of 'home.' "A home," she wrote, "is where people live, and where a man or somebody comes home and finds people there, and then eats!" "And then eats!" To how many thousands of men that is the end and aim of coming home! To how many thousands of women the preparation of the food to be eaten is the chief business of home-making!

There are two ways of spending a dollar. You can spend it at home, gain an easy conscience, make another friend and perhaps get the dollar back to-morrow or you send it away, feel that you have sinned, offend the home merchant and forever lose the dollar and the blessed influence for good to yourself and neighbour.

When a man in search of a home or business location goes to town and finds everybody full of hope and enthusiasm over the prospects of the place he, too, soon becomes imbued with the same spirit, drives down his stakes and goes to work with equal interest.

Every school boy knows that a kite would not fly unless it had a string tying it down. It is just so in life. The man who is tied down by half a dozen blooming responsibilities and their mother, will make a higher and stronger fight than the bachelor, who having nothing to keep him steady is always floundering in the mud. If you want to ascend in the world tie yourself to somebody.

My nervousness has left me entirely as a result of taking Miller's Compound Iron Pills. — Wm. Madill, druggist.

Counsel (to nervous witness):—"Married or unmarried, madam?"
Witness:—"Be—dimarried three times!"—London Opinion.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

A LETTER has just come to hand which is so much more interesting than anything I could hope to write, that I have presented my correspondent with my space to-day:—

"I am emboldened," states the writer after the usual introduction and a little soft soap, "to come to you to-day with what I know is an unusual subject.

"The fact is I am a bachelor, I am forty-five, six feet tall, weigh 175 pounds, am a blond, in perfect health, fine teeth, my only claim to good looks, I am very well educated, not extraordinarily so, but very well read and well informed on a good many subjects. I have a profession in which I have for the most part, made a fair living but having had no family, have missed the chief incentive to make any real exertion.

"Now, strange to say, I do not like being a man, nor do I like man's work. In my tastes I believe I am more of a woman. I am a good cook, like the domestic life, really love to cook, never find it a trouble but a pleasure. Oh, yes, I know what I am talking about, for I have cooked in the only home I ever had with a relative, and I do not understand how a woman can dislike cooking and prefer work in an office or store. I can make beds and sweep and often make up my own room, simply because I prefer to do so. I do not know how I might make out at sewing, but I have sewed on buttons and patched.

"Now Miss Cameron, the question is this: Do you suppose in your large experience with human nature and the world in general, that it would be possible for me to find a woman willing to marry me? I mean a nice woman, an attractive one and also one who simply detests housework, one who calls herself a "working woman" and delights in that appelation, and who would continue that work and bring in the wherewithal for the maintenance of the household, while I remained at home and did the housekeeping and all that would be necessary for a cosy, well kept home.

"You simply can't imagine how I long for a home, a real home, cosy and domestic. I am tired of a bachelor's life. I have led rather a clean and steady life as men go, nothing out of the common, neither very good, nor very bad. I could have married several times, real nice girls—but, well I admit I was a coward—afraid not to succeed in being all in a financial way that the women of to-day seem to consider essential. Now, if a woman makes the money she knows where it comes from and will perhaps not exact so much, and for my part I will engage to keep my promise to always have a bright and cozy home with the meals ready when she returns. You see I have already done that for my relative so I know what I am promising to do. I do not think this idea a really unusual one with lots of men. I have heard men express themselves in nearly every way—but they do not like their feeling to be known, thinking it unmanly. I do not think it is more unmanly than for a woman to detest domestic duties and prefer outside work. If the Maker of all, the Supreme Being has put the soul of a woman in a man's body and vice versa, who is to blame? Certainly not the man or woman in the case.

"I certainly could love some nice woman very much, and be, oh so good to her, if she could be satisfied with my humble self, and how I would serve her with every fibre of my being!"

Sometimes I fancy this is a make-believe letter, written just to "bait" me, and then again I believe it is genuine. Anyway, I think it is a very interesting point of view.

Don't you?

KIT'S COLUMN

Apart from any political significance which may attach to it the attempt to form the British-born living in Canada into a distinct organization is not a policy to be admired. Though doubtless not meant to reflect on the native born—and any such idea I believe to be foreign to the intention of Arthur Hawkes—there is no doubt that it will be by many considered an insult to Canadians and Canadianism. It will not make the path easier for the poorer immigrant. The one thing your immigrant wants to do for his own benefit when he gets here is to rid himself—if he has it—of the assumption that he is in any way superior to the men or the country with which his interests in the future are to be allied. No more foolish assumption could be entertained by the incomer. The bitter prejudice against Englishmen which gained a footing in Canada, but which lately has been growing less and less, will be revived by just such a movement as this appeal to the British-born. There is no need for such an appeal. Canada is not trying to slip out of the empire. It is an insult to Canadians to suppose them anxious—reciprocity or no reciprocity—to alienate themselves or their country from the old land and the old flag. All this annexation outcry is merely a political sheet as hollow as it is noisy. If reciprocity passed to-morrow it would bring us no nearer to annexation than we are now. There is no necessity for a British-born party to tag on as a sort of forlorn hope to any political organization in order to save Canada from being absorbed by the United States. The Canadians are particularly well able to look after their own integrity in imperial matters. The best thing the British-born can do is to join forces with the native born in the important issues which come before the country from time to time. To assume a superiority to Canada and "the colonials" is the very worst sort of policy on the part of any immigrant to these shores. As a British-born person myself, I can say from the bottom of my heart that to belong in some measure to Canada, to have a stake or two in the country, to sing her praises when away and come home to her with eagerness has always been my pride and my joy.

The theft of the Monna Lisa from the Louvre has stirred the world almost as much as if Milos Venus had disappeared. It is a portrait you either admire or dislike furiously. The smile hypnotizes and tantalizes at the same moment. One will say "She lures you by her eyes, but in her smile there lurks a scornful pity." Another will tell how Leonardi did everything to create and keep alive this inscrutable smile for the space of nearly five years, yet was unsatisfied with the finished portrait. A third raves over the eyes looking out from the canvas expressing wisdom, humour, tenderness, passion; while the cold man will tell you the picture makes him shudder with repulsion. And each and all will return to state at that marvelous portrait which in one face can express spirituality and sensuality, scorn and slyness, meanness and craft. Not a beautiful face judged from the authorized standards of beauty, but one which leaves an indible and lasting impression on the mind. A haunting face, surely.

And yet may it not have been the word of some ancient critic which first started the now general opinion that the smile of the Monna Lisa is a thing wonderful, uncommon, mysterious? We have looked for these things in the portrait and have found them. We all know there is a wonderful art argot which people talk when they are stalking the art galleries. You can hear it any day in the Fine Arts building at the Exhibition just as you may hear people who don't know Rock of Ages from the Ahendstern rave over Wagner and "the fourth dimension in music." As a jesting writer puts it, it sounds so "culchered" you know, and that sort of thing. Doubtless the man who first started reading what is in the Monna Lisa's inscrutable smile was reading merely his own imagination running riot. Perhaps there is really nothing behind such "inscrutable" expressions excepting a deep, an unfathomable ignorance. We are apt to read weird qualities into things—music, poetry, painting, if we are George Bernard Shaw or a Lise Lehmann. I remember once standing behind a dignified person in spectacles who was pointing out the beautiful turn of a pig's tail in a vast painting of The Prodigal Son. He spoke of it in glowing artizanan until the people behind craned their necks to see it, and when he passed the crowd gathered close and fixed hungry eyes on the kinky tail of the porker and forgot to look at the stricken gaunt figure that stood upon the wind-swept hill.

In the matter of an election the psychology of the electorate is something to be considered. The dislike of an innovation, of anything new is the natural attitude of the mind of the normal individual. The reasoning faculty, the power of judgment, is an educated acquisition of the human mind, and one it is not always easy to exercise. We are apt to shy at new proposals and choose the line of least resistance which in politics seems to be wearing one's father's shoes. We are apt naturally to pin our faith to the old and tried rather than encourage the new which always startles at first. To offset this, man is happily endowed with the sporting instinct. So the pendulum swings and the sportsman is he who works the mechanism. And it is the sporting instinct in a man which often turns the political trick. He will say, These Johnnies have been in power long enough; they have had a good long innings. Let's give the other beggars a chance." Governments have been changed by reason of the sporting instinct only.

What is it that sways the average elector? What is the determining influence in an election, reason or feeling? Clearly the latter. "Start a wave of feeling that plerks up and carries along with it the mass of hesitating voters," says a politician. "and you win your fight." It is the man on the fence that you want. Get him down and going with you on the impulse of the moment, be it fear of annexation or love for the flag, or "reciprocity and commercial prosperity," or any other party cry. Only shout loud enough. Wave the flag insistently, stir up and intensify enthusiasm. Get the crowd going and watch your men leap from the fence and go with it. The temporary impulse may have nothing to do with argument, with right or wrong, but it is the tide which takes at the flood places one party on the throne of power, while it sweeps the other from it. Feeling is something that is independent of reason, or fact or expediency, something that once started grows quickly beyond control.

To end the tragic story of Mademoiselle Lanteline there comes from Paris the account of the funeral of this favourite of fortune, and a little tale which is not without a moral. Monsieur Edouard, to whim but a short time before the beautiful actress was married, procured his divorce some months ago. His former wife begged him at the time to leave her, as a souvenir, the yacht on which he and she "had spent such happy hours together," and M. Edouard agreed. When Lanteline heard that the boat was to be left to his ex-wife, she became furious and vowed she would never permit it. She wanted the yacht and her lover broke the word of his once-adored wife. It was on this boat that Lanteline and her husband sailed for their holiday, and it was from a cabin window on the yacht that she fell to her death. Had she been generous and allowed her rival to keep the little ship, she might be alive to day. There are whispers that a curse was laid upon the yacht which bodeth ill for those who sailed in her. Be that as it may, it caused the death of a young and beautiful woman, whose husband is said to be going crazy with grief. Lanteline went to her grave smothered under flowers. Her jewels were the most gorgeous in Paris, her furs—including a coat of sable which cost four thousand pounds—were the envy of every woman, her laces were priceless, her home was a bijou palace filled with exquisite things, and hung with masterpieces in painting. There was nothing money could procure that she might not have. Her husband would have purchased a hundred yachts for her had she wished them. But she wanted the one he had promised to her rival.

Well—she got it.—Kit.

MANVERS HILLTOWN YIELDS UP ITS HARVEST OF FISH

(Toronto star)

Down at Manvers, a small station not far from Peterborough, is a lake about fifty acres in area, which is used as a fishing preserve for the members of the Manvers Fishing and Shooting Club, to which many prominent Toronto men belong. A new cement dam is being constructed by a Toronto firm at one end of the lake, and to do so the water had to be lowered considerably.

When the workmen had let it all out but about three feet they noticed the surface of the water was being agitated in a wonderful manner. A little more was let off, and then they noticed the reason.

The whole bottom of the lake for a depth of over a foot was covered with fish.

True there were many nice-sized trout in evidence, but the greatest number were muskets of enormous dimensions. Immediately all work on the dam was at an end, as the workmen, armed with axes and clubs, started in on a wholesale slaughter.

Up till yesterday five tons of muskets had been taken out and shipped to a Toronto consumer, and the lake seemed to be as full as ever.

The fixer met the man who told him the above on Yonge street this morning. He was carrying a heavy, vicious-looking blade about six inches long, to which was attached an ordinary axe handle.

"They sent me up there to get this," he remarked. "With it I think I'll be able to kill more fish than all the others combined."

The trout are being spared, but all the catfish will be cleaned out of the preserve.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I consulted to Dr Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, so I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—Mrs. ALEXANDER WEICHERT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will cure female weakness and so successfully carry women through the Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

Are You Anaemic or Bloodless?

If So, the Spring is a Most Trying Time for You.

Your Hope Rests in Getting the Blood Rich and Red by Using

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Shortness of breath and fatigue with slight exertion, failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions, and pallor of the gums and eyelids, are among the indications of anaemia or bloodlessness.

The blood is thinner and more watery in the spring than at any other season, and for this reason the person who is subject to anaemia, or lack of blood, suffers the most.

You must increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood, and this can best be done by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment does not merely stimulate the organs to renewed activity, but cures by building up the system. For this reason its benefits are both natural and lasting.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, neuralgic and sciatic pains and weakness and irregularities of the vital organs become a thing of the past when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It is only natural that you should get strong and well when this building-up treatment is used, for it supplies to the blood in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which go to form new, rich blood.

Your digestive system has failed to extract sufficient nutrition from the food you eat, and hence the necessity of such direct nourishment as is supplied to the blood by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

DIPLOMACY IN THE HOME.

There is a Way to Handle Wives Without Trouble.

As Mr. Conton looked down at his waistcoat he discovered that it lacked a button. "And I asked my wife to sew it on more firmly last night," he said to his commuter neighbor in the train. "I don't see how she forgot it."

"Don't ever ask her to mend anything," said his friend. "I learned a better way before I'd been married a year. When I want anything mended, say a shirt, for instance, I take it under my arm, all mussed up, and open the closet door and sing out to my wife, 'Where's the rag bag, Peggy?'

"'What do you want with the rag bag?' she'll ask me.

"'Oh, I thought I'd throw this away,' I tell her, and squeeze it a little tighter under my arm.

"'Let me see what you have there,' she'll say, and I'll mutter something about 'worn-out old thing' while I hand it over to her.

"'Why, James Holland,' she'll say when she's spread it out and looked it over in a hurry, 'I am surprised at you! This is perfectly good. It does not need a single thing except'— And then and there she sits down to mend it, looking as if I'd made her a present."—Youth's Companion.

"Oh, Miss Libbey, my heart is broken! I have had a falling out with my—my—is it correct to say 'gentleman friend,' Miss Libbey?"

"I think I should not use that phrase, my dear; it's a banality, if you know what that is. But you might speak of him as your 'gentlemanly friend' perhaps."

Then the soft, appealing voice became a loud screech.

"What! Bill Smidgins gentlemanly? He ain't! You don't know him! He's a thick headed, wall eyed, splay footed, crooked nosed fizzerinctum, and he hain't got sense enough to scratch himself when he itches!"

Then the receiver was hung up with a slam.

BUILT BATTLESHIP IN 32 MONTHS

Great Progress Has Been Made by the German Ship Yards in a Few Years

Germany's progress in the art of warship building is drawn attention to by the Kiel correspondent of the Kolnishe Zeitung. Three battleships of the Helgoland class, already completed, were built in periods ranging from 31½ to 32½ months. Their predecessors, of the Nassau type, though 2,900 tons smaller, required periods of from 36½ to 40 months for their construction. About the same time was spent over vessels of the Braunschweig and Wittelsbach class, which ranged in size from 11,800 to 13,200 tons. On the other hand, the Kaiser and Brandenburg series of battleships of from 10,060 to 11,150 tons, all required four years for their construction. Still earlier it was not an unknown thing for a German battleship to be on the stocks as long as eight years.

It is interesting in this connection to recall that, in reply to the inquiry sent round by Count Von Reventlow, six years ago, the Germania, Howalt Vulkan, Blohm and Wos, Schichau and Weser yards announced their ability to construct capital ships within from twenty-four to thirty months. At that rate of construction the private yards in this country would then have been able to turn out battleships and armored cruisers to the number of some nine or ten annually.

A WONDERFUL CRUISER

A Russian Design of a Remarkable Submarine Vessel

A submarine cruiser, 400 feet long and displacing, when submerged, 5,438 tons, has been designed by a Russian naval engineer named Shuravieff. The designs are now being considered by the Russian Government. No submarine vessel yet built has a displacement of more than 700 tons, and the 1,000-ton mark is just being reached in England and in Germany with vessels laid down this year. M. Shuravieff's design is really for a protected cruiser which can be submerged when required. When steaming on the surface its displacement would be 4,500 tons, while engines capable of developing a maximum horse-power of 18,000 would give an estimated speed of 25 knots. The apparatus with which the vessel is fitted in the designs would enable her to sink in three minutes, and when below the surface internal combustion motors of 4,400 horse-power would give a maximum speed of 14 knots. The fastest submarines yet built are the British vessels of the D class, which can make 18 knots on the surface and nine when submerged. The submarine cruiser will be equipped with five 4.7-inch guns, so mounted that when the ship is about to descend they can easily be stowed away below decks. The vessel will also have the unprecedented armament of thirty torpedo tubes, all of which will, of course, be available in either the surface or submerged conditions. Hitherto the greatest number of torpedo tubes mounted in submarines is seven, this number being carried by the French Archimede, Charles Brun, and Admiral Bourgois. No British boats have more than three, and most only two. The Shuravieff submarine cruiser will also be furnished with 120 submarine mines, which she will be able to lay in the form of a field without coming to the surface at all.

FOR THE GIRLS

Appeal by Lady Minto of the Young Ladies' Christian Association

Much good work is being done by the hotels and homes established abroad by the Young Women's Christian Association, and an appeal signed by Princess Christian, Lady Minto and Lady Selborne is being circulated asking for increased funds to extend the work in the interests of girls leaving the United Kingdom for places where they are often exposed to special dangers and temptations. In the appeal for more funds with which to carry on this worg on a larger scale, the following plea is made: "In such a year as this, when thousands of pounds are being lavished in the interests of the Nation and Empire, it may indeed seem difficult to arrest attention for so unostentatious a work as ours. Yet it is a work which crowns other efforts to perpetuate the imperial heritage and solidify 'England beyond the seas.' How can any Empire prosper unless its women are cared for? And just wheen huge sums are being expended to promote adult colinization and emigration, we ask the generous not to forget that frail cargo of girlhood which yearly sets forth to carry the flag, the speech, and the religion of the Old Country to distant lands."

BRAIN SURGERY

Anti-vivisectionists have been provided with fresh material for their agitation by a surgical experiment, in the course of which the cerebrum, or major brain, of a dog was removed by Dr. Rothmann, of the Royal Charity Hospital in Berlin. The result of the operation is expected by surgeons to lead to most important developments in brain surgery affecting human beings, permitting the removal of portions of a diseased brain, which it has hitherto been considered dangerous to operate on. The dog, a fox-terrier, has completely recovered physically from the operation, except for the loss of its powers of direction, hearing and smell.

HUDSON BAY LINE

Interior Department's Experts Report on the Timber Supply

The total number of ties available along the Hudson Bay Railway route is estimated by the Interior Department's experts at 360,000. These, at 3,600 to the mile, would be sufficient for about 120 miles of road. The sawtimber totals about nine and a half million feet, board measure. Dead tamarac and the largest of the close-grained black spruce could be used for pile-timber. There is an immense supply of fuelwood and pulpwood, but a good deal of the young timber is too small, as yet, even for pulpwood. Spruce is practically the only timber large enough for ties and saw-timber. Poplar, birch and jack pine are found in quantity, but are "invariably too short, spindly, limby and crooked for any use save fuel and pulpwood. Scarcely any live tamarac is found; the survey party did not meet with two hundred green tamarac over ten inches in diameter during the whole of the summer.

The chief reason for the comparatively small supply of timber in the district is the fact that fires have so often run over it. The greatest of these occurred, respectively, eighty and forty years ago, and few parts of the region explored escaped these. In many places, indeed, the fires evidently leaped over lakes a mile in width. Even the coming of the snow, which in most places puts an end to even the largest forest fire, does not always quench the fires, and they live all winter in the dry moss, and break out again the next spring.

The attacks of insects have also caused much loss of timber in the region. Bark-beetles are the greatest offenders. They have killed nearly all the tamarac, and are now at work on the larger spruce. They attack live trees, which, having been weakened or killed, are thrown by the wind. A bad tangle of trunks, branches and other debris results, and finally a lightning flash sets fire to it, and the fire, if not checked by some fortunate circumstance, may run over miles of country.

The prevention of fire in this district is a problem of the greatest difficulty. Throughout the region there are practically no inhabitants, and the area is of such great extent that, if a fire once starts, the chance of stopping it, even with good patrol system, would be far from bright. Indians in this region seem much more careful with fire than the white men.

In one hundred years white spruce reaches a diameter of eight to twelve inches, poplar of eight to ten inches and black spruce of four to five inches. Jack pine will not average six inches in diameter.

The party's conclusions in regard to the timber are not very optimistic. "There is probably enough timber available to build the rough construction work of the Hudson Bay Railway" is as far as permitted to go.

The topography, soil, vegetation and climate of the country are briefly referred to, also the resources of the country in regard to agriculture, mining, fish, game and fur animals.

CATTLE INDUSTRY

Duncan Anderson Points Out What He Regards a Weak Point

The weak spot in the cattle industry of Canada, both East and West, is that our cattle, when young and growing, are not fed liberally enough. Calves in most places are fairly well fed the first winter. Bullocks are crowded with feed the last three or four months of their life, to fit and finish them for market; but in the growing period, especially the second winter, many promising young bullocks are stunted from underfeeding. Farmers must realise the cardinal principle in profitable cattle-raising, that when an animal is young and growing it makes greater gains in weight to the food consumed than at any other time. If fed the second winter on straw only, steers will go on grass in such low condition that it will require the most of the summer to regain and make up lost flesh; but, if along with the straw and roughage, two pounds of ground oats per day were fed, this grain would invigorate and strengthen the animal, so that it would eat more roughage and hold the flesh and growth of the previous summer.—Duncan Anderson.

ALL THE WAY BY BOAT

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks Made a Unique Start on Old Country Trip

From their back door, near the Humber, Toronto, to England by water, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Hicks, of Humber Bay, whose property is on the Lake Shore, decided recently to go to the Old Country. Mr. Hicks planned an all-water trip. Mr. and Mrs. Hicks agreed they would not even take a radial car to reach the steamers which would carry them down to the ocean port.

Mr. Hicks had his fine launch run up to the rear of his house. There trunks were also put into the boat, and the couple started on their trip.

The launch took them as far as Kingston, where they boarded an R. & O. boat for Montreal, and thence by an ocean liner to Liverpool.

LORD STRATHCONA AND LOUIS RIEL

How the Canadian High Commissioner Assisted in Breaking the Power of Louis Riel

Lord Strathcona (then Mr. Donald A. Smith) played a main part in breaking the power of Louis Riel, says R. G. MacBeth, Paris, Ontario, than the papers now publishing sketches of him seem to know. Mr. Smith was not in the Red River country when Riel raised the revolt against the incoming of the Hon. William McDougall. But shortly after the rebellion was under way and the rebels had captured Fort Garry, the Canadian Government appointed Mr. Smith a special commissioner to proceed to the Red River country and make clear to the people amongst whom he was so well and favorably known the real intention of the Government in regard to the rights of the settlers. Making the long journey in the dead of winter, Mr. Smith entered the country at a critical hour. His coming had a marked influence immediately, and the courage and tact with which he executed his difficult and dangerous task have been the theme of many a eulogy. He boldly entered the rebel stronghold at Fort Garry and, despite the threats of the erratic and irascible Riel, he remained there till his errand was accomplished. His first achievement was to secure from Riel the calling of a meeting of the people of the country to hear his commission, as a special envoy from the Government of Canada, read. This assembly met in the open air in Fort Garry on the 19th of January, 1870.

It was twenty below zero, but the meeting was warm enough. Mr. Smith at the outset destined to read his commission under the hybrid flag of the rebels, and the British flag had to be hoisted. Riel interrupted Mr. Smith a good deal, and an athletic settler, still living near Winnipeg, caught the redoubtable rebel by the back of the neck and pulled him down the steps of the outside stairway. Riel threw off his coat, which fell on my father, who was standing near, to whom Riel, true to his French politeness even in his rage, said: "Pardon, monsieur." The gates of the fort were closed and the armed guards called, but things quieted down and the commission was read and discussed. Finally Riel himself moved, seconded by A. G. B. Bannatyne, that a representative assembly, consisting of twenty men from the French and English speaking settlers, respectively, be called.

This led to the famous Convention of the Forty, which in turn appointed delegates to interview the Government at Ottawa. The calling and the work of this Convention of Forty practically undermined the authority of Riel, who continued nominally at the head of the "Provisional Government," but whose power was actually from that date transferred to the people. Riel saw this when it was too late, and tried to check the movement against his authority by the shooting of Scott on the 4th of March. But he had completely lost the key of the situation. The story is a long and thrilling one for those of us who were born in the Red River country, but, in a word, it may be said that Donald A. Smith was "the man of the hour," and none were more delighted at his subsequent signal distinction in the service of the Empire than the people who remembered his wonderful tact and courage in a crisis period of their history.

FOREST RESERVES

Recent Enlargement in the West Makes the Territory 25,000 Miles

By recent enlargements the aggregate area of the forest reserves in Western Canada is now 25,186 square miles, as compared with 16,312¾ square miles formerly. The increase in Manitoba is nine and a half square miles, the area now under reserve being 3,584¾ square miles, as compared with the previous area, 3,575¾ square miles. With the present area of 87 square miles under reserve, the Saskatchewan reserves have increased by 197 square miles over the former area of 740 square miles. Alberta's reserves have well nigh doubled in area, being now 13,564½ square miles, as compared with 9,702, an increase of 3,862½ square miles.

In British Columbia alone has the area under reserve been lessened. In that province the former reserved area was 2,295 square miles; the area reserved is now 2,115½ square miles, thus showing a decrease of 179½ square miles.

The largest forest reserve is the Rocky Mountain reserve of 13,213 miles, which includes Rocky Mountain Park, Jasper Forest Park, and Waterton Lakes Park.

USES OF AMMONIA

May be Used in Many Ways to Lighten Work

Ammonia is one of the things that may be turned to account in many ways to lighten work. It is particularly useful about the wardrobe. Black material sponged with a cupful of water in which a teaspoonful of ammonia has been mixed renews its lost freshness. Black silk loses its shininess by each a sponging.

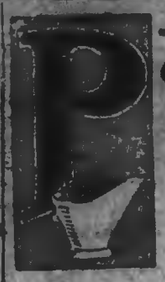
A little ammonia rubbed over greasy garments, such as collars, cleanses them thoroughly.

Mixed with equal parts of turpentine it will remove paint stains from cloth.

For toilet use it is well to remember that a small quantity of ammonia will soften the water in which the hair is washed and help to cleanse the scalp. In the bath it is delightful.

With the summer days upon us, one should know that ammonia is a splendid cure for the bites of wasps and other insects.

Ten years ago British Columbia did not produce enough fruit to supply her home demand, while this year she shipped more than 500 cars from the Okanagan district alone. Certainly a remarkable increase.



Pays for itself in fuel saved

Don't allow a few extra dollars to prevent you from taking the perfect-cooking, sure-baking, easily-regulated Pandora in place of a cheaper stove. In a season or two Pandora will pay the difference in the fuel it will save—and it will keep on saving until it has paid for itself.

Pandora special flue construction makes fuel do double duty. Wide fire box is another fuel-economizer. The steel oven heats quicker than a cast oven, thus saving still more fuel. Further economizing features will be explained by the McClary Agent.

ADVENTURES of the WORLD'S GREAT DETECTIVES

By George Barton

The Story of the Purple Lining

A thrilling adventure in the career of Otto Busdorf of the Royal Police of Berlin.

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY W G CHAPMAN

CLUTCHED IN HIS ICY FINGERS WAS A BIT OF PURPLE LINING

HE LEFT THE BLEEDING MAN AND FLED DOWN THE STREET

(This is one of a new series of stories concerning adventures that have occurred in the lives of the world's greatest detectives. Mr. Barton has gathered his material from real life, but in some cases imaginary names have been substituted for real ones simply as a matter of justice to the innocent descendants of culprits whose names have been taken in the construction and dramatic development of these tales, but in all that is essential they may be regarded as reliable documents of actual interest and value.—The Editor.)

The town of Myslowitz is on the Prussian frontier. It has a population of about ten thousand persons and is a thriving little community. The fact that it is almost on the line between Germany and Russia, and that it has coal and coal mines, has given it more than ordinary prominence. It has its churches and theaters, and a conspicuous-looking financial institution which is known as the Markewitz bank.

The constant exchange of money for use in the two countries has made the bank one of the most prosperous establishments in the town. The cashier of the bank, Franz Ossoli, occupied a little cage by himself in one corner of the counting room. On New Year's eve of last year the young cashier was practically alone in the building, barring, of course, the messengers and watchmen. It was a few minutes before closing time when four men stepped in front of the building and engaged in conversation with a woman who happened to be going in or out of the place. Presently two of the men stationed themselves at each corner of the building, and the other two went inside. One of them, a tall, smooth-faced, fair-haired young man, asked the cashier to exchange Russian for German money. Anoli readily consented. He brought the cash out of the drawer and had counted out what would be about a thousand dollars in our money in German marks and Russian rubles. After he had made the proper amount he gazed up at his customer and found that he was looking into the muzzle of an automatic revolver.

"Give me that money," said the intruder, making a reach for the cash with his disengaged hand.

"You'll not get it," retorted the plucky cashier.

"If you don't give it to me, I'll kill you," was the fierce retort.

"You can't have it," was the uncompromising rejoinder.

The next moment the stranger began firing. He sent five bullets into the hapless cashier's body. Then, with his pal, he broke into the enclosure and tried to open the safe. Anoli, though badly wounded, got hold of the pair and tried to throw him out of the room; but he was already dying from the effects of the pistol shots and could do but little. However, he clutched the inside of the assassin's coat and in the struggle that ensued he tore away a large part of the purple lining of the garment.

By this time the noise of the encounter was heard on the outside and some people started to come into the bank. A woman was the first to enter, and as the crooks saw her they hastily gathered up their booty and started for the door. She endeavored to stop them and they promptly knocked her down. When they reached the outside of the building a number of citizens started after them, but the four robbers ran at the top of their speed, while the murderer kept the pursuers at a distance at the point of his pistol. In a few minutes they had crossed the bridge leading to the Russian side and were soon on their native soil. The pursuers, returning to the bank, found that the cashier was dead. He lay there clutching the bit of purple lining in his icy fingers.

The police made a careful investigation, but did not succeed in obtaining any facts beyond those that have already been related. The few people who were in and around the bank at the time were too much excited to give an intelligent description of the assassin and his accomplices. The local authorities did all in their power to run down the crooks, but without result. Their resources naturally were not great enough to cope with a band of such unscrupulous and bloodthirsty criminals.

In addition to this, the local police seemed to have a wholesome fear of the thieves. They did their duty as far as that term is commonly accepted, but they did not appear to have any great desire for a hand-to-hand encounter with men who were so ready to shoot and kill.

In this emergency the authorities of Myslowitz appealed to the police of Berlin. They asked that a first-class officer be detailed to run out this case and to bring the offenders to justice, and thereby put an end to the reign of terror which was otherwise sure to continue in their town for some time to come. As a consequence of this, Otto Busdorf, of the Royal Police of Berlin, was assigned to the task of bringing the criminals to justice. He came unannounced and he wandered about the quaint little frontier town until he knew the place and the people by heart. He sat in the rathskellars with a mug of beer before him and studied the people who came and went. He dressed in a commonplace style and acted in such a self-effacing way that his presence was scarcely noticed. Busdorf is a small, compactly-built man. He is smooth-faced, red-headed, has blue eyes, a positive chin and jaw, and is about thirty years of age. His only weakness, and he confesses it with a smile, is his love for the cornet. To him it is the music that "hath charms to soothe the savage breast." What his neighbors think of it is not to be mentioned in this connection. Envious persons say that bootjacks, hairbrushes and other missiles have been found in the yard under his bedroom window on more than one morning. However, that has nothing to do with the case.

His phlegmatic exterior merely masks his tenacious intensity of purpose. He became acquainted with the haunts of the under world in Myslowitz, which, after all, was not a difficult achievement in such a comparatively small community. One night, at a cheap boarding house in the lower part of the town, he managed to make an examination of the overcoats that hung on the hall rack. One of them had a purple lining and a large part of it had been torn out. It matched perfectly with the fragment that had been found in the stiffened fingers of the murdered cashier.

Busdorf learned that the garment belonged to one Julius Woolwich. The latter was a youth of only nineteen years of age, but he had already committed as much crime into that time as the ordinary crook accomplishes during a long life. He had passed most of his life along the river which marks the border of Silesia, Prussian and Russian Poland. He was known as a common pickpocket and had been engaged in what we call "second story" robberies. It was not surprising to know that he had finally added murder to his catalogue of crimes. Busdorf arranged to arrest him, but Woolwich took alarm and left the country. The shrewd German, however, knew that the fellow would return, so he bided his time and waited patiently. He learned that Woolwich was infatuated with the eldest daughter of a widow who lived in Myslowitz, so he kept a close watch on this house, but a man, even though he be a detective, must have his intervals of rest, and one evening Busdorf quit his vigil, leaving a substitute to watch the house. This was in February of the present year, on the night of the eighth of that month. The murderer crept back to Myslowitz and went to the house of his fair charmer. The daughter happened to be away from home.

The mother did not like the young man and was decidedly opposed to the match. She knew of his misdeeds and that both Germany and Russia had offered rewards for his arrest, so she decided to give him over to the police. She managed to send the younger daughter to the authorities. During the interval she entertained her unbidden visitor in the sitting room of their modest home. The young girl could not find a policeman, so she made her appeal to a prison guard whom she happened to meet on the street. He was unarmed, but started immediately for the house.

Woolwich saw him coming in the front door. He suspected that it was a trap. He hurried out and met the guard half way, and when the man tried to arrest him, pulled his pistol and shot at him four or five times. He left the bleeding man, while he ran down the street and once again crossed the bridge and made his way into Russian Poland.

It must be remembered that all this time Busdorf had not seen Woolwich. But he had a description of him and a good photograph. Besides, he was certain that he had once arrested the boy for pocket picking. He got on his trail now in earnest. Before many days he received a tip that the murderer had been seen in Halle, the quaint city of Prussian Saxony. He went there and caught a glimpse of him standing beneath the old clock tower which is one of the show places of the city. The detective and the criminal played a game of hide and seek. They went in and out of the Church of Our Lady, the famous Moritzburg stronghold, and the grounds of the University of Halle. The disciple of Cain next proceeded to Bremen with the stolid but persistent detective still on his trail. In that city Busdorf met a peasant boy and asked him the way to the nearest police station.

"I don't know," replied the youth, with a Polish accent.

"Don't you live here?"

"No," nodded the peasant.

With that last word they recognized one another. The boy's disguise was good, but it was penetrated by the detective. But by a clever stratagem the clever youth eluded him, and once again Busdorf lost the trail. He regained it in a short time, however, by persistent work.

Although Busdorf had left his cornet at home, his thinking faculties were still in good working order. He sat down and reasoned out the whole matter to his own satisfaction. He decided that Woolwich's destination was America and that he had disguised himself in the belief that his youth and his peasant dress would permit him to enter the new world without suspicion. Having reached this conclusion, the detective secured a list of the various immigrant boarding houses in Bremen—and they were quite numerous in that city—and visited them one by one. He had gone almost to the end of his list when he found the proprietor of a house where the fugitive had evidently taken temporary quarters.

"He answers your description," said the boarding house keeper, "but I am not certain that he is the man you want."

"Well, we will soon determine that," said Busdorf.

"How?" asked the proprietor.

"By permitting you to take a look at this picture," and the detective pulled out a cabinet photograph of the youth of whom he was in pursuit.

"That's the man! That's the man!" cried the landlord. "But I'm afraid you are too late."

"Why?"

"He left the house about two hours ago and said he was going to leave the city."

"What did he mean by that?"

"I think he meant he was going to America."

"What makes you think that?"

"Because the steamer 'Zeitan' is to sail this afternoon."

Busdorf waited to hear no more, but secured a conveyance and hurried to the wharf. The boat had already sailed and was out of sight. But the Berlin detective did not despair. He was as calm and as phlegmatic as usual. Also, he was as inexorable as fate. He went into the steamship office and learned just when the "Zeitan" was expected to arrive in New York. He was pleased to learn that it was a slow boat. Next he made inquiries and found that there was a possibility of his overtaking Woolwich if he could catch the American line steamship "St. Louis" at Southampton. He made the journey to that place in record-breaking time. Phineas Fogg, in his famous journey around the world, never overcame more obstacles in less time than did the little red-headed detective from the Berlin police department.

He reached the big American liner only two minutes before her time set for sailing and boarded her. Then, in true German fashion, he ate a hearty dinner, taking his time and including everything on the bill from soup to nuts. After that he was ready for business.

He interviewed Captain Jamieson, the commander of the ship, and explained his mission. The mariner placed the wireless outfit of the ship at the service of the detective. They had not been out very long when the "St. Louis" in this way managed to get in touch with the steamer "Caronia" bound for Liverpool. Through the wireless operator the detective asked the captain of that ship if he had picked up the "Zeitan," remarking that if so would he please say for the German government that there was a murderer named Julius Woolwich on board of the boat and that the commander of the "Zeitan" should place him in irons. The wireless operator of the "Caronia" replied that they had picked up the "Zeitan," but that the latter had heard nothing about Woolwich. However, the operator very obligingly said that he would spread the news all over the ocean by means of the wireless.

While nothing definite had been accomplished, much progress was being made. On Tuesday night the "St. Louis" once again, by means of the wireless, got into conversation with the Italian liner "Ancona," whose operator was told all about the escaping murderer. The "Ancona" replied that she would endeavor to get into communication with the "Zeitan," which was then outside of the wireless zone of the "St. Louis." On Wednesday morning the "St. Louis" conversed with the Italian liner "Virginia," who was on her way to New York, and said that she was in touch with the "Zeitan." On Thursday morning out the "St. Louis" actually got into communication with the "Zeitan." The operator thereon acknowledged the message, admitted that Woolwich was aboard and said that he had been placed in irons in the hold of the ship.

That was all that Busdorf desired to know. He immediately went to bed and slept the sleep of a successful detective. He reached New York, hurried to the pier where the "Zeitan" was expected to arrive, met the murderer of the bank cashier, and promptly placed him under arrest. He did it in the most matter-of-fact manner. The American detectives, who assisted him, were lavish in their praise. They glorified Otto Busdorf; they even gave him a dinner. He was thoroughly appreciative of their kindness, but did not appear in any way elated over his accomplishment. He had been sent to arrest a murderer and he had carried out his orders.

After the necessary legal formalities had been complied with, the detective and his prisoner sailed for the other side. Some admirers accompanied him to the dock. One of them said:

"I suppose you will be delighted to get home?"

"Yes," said Busdorf, "I will have a chance to play my cornet again."

STEEL SPECKS IN THE FLOUR

Man of Science Announces Gravely That This Is One of the Causes of Appendicitis.

Dr. Alfred M. Conner of London, claims that appendicitis is due to steel flour. Steel from the mill rollers gets into the flour. We eat this minute steel and as it goes round the blind it shunts off on the blind side. In time it stacks up like a calm heap and irritation ensues.

A good part of the steel is absorbed, to be sure. That explains why it is not found in any of the cases operated on. But the point is, no doubt, that more than the 10-penny nail of iron allowed to each mortal is taken in and the body's magnetic equilibrium is thereby upset. The man who invented graham bread died of indigestion, but if he had drawn a magnet through it before baking he would have removed the steel particles and might have lived forever.

The wise cook today will buy a small magnet and thoroughly stir half a flour with it before putting in the water and yeast. Let her wipe off the magnet every little while. The black specks that adhere are tiny bits of steel. Bread made in this way may be eaten without fear of appendicitis.

At the Celestial Gate.

The druggist approached the Celestial gate. St. Peter opened the portal for him and bade him enter and join the heavenly choir.

"Not so fast," admonished the compounder of pills. "Before I go in there I want to ask a few questions. Have you any city directories in Paradise?"

"No," replied St. Peter.

"Any remedies for growing hair on bald heads and door knobs?"

"None."

"Any soda fountains?"

"We don't know what they are."

"Do you sell stamps?"

"We don't use them here."

"And last, but not least, have you any telephones?"

"We have not."

"Then I'll go in, for I guess this is Heaven all right, all right."—Louisville Post.

Foretold in a Dream.

A fatal accident that was foretold in a dream was described yesterday at an inquest at Old Hill, near Birmingham, on the body of a miner named Benjamin Westwood, who was killed at the Fly Colliery.

His brother William said that on Tuesday night he had a dream, and in it he saw his brother killed. He added: "I did not go to work on Wednesday morning, for my dream made me so ill that I was unable to do any work since.

"In my dream I saw a considerable quantity of coal fall from the roof on to my brother, knock him down and kill him, and from what those who witnessed the accident have told me, my dream was fulfilled. I did not go to my brother's house to warn him, as I was too ill to leave home."—London Chronicle.

Picked Up Here and There.

"It's a shame the way they crowd these cars. The passengers should rise up and insist on getting a chance to sit down."

"You may send me up the complete work of Shakespeare, Goethe and Emerson—also something to read."

"I'd like to dance and I should dance, only the music puts me out and the girl gets in my way."

"Yes, her husband robbed her of every cent she had—and just think, she only married him because she was afraid of burglars!"

"Hello! Is this the butcher? Well, you may send me up a roast of beef, and remember, please, butcher, to have it rare. That's the only way my husband can eat it."—Boston Transcript.

A Wide-Awake Constable.

"Ye say ye ain't been speedin', eh?" said Silas as he stopped the car.

"Nary a speed," said the chauffeur, trying to be amiable.

"When did ye leave Quinceville?" demanded Silas, suspiciously.

"Five o'clock this morning," said the chauffeur, with a wink at his companion.

"Five this mornin', eh?" said the constable, catching the wink. "Takes ye six hours to come four miles. Wa-al, I guess I'll run ye in, anyhow, only I'll change the complaint from overspeedin' to obstructin' the highway."—Harper's Weekly.

How It Was Remarkable.

An elderly gentleman of rural appearance had hardly seated himself in the crosstown street car, says Judge, when a young lady who had followed him in approached him.

"Sir, did you lose a five-dollar bill?" she asked.

For a moment the farmer observed her with a surprised, curious look, then said convincingly: "Yes, ma'am, I did."

"Then here it is," said she, handing the bill to him. "I picked it up behind you from the car floor."

"Thank ye very much, young lady, for your honesty. This is a most remarkable happening!"

"Oh, I don't think so, sir! I believe every one should return the money in such a case as this. What is there so remarkable about it?"

"Why, I lost my five-dollar bill from my pocket right here in this car!"

HON. MRS HENRY T. COVENTRY

Formerly Miss Edith Kipo of New York, is being credited with an unique act of generosity. Mrs. Coventry has a magnificent town house, but finding the need of a country seat, she some time ago leased Stoke Park, at Henley-on-Thames, the solitary seat of Lord Comoys, who is to marry Miss Mildred Sherman of New York and Newport. Mrs. Coventry is very much attached to the place, but when she heard of the approaching marriage of Baron Comoys, she handed over the lease to the struggling young bridegroom.

THEATRE, OPERA HOUSE AND CIRCUS ARENA

Great Structure Being Erected in Dresden, Berlin, Which Will Seat Five Thousand

A wonderful theatre, opera house and circus arena combined is springing into existence in Dresden under the auspices of the Saxon Ministers of Education and Finance. In this marvellous building Caruso will be able to sing before five thousand people, Mark Antony will be able to address an audience of four thousand Roman citizens, and, owing to the vast seating accommodation, Wagner, on a most magnificent scale, may be heard for one sixpence a head.

The architect responsible for the building which is to make all this possible is Herr Stosch Sorrasani, who has had vast experience in the building of coliseums and arenas. For the new building the Roman amphitheatre also forms the ground scheme; but at one side of the vast arena, with its tiers of seats, situated eccentrically, like a smaller circle just within the circumference of a larger circle, an enormous dome thirty-six yards in diameter, is being built.

Beneath this dome will be an ordinary theatre stage, with all the usual equipment, while a hidden orchestra will divide the front of the stage from the arena floor. Thus, one day the open ring may be occupied by the tumbling clowns and performing elephants of the circus. The next day the arena floor may be sunk a few inches by hydraulic machinery, the fauteuils be extended right across to the orchestra, and Wagner opera may be played before five thousand people.

As soon as Lohengrin and his swan have disappeared, the fauteuils can be cleared away and the arena floor sunk to its greatest depth, from which a magnificent tier of terraced steps will rise to the highest point of the stage. Here the singers and musicians of the Ninth Symphony can be provided with an ideal resting place, or Mark Antony, from the steps of the Capitol on the stage itself, can look down over all Rome to the outside limits of the arena floor. The magnificent possibilities of this mountain-like show place have induced Herr Reinhardt, the famous organizer of pageants, to join forces with Herr Stosch Sorrasani, and Dresden in the future will witness some of the most colossal spectacular productions. For instance, the three-storied "Faust"—Heaven, Earth, Hell—will be produced here on a scale which has hitherto been impossible.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP IN ENGLAND DECLINES

Rev. Dr. Clifford Gives Reasons for the Numerical Decline in Adherents

Rev. Dr. Clifford, London, the eminent Non-Conformist divine, was asked while in Canada as to the decline in Church membership in the Old Country, which had been revealed by statistics.

"In the first place," he said, "the numerical decrease in church membership must be attributed to emigration. Only the other day I heard from a minister in Aberdeen that nearly three hundred were leaving every week from there alone. And the class of people who are emigrating to-day are to a great extent the straight-going and straight-living, hardy citizens who are to be found as members of churches. Numbers such are emigrating to the Canadian North-West. In the second place, the movement for men, known as the 'Pleasant Sunday Afternoons,' has been crowned with success in England, having, in point of fact, enrolled some five hundred thousand members within the last two or three years, and this has, no doubt, detracted from any addition to Church membership. Thirdly, so far as the Baptists are concerned, our members increased prodigiously some four years or so ago, at the time of the revival in which the 'boy evangelist' was so notable a figure. Large numbers of these new converts have not persevered as church members in large measure, no doubt, owing to the churches not being sufficiently prepared to nurture and keep them. Fourthly, there is a certain amount of theological unrest in the air at the present time, and this has, no doubt, detrimentally affected church membership. However, there probably always is some theological unrest where there is real religious progress."

SHIPBUILDING PLANTS

Various Points in Canada Where Shipyards are Located

The two best known inland shipbuilding plants are those of the Polson Iron Works, at Toronto, and the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company of Collingwood. The Polson Company, being on Lake Ontario, is confined to building ships small enough to pass through the locks or else to large vessels required for Lake Ontario and the Upper St. Lawrence River alone. The Collingwood plant has the upper lakes to work on. The following is a fairly complete and correct list of the most capacious dry docks of Canada. The names of the owners are mentioned together with the size of the docks, (1) figures have reference to length, (2) width of entry, (3) depth of water at entry in feet:

The Collingwood Shipbuilding Company has two large stone and concrete dry docks. One is 525 ft. long by 75 ft. wide; the other is 425 ft. long by 105 ft. wide, capable of docking two boats abreast. Both of these docks have 16½ ft. of water over the sill and keel blocks.

In addition to the above, there are several marine railways, such, for instance, as the Government property at Sorel, Que., and a number of slips.

IMMIGRATION RECORD

The Canadian Pacific Railway announces that for four months from the first of March its immigration traffic from St. John and Quebec westward has reached the total of 110,000 people. Compared with the figures for 1909 and 1910 the new figures are astonishing. Compared with last year's figures the increase is not so marked, the difference being only about fifteen thousand, but compared with 1909 the immigration traffic from St. John and Quebec westward has increased by nearly 65,000. The figures for 1909 were only 46,000. The 1911 record to date means that since the first of March immigrants have been pouring through Montreal at the rate of 1,000 a day.

In April, 1908, there were only 1,243 branches in Canada, 5 in Newfoundland and 43 elsewhere—a total of 1,891. Twenty-two of these were in the West Indies.

ON BOTH SIDES OF THE GLOBE CURZON CLOTHING is known and appreciated.

Curzon Clothing is sold with a guarantee. Every garment turned out reflects additional credit on the "House of Curzon." Style, quality and fit are the points studied in the producing of every garment, and it is for this reason that "The Curzon-dressed man is the well-dressed man."

For years past Curzon tailoring has been popular among men residing in Canada, for by means of the Curzon Service residents over-seas are able to enjoy absolute "Clothes-comfort" and can secure their clothing at very little more cost than in the Home Country.

Curzon $20 Suit or Overcoat for $8.60 is an investment. Built entirely of English materials, tailored by experts, cut by artists, it embodies all the necessary features that go to make a shapely and stylish garment. That is why our clothing is sold with a unique guarantee, a guarantee made without any restrictions whatever, and not equalled by any tailoring house on either side of the Atlantic, i.e., to refund money in full where complete satisfaction is not given.

TORTURED FOR THIRTY FIVE YEARS

"I really could not live without 'Fruit-a-tives'"

PEMBROKE, Ont., July 29th, 1910.

"For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation. No matter what remedy or physicians I employed, the result was always the same—temporary relief, but never a cure. About two years ago, I tried to try them.

I have used 'Fruit-a-tives' ever since. They are the first and only medicine that relieved my case. If it were not for 'Fruit-a-tives' I am satisfied that I could not live." JAMES PE[illegible]POY.

The greatest remedy in the world for all forms of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, is "Fruit-a-tives". Doctors as well as hundreds of people proclaim it.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures all stomach troubles because it makes the liver active, strengthens the kidneys, purifies the blood and keeps the stomach sweet and clean. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy made of fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TEACH BUSINESS IN A UNIVERSITY

Proposal in England to Establish a Commercial University for the Benefit of the Young Men of the Empire

Leading commercial men in England and the colonies are now agitating for the foundation of a great British commercial university. The education authorities have so far taken a few tentative steps, but it is complained that Great Britain is behind other countries in this matter, and if she is to keep her hold upon the trade of the world, must have commercial colleges where young men can be trained for business life, as they are for the Army and Navy.

An important beginning was made at a special meeting of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce at Dublin the other day, when the Australasian Chamber of Commerce of London moved the resolution:

"That, in the opinion of this Association it is desirable that steps should be taken with the object of founding a commercial university in this country, and that a committee should be elected to inquire into and report upon the question generally."

A prominent member of the London Chamber of Commerce said:—

"England is badly in need of a commercial university.

"As matters stand at present, if a merchant wants to give his son a sound business education, he cannot do so without actually taking the lad into his office. We want colleges where young man could learn all about banking, marine insurance, export trades, or any kind of business, and, if we do not get them soon other nations will outstrip us in the struggle for the world's commerce. At present the German business training is far superior to ours, and even Servia, Bulgaria, and Hungary, have better commercial schools.

"It is often suggested that the young Englishman of to-day is indifferent about his work, and more interested in sport and music-halls than in business. But I know from experience that this is not so. The attendance at the evening classes in the London County Council schools (which classes, by the way, are doing excellent work) show what a demand there is for knowledge of business. And I can give you another proof of this hunger for commercial information. Some time ago this Chamber of Commerce organised a series of lectures upon different branches of business, each course being delivered by an acknowledged authority upon in particular subject. We had 1,800 students at these lectures; 400 of them attended those upon marine insurance, and 98 per cent. of the students completed the course for which they were entered. That does not look like indifference, does it?

"Let me repeat that, in my opinion, the nation badly needs a commercial university, which should be supported by the State. It would be difficult to find the right sort of professors, for men of actual business experience, would be wanted. The ordinary tutor would be useless. But if we are to maintain our commercial supremacy, that and every other difficulty in the way of establishing such a university, must be overcome."

NEW SEIGE GUN

German Military Authorities Carry On Successful Experiments

Some interesting experiments have recently been carried out by the German military authorities at Dobernitz with a new type of siege gun constructed by Messrs. Kruppe. According to present "siege technique," the artillery of an attacking army has to cease bombarding the enemy's entrenchment as soon as the storming infantry gets to close quarters, otherwise the stormers are likely to be shot down by their own guns from the rear. The new gun has been devised to overcome this difficulty. It has an extremely narrow, unrifled fore, and is of very light construction, easily movable by being carried by two men, and is intended to be carried in the front lines of the advancing infantry. Its most remarkable feature is its projectile, which consists of a round bomb of great diameter loaded with a very powerful explosive mixture. The bomb is of far greater diameter than the bore of the gun which throws it, and is provided with a long stick-like tail which is loaded into the barrel of the gun, its lower end, which is enlarged to a wad or piston-like form, resting on the gun-charge at the bottom of the barrel. The bomb itself merely lies on the gun-muzzle quite outside of the bore itself.

YOUTH AND AGE

A Hermit of Seventy-Seven Weds a Girl of Seventeen

The forest love romances of Herr Emanuel Feldheim, a millionaire, seventy-seven years old, who for thirty years has passed a hermit's life at Nyiregyhaz, Hungary, has led to his marriage with Fraulein Jolan Klein, a beautiful girl of seventeen.

Herr Feldheim was the solitary occupant of a large house in the heart of a lonely forest, where he was in the habit of taking long walks. A year ago he noticed that a small cottage on his estate was occupied by a man named Klein, of good birth, but reduced circumstances, and that he had a beautiful daughter. After several meetings, when the old man would be accompanied in his walks by the young girl, he asked her to marry him.

By way of dowry Herr Feldheim has settled half of his fortune on his girl-bride, whose exquisite dresses have been causing a sensation in Marienbad, where the honeymoon is being spent.

GERMAN TEN COMMANDMENTS

How Patriotism is Being Advanced in the Fatherland

The "Ten Commandments," of Germany have been printed as a pamphlet and are being circulated by the million copies throughout the Fatherland. They breathe a spirit of intense patriotism, in the commercial sense—and distrust of foreign products. Here is the new German Decalogue:

I.—In spending money, however small the amount, never lose sight of the interests of your compatriots and country.

II.—Do not forget that when you buy an article from a foreign country, even though it may cost a copper coin, you diminish to that extent the wealth of your country.

III.—Your money ought only to benefit German merchants and workmen.

IV.—Do not profane the German nation, the German tires or the German workshops by using foreign machines or implements.

V.—Do not allow foreign meat to be served at your table. Using foreign meat is harmful to the German breeder. Besides, it may compromise your health, since foreign meats are not inspected by the German sanitary police.

VI.—Write on German paper with a German pen, and use a German blotting-pad.

VII.—Wear only German clothes and German hats.

VIII.—German flour, German fruits, and German beer alone give German strength.

IX.—Drink coffee which comes from the German colonies. If you prefer cocoa or chocolate, see that they are exclusively of German manufacture.

X.—Do not let the boasting of foreigners turn you from these wise precepts, and remember that the best products, and the only ones worthy of a citizen of Great Germany, are German products.

ART ON MATCHBOXES

Art is hereafter to be connected with matchboxes. The Ministry of Finance, having to renew the supply decided some time ago that as not every workingman has leisure to study the pictures at the Louvre, the opportunity should be given him of admiring them on his matchboxes. Some of these have hitherto been ornamented with the heads of the famous generals of the Revolution. The generals will now have to retire, and make way for the Rembrandts, the Van Dycks and the Whistlers of the Louvre. The price is to remain the same.

Was So Bad With Summer Complaint He Passed Blood.

Mrs. Stanley Brant, Desaronto, Ont., writes:—"My little boy, Stanley, 14 years old took the Summer Complaint and got so bad as to pass blood. I tried everything I was told would be good for it but to no avail until, at last, I tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and I am glad to say I only gave him a few doses of it before he was cured."

Chimney Sweep's Cruelty

A Willesden chimney sweep was stated at the police court to have tied his dog to the back of his trap and driven so fast that the unfortunate animal was dragged along the ground. It was also said he lashed the animal when too exhausted to run. A fine of $10 was imposed.

Laughter on the Bench

The loquacity of two magistrates on the Folkestone Bench evoked a protest from the solicitor whose client was giving evidence. He complained that they were laughing. One justice said it was quite unconscious, the other advising the advocate not to be so indiscreet. The solicitor declined to proceed, and left the court, his client being fined.

Mersey Lightship Sunk

The Belfast steamer Pacuare sank the North-West Lightship at the entrance to the Mersey, the lightship going down within three minutes of the collision. The captain and crew of three were rescued, but lost all their effects. The Pacuare was going out to sea to jettison a cargo of bananas, which had been left to rot owing to the strike.

Ireland's population is now 4,381,951, a decrease since 1901 of 76,884 persons.

QUEEN OF SWEDEN

Victoria has Bought a Villa on the Island of Capri

Queen Victoria of Sweden, who is obliged to spend the winter and the greater part of each spring abroad for the sake of her health, has just bought a villa on the island of Capri, twenty miles south of Naples, her favorite resort. The situation of Villa Caprile is a retired one on a steep cliff, from which there is a magnificent view of the famed Bay of Naples. The only means of approach is by a mule track. The Queen is well known to the people of Capri, and is very popular on account of her friendly ways and many charitable actions.

RAPIDLY MAKING FARMS

In a northeasterly and northwesterly direction for about fifteen miles around Liskeard considerable over one-half of the land has been cleared up and cropped, and the machinery merchants have a busy time. Some of the farmers on a large scale are already taking to stock and are contemplating rebuilding their barns and fencing their land in preparation for this. Of course this branch of agriculture is quite as profitable, if not more so, than the produce grown.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Branch Line, Dartmouth to Deane" will be received at this office until sixteen o'clock on Friday, September 15th, 1911.

Plans, profiles, specification and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 15th instant at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton; and at the office of the Board of Trade of Halifax. Forms of tender may be procured from the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals or from the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $150,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

THE TENT CATERPILLAR

A Local Visitor Who is Causing Mischief Elsewhere

A prisoner captured at Cache Bay in northern Ontario was forwarded to Toronto confined in a small matchbox with the report that he and a multitude of his kind were devouring the leaves of the poplar and other soft woods. Judging by his appearance to escape, he felt his position keenly. He was well equipped for escaping, having six real legs, grouped forward in three pairs, four pairs of temporary legs, which he intended to abandon when preparing for his short, transforming sleep, and one pair of terminal grippers. He was slender and dull in color, and about an inch and three-quarters long when in a hurry, and his black back was decorated with a row of narrow white spots and a few erect hairs. The dull blue stripes on his sides were margined with touches of inconspicuous yellow, and protected by soft hairs pointing downward. The leaf contained with him for food was dry and hard, but he breakfasted in a disenfluried way on a green leaf from a Lombardy poplar. It was not necessary to forward the report of his depredations from the north, for his reputation is already established here. He is one of a colony of tent caterpillars, and is known to his intimate friends as Malacosoma disstria. He is a tent-builder, but does not told his tent when stealing away, preferring to leave it exposed to wind and rain after autumn has removed such of the foliage as he did not need for food.

Every family of tent caterpillars builds a large silken tent in early spring. A slender forked branch of a wild cherry or wild plum is a favorite location, and within the big silk purse the caterpillars gather in a compact mass, issuing to feed on the surrounding leaves. There is a similar species which confines its operations almost exclusively to fruit trees, wild and tame, but the prisoner from the north specializes less in his tastes. When the tent with its hungry inhabitants is discovered, the question naturally arises as to how they came to locate there. The trail by which they arrived is always distinct. The road is paved with silken material similar to that used in constructing the tent, and it can be traced back to one of the smaller twigs where a clasping lump oilngs, as if it were an unhealthy growth of the bark. This is the hard case that protected the eggs throughout the winter, and it now shows the many crowding apertures from which the young larvae emerged to search for a tenting place. Some of the tents are cut down and burned with all their inhabitants as soon as they are constructed. All of them should be. When a tent escapes, its inhabitants devour the adjacent foliage until full grown, when each seeks a secluded place to spin a sleeping bag. In a short time they awaken and come forth, inconspicuous grey moths, in no way resembling their larvae existence. This is the final stage in their life history. Male female wasps as egg mass w s controlled by and covers it with a gum that resists the attack of winter. Thus through many strange transformations that mysterious activity we call life is passed on from season to season, and from age to age.—The Globe.

ARTHUR STRINGER

The Poet Novelist Made a Brief Visit to Toronto

Arthur Stringer, the Canadian poet-novelist, shook the dust of his Kent county farm from his feet recently and visited Toronto for a day. His face wears the bronze that comes to a man who hoes potatoes between writing chapters, but beneath the outer covering is a suit-tan gained in Italian seas during a spring-time holiday.

It is difficult to say which claims most of his affection in the summer, the pen or the hoe.

"We expect to have new potatoes next Sunday," he told his friends ecstatically.

At other seasons he talks with most of the magazine and book market in New York, where he spends his winters.

"But the more I see of Canada after being away the better Canadian I am," he says, with real enthusiasm.

"SOCKEYES" SCARCE

Pack on the Fraser River is Below the Average

The sockeye salmon fishing season on the Fraser River has opened. Reports say no large quantities of the fish have reached the river, and the pack is consequently below the average.

Reports from Rivers Inlet state that the run of fish had been poor at that point, many of the canneries not having put up 50 cases. Bad weather has prevailed at Rivers Inlet. Similar reports have come from the Skeena, where the pack is said to be much less than usual at this period.

TREATED WITH CONTEMPT

Russians Say the Chinese Even Fire at Them

The Novoye Vremya, one of the most influential papers in St. Petersburg, virtually declares war against China, and denounces Russia's submissive policy towards the Celestial Empire, which has produced an impossible state of affairs on the Russo-Chinese, otherwise the Manchurian, frontier.

For instance, Russian fishermen, whenever their boats approach the opposite banks of the Amur River, are fired at and mercilessly shot by the Chinese, who also destroy the navigation marks fixed in the river by the Russian authorities. Such marks and also lights have been removed by the Chinese from the River Usuri for a distance of over ten miles. Russian attempts to replace them for the safety of navigators have been opposed by Chinese armed force, and four Russians have been shot as a raft on the Amur.

The Chinese have learned to respect the Hoonguose bandits, but treat Russians with contempt. Blood has already been spilt, says the Novoye Vremya, and violence must be met by violence. Russia's recent ultimatum to Pekin has been nullified by all kinds of Chinese tricks against Russians as regards both Mongolia and Manchuria, which are set out in the very darkest colors in many columns of M. Suvorin's paper.

EAGLE TOOK HIS CAP

Thrilling Experience of a Schoolmaster While on His Bicycle

A schoolmaster from Paris, who is spending his vacation near the Lake of Annecy, has had a great fright. An eagle stole his cap, and he does not yet know whether it was his cap or a piece of his own flesh the eagle wanted. The schoolmaster was returning on his bicycle from an excursion, when he suddenly felt a heavy blow on the head, as if he had been struck with a club. It stunned him for a while, and he could not make out whence the blow had come until he saw some people a little distance away, looking up at the sky. He looked up, too, and saw an eagle circling in the air only about fifty yards above his head, and carrying his cap in his claws. There was no doubt now that the eagle had swooped down and carried off the cap. The schoolmaster was thoroughly frightened, and got back on his bicycle to return to Annecy as fast as he could. Had the eagle, in pouncing down upon him, intended to carry off his entire body, and was the bird of prey deceived by getting only a cap? The whole thing is a mystery that still makes the schoolmaster shudder. The eagle stuck to the cap, which he had carried away.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best run tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a high class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look first right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

THE WORK CURE.

England's Novel Method For Treatment of Tuberculosis.

A treatment based on the curative effect of graduated labor is being tried out experimentally at the tuberculosis sanitarium in England with excellent results. It is known as "the work cure" and progress being made under this method is attracting much attention and claiming the undivided interest of all who are enlisted in the ranks battling to exterminate the great white plague. The director of the institution declares that patients undergoing the open-air treatment were found to make better progress when having a certain amount of work to do each day than when they were allowed to lead aimless lives. Practical use has been made of this observation and a systematic table of work suitable for those in different stages of the disease is the result.

This work is divided into six grades, varying from the slightest labor given to those who are unfitted for active exercise—sewing, making mats, etc., to the really heavy work of trenching, mixing concrete and felling trees. Short walks are considered to be light labor for those who can get about, and are followed as progress made by such easy garden employment as picking up wood, carrying baskets of mould and watering plants.

From these occupations the patients are gradually led on to the heavier tasks of using the small shovel, grass cheese or a light hoe, eventually progressing to the still more strenuous work of digging broken ground and mowing lawns. When, after the most careful regulation of his work, a patient attains the ambitious post of a chopper of trees, the completion of his "cure" is well within sight.

Those who have successfully passed through the lighter grades of work carry out the latter stages of hard physical labor without shirking and with the greatest benefit to their health. The women, too, do all manner of outdoor work, but their tasks and tools are smaller than those of the men. As a rule, the patients work about four and one-half hours a day, and before they are considered fit to be discharged they are put to work at their customary trade or occupation for six hours a day for three weeks.

At the institution where this experiment has been conducted the net results are as follows: Out of 419 consumptive patients in the last year 192 have shown complete arrest of the disease and 195 have presented very considerable improvement. Thus 80 per cent. have derived great benefit from the treatment and 45 per cent. have apparently been cured. Sixty-eight patients, advanced in the disease, showed only moderate improvement.

Generally speaking, the cases under treatment at this sanitarium are selected, and those who are about to enter the final stages, or who are in a feverish, exhausted condition, are excluded from the application of the outdoor system.

It is believed that this system, if undertaken in this country, would materially aid in solving the vast problem of tuberculosis here, which is greater in proportion than in any other country on the globe.

The Secretary Bird.

The strange long-legged bird inhabiting portions of South Africa, which has the peculiar title of "secretary" bird owing to the tuft of feathers resembling a bunch of quills behind the ear of a bookkeeper or secretary, has some very odd habits.

It is a bird that seldom uses its wings in flight, unless it deems it necessary to avoid some enemy on the surface. It can run when disturbed at about the same rate a horse can travel, but if it resorts to wing flight, it can raise itself several hundred feet in the air and fly quite rapidly.

They are great snake-killing birds, and resort to some rather unique methods in capturing the various reptiles found in that country.

The nest of the secretary bird is certainly a novelty. It is seldom constructed anywhere except in a tall tree, about 150 or 200 feet from the ground.

These nests are mammoth affairs. The materials used are heavy sticks and a lot of lumps of sod. These are placed in the forks of a stout branch and the whole nest lined with a fine grass or moss. Two eggs are usually deposited and incubation by the female bird lasts six weeks.

A DOUBLE CURE FOR DOUBLE TROUBLE

Father Morrissey's No. 26 Cures Catarrh by a Combined Treatment.

The sudden weather variations in our climate result in a great many cases of catarrh—a troublesome disease usually considered hard to cure, and one which often leads to serious pulmonary and intestinal troubles.

A neglected cold in the head weakens the nasal membranes, so that at every future exposure the trouble returns. At length these conditions are fastened onto the system, and the sufferer undergoes the annoyance and danger of chronic catarrh.

Some doctors confine themselves to prescribing external applications, and thus do not reach the seat of the trouble. Others give internal treatment exclusively, and thus do not promptly relieve the affected parts.

Father Morrissey, the skilled priest-physician, rightly regarded catarrh as a double trouble, consisting of unpleasant local effects and their fundamental causes, the latter having to do with impaired general vitality.

His famous remedy, No. 26, is a combined cure for catarrh. It consists of tablets to be taken three times a day, and an especially compounded salve.

The salve is antiseptic, and quickly heals the inflamed membranes of the nasal passages. The tablets go to the seat of the trouble and restore the system to its usual tone. Together, they cure.

Instead of neglecting a disease that is unpleasant to yourself and to others, and one which often leads to pneumonia and consumption, it is surely the part of wisdom to take timely steps to do away with the effects and at the same time remove the cause. No. 26 does just that.

THE NEW COWBOY.

[Rounding up cattle with an aeroplane is the latest achievement of the aviator.—Press Dispatch.]

Goodby, pal! I'm gone forever.
Ain't a-comin' back no more.
When the cowboy uses airships
Count me out, and count me there.
Give my saddle to old Pecos;
Give Comanch my plate boast;
You can have my spurs of silver—
I'm a-foggin' it back east.

When an air bronk gits to flyin',
Cattle' out a cattle herd.
Circlin' round the frightened dogies
Jes' about like some big bird.
Then I pull my freight and pronto
Durn it all, what is the use?
Don't catch me upon the roundup
Ridin' any such excuse.

Goodby, pardner! Soon this bunk house
As a hanger will be known.
Monoplanes will be a-flyin'
Where the cowboy rode alone.
'Scuse me, pards. I'd shore be tempted
For to cut loose with my Gat.
Let me vamoose 'fore I'm loosed—
While I know where I am at.

The Double Business.

Champ Clark may now be said to be famous. They have found his double, or, more properly, the double has found himself. They usually are self discovered. The more celebrated the man the more doubles he has. Mr. Roosevelt, notwithstanding the claim ants had to tighten their upper lips and give their lower jaws a sort of prognathous thrust to prove it, had oodles of doubles, and Lincoln, whose homeliness the Creator found inimitable, had so many doubles that, like Bill Nye's famous first white child born in California, it was at one time seriously proposed that they hold an annual convention. Mark Twain had a circular letter with which he always answered his double correspondence. It said:

My Dear Sir—Many thanks for your letter with inclosed photograph. Your resemblance to me is remarkable. In fact, to be perfectly honest, you look more like me than I do myself. I was so much impressed by the resemblance that I have had your picture framed and am now using it regularly in place of a mirror to shave by. Yours gratefully,

S. L. CLEMENS.

From Fear to Fifty.

"There's a burglar in the house!" whispered Mrs. Skinbone in an agonized voice. "Go down, James, and see."

"Nonsense!" replied her hubby sleepily. "You're dreaming."

"But I can hear him, James," she persisted. "There! He's reached the table with the cigar box"—

"Which cigar box?" exclaimed James, sitting up. "The one you gave me last Christmas?"

"Yes. I can hear him taking it up and putting it down again. Listen! He's struck a match! James, he must be going to smoke!"

"Then in that case, my dear," replied James, "let's go to sleep again. We shall find the poor wretch in the morning."—London Answers.

EUROPE SETTLING DOWN.

Not Getting Any Quieter, but the Land Is Slowly Sinking.

Geologists have of late years come to the conclusion that the entire central European plain, which extends from southwestern France through the Low Countries and north Germany to the Russian Baltic provinces, is slowly sinking.

The lowest section of this great coastal region is that part of Holland which lies from fifteen to twenty feet below sea level and has to be protected by immense dams and dikes against the danger of being submerged.

A Dutch engineer named Ten Cate has studied this subject, and he deals with Holland's danger at length in De Ingenieur, a Dutch technical paper. His investigations go back 2,000 years, and his conclusion is that the Dutch coastal sinks eight inches in a century.

This does not seem very alarming, but every little counts in a country which lies naturally so low as the Dutch coastal provinces. Besides, there is no justification for assuming that the settling down process will always be regular, and a sudden subsidence would be a very grave matter indeed.

Ten Cate proves his assertions by pointing to the situation of remains of Roman settlements in the Low Countries, which he calculates must now lie from five to fifteen feet below their original level. They were built some sixteen centuries ago.

A further indication of the lowering of Holland's level is the fact that the low hills or mounds to which as late as the middle ages people and their cattle used to flee for safety at flood times would not now afford the necessary protection.

AERIAL HIGHWAYS.

Difficulty of Framing "Rules of the Road" For Aviators.

One of the fundamental elements of the impending transformation is the modification which is appearing in property rights. The owner of a house and farm may put his sign by the roadside forbidding trespassers and be wholly within his rights. The air man at the same time serenely passes directly overhead, choosing his own highway in the air without so much as saying "by your leave." The so called private grounds lie spread out to view underneath and may be examined, photographed and even surveyed from above, while the owner is either ignorant of the intrusion or powerless to prevent it.

As with private property so with public regulations. Since there is no highway marked out in the air nor any method for compelling the aviator to keep to any particular route, such things as "rules of the road" may be invoked only when collision or other disaster places the man and his machine in the power of the official. Apparently the only manner in which authority may enforce any statutes regulating the conduct of the man in the air will be to catch him when he comes down to the surface of the earth, and in most instances the official will be obliged to take refuge in a ponderous indifference, much as the heavy policeman treats the jests of the naughty little boys who can evade him with mosquito-like agility.—Cassier's Magazine.

STEEL

and they cost so little!

Preston Steel Ceilings never need repairs and seldom need re-decorating. They will outlast the building you put them in. Thus they are the cheapest ceiling money buys, in point of service. Even in first cost they compete easily with plaster. In the long run, plaster simply doesn't compare. Nor does it in beauty. For these ceilings come in hundreds of most graceful, eye-charming designs, that can be painted in any color scheme. Our skilled decorators advise you, free, about colors, if you wish.

MR. STRATTON'S NORTHERN TOUR A CONTINUAL SERIES OF TRIUMPHS

Finished His Trip With a Magnificent Meeting at Swamp Lake Where the Hall Was Crowded to the Doors.

ALL FAVOUR PACT

Mr. Stratton and Mr. Harstone returned from Kinmount last evening, Mr. Stratton concluding a series of meetings in the north country by an overflowing audience at Swamp Lake School House. The school was nicely decorated with maple leaves, Union Jacks and Welcome emblems, and the attendance exceeded the capacity of the building, everyone in the neighbourhood being present.

Mr. Edward Allen occupied the chair and explained the object of the meeting for the purpose of discussing the question of the agreement entered into between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Harstone opened the meeting, explaining the nature of the agreement, the cause that led up to it and the reason for the election.

Mr. Stratton discussed the details of the agreement and its bearing upon the interests of the farmer and the manner in which it would promote the prosperity of all classes of the community.

The audience showed their sympathy with the arguments presented by their hearty applause. Mr. Stratton held four of the most successful meetings ever held in Galway and Cavendish. The attendance was large and the interest manifested in the adoption of the agreement and the return of himself was enthusiastic to a degree never before experienced in his twenty-five years of campaigning in the north country.

Mob Law In Far Off Italy

Special Wire to the Examiner.

ROME, SEPT. 9.—Angered by the extreme measures taken by the authorities to stamp out the cholera epidemic in their city, the inhabitants of Delcolle, Italy, a population to the number of twenty thousands, stormed the hospitals and isolation station, liberating all the patients and carrying the dead and dying down the streets in a ghastly procession. The police are powerless and order was restored only when carabineers arrived and used their sabres and bullets to drive the citizens into submission. After much bloodshed, the soldiers secured control of the situation, but the determined inhabitants burned down all the hospitals and other places where the sick were taken and some fifty patients were burned to death. The King and Queen of Italy have sent a personal appeal to the people to permit sanitary measures to be taken to control the disease.

If you have mislaid the number, "Moon College, Toronto," will find us.

THE BEARING OF THE AGREEMENT UPON INTERNATIONAL TRADE

How the Reciprocity Agreement Will Mean a Saving to the Householder and Consumer

The reciprocity agreement will mean more trade—more buying and selling—between Canada and the United States. That is the natural result of removing a tariff barrier. It is impossible to say what increase in trade the agreement will bring about, but even with the present volume of trade as a standard, it becomes apparent that huge sums will be saved the Canadian consumer by the removal and reduction of duties which the tariff agreement sanctions. The Star showed yesterday that the duties remitted on certain fresh vegetables and fruits alone would amount to about $700,000. But that is only a beginning.

September sees the commencement of the oyster season, and it is interesting to note that a duty of ten cents per gallon is collected on bulk oysters coming into Canada, while oysters in cans are also taxed. The duties thus paid amount to $43,000 in one year, but the reciprocity agreement will absolutely remove this tax upon Canada's oyster soup.

If the soup is made from meat extracts, there has been a tax on that, too. It amounts to $15,000 per year, and the reciprocity agreement reduces it by $4,000.

The fish course is taxed, also. While Canada has great fisheries of its own, there are large importations of fish from the United States every year, over 1,000,000 pounds of halibut alone being brought in. On the 3,800,000 pounds of fish thus imported, a tax of $47,000 has been levied every year. But reciprocity will make the fish course free.

And the salt for oysters, fish and every other purpose will come in free too. Salt may seem a small item, but duties amounting to $20,000 are paid on that which comes into Canada from the States in a single year.

Then there is the meat course. Mutton and lamb and other fresh meats coming into Canada from across the border cost $30,000 in duties every year. Bacon and ham, salted beef, smoked meats, etc., are taxed to the extent of $336,000. On canned meats and canned poultry the duty amounts to nearly $13,000. These various duties the reciprocity agreement will reduce to such an extent that $147,000 in taxes will be removed from the meat course.

There are other substantial reductions in duty which will make living cheaper for Canadians, even if the volume of importations from the States is not increased. With the $700,000 reduction in duties on certain fresh vegetables and fruits, $43,000 on oysters, $4,000 on meat extracts, $47,000 on fish, $20,000 on salt, and $147,000 on meats, the total reaches the impressive figure of $971,000. It is easy to add to the list. The reciprocity agreement remits duties on certain other imports from the States to the following extent: Macaroni, $2,000; confectionery, $4,000; pickles, etc., $2,000; prepared cereal foods, $17,000; honey, over $4,800. These, added to the previous total of $971,000, raise the aggregate to over $1,000,000. And they by no means include the whole tax on the family table which reciprocity will remove. They do not take into account the importations of live animals and many other imports dealt with by the agreement. This million dollars is only part of the tax on food which reciprocity will take away. Moreover, it is based on present imports, not on the increased trade which will result from adoption of the tariff pact.

SMITH LADY BADLY INJURED IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Mrs. Edward Trennum of Smith Township, was the victim of a serious accident this morning. While driving into town, accompanied by her three children, the horse shied at some children, who were playing with a small express waggon, near Garbutt's, and jumped into the ditch which was rather deep at this point of the road. The buggy was completely overturned and the occupants thrown out; all escaped injury with the exception of Mrs. Trennum, who sustained several broken ribs and was badly bruised and shaken up otherwise.

Dr. Scott was summoned and he attended to the injured woman, after which she was removed to Nicholls Hospital by the Bellegham private ambulance service.

At the time of the accident one of the children was driving the horse which was a spirited animal. Mrs. Trennum endeavoured to grab the lines when the animal jumped, but it was too late, the damage had been done.

Biggest Market Of The Season—The Supply Great But Did Not Meet Demand

There was a splendid market this morning, one of the best of the season. The supply, although very great, did not meet the demand. There was an increasing demand for all kinds of products, nearing the close of the market, and as a result the prices took a jump. The inside market was cleared almost completely at 11 o'clock. Butter and eggs faded from the tables like snowflakes before a spring sun, and the eager buyers turned away with a look of despair, when the greeting 'a'll sold'" came in answer to the query. At the beginning of the market butter sold for 22 and 23c. and at 11 o'clock butter was sold at 30c. per lb. Eggs in the morning sold at 19c. and at 11 o'clock sold at 22c. and could not be procured even for that. Chickens were almost as scarce and chickens that sold at 50c. per pair at the beginning were snapped as a bargain at 75 and 80c. at the close. The supply in all the above products was much heavier than on previous Saturdays, but the increasing demand boosted the price. Other products were higher in price in proportion. The following were the average prices:

Apples—(St. Lawrence) $2 per bbl.
Pears—35c. per pk.
Potatoes—$1.50 and $1.75 per bag.
Plums (blue and gages) 10c. per qt.
Cabbage—5c. per head straight.
Tomatoes— 30c. per basket (heavy supply.
Onions—10c. per qt. for small ones.
Lamb—14c. and 16c.
Pigs (6 weeks old)—$5 per pair.
Turnips—3 for 5c.
Cucumbers—30c. per basket.
Ducks—80c. each.
Chickens—65c. per pair.
Butter—25c. (30c. at the last).
Eggs—22c.
Baled hay—$9c. per cwt.
Loose hay—$13.50.
Farmers' hides—$7.50, 50c. of a raise during the week.
Butchers' hides—$8.50 to $9, an advance of from 50c. to $1.00 during the week.
Live hogs—$7.40, a drop of 60c.
Hay was as scarce as hen's teeth, only one load being put up for sale.

The market was stagnant with tomatoes, and there was also a heavy supply of other small fruits. Next week will wind up the local supply of tomatoes pretty well, but some other vegetables will be in abundance for some time yet. Two more weeks will see the grand opening of the meat market. There was a small supply today, but it was not in demand at all.

PLOT TO WRECK FAST TRAIN

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LONDON, ONT., SEPT. 9.— Grand Trunk authorities are investigating what looks to be a deliberate attempt to wreck the fast express from Chicago early this morning. The engineer of a passing freight noticed the obstacle on the opposite track in the dawn of the morning, and stopping his train removed the heavy rail, which would surely have sent the express to destruction.

CAN BE ENDED ANY TIME

The reciprocity agreement will only continue in force during Canada's pleasure. There is a specific provision that Canada "shall be absolutely free to make any change of tariff policy, or of any other matter covered by the present arrangement that may be deemed expedient."

Special Wire to The Examiner.

LINDSAY, ONT., SEPT. 9.— Just about two weeks ago Master Lloyd Sutton, young son of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. A week ago she fell from a tree, fracturing her arm, lockjaw setting in. The two deaths have cast a gloom over the entire community.

No Chance Of New Trial

Special to The Examiner:

CHESTERFIELD, VA., SEPT. 10.— Legal experts say there is little chance of the Court of Appeals granting a new trial to Henry Clay Beattie, Ur., and the probability is that the law will take its course, and the wealthy young wife murderer will be electrocuted on Nov. twenty-fourth. Great sympathy is shown for the heart-broken father.

Messrs. Ruddy and Moore were present in Mr. Burnham's interests and Messrs. W. S. Davidson and G. N. Gordon appeared for Mr. Stratton.

A number of cases were considered while several were given their final disposition. A number of whom there was some doubt were held over until Monday evening.

Sugar Soars Again

Another advance of 25c. per cwt. on sugar was recorded yesterday. $9.25 per hundred weight for No. 1 granulated and $8.85 for the yellow, now stands as the prevailing price.

BIG RALLY TO-NIGHT

The last Saturday night rally but one in Mr. Stratton's interests will be held in the Central Liberal Committee rooms to-night at 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of Mr. Stratton and of reciprocity to be present. Short bright speeches will be the order of the evening.

A Weekly Half Holiday

HAMILTON, SEPT. 8.—In all probability, the grocery stores in Hamilton will close during Wednesday afternoons all the year round, and will also shut up shop at 10 o'clock on Saturday evenings instead of remaining open until nearly midnight as they now do. Notice was given at the regular meeting of the Retail Grocers Association last evening in the Board of Trade rooms that a motion to this effect would be submitted at the next regular meeting, and as there is a strong feeling on the part of nearly all the grocers that their stores should close earlier, there is great likelihood of the motion being passed unanimously.

MILLION DOLLAR FIRE

Special to The Examiner:

SANTIAGO, CUBA, SEPT. 9.— A considerable portion of the city was wiped out by a fire this morning, with damage of some millions of dollars. The cause is unknown.

A BRUTAL ATTACK

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, SEPT. 9. — Juliette Vanmall, a domestic aged 22 is in a serious condition at Notre Dame hospital, as a result of a brutal attack made on her by Nicholas Hayes, aged thirty-five, a cigar maker, who drew a revolver and fired three bullets into her body when she repelled his advances. She jumped through a window bleeding profusely, to escape him and may die. Hayes was arrested, charged with attempted murder.

WHO EVER HEARD?

Who ever heard of trusts being helped by tariff reduction? Reciprocity is only tariff removal in natural products.

High tariff — exclusion of competition—is the very life blood, the body, and bones, of the trusts.

Tariff reduction is poison, tariff removal is death, to trust and food combines.

THE WORKMAN AND RECIPROCITY

W. A. Fraser, the well-known author, who has always heretofore voted Conservative, says:

"I believe in reciprocity. The farmer cannot lose, and he will get a bigger market. The workman, the backbone of the country, will get cheap food. If the workman wants to know how to vote let him go through the residential sections of Toronto, where there are houses costing from $15,000 to $200,000, and each with its automobile. The price of meat is nothing to the owners. Let him realize that protection has given all these things. Less than 20 per cent. of Canadian manufacturers fail. They are getting rich. It is claimed that the American manufacturers will come over. Let them come. They will pay our workmen better wages.

"Has Canada done well? We are a rich country, and have only enough people to fill New York State.

"I see that a Canadian cement merger has just been formed, by the assistance of $15,000,000 of English capital. Our trusts are more dangerous than those in the United States. How do they stand on the question of reciprocity? They are solid against it. In the histories of all nations there has always been war between the privileged classes, the holders of large opportunities, and the working classes, the real developers of the country. But the prophecy of dire disaster comes from high places. The rooster crows, but the hens lay the eggs."

Mr. Stratton will address the Electors of HARVEY as follows: At ROCKCROFT, on Monday September 11th, at 8 o'clock. At LAKEHURST, on Wednesday, September 13th, at 8 p. m

WITH GOOD WEATHER PETERBORO' EXHIBITION WILL BREAK THE RECORD

Directors Are Decidedly Enthusiastic Over the Outlook and Are Working Energetically to Surpass the Efforts of Other Years—Some Big Attractions Are Promised Visitors.

All that is needed to ensure the success of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, is fine weather. The directors are confident that if they are given three bright, sunshiny days, the attendance will send all previous marks into the discard. Last year was a record-breaker in every way, but the management from President Leary down, have every hope that this year's exhibition will be so far ahead of last year as the 1910 show was superior to its predecessors. They have reason to believe this because everyone who attended last year was delighted with the Exhibition, and therefore is a publicity agent, who will do his or her part in bringing more people here this year.

There will be plenty of amusement for the visitor this year. The Midway, it is said, will be larger and better than ever, especially because the Peterborough Show this year is about the first of the smaller fairs, and will naturally prove a magnet to the Midway attractions. The size of the purses hung up for the horse races are enough to guarantee two splendid days' racing and in this feature the Exhibition will be fully up to the standard of the past. The directors realize that there is nothing that entertains the average visitor more than good harness racing, and by putting up big purses they are leaving no stone unturned to make the racing worthy of the Exhibition. The 57th Band has been engaged for the Exhibition and will play two big programmes daily in front of the grandstand. A vaudeville attraction that has been engaged will cost the Exhibition a nice little sum, but the management feel that the pleasure of the visitors in watching the work of these high-priced artists will make up for the strain they put on the funds. A grand display of fireworks has been arranged for in connection with the evening performances.

The Wind-up Of The Henry Clay Beattie Trial

CHESTERFIELD, COURT HOUSE VA., SEPT. 8.—It was within the range of probability that before midnight to-day Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife will know his fate. Before sunset Harry M. Smith, Jr., counsel for the defence, and L. O. Wendenburg, for the prosecution, will have concluded a battle of words before the twelve jurymen, who are expected to reach a verdict to-night. The final arguments began earlier than usual, and although they were expected to end at sundown, this was by no means an assured fact.

Mr. Smith began speaking at 9.30 o'clock and continuing the line of attack begun by his colleague, Hill Carter, yesterday, against the veracity of Paul Beattie, who gave the most sensational and damaging testimony against his cousin, Mr. Smith battered away at the story of the purchase of the gun, the alleged confession and the chain of circumstantial evidence forged by the prosecution.

Mr. Smith closely reviewed the evidence with particular stress on the reluctantly given testimony of Kesselberg as indicating the danger of circumstantial evidence.

"I don't ask you to believe all the testimony of Kesselberg," said Mr. Smith. "I don't ask you to believe that he did not know the woman he went out with that night. He said that to save trouble in two homes, but what you must believe is that it was his car and not Henry Beattie's which the boys saw."

Characterizing Paul Beattie as a "moral wreck," the lawyer held up the testimony of the Chief of Police as influenced by stronger minded detectives.

"We don't believe that Paul Beattie was guilty of the crime. The question has probably occurred to you as to what our theory is. But the instructions distinctly point out that it is not necessary for us to locate the criminal agent. It is not our duty to do it. Suppose Paul Beattie did buy that gun to use on Mayer Bridge. Suppose Neblitt is telling the truth and Paul Beattie did have a gun in the cement house on Sunday morning. Suppose that gun was stolen by some tramp and the tramp killed Mrs. Beattie, and suppose that Paul Beattie was afraid to tell that story for fear that the crime would be fastened on him. I ask you does that not seem a good reason for the shifting of the burden by this weakling—Paul Beattie?"

A FAMOUS "VICTORY"

A HORRIBLE DISCOVERY

Without any desire to injure or forestall the candy market, we commend the following unique experience of a well known young lady of this city to saccharine friends.

The young lady, accompanied by her mother, went into a prominent George street confectioners to purchase a small quantity of the best chocolates procurable. In fact, she emphasized her desire to have the best by asking for them prior to completing the purchase. She then handed them to her mother who deposited one of them in her mouth. It had not been there very long before she became possessed of an uncontrollable desire to eject it and would have done so had it not been for the fact that she was in a public place. However, she carried the delicate morsel home and had no sooner reached the verandah than out it came and landed on the verandah with a flop. The hose was then turned on and what remained of the chocolate coating was removed, disclosing in all its simplicity and insignificance, a small sized frog.

The animal which was brought into the editorial sanctum last night safely ensconced in a paper bag, was made the worse for wear, but the legs, claws and portions of the body were easily identified. No doubt the owner of the curio will have it stuffed and mounted as a memento of the occasion.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 9, 1911

AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAG.

Remember to-night's Rally in Mr. Stratton's central committee rooms, at the sign of The Flag (not the flag on Mr. Burnham's side of the street) over 457 George street. This will be the last Saturday night rally but one before election day. At the meeting reports will be given of the splendid results of Liberal workers in town and city as encouragement to workers to make the certain victory in sight more complete, and emphatic. Interesting addresses will also be given. Every indication points to a certain victory for Mr. Stratton, and his friends are bound to make his majority a big one.

IN A NUTSHELL.

A correspondent succinctly summarizes the situation:

"Here is my sizing up of the situation: Liberal monopolists ratting from the party against reciprocity; Conservative farmers, fishermen and workmen ratting in favour of it. Ballots counted. Result: Nobody hurt. Taxes taken off food. Larger markets and more trade. The Maple Leaf forever."

ALL'S FISH THAT COMES TO THEIR NET.

The Kingston Standard, a thorough-going Conservative organ, makes this brazen confession of Tory faith:

"Bourassa is fighting Laurierism on wholly different lines than those followed by Mr. Borden; but the Conservatives are not fools enough to step in and by opposing Bourassa help to pull the Laurier chestnuts out of the fire. Anything that will down Laurierism is welcome to them, and always will be."

"Anything to beat Laurier," even if it is "so much worse for British connection."

THE LOYALTY OF SIR JAMES.

Sir James Whitney is stumping loudly against the reciprocity agreement as a compact of disloyalty disintegration and annexation. He is trying to prove that trading in farm produce with our neighbours of the United States means annexation. Sir James preaches the doctrine, that any dealings with the United States tends to smashing the Empire. Does Sir James practise what he preaches? Not by any manner of means. A new site was purchased for the Lieut.-Governor's residence in the good Tory city of Toronto. Did Sir James, as a loyal Canadian, patronize home talent when he wanted to lay out the grounds and have the plans for the residence prepared? Not by any manner of means. He imported, free of duty, a New York landscape gardener to ruin the grounds with "improvements," and he has also imported a "Yankee" architect to superintend the work of preparing the plans for the official residence of the Lieutenant Governor of one of the provinces of the British Dominion of Canada. Sir James says that if a Canadian farmer sells barley, wheat or potatoes to the United States free of duty, the farmer will be made disloyal. Is Sir James Whitney's skin so much thicker than that of a farmer, that it is impenetrable to the disloyalty microbe? Or is his conscience more elastic? Humbug is a milder word than Sir James would use in characterising such "colossal, stupendous and incomprehensible inconsistency."

F. D. KERR A WINNER.

The political campaign throughout the country is drawing to a close, and some interesting changes in the representation of certain constituencies in this district are predicted by those closely in touch with the political situation. It is now pretty generally admitted that Mr. F. D. Kerr, Liberal candidate in East Peterborough will succeed in carrying the riding against Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, the former member.

Mr. Kerr and reciprocity have proven to be a splendid combination. The Liberal candidate was at the outset much more widely known throughout the riding than even his 'closest friends' realized. His sixteen years' residence in Peterborough, with his extensive legal practice amongst the farmers of the East riding, gave him a personal acquaintance, which is of great assistance in his battle to secure wider markets for the farmers of Canada. His unquestioned ability, clean record, and his well known capacity as a public speaker, have won for him strong support from every section of the riding. Then, too, Mr. Kerr's ability as an organizer has not only proved agreeably surprising to his friends, but has been an unexpected blow to his political opponents. He has covered the riding with the thoroughness and dash of an old campaigner, and has awakened a degree of enthusiasm that is bound to be crowned with success on the evening of the 21st. Liberals who have for some years past taken little or no interest in political contests, have jumped into the fight with old time vigour, determined to carry the banner of reciprocity to victory.

It must be admitted, however, that Mr. Kerr entered the political game at an opportune time. Reciprocity sentiment is very strong in East Peterborough. Farmers who never before cast a Liberal vote have announced their intention of supporting the trade agreement. Some of them who remember the efforts of Sir John A. Macdonald to secure reciprocity with the United States, state, and quite truly so, that they have not changed their politics, but that their leaders and their late member, Mr. Sexsmith, have changed theirs. These men cannot understand Mr. Sexsmith's change of front within the past year.

His speech on the budget in January, 1910, was widely circulated throughout the riding. In it he demanded to know what the Government was doing to secure wider markets for the Canadian farmers. He wanted to get into the American market just a year ago. To-day he says let well enough alone. In view of these facts, it is easy to see how fair-minded observers of the campaign in East Peterborough, predict a victory for Mr. Kerr.

CANDIDACY SURPRISED HIM.

At a meeting of the Jewish electors of Centre and South Toronto, held in St. Andrew's Hall Wednesday night, in the interests of Edmund Bristol, K. C., and A. C. Macdonell, the following telegram, received Wednesday by Hon. Frank Cochrane in answer to a message addressed to Mr. R. L. Borden, was read:

"Point du Chene, N.B., Sept. 7, '11.

"Hon. Frank Cochrane, Toronto, Ont.:

"Telegram received. The statement that I went to Hossack and asked for his support in the campaign is entirely unsounded. His candidacy in South Toronto was a great surprise to me and never had my sanction or approval in any way. A. C. Macdonell, the regularly nominated Conservative candidate in that riding, has my full confidence, sanction and support.

"R. L. Borden."

Mr. D. C. Hossack, independent Conservative and Defender of the Faith, is a candidate in South Toronto. His platform is to fight the church, the ne temere decree and Mr. Claude Macdonell, the regular — the Borden—Conservative candidate. Now Mr. Macdonell, happens to be, or possibly is on delinerate purposes, a Roman Catholic. That is nothing to his discredit and that fact does not deprive him of his rights as a British subject, except in the eyes, perhaps, of broad-minded statesmen like the Conservative candidate in West Peter borough, who would not, if he could get his little paper largely enough signed, have anybody vote for a fellow British subject of the "outlawed" faith.

But Mr. Borden is more Liberal than Mr. Burnham. He even welcomes the cooperation of the ultra-ultramontane Mr. Bourassa, the British hater and Laurier-hater. A gentleman of Mr. Borden's breadth of mind is surprised and pained that Mr. Hossack should adopt Mr. Burnham's platform and oppose a party candidate of the religion Mr. Burnham and Mr. Hossack would ostracise; would deprive of its every professor of his rights as a British subject—the right of equal justice and fair play, the right to vote and sit in parliament and have a voice in the expenditure of the taxes he and his co-religionists help pay. Mr. Borden is himself to blame for Mr. Hossack's impudence in opposing the regular Conservative candidate in South Toronto. Mr. Hossack, no doubt th ought that if Mr. Borden endorsed, on his visit to Peterborough—negatively at least—Mr. Burnham's dark lantern methods, he (Mr. Hossack) was at liberty to take the same tack. If Mr. Borden sanctions such race and creed methods in Ontario and similar methods in Quebec—on exactly opposite grounds, he should accept his uneasy posit ion between the devil and the deep, deep sea, as something he has well earned. Running with the hare and hunting with the hounds needs a clever huntsman. No greater calamity could come to Mr. Borden and the country than that he should succeed by the combined help of Mr. Bourassa on the one side of the Ottawa and the Ontario strike-breakers on the other.

IT WILL DIVIDE THE PROFITS.

When we come to consider the reciprocity agreement in the light of the opposition to it, we see all the big interests, but the Canadian farmer, in whose special behalf the agreement was negotiated from the Canadian standpoint, against it. The monopolistic interests, the financial interests are against it; the food combines, which chiefly contribute to creating the big part of the high cost of living, are against it. All the special interests are against it, because they cannot get over the habit of making profit out of the farmer, the producer, the great masses, who compose the bulk of our population.

If one thing, more than another, should prevent the farmer, the consumer, the working man, from being misled into opposing reduction of duty and reduction of cost in the prime articles of living, it should be this very condition.

The people who are to benefit by reciprocity, the farmers, in all branches, are in favour of it, except perhaps a few intense party men. There are Conservative farmers and Liberal farmers, in the case of reciprocity, as well as in other public issues, who are so hide-bound, dyed-in-the-wool, that they can see no good in anything proposed by the opposite party. But the thinking farmers, the thinking workingman, will judge things on their merits.

In the reciprocity agreement deal Canada has got the big end of the bargain, because the farmers of the United States are against it. The chief organ of the United States National Grange says:

"The farmers and country people on this side of the line are hoping almost against hope for reciprocity defeat in Canada. From all sides it is apparent that the indignation of the farmers of the United States, which has been rapidly rising since President Taft first announced the reciprocity project, is not only showing no signs of abatement, but rather gathering force steadily.

If the farmers of the United States are so strongly against the agreement because it will be against their interests and in the interests of the Canadian farmer, is that not one strong reason why we should clinch a bargain so largely in our favour, and for once get the start of shrewd Uncle Sam?

If the monopolistic and financial classes and the combines are against the agreement because it will loosen their grip upon the great producing and consuming classes of Canada, is not that a good reason why the people, the masses, should seize the chance to more nearly even the odds in the fight between the classes and the masses.

As a man is known by the company he keeps so are the merits of the reciprocity agreement shown by those who oppose it and those who favour it.

It is simply a business proposal; but it has been tangled with party politics by those who hope to gain party profit. The chief opposition to it is partisan and when not partisan and where not partisan it is selfish. The politicians oppose it for their own purposes and the big interests oppose it from selfish reasons—it will interfere with their long run of privilege to make exorbitant profits at the expense of the people as a whole—it will tend to divide the profits and give the common people a share.

DON'T BE DECEIVED.

The chief thing that makes the electors "go off" wrong is being "loaded up the wrong way."

Many electors are prejudiced against Reciprocity and the Government because they are fed on lies instead of facts.

For instance they are unblushingly told that reciprocity means free trade in everything — manufactured articles, as well as farm products.

We don't ask these deceived electors to take our word for it. Let them read the agreement, which is an official statement of the whole case.

The agreement shows that the duties are only removed from natural products—farm products of all kinds—and that no duty on manufactured products is removed; only slightly lessened, on farm implements, and a reduction far short of what some Conservative members have moved for in the House.

Employees of the Electric Works are told the ghost story that Reciprocity will close the Canadian General Electric works.

This is mere rubbish. Do talk sense! In the first place, who put these works on their feet? When the late Conservative Government was in power the works were running on half-time and almost with a half staff at that.

When the Liberal Government came into power the change came, and their policy put life into the Works, which have for the past fifteen years, been running full time and overtime.

When reciprocity comes into effect, there is likely to be not only a ten o'clock night shift, but an all-night shift.

Why? Because greater prosperity will bring more orders, more demands for the products of the Works.

How? The C.P.R. says that reciprocity will increase the price of Northwest Canadian lands 100 per cent.

How, again? Simply this way: demand is what 'boosts' prices. More settlers will demand land; more lands means more production; more population and more demand for man ufactured products. More population means more towns and cities to supply the farming population. More cities will create more demands for modren civic improvements like electric lighting, etc.

The Canadian General has agencies in Winnipeg and Vancouver. What for? to facilitate the sale in the West of the goods made in Peterborough. With reciprocity increasing the price of lands, as the C. P. R. says it will—and it knows—population and demand will increase and the Works in Peterborough will get more orders and give more employment.

How will reciprocity close the works in the face of these facts?

The above are specific reasons why reciprocity will not injure the Canadian General or any other Peterborough or Canadian industry.

Now, for general reasons: The Government pledges itself not to interfere with the general protective tariff. Sir Wilfrid Laurier publicly and officially pledged himself to this effect in Parliament. He said::

"We have not hurt the manufacturer and will not hurt him."

We judge of a man's pledges by the way he has kept his past promises.

Sir Wilfrid said if he came to power the people would feel their prosperity in their pockets—not on paper, not in estimates. Hasn't he kept his word?

He made the protective tariff really protective, not by putting on duties, but by reducing duties. He took off, or reduced the duty, on a large list of raw materials, so that manufacturers now import yearly—free of duty, or at a very low rate—100 million dollars worth of raw material.

What has been the result? The most prosperous condition of manufacturers since Canada was Canada.

That is real practical tariff administration; the kind that brings prosperity that can be felt in the pocket.

Under that policy the Canadian General and all other manufacturers have prospered immensely.

Would any sane statesman — any government—do anything that they thought would even risk such prosperity; that would topple down the proudest monument a public man ever had—fifteen years of the greatest manufacturing prosperity ever known to any country in the world?

It's a fool of a cow that will kick over the pail when it is full to overflowing.

Those who tell you that Reciprocity will close down the Electric Works, or any other, are deceiving you for partisan purposes.

The party the mechanic and artisan wants is not party at all—it is a policy that has kept the wheels moving, that will keep the wheels moving.

All that party—the "party" that loads up honest mechanics the wrong way—has ever done for the Electric Works, is represented by an election roorbach, claiming for Messrs. Burnham, Bradburn, and Kendry, the credit of getting for the Works a big contract, with which they had no more to do than the man in the moon and didn't get at all.

Electors are urged to do their own thinking—get at the facts, understand things and form their own judgments and vote accordingly.

When an elector is told that reciprocity will ruin, injure, or do anything but help, any manufacturing industry, let him reason the matter out, and he will find nothing in the facts, or the policy of the Government to bear out such a wickedly absurd claim.

Do your own thinking, do your own reasoning, use your own judgment, and vote on your own honest judgment.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 9, 1911

AT THE SIGN OF THE FLAG.

Remember to-night's Rally in Mr. Stratton's central committee rooms, at the sign of The Flag (not the flag on Mr. Burnham's side of the street) over 407 George street. This will be the last Saturday night rally but one before election day. At the meeting reports will be given of the splendid results of Liberal workers in town and city as encouragement to workers to make the certain victory in right more complete, and emphatic. Interesting addresses will also be given. Every indication points to a certain victory for Mr. Stratton, and his friends are bound to make his majority a big one.

IN A NUTSHELL.

A correspondent succinctly summarises the situation:

"Here is my sizing up of the situation: Liberal monopolists ratting from the party against reciprocity; Conservative farmers, fishermen and workmen ratting in favour of it. Ballots counted. Result: Nobody hurt. Taxes taken off food. Larger markets and more trade. The Maple Leaf forever."

ALL'S FISH THAT COMES TO THEIR NET.

The Kingston Standard, a thoroughgoing Conservative organ, makes this brasen confession of Tory faith:

"Bourassa is fighting Laurierism on wholly different lines than those followed by Mr. Borden; but the Conservatives are not fools enough to step in and by opposing Bourassa help to pull the Laurier chestnuts out of the fire. Anything that will down Laurierism is welcome to them, and always will be."

"Anything to beat Laurier," even if it is "so much worse for British connection."

THE LOYALTY OF SIR JAMES.

Sir James Whitney is stumping loudly against the reciprocity agreement as a compact of disloyalty disintegration and annexation. He is trying to prove that trading in farm produce with our neighbours of the United States means annexation. Sir James preaches the doctrine, that any dealings with the United States tends to smashing the Empire. Does Sir James practise what he preaches? Not by any manner of means. A new site was purchased for the Lieut.-Governor's residence in the good Tory city of Toronto. Did Sir James, as a loyal Canadian, patronise home talent when he wanted to lay out the grounds and have the plans for the residence prepared? Not by any manner of means. He imported, free of duty, a New York landscape gardener to ruin the grounds with "improvements," and he has also imported a "Yankee" architect to superintend the work of preparing the plans for the official residence of the Lieutenant Governor of one of the provinces of the British Dominion of Canada. Sir James says that if a Canadian farmer sells barley, wheat or potatoes to the United States free of duty, the farmer will be made disloyal. Is Sir James Whitney's skin so much thicker than that of a farmer, that it is impenetrable to the disloyalty microbe? Or is his conscience more elastic? Humbug is a milder word than Sir James would use in characterising such "colossal, stupendous and incomprehensible inconsistency."

F. D. KERR A WINNER.

The political campaign throughout the country is drawing to a close, and some interesting changes in the representation of certain constituencies in this district are predicted by those closely in touch with the political situation. It is now pretty generally admitted that Mr. F. D. Kerr, Liberal candidate in East Peterborough will succeed in carrying the riding against Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, the former member.

Mr. Kerr and reciprocity have proven to be a splendid combination. The Liberal candidate was at the outset much more widely known throughout the riding than even his closest friends realized. His fifteen years' residence in Peterborough, with his extensive legal practice amongst the farmers of the East riding, gave him a personal acquaintance, which is of great assistance in his battle to secure wider markets for the farmers of Canada. His unquestioned ability, clean record, and his well known capacity as a public speaker, have won for him strong support from every section of the riding. Then, too, Mr. Kerr's ability as an organizer has not only proved agreeably surprising to his friends, but has been an unexpected blow to his political opponents. He has covered the riding with the thoroughness and dash of an old campaigner, and has awakened a degree of enthusiasm that is bound to be crowned with success on the evening of the 21st. Liberals who have for some years past taken little or no interest in political contests, have jumped into the fight with old time vigour, determined to carry the banner of reciprocity to victory.

It must be admitted, however, that Mr. Kerr entered the political game at an opportune time. Reciprocity sentiment is very strong in East Peterborough. Farmers who never before cast a Liberal vote have announced their intention of supporting the trade agreement. Some of them who remember the efforts of Sir John A. Macdonald to secure reciprocity with the United States, state, and quite truly so, that they have not changed their politics, but that their leaders and their late member, Mr. Sexsmith, have changed theirs. These men cannot understand Mr. Sexsmith's change of front within the past year.

His speech on the budget in January, 1910, was widely circulated throughout the riding. In it he demanded to know what the Government was doing to secure wider markets for the Canadian farmers. He wanted to get into the American market just a year ago. To-day he says let well enough alone. In view of these facts, it is easy to see how fair-minded observers of the campaign in East Peterborough, predict a victory for Mr. Kerr.

CANDIDACY SURPRISED HIM.

At a meeting of the Jewish electors of Centre and South Toronto, held in St. Andrew's Hall Wednesday night, in the interests of Edmund Bristol, K. C., and A. C. Macdonell, the following telegram, received Wednesday by Hon. Frank Cochrane in answer to a message addressed to Mr. R. L. Borden, was read:

"Point du Chene, N.B., Sept. 7, 11.
"Hon. Frank Cochrane, Toronto, Ont.:

"Telegram received. The statement that I went to Hossack and asked for his support in the campaign is entirely unfounded. His candidacy in South Toronto was a great surprise to me and never had my sanction or approval in any way. A. C. Macdonell, the regularly nominated Conservative candidate in that riding, has my full confidence, sanction and support.

Mr. D. C. Hossack, independent Conservative and Defender of the Faith, is a candidate in South Toronto. His platform is to fight the church, the ne temere decree and Mr. Claude Macdonell, the regular — the Borden—Conservative candidate. Now Mr. Macdonell, happens to be, or possibly is on delinerate purposes, a Roman Catholic. That is nothing to his discredit and that fact does not deprive him of his rights as a British subject, except in the eyes, perhaps, of broad-minded statesmen like the Conservative candidate in West Peter borough, who would not, if he could get his little paper largely enough signed, have anybody vote for a fellow British subject of the "outlawed" faith.

But Mr. Borden is more Liberal than Mr. Burnham. He even welcomes the cooperation of the ultra-ultramontane Mr. Bourassa, the British hater and Laurier-hater. A gentleman of Mr. Borden's breadth of mind is surprised and pained that Mr. Hossack should adopt Mr. Burnham's platform and oppose a party candidate of the religion Mr. Burnham and Mr. Hossack would ostracise; would deprive of its every professor of his rights as a British subject—the right of equal justice and fair play, the right to vote and sit in parliament and have a voice in the expenditure of the taxes he and his co-religionists help pay. Mr. Borden is himself to blame for Mr. Hossack's impudence in opposing the regular Conservative candidate in South Toronto. Mr. Hossack, no doubt th ought that if Mr. Borden endorsed, on his visit to Peterborough—negatively at least—Mr. Burnham's dark lantern methods, he (Mr. Hossack) was at liberty to take the same tack. If Mr. Borden sanctions such race and creed methods in Ontario and similar methods in Quebec—on exactly opposite grounds, he should accept his uneasy posit ion between the devil and the deep, deep sea, as something he has well earned. Running with the hare and hunting with the hounds needs a clever huntsman. No greater calamity could come to Mr. Borden and the country than that he should succeed by the combined help of Mr. Bourassa on the one side of the Ottawa and the Ontario strife-breeders on the other.

IT WILL DIVIDE THE PROFITS.

When we come to consider the reciprocity agreement in the light of the opposition to it, we see all the big interests, bus the Canadian farmer, in whose special behalf the agreement was negotiated from the Canadian standpoint, against it. The monopolistic interests, the financial interests are against it; the food combines, which chiefly contribute to creating the big part of the high cost of living, are against it. All the special interests are against it, because they cannot get over the habit of making profit out of the farmer, the producer, the great masses, who compose the bulk of our population.

If one thing, more than another, should prevent the farmer, the consumer, the working man, from being misled into opposing reduction of duty and reduction of cost in the prime articles of living, it should be this very condition.

The people who are to benefit by reciprocity, the farmers, in all branches, are in favour of it, except perhaps a few intense party men. There are Conservative farmers and Liberal farmers, in the case of reciprocity, as well as in other public issues, who are so hide-bound, dyed-in-the-wool, that they can see no good in anything proposed by the opposite party. But the thinking farmers, the thinking workingman, will judge things on their merits.

In the reciprocity agreement deal Canada has got the big end of the bargain, because the farmers of the United States are against it. The chief organ of the United States National Grange says:

"The farmers and country people on this side of the line are hoping almost against hope for reciprocity defeat in Canada. From all sides it is apparent that the indignation of the farmers of the United States, which has been rapidly rising since President Taft first announced the reciprocity project, is not only showing no signs of abatement, but rather gathering force steadily.

If the farmers of the United States are so strongly against the agreement because it will be against their interests and in the interests of the Canadian farmer, is that not one strong reason why we should clinch a bargain so largely in our favour, and for once get the start of shrewd Uncle Sam?

If the monopolistic and financial classes and the combines are against the agreement because it will loosen their grip upon the great producing and consuming classes of Canada, is not that a good reason why the people, the masses, should seize the chance to more nearly even the odds in the fight between the classes and the masses.

As a man is known by the company he keeps so are the merits of the reciprocity agreement shown by those who oppose it and those who favour it.

It is simply a business proposal; but it has been tangled with party politics by those who hope to gain party profit. The chief opposition to it is partisan and when not partisan and where not partisan it is selfish. The politicians oppose it for their own purposes and the big interests oppose it from selfish reasons—it will interfere with their long run of privilege to make exorbitant profits at the expense of the people as a whole—it will tend to divide the profits and give the common people a share.

DON'T BE DECEIVED.

The chief thing that makes the electors "go off" wrong is being "loaded up the wrong way."

Many electors are prejudiced against Reciprocity and the Government because they are fed on lies instead of facts.

For instance they are unblushingly told that reciprocity means free trade in everything — manufactured articles, as well as farm products.

We don't ask these deceived electors to take our word for it. Let them read the agreement, which is an official statement of the whole case.

The agreement shows that the duties are only removed from natural products—farm products of all kinds—and that no duty on manufactured products is removed; only slightly lessened, on farm implements, and a reduction far short of what some Conservative members have moved for in the House.

Employees of the Electric Works are told the ghost story that Reciprocity will close the Canadian General Electric works.

This is mere rubbish. Do talk sense! In the first place, who put these works on their feet? When the late Conservative Government was in power the works were running on half-time and almost with a half staff at that.

When the Liberal Government came into power the change came, and their policy put life into the Works, which have for the past fifteen years, been running full time and overtime.

When reciprocity comes into effect, there is likely to be not only a ten o'clock night shift, but an all-night shift.

Why? Because greater prosperity will bring more orders, more demands for the products of the Works.

How? The C.P.R. says that reciprocity will increase the price of Northwest Canadian lands 100 per cent.

How, again? Simply this way: demand is what 'boosts' prices. More settlers will demand land; more lands means more production; more population and more demand for manufactured products. More population means more towns and cities to supply the farming population. More cities will create more demands for modren civic improvements like electric lighting, etc.

The Canadian General has agencies in Winnipeg and Vancouver. What for? to facilitate the sale in the West of the goods made in Peterborough. With reciprocity increasing the price of lands, as the C. P. R. says it will—and it knows—population and demand will increase and the Works in Peterborough will get more orders and give more employment.

How will reciprocity close the works in the face of these facts?

The above are specific reasons why reciprocity will not injure the Canadian General or any other Peterborough or Canadian industry.

Now, for general reasons: The Government pledges itself not to interfere with the general protective tariff. Sir Wilfrid Laurier publicly and officially pledged himself to this effect in Parliament. He said::

"We have not hurt the manufacturer and will not hurt him."

We judge of a man's pledges by the way he has kept his past promises.

Sir Wilfrid said if the came to power the people would feel their prosperity in their pockets—not on paper, not in statistics. Hasn't he kept his word?

He made the protective tariff really protective, not by putting on duties, but by reducing duties. He took off, or reduced the duty, on a large list of raw materials, so that manufacturers now import yearly—free of duty, or at a very low rate—300 million dollars worth of raw material.

What has been the result? The most prosperous condition of manufacturers since Canada was Canada.

That is real practical tariff administration; the kind that brings prosperity that can be felt in the pocket.

Under that policy the Canadian General and all other manufacturers have prospered immensely.

Would any sane statesman — any government—do anything that they thought would even risk such prosperity; that would topple down the proudest monument a public man ever had—fifteen years of the greatest manufacturing prosperity ever known to any country in the world?

It's a fool of a cow that will kick over the pail when it is full to overflowing.

Those who tell you that Reciprocity will close down the Electric Works, or any other, are deceiving you for partisan purposes.

The party the mechanic and artisan wants is not party at all—it is a policy that has kept the wheels moving, that will keep the wheels moving.

All that party—the "party" that loads up honest mechanics the wrong way—has ever done for the Electric Works, is represented by an election roorbach, claiming for Messrs. Burnham, Bradburn, and Kendry, the credit of getting for the Works a big contract, with which they had no more to do than the man in the moon and didn't get at all.

Electors are urged to do their own thinking—get at the facts, understand things and form their own judgments and vote accordingly.

When an elector is told that reciprocity will ruin, injure, or do anything but help, any manufacturing industry, let him reason the matter out, and he will find nothing in the facts, or the policy of the Government to bear out such a wickedly absurd claim.

Do your own thinking, do your own reasoning, use your own judgment, and vote on your own honest judgment.

ARMY'S LATEST RECRUIT

Laura, the Coldstreams' Pet Pelican, Returns from Egypt

One of the latest recruits which the British Army has secured is Laura, the pet pelican of the Coldstream Guards. Laura has been brought home from Egypt by the famous regiment, and is now a favorite with all, except—and an important exception—Chinko, a pert little monkey, which is another pet of the Coldstreams'.

However, breaches of the peace are now uncommon between them, as Laura and Chinko do not often meet. The pelican is quite expert in the duties of a soldier. She occasionally wears the uniform, and does "sentry-go" in front of a box in quite the approved style.

A long, narrow beak of sword-like dimensions is an excellent substitute for the real thing, and more than one member of the regiment, not excepting Chinko, has felt its keen edge.

It is reported that Laura found England very depressing after the sunshine of Egypt, but is now getting more acclimatized and contented with her life in the regiment.

Boys and the Birch

Eton boys certainly used to suffer a good deal from the birch. There was one Westminster in the seventies who flogged severely that it is a tradition that his end, when he came to die, was announced in the papers among the shipping news. They announced it under the head "Loss of a Whale."

CATS IN JAPAN

In the Beginning the Felines Were Only for the Best Homes

According to the Japanese, the domestic cat appeared in their country at a relatively recent epoch, having travelled from China with the missionaries of Buddhism. In the middle of the sixth century of the Christian era sacrifices were offered to the cat, which was known by all as "the guardian of the manuscripts."

"The guardian of the manuscripts" kept away the mice, which otherwise would have eaten the precious papyrus. In some instances placards were set in conspicuous places among manuscripts as a warning to the mice: "Beware! The cat is here. She drives the mice." Portraits of cats were also placed in parts frequented by mice.

The cats were revered. For a long time they were kept in the temples. But their beauty, their general desirability and the charm of their grace, affection for man, and adaptability to human conditions, so appealed to the layman that one by one very gradually their kittens were permitted to leave the temples and to become the pets of the nobility. After entering the families of the high officials of the empire they won their way into humbler households.

PERILS OF BOTANY

A particularly exciting episode in the career of that veteran botanist, Sir Joseph Hooker, who recently celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday, occurred when, some sixty years ago, he undertook a mission to unfamiliar regions in India, penetrated the Himalayan fastnesses, and, being detected botanizing on the Tibet border, was seized, imprisoned, and beaten, and came very near losing his life. It is to Sir Joseph that we owe our knowledge of the flora of the Antarctic, and seventy years have passed since he visited the South Polar regions.

STORIES OF A BISHOP

A hundred and one stories are told concerning Dr. Glyn, the Bishop of Peterborough, who was recently presented with a magnificent cope by the clergy and laity of his diocese. A rich and benevolent millionaire was once boasting to Dr. Glyn of the amount he gave annually in charity, as though he was certain it would secure him one of the best seats in Paradise. "Well," remarked the Bishop, on hearing the amount, "that is the largest insurance against fire I have ever heard of."

Fancy Prices for Dogs

It is not only in England and America that fantastic prices are paid for dogs, but in Germany fanciers will pay high prices. At the recent exhibition at Cassel a Frenchman offered 12,000 marks, about $3,000, for a police dog. The dog rejoices in the name of Tell, and the sum offered might be considered as conclusive evidence that Tell is worthy of his famous name, but this is not all. The dog belongs to Sergeant Decker, who refused the tempting offer, observing that his dog should not quit Germany at any price.

PRINCE OF WALES AS MIDSHIPMAN

He Has Quickly Shaken Down Into the Ways of a Battleship and Is Becoming Popular

No young man in England is being brought up in a more democratic manner or more forcibly taught to put aside his personal desires to attend to his duties than is the young Prince of Wales, and when he starts out on a cruise on board the "Hindustan" he will be in every way treated like any ordinary midshipman. He has no cabin of his own, and when he got on board he had to dump his kit in the gun-room with those of the other middies. This kit includes his professional books, his private reading, his personal stationery, and the hundred and one articles which a healthy boy of his age accumulates. He will be under ship's discipline, will take his turn in the dog watch, steer his boat, land with despatches, attend the navigating lieutenant, and go through the whole round of instruction. His hours of work will be even longer than those of the other middies, for, as Prince of Wales, he will have to attend to important letters dealing with the management of his estates, scores of documents will have to be read and signed by him personally. When, therefore, the ship's mails reach the "Hindustan" he will receive a message from the commander of the vessel, Captain Campbell, who has been appointed his governor, and will repair to the quarters of his superior, who will bring out the strong box in which his affairs are kept under lock and key. There will be a consultation, the replies will be written, either by the Prince or by the governor, and will be dropped into the mail-bag or taken ashore to the telegraph office, as the case may be. Much of the correspondence will be carried on in London, without reaching the Prince at all. But a good deal cannot be disposed of in this way, and the King desires that his son should feel the burden of responsibility in all reasonable ways. In addition to whatever income the Prince of Wales receives privately, he is now the proud earner of one shilling and ninepence a day (about forty cents), which is his pay as a midshipman. Even this magnificent sum, however, is not all his own to keep, as threepence (five cents) a day is deducted from each young officer for the naval instructor, who directs their studies. Of all ranks, midshipmen are the only ones whose pay has never been raised; and, indeed, it is rather less nowadays than when the rank was first instituted in the middle of the seventeenth century. The Prince has quickly shaken down into the ways of a modern man-o'-war, and bids fair to become very popular with his messmates.

PRINCE OF WALES

In sailor costume. This new photograph of the royal youth shows him as he boards the battleship Hindustan, of the British Navy, to take up the duties of a midshipman. The Prince will be just like other midshipman. He will eat at mess with them, sleep in "middle" quarters, perform midshipman's duties and receive midshipman's pay. The lad's father believes this is the best way to fit him for his future position in life—King. The father himself went through the same experiences that the young Prince will meet with.

CONTRARY TO GOOD MORALS

The highest court in Switzerland, the Tribunal Federal, in session at Lausanne, tried an appeal case which creates a precedent in Switzerland. A wealthy Genevese lady obtained a divorce from her husband recently on the evidence supplied by the local firm of private detectives, which she had employed. When she received the bill, amounting to $500, from the firm, she refused to pay, and the Geneva court found in her favor on the grounds that the contract was "contrary to good morals." This judgment was supported by the Federal judges, and deals a great blow to private agencies which work on similar lines in Switzerland.

DON'T BE UNREASONABLE

If You Neglect the Care of the Scalp You Should Not Expect Beautiful Hair

The hair is more exposed and hence more liable to accumulate dust and dirt than any other portion of the body.

In spite of this the hair receives, as a rule, the least attention and no real effort is made to keep it healthy.

If the dandruff germ is allowed to work unmolested and the scalp becomes crusted with dirt accumulations, one may expect the hair to die and fall out. There is no cause for surprise in this phenomenon; it is natural and happens in ever instance where the care of the hair and scalp is overlooked.

The one sure remedy which prevents the loss of hair and permits a healthy, luxuriant growth is found in Newbro's Herpicide.

The dandruff germ cannot live on a head to which Herpicide is regularly applied. The germ dies. The hair ceases to fall out. The terrible itching stops almost instantly.

That is what Newbro's Herpicide does.

One dollar size bottles are sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

Send 10c. in stamps for booklet and sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

Applications at the good barber shops.

KING AND HIS CHILDREN

His Majesty Finds His Chief Relaxation Among the Children

In his own home, and especially in the nursery of his children, the King has always found his chief relaxation. He dislikes functions which take him away from those whom he loves best in the world. Nothing pleases him more than to be able to steal an hour from the duties of State in order to take part in the innocent amusements of the nursery. From the birth of his first child he has always been delighted to bring home toys, chiefly of the mechanical order. He is regarded by the children, indeed, as the greatest living expert in the art of constructing mimic fortifications and in the manoeuvring of toy soldiers.

The story goes that on one occasion one of his children was asked which he liked best, his father or his mother. The boy replied, "I like them both the same"; then he added, after a moment's reflection, "I think dadda spoils me most." It is not only in their games, but in their education, that the King has taken the keenest personal interest in the upbringing of his little ones.

A story was told that once, while at Balmoral, the Prince of Wales was away for a few days on a visit to London to do some shopping. The children, even on holiday in the Highlands, were kept under firm but kind discipline by their mother. "While she was away, however," says a lady who was at Balmoral at the time, "the Prince of Wales had his sons and daughter to himself. He romped with them, and they had the time of their lives."

The same lady is the authority for a pretty story with respect to King Edward's partiality for his grandchildren, the Princess Mary. The Royal party were travelling southwards, by special train, of course. The children had a saloon carriage to themselves. The little Princess, however, found her way to the saloon of her grandfather and grandmother and there remained. When Prince Edward attempted to follow her, he was firmly checked, and had it impressed upon him that his sister was a privileged person with the King, and was allowed liberties that were not meant for boys.—From "King George and Queen Mary," by Henry Warwick.

A Foolish Fish

A curious angling story comes from Cornhill. An enthusiastic disciple of Isaak Walton was sitting musingly on the river's side, when he felt a tug at his line. He pulled suddenly, and the line gave way, the fish making off with the hook, worm and cast. Putting on a new cast, what was the angler's surprise to find on hooking a trout that it was the same one that had run off with his hook and line.

NO INDIGESTION OR STOMACH DISORDER

No Gas, Heartburn, Sourness or Dyspepsia Five Minutes Later

Why not get some now—this moment, and forever rid yourself of Stomach trouble and Indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of Indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take the sour from Stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and, besides, one single dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up— and then you feel like eating, when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to take a little Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to become thoroughly cured this time.

Remember, if your stomach feels out of order and uncomfortable now, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

MANY MEN IN THE WOODS

More Settlers in Northern Townships Than Was Supposed

The census has brought to light the fact that there are far more settlers located in townships near the T. & N. O. line than is generally supposed. The officer at Matheson, for instance, found that in the five townships surrounding Matheson there were 500 people clearing, cultivating and farming their homesteads, while in the town of Matheson itself there were but ninety all told. The same may be said of settlement all through northern Ontario. There are far more men in the woods than the size of the little towns would seem to indicate.

ALL ARE SPECIALIZING

Chancellor McKay's Observations Abroad on Technical Education

Chancellor McKay, the Principal of the new Technical School, Toronto, who has been visiting the leading technical schools in Europe, says that he was particularly struck with the great advance made in technical education in the Old Country. In London, where one of the most enlightened municipal councils in the world holds sway, he inquired into the working of the excellent trade and art schools, which cover practically the whole realm of professions and arts. He mentioned as an example of practical up-to-dateness, the Brixton School of Building, where he saw boys at work actually constructing a full-sized model working-class dwelling. The idea was to give the pupil the advantage of the entire scientific and applied knowledge of the particular branch he took up. Specialising everywhere was in vogue, and separate trade schools dealt thoroughly under acknowledged masters with separate trades.

TERRIBLE CONGESTION

In 198 One-Roomed Dwellings in Toronto, 472 Persons are Living

Dr. Hastings' report on housing in the congested area south of College and Carlton streets, Toronto, shows that over 26,000 people are living under conditions that are as bad for them morally as they are for the body. Of 4,696 houses inspected in the slum area, there were only 1,601 with baths, and less than half with inside closets. No less than 2,127 of these houses had two families living in them. There were 198 one-roomed "dwellings" occupied by families aggregating 472 persons.

MOSES WROTE THE LAW

Mr. Luxmore Says Evidence of This Fact is Unimpeachable

Mr. C. M. Luxmore, D.Sc., of London, England, speaking on "The Veracity of the Holy Scriptures," at Toronto, crowned his argument with the assertion that, because the early chapters of Genesis were authentic records of Divine revelation delivered to Adam and handed down by him from generation to generation, they knew that they were veracious in the fullest sense of the term, whatever difficulty they might have in understanding them. Higher criticism so-called was altogether out of its depth and at sea in its attempts to establish a different result. Its methods were altogether lacking in the restraint and the moderation that characterised the true spirit of all healthy and sane inquiry into the past. The evidence that Moses wrote the Book of Law as it was found in the Old Testament was adequate and unanswerable. Furthermore, it was buttressed by the unimpeachable evidence of Christ Himself.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Daniel and His Companions; or Temperance Lesson. Dan. 1:8-20.

Golden Text—It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother stumbleth. Rom. xiv:21.

(1) Verse 3—Who was Daniel and how did he get to Babylon?

(2) What did Daniel propose for his food?

(3) What are the advantages and disadvantages (1) of a meat diet, (2) of a vegetable diet

(4) Is there any reason to believe that God originally meant man to be a meat eater.

(5) If meat is necessary for strength, how do you account for the strength of the horse and the elephant, as both are vegetarians?

(6) Is there any reason to think that the craving, or desire for meat is an artificial appetite?

(7) What evidence is there that a purely vegetable diet would increase the health and the longevity of the people?

(8) Verse 9—Did God in some supernatural way cause the prince of the eunuchs to love Daniel, or in any other way than through Daniel's lovable manner?

(9) Does God turn the hearts of people to love or favour good Christians wholly apart from their actual intentions?

(10) Verse 10.—Which people are the healthier, those who have abundance of rich food and who eat all they can or those who have plain food and eat only enough to give them sufficient strength for their work?

(11) Verses 11-13—What should be our rule as to the kind and quantity of food we eat?

(12) Which class in the community is generally the healthier, the rich or those respectable people who have to struggle "to make ends meet?"

(13) Take one hundred persons who drink nothing but water and another hundred persons who drink intoxicating liquor and compare their probable condition as to (a) health, (b) wealth, (c) happiness.

(14) Who were Hananiah, Michael, and Azariah?

(15) Verses 14-15. What was the result of the test made up on these three Hebrew young men, in eating a strictly vegetable diet, and drinking nothing stronger than water.

(16) Should this test from experience bind our conscience, and cause us to eat and drink as they did? Why or why not?

(17) Verse 16—What in our day are the chief evils of gluttony, and what are the chief evils of drunkenness?

(18) To what extent would the world be better if the use of intoxicating liquor as a beverage could be stopped? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club).

(19) Verses 17-21—To what extent may all men develop their ability by increasing their knowledge?

(20) Why is it not possible for all persons with sufficient study to become first rank artists, orators, poets and scientists, or to attain to supernatural powers like Daniel and his companions?

(21) Were the learning and wisdom of these four young men acquired, or the gifts of God?

(22) Where do you draw the line as to the possibilities of present spiritual or supernatural powers?

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 20 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 5th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained by writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

BOARD OF WORKS HELD A BUSY SESSION LAST NIGHT--MUCH BUSINESS TRANSACTED

Alderman Morgan Advocates More Cement Walks for East City---Applications Received for Caretaker of South End Pumping Station---City Threatened With Damage Suit

The Board of Works met last night and transacted considerable business. The following were present: Ald. Metheral, Chairman; Ald. Buller, Ald. Duncan, Ald. Graham, City Engineer, City Solicitor, Ald. Morgan.

A number of communications came up for discussion.

The attention of the Board was drawn to a tile drain on the east side of the gas works, that was filled up with sand and rubbish. The Board thought there was enough rubbish going into the river and took no action.

A petition for a sidewalk on the south side of Bolivar street, lot 16, plan 22, to the Monaghan Road. It was received and left over.

A petition to pave Chambers St., was received. Ald. Graham thought they could not do it this year. Ald. Buller was in favour of having Asphalt, but the Chairman and Ald. Graham opposed this. They thought the blocks would be the best. Ald. Buller said that anybody who ever lived on a block-paved street and put up with the noise, would not have anything else but the asphalt.

A report has been sent in to the Council and no reply had been made and the Board could not take any action. Ald. Buller moved that it be ascertained what sort of pavement the people wanted. This was agreed upon.

A petition for a sidewalk on the west side of George street, from Remaine street to Park lot No. 4, lot 14, Con. 12. It was referred to the Engineer.

A petition for a concrete walk on the south side of Crescent street was dealt with and referred to the City Engineer.

A communication from Ackerman & Co., was received. The Company coplained that the sewer overflowed after a heavy rain, and damaged their goods and laid 23 men off work. They threaten to enter a suit against the city if the latter do not take action and repair same. They claimed they did all they could to avert trouble.

A similar communication was received from T. Kinnear & Co.

Ald Buller moved that the sewer be repaired at once. He said it was a disgrace to the city to have such complaints coming in. He thought that the Chairman of the Board of Works should go down and look into the matter and report on it.

Ald. Metheral said that they thought it would be all right since the new overflow was installed.

The City Engineer stated that the closet was only a few inches above the sewer and they could not expect anything else. He suggested that they move their closets upstairs.

Ald. Buller thought the Chairman and Engineer should go down and notify them to put the closets upstairs. This was seconded and carried.

Ald. Morgan was present, representing the East City residents. He insisted that the laying of sidewalks in East City be proceeded with. Mr. Evans, foreman, was present, and stated that it would take the sidewalk gang two more weeks to finish the walk on Charlotte street. It would take them the remainder of the year to do the work in East City, and begin now.

It was moved by Ald. Graham, and seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the work be proceeded with on Cambridge street.

An application was received from the Peterborough Light and Power Co., asking for the same privilege to place poles on the street as was given to the Bell Telephone Co.—No action was taken.

An application from Mart. Pengelly was received for the position of caretaker of the south end pumping station. Mr. Pardue is leaving the city about Sept. 18th, and it is necessary to have a man at the station for some time.

At this juncture Mr. Pardue, who was present, spoke. He stated that Mr. George Mitchell, who was at present occupying the position, wished to be considered as an applicant. He further stated that he would have to leave at the end of next week, and who ever was to occupy the position should be there at once to get some experience before he left.

Mr. Pardue suggested that Mr. Jamieson, engineer at the Fire Station, be given the position for the week.

Ald. Buller moved that the matter be referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and that they report to the Council on Monday night.—Carried.

The same communication asked that arrangements be made to get a man to take Mr. Pardue's place. It was arranged that Mr. Chitman make the appointment. The Board agreed that if Mr. Chitman considered that Mr. Bartlett was the proper man he could instal him.

Mr. Pardue wanted the Board to decide whether Mr. Bogue should go ahead and finish the pump house, as a separate contract. The Board considered the question as one for the City Solicitor to deal with, so it was referred to him.

A communication was received from the P. L. and P. Co., stating that very little gas has got into the river lately. This was in answer to a complaint from the Council. They stated that they had installed separate tanks and these would soon be put in commission.

A communication was received from Mr. J. H. Vance, Aylmer St., requesting to be allowed permission to put a boulevard in front of his residence. The matter was referred to the city engineer with power to act.

A petition for a board walk for 75 yards on Victoria Ave. to Downie street, was received, and it was decided to build it if there was enough plank on hand.

A communication was received from T. Kinnear & Co., estimating the damage caused by the overflow of the sewer in their building to be $64.00.

A report from the City Engineer showed the cost of paving the Smith street bridge to be $1,677. The report was received.

An electric wire will connect the Fire Station with the pumping station at the south end, and Mr. Pardue stated that the Bell Telephone Co. offered to string the wire and supply the power for $40.00 per year. The matter was left over for the Council to deal with on Monday night.

Mr. Robert Leary, President of the Peterborough Industrial Fair, and Mr. R. Denne, were present, requesting that the Board send the city water waggon down to the show grounds on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, to settle the dust in front of the grandstand, and along the approach to the grounds.

An application from Messrs Denham and Lamonth for the city to take over the extension of Wescott street, through certain property, was referred to the City Solicitor to report. There is a lane in dispute at the present time, and it may cause some delay.

Prospective Lodger (looking at apartments adjacent to soap works): "This room has a very unpleasant smell."

Landlady: "Ah, that's only because the window has got left open!" —London Opinion.

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME OF SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS FOR BIG PETERBORO' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION NEXT WEEK

FOUR DIVIDEND-PAYERS

BEAVER CONSOL.

At 45c a share Beaver is paying approximately 27 per cent. on the investment. Within another month it is expected that the company will be placed on a 12 per cent. annual dividend basis. Recent developments in the mine indicate that the ore is getting much richer as depth is attained.

McKinley - Darragh

McKinley-Darragh at present price is, without question, one of the choicest bargains on the Cobalt list. Besides returning better than 30 per cent. in dividends, its ore reserves are increasing more rapidly than extraction. It is now the leading shipper of high-grade ore in Cobalt.

These four dividend-paying stocks of the Cobalt list are, to our minds, some of the most attractive issues among the mining securities group. Bought together, they return an annual dividend of 26 per cent. on the purchase price, besides possessing immense values behind the securities. In addition to their investment qualities we believe each one of them is entitled to a material gain in market valuation. We recommend their purchase either individually or in combination.

TEMISKAMING

Temiskaming's ore reserves, its splendid financial condition, and the expectation that the management will shortly encounter a very rich body of ore at depth, warrants the stock selling at materially higher prices. It can pay 12 per cent. annually for many years to come, or 30 per cent. on the purchase price.

CROWN RESERVE

In addition to being one of the most attractive of the Cobalt dividend-payers, returning 30 per cent. annually on the purchase price, Crown Reserve owns one of the most attractive claims in Porcupine. The stock besides its sterling dividend qualities, possess remarkable speculative possibilities.

We will be glad to execute orders for the purchase or sale of active, listed mining stocks, either for cash or on margin of 33 1-3 per cent., and will accept certificates, when properly endorsed, as collateral margin against purchases.

The Nemo Corset for Stout Figures

ONE OF THE MOST NOTABLE EXAMPLES OF MODERN CORSET MAKING

Produces a Remarkable Reduction of Ungainly Stoutness
Provides a Comfortable, Hygienic Support to the Figure
Affords Freedom to the Vital Organs of the Body
Permits Ease and Grace of Movement

Such are the achievements of the now famous Nemo Self reducing Corset. One of the most notable triumphs of modern corset making. Designed in harmony with the principles of anatomy, the memo makes not only for comeliness and style of appearance, but for health and comfort. The broad bands of Lastikop webbing—the indestructible, semi-elastic fabric controlled by the makers of the Nemo—produce the slim, modish lines and smooth, snug fit over the hips and abdomen, while yet allowing for the necessary expansion of the limbs when the wearer is seated. Availaible also for slender figures are special designs of the Nemo, possessing all the hygienic features of the self-reducing model.

A Great Success

The excursion to Lake Simcoe on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week under the auspices of the Chemong Athletic Club, was a great success in every way and the long sail on the steamer 'Stoney Lake' was thoroughly enjoyed by the one hundred and fifty people on board. Good music for dancing was provided and there was plenty of singing on board as well, making the trip doubly enjoyable. The only regret was that the excursion comes but once a year. The Chemong Baseball Club won both games played on the trip, defeating both the Georgians and the Sutton team. The excursionists are indebted to Capt. Scollard of the Stoney Lake and his crew for the excellent and courteous manner in which they looked after the comfort of those on board.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the vision of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

This remedy is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Funeral Of Mrs. Cahill

Over the remains of the late Mrs. Ellen Cahill of 481 Gilmour street, who died on Thursday morning last, mass was sung in St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock this morning by the Rev. Fr. J. J. McCarthy, after which the funeral cortege proceeded to St. Peter's cemetery for interment. There was a large attendance, signifying the respect and esteem in which the deceased was held by her many friends. Mr. T. E. Sheehan, of Bay City, Mich., and Mrs. Jas. McGrath, of Lakefield, respectively, brother and sister of the deceased were also present. The coffin was enveloped in numerous and beautiful flowers and the pall-bearers were Messrs. Young, Corkery, Daly, Phelan, Donohue and Michael O'Brien.

"RECIPROCITY"

Mr. G. N. Baker Offers Prize for the Best Essay on this Subject

Mr. G. N. Baker, superintendent of the Lundy Shovel and Tool Company is offering a very handsome gold watch for the best essay on the subject of "Reciprocity." The watch is on exhibition in the window of Mr. A. Gibson, jeweler this afternoon. The competition is open only to students in attendance at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and essays must be sent in to 53 Crescent street before Sept. 30th.

MARKS BROS. COMING

At the Grand Opera House, for three nights, commencing Thursday night, Sept. 14th, Marks Bros. will present the Ernie Marks Company, headed by those Canadian favourites, Kitty and Ernie Marks, supported by one of the most versatile companies ever seen at popular prices, presenting an entire new repertoire of all new plays, with high-class vaudeville between the acts, which is changed at each and every performance. The opening play selected for Thursday night, is a beautiful story of the old South, entitled, The Girl and the Gambler, considered by press and public to be the greatest woman's play ever written. The company this season numbers such well known performers as Kitty and Ernie Marks, Miss Jessie Lyons, late of the Pantello Stock Company, Lida Gardner, Melba Brooks, Daisy Delaney, Webb Chamberlin, Wesley Barney, Walter Koler, Franklin Brooks, Ed. R. Moore, and others who have appeared here with higher priced attractions. Seats for Thursday night will go on sale Monday morning, Sept. 11th at 9 o'clock at the box office.

OBITUARY

MISS MINNIE E. SCOTT.

The death occurred this morning, Sept. 9, of Miss Minnie E. Scott, the third daughter of the late Alexander Scott of Chemong Road, Smith Township, after a lingering illness of two months. The deceased was very well and favourably known in the district and her demise will be a source of grief to a wide circle of friends. There are left to mourn her loss her mother, four brothers and two sisters. The brothers are Messrs. Robt. N. Hesbert and Fred of Smith, and John of Providence, R.I., while the sisters are Mrs. Pope of Chemong Park, and Miss Lottie at home.

The funeral will take place on Monday, Sept. 11th, at 2 o'clock, from the home of her mother, Chemong Road, to Little Lake cemetery.

FRANCES CRUICKSHANKS.

A promising young life was cut short last evening when Frances Cruickshanks passed away at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Walsh, of Springville.

Her's was a long and painful illness; the end therefore was not altogether unexpected. She was a native of Cavan, but for some years has resided in the city, where, by her kindly disposition, she won the hearts of all those who were fortunate enough to know her.

The deceased is survived by five brothers, Percival of this city, George and W. H. of Wingham, A. E. Cruickshanks of Baltimore and R. E. Cruickshanks of the homestead, near Cobourg.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning in the old burial ground of Springville church. Service at the house at 9 o'clock.

"PATTERSON" WON RACE

In a matched race at the Exhibition grounds yesterday between "Patterson," owned by Mr. Eddie Jones, and "Crillie Belle," owned by Mr. Frank Montgomery, the former won, after an exciting contest that was watched with interest by a large number of racing fans. Mr. Montgomery's mare won the first two heats by narrow margins, but "Patterson" proved a strong finisher, carrying off the third, fourth, and fifth heats.

THE REPORTER'S LAMENT.

Of Four Things You Can't Figure a City Editor In One.

"I think I'll have to look for a new job," said Ralph, the reporter, gloomily as he dropped in on his old friend Bill.

"What's the city editor been calling you down now for?" asked Bill, with a wise air.

"It wasn't a calldown this time," replied Ralph. "It was a bit of unqualified praise."

"Shoot, pal," was Bill's comeback. "I'm all ears."

"I've heard people complain about that, but I thought you would be the last to mention it," Ralph told him. "Now, keep your goat in leash and I'll spiel the tale:

"The old man sticks me with a morning assignment last year on Memorial day. 'I'm to lose my beauty sleep and get up at 10 o'clock and write up the parade. It's bad enough for a morning newspaper man to get up in time to report at 1 o'clock. So I decide to cure the boss by giving him the mushiest sort of story, and I write a lot of guff about the thin line of heroes who had fought and bled in their country's cause. He comes around afterward and says: 'Bully boy! That's the kind of story! People like sentiment on an occasion like this.'

"This year the old man hands me the same job, and I decide to cure him, and so I write him the driest sort of story about '500 veterans of the G. A. R. being in line, followed by the ladies of the W. R. C. in carriages.' I throw in all the statistics I can. Afterward he comes around and says: 'That's the kind of story! Too much of this sentiment and soft stuff is nauseating. I'll bet the other papers slop all over with it, and nobody wants that kind of stuff.'

"Now, I ask you, Bill, in all sincerity what show have I got of escaping the next early holiday assignment?'

Bill finished exhaling the bar and then, carefully weighing his words, made answer: "There are four things you can't figure—a city editor, a jury, the supreme court and a woman. And, furthermore, you got to take 'em as they come."

Whereupon Ralph concealed the truth of the observation and decided to retain his job.—Roy R. Atkinson in Puck.

A Modern Child.

"So you have your new little brother?" asked the visitor. "Well, dearie, will you sell him to me? I'll give you a dollar for every ounce he weighs."

"No, I won't," answered the angel child.

"Dear loyal little sister!" beamed the visitor. "And why not?"

"Because," answered the tiny tot, with a quivering lip—"because he only weighs six pounds. Come back next month and I'll see if we can't make a deal."—Toledo Blade.

A Hopeless Case.

"No, I guess there's no way to get rid of him but to throw him out."

"Can't you give him a good strong hint that you don't care for his society?"

"I had papa sing for him and tell him a funny story the other evening, but he turned up fresh and smiling the next evening."—Houston Post.

Forget the Pink Stuff.

Wifey—Why didn't you stop in at the drug store yesterday and get the things I asked you to?

Wigs were first worn in England during the reign of King Stephen, 1135-54. The fashion was at its height in Queen Anne's time.

BRAVERY OF UMPIRES.

O'Day's Famous Decision a Sample of Nerve on the Diamond.

Writing in the American Magazine about baseball umpires, Hugh Fullerton says they are both brave and square and cites as an example of nerve a famous decision by Hank O'Day. He says:

"O'Day has shown his bravery on many occasions, but never more conspicuously than he did on the day when he called Merkle out on the Polo grounds when he made his famous failure to touch second base. O'Day had been in the same play at Pittsburg two weeks before and had overlooked it. When Bridwell made the hit that should have won the pennant for New York and thousands of frantic fans leaped upon the field to congratulate the Giants O'Day saw his duty. He saw Merkle run to the clubhouse, and, throwing down his protector, he ran down into the diamond, saw Evers hold the ball on second base, and above the tumult he called Merkle out.

"Five thousand men were swarming madly around O'Day and the Chicago players, partly understanding the situation. Men struck at him, struck Chance and struck Pfeister, yet O'Day, shouldering his way along, shoved two men aside to get his protector and walked through the crowd to his dressing room. It was declared O'Day never would dare umpire on the Polo grounds again, and police were sent to protect him. The management did not understand American love of fair play. The crowd cheered O'Day.

"O'Day's bravery on that occasion was more noticeable because he could have shirked his duty without blame. It was Emslie's decision, yet O'Day, seeing Emslie lost in the crowd, shouldered the responsibility and made the decision in the face of threats from thousands of angry men."

CHINA'S OPIUM EVIL.

It Will Take Seven More Years to Wipe It Out Completely.

The opium agreement recently signed at Peking by Sir John Jordan for England and the Wai-pu-pu for China promises the certain extinction of the traffic within seven years. It starts out by recognizing the good faith with which China has endeavored since 1907 to reduce the production of the drug within the empire, and the first covenant is that for the next seven years it shall continue the decrease in the same ratio that the annual import from India is diminished.

Great Britain agrees that no opium shall be conveyed from India to any province of China which has effectively suppressed the cultivation of the poppy. The entire export of opium from India shall cease in less than seven years if proof be given that the home production has entirely ceased in China.

The other provisions of the agreement provide for administrative details, including official inspection in each country. Great Britain consents also to an increase of duty to $30 taels a chest on imports, provided that an equivalent excise tax be placed on domestic opium in China. The annual reduction of the Indian exports is now about 5,100 chests, but it is to be even greater in 1912, 1913 and 1914.

A loss of revenue of at least $3,000,000, or $15,000,000, is on the surface involved to India from the loss of the imports on the trade. This may have to be met in part by a contribution from the British imperial treasury. But in parliament recently Undersecretary Montagu of the Indian office intimated that some other way might be found of meeting the deficiency.—New York Sun.

Electrocuted Eggs.

It is possible that the peculiar taste of a cold storage egg, which is something not easy to mistake, may be removed if experiments now being made by an electrical company are successful. Says the Inventive Age: "It is claimed that when fresh eggs are placed in cold storage the eggs are alive, that they are slowly frozen to death and that in spite of the preservation qualities of the ice the eggs do not taste good when cooked. It is now believed that by electrocuting the eggs the natural fresh taste may be retained and not removed when the eggs are placed in cold storage. The eggs are 'killed' by placing a metal cap on each end of the egg and then throwing on a pressure of 500 volts."

English Jail Methods.

A woman member of the board of guardians of the town of Salford, England, anxious to learn the exact nature of the toil imposed upon paupers, went into a stone yard and worked for half an hour with the stone breaking gang. Her conclusion was that stone breaking should be abolished "as cruel, worse than useless, degrading and unprofitable." The board had gone to the extreme of buying stone, for which there was no use, and having it crushed to give the paupers something to do.—Springfield Republican.

Sunday Rest For Soldiers.

General Hellebnut, the Belgian minister for war, has made an innovation in matters military by establishing a day of rest for all branches of the army. Sunday has been appointed as the rest day. Henceforth all soldiers will have permission to return to their families and spend Sunday at home. They will have a formal permit granted, which on their return to the barracks they will have to produce to the commandant, signed by the "chef de famille" to the effect that they have been at home.—London Globe.

WHAT TUNNEL MEANS.

Prince Edward Island Has Much to Gain by New Scheme.

The supplementary estimates recently brought down in the Dominion Parliament, containing a grant of $35,000 for a survey of the proposed tunnel under the Strait of Northumberland to connect Prince Edward Island with New Brunswick, will make the "million acre farm" practically a part of the continent.

The construction of an all-rail route to the mainland would mean many improvements in Prince Edward Island. Regular and daily communication now maintained during the season of open navigation by two steamers under a subsidy from the Dominion Government. Regular navigation is generally closed from the middle of December to the middle of April. During this period ice-breaker steamers running with more or less regularity carry passengers, the mails, and some freight to and from Pictou in Nova Scotia. Under unfavorable conditions the mails, on sleds, are pulled over the ice between the two capes named above.

Prince Edward Island now produces annually about $10,000,000 worth of field and animal products. Owing to the uncertainties of navigation after November the farmers are forced to sell, no matter what the markets then may be, shortly after their crops are harvested. No manufacturing exists on this island except to supply a few of the local wants. Labor is abundant and cheap, such labor leaving this province in large numbers for the United States and the western provinces of Canada. All efforts to utilize this labor supply in local manufactories on a larger scale had to be given up, as the means of shipping manufactured goods from there are, during at least four months of the year, practically impossible. An all-rail route to the mainland would at once open up many opportunities to the people of that province.

A Great Crop of Wheat.

An immense amount of capital has been invested in Canadian bonds and stocks during the last ten years, and there has been a very great appreciation in value of many securities. What would be the market value of these stocks to-day if there had been a succession of crop failures in Canada year after year during the last ten years? Anyone who will consider this question can understand to what a great extent the stock markets are interested in the condition of the crops.

It is now estimated that the wheat yield in the Western Provinces of Canada will not be less than 200,000,000 bushels, and that it may reach 225,000,000.

The general condition of other crops seems to be good throughout Canada, and if present expectations are realized 1911 will be a bumper year for Canadian farmers. Disturbing influences; now unforeseen, may affect the stock market in spite of good crops; but the present outlook is most favorable.

Reports prepared by the International Agricultural Institute state that the world's total wheat production for the year 1910 amounted to 3,574,579,000 bushels, compared with 3,581,007,000 bushels in 1909. Assuming that the world's production should be the same this year as last year, and that the wheat crop of the Canadian West is 225,000,000, it will be nearly one-fifteenth of the world's total yield.—Canadian Century.

HE LOST BOTH WAYS.

Behind When He Did Not Eat, Worse Off When He Did.

The hotel visitor had taken his dinner elsewhere with a friend. When, on coming to pay his bill, he found himself charged with a day's board he protested vigorously. It was explained to him that the American plan adopted there was based strictly on a day rate and that if he chose to eat elsewhere it was his own lookout. The man, however, refused to be pacified and paid the bill under protest. Then, to every one's surprise, he asked if dinner was "still on." He was informed that it lasted until 9 o'clock in the evening.

"I've eaten one dinner," he exclaimed, "but I'm going to get my money's worth out of this house if I suffer all the torments of dyspepsia."

He rushed into one of the dining rooms, seized a bill of fare and ordered everything he could think of. When he finally reached his limit the waiter handed him a bill for a good round sum.

"What's that for?" he demanded.

"Your dinner, sir."

"But I have already paid for my dinner in my bill," protested the unfortunate man. "I am staying here on the American plan."

"Then you should have gone into the other dining room," said the waiter. "This part of the hotel is conducted on the English plan!"—Tit-Bits.

Meeting Requirements.

Mr. Plough, a farmer, was showing off his live stock to a visitor. When they came to the pigsty the visitor asked: "What is the matter with your pigs today? They seem ravenously hungry."

"Oh, it is just like this," replied the farmer. "We're not breeding them for exhibition, but just for eating. The people round here like streaky bacon, so we feed our pigs well one day and starve them the next."—Ideas.

Sandy Pike—Dunno about that, mum. I had $2,000 chase me one time.

Kind Lady—You really mean it?

Sandy Pike—Yes, mum; it was in the shape of a prize bulldog, and I just made the fence by two feet!—Story Stories.

Greatness and Smartness.

"Which would you rather be—truly great or really smart?"

"Smart, of course."

"Why?"

"Well, you may be truly great and no one ever know it, but if you're smart you can make people think that you're great."—Chicago Post.

THE DIOCESE OF JAPAN

Canadian Synod Selects That Field of Missions

FUTURE OF THE INDIANS

London, Ont., Sept. 9.—The formal decision to establish a diocese of the Canadian Anglican Church in Japan was arrived at yesterday.

At the general synod meeting, on motion of Chancellor Worrell of the diocese of Toronto, seconded by the Hon. S. H. Blake, that the district of Flowery Kingdom assigned to the Canadian Church be that of Japan, was accepted.

The motion was put to both the house of bishops and the house of representatives, sitting together as the board of missions, and was passed unanimously.

It is possible that the new missionary bishop for the latest diocese of the Canadian Church will be selected at the present sitting of the general synod.

It was a missionary day at the Synod and the presentation of the board of management of the missionary society of the church to the board of missions occupied the day in its entirety. Both morning and afternoon sessions, which were presided over by the primate, were occupied by the reading of this comprehensive report by Canon Gould of Toronto, the general missionary secretary.

The Indian, his past, his present and his future occupied much of the debate of the afternoon, a debate that culminated in a memorial being drafted for presentation to the Dominion and Provincial Governments, that in the opinion of the general synod, the Indian's right could be profitably employed in the conservation of the national resources of the country.

Archdeacon Robison of Moose Factory, who introduced the resolution to the House, started the debate on the Indian question.

There should be a change in the educative system in handling the original inhabitants of Canada, he declared, for to coop them up in schools was the equivalent of condemning them to the undertaker. Their natures demanded something different, and school buildings on the pattern of sanatoriums, where as much air and light as possible could be obtained were what he suggested.

Outdoor occupations, such as fire ranging and kindred pursuits, were further suggested as his life work. His physical constitution demanded work of this nature, not the confining restricted life of factory or shop.

G. B. Nicholson of Chesterfield, Ont., said the extension of the railway through the north country was slowly driving the Indian out of his present sphere of life, and that unless something were done in order that the Indian might be taken up the problem would be serious. He suggested the matter be taken up with the Government.

This was the idea of many of the delegates and in addition to the resolution to memorialize the Government a second was passed appointing the Archbishop of Rupert's Land and the Bishops of Mackenzie, Moosoone, Keewatin, Algoma, Saskatchewan, Qu'Appelle, Athabasca, Yukon and Kootenay a committee to investigate the secular, the religious and the educational welfare of the Indians, the Indian school question, the application of the funds from the sale of reserves.

Pestilence Follows Flood.

Peking, Sept. 9.—Only meagre reports have reached the capital from the walled towns in the region of the Yang-Tse valley, where disastrous floods have hemmed the missionaries and other foreigners.

Travelers arriving by steamboat at Hankow, from the upper reaches of the river, report that many coffins, of a huge Chinese type, were encountered floating in the Yang-Tse, which indicates that the waters are robbing the graves of former years.

From Chang-Teh, in the province of Hunan, comes word that the receding water is being followed by pestilence.

Famous Sleuth Coming.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—David Russell said yesterday that Donald McMaster, K.C., had come from England especially to represent him in his case against the Pinkerton Detective Agency, and would remain until after the trial. Wm. J. Burns, the famous detective, is coming to Montreal direct from San Francisco on Saturday, when an important conference will be held with regard to the alleged asylum plot.

Germany Massing Troops.

Paris, Sept. 9.—La Liberte yesterday afternoon affirms that, notwithstanding all denials and explanations, Germany is gradually concentrating her troops close to the French frontier.

Careful enquiries, the paper says, show that 30,000 infantry, 10,000 cavalry and 150 guns have been gathered in a triangle, which has for its points Mencels, Vic and Dieuze, and in Dechelun to the southeast; that numerous forces have been drawn up opposite to Nancy, and that immense accumulations of material have been disposed of along the German boundary.

Not Room For All.

Kingston, Sept. 9.—Forty pupils from outside Kingston have made application for entrance to the collegiate, but there will not be room for them all, owing to the large attendance. Those living nearest to the city may be accommodated, but the others will have to go elsewhere.

Mayor Arrested on Bribe Charge.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 9.—Thomas E. Knotts, mayor of Gary, and Walter Gibson, councilman, were arrested yesterday on charges of accepting and soliciting bribes in a heating franchise.

GIRL IS WOUNDED

Young Man Arrested on Charge of Attempted Murder in Montreal

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Montreal, Sept. 9.—With three bullet wounds in her body, Juliette Van Mal, a domestic, aged 22, lies in a critical condition in the Notre Dame Hospital, while Nicholas Hayes, a cigarmaker, aged 30, is held at the Central Police Station on a charge of attempted murder.

Miss Van Mal is employed in the boarding-house of Jos. Duval, 29 St. Elisabeth street, and while in her room yesterday afternoon heard someone approaching. Hayes, who had come in by a back door, and whom she says she had never met before, entered and attempted to assault her. She resisted and he drew a revolver and shot twice, wounding her in the breast, abdomen and thigh. She managed to crawl through a window and struggled to a store across the road, whence she was taken to the hospital.

Meanwhile Hayes, still holding the revolver in his hand, stepped out on the street, coolly lighted a cigarette, and proceeded towards his boarding-house on Sanguinet street. The police, who had heard the shots, noticed him and took him into custody after a short struggle.

Hayes had been drinking heavily. His home is believed to be in Quebec.

Cheery News From China.

Toronto, Sept. 9.—"All well here, and at all our stations, for which we are all grateful. There are no disquieting rumors to amount to anything in West China. We trust to get through the summer safely," was the cable received by Rev. E. T. Shore, secretary of the Methodist Foreign Mission Board, yesterday from Dr. Kilborn, who has charge of the Methodist missionaries in China.

For the first time in seven years the Rev. A. W. Lockhead of the Canadian Presbyterian Mission, Honan, China, has returned to Toronto on a year's furlough. Mr. Lockhead says uprisings are caused in China by the ignorant masses, who use every opportunity to oppose the Monchu dynasty, which governs the country.

Not Easy to Get Married.

New York, Sept. 9.—Friends of the divorced multi-millionaire, Col. John Jacob Astor, were quoted yesterday as authority for the statement that his marriage to young Miss Madeleine Force will not be delayed more than a few days longer.

It is reported that a clergyman has been found willing to perform the ceremony, and that it will probably take place in Connecticut.

Three religious denominations, the Protestant Episcopal, the Methodist Episcopal and Baptist, are on record against the marriage of Col. Astor and his 18-year-old fiancee. Even the glamor of a $1,000 fee has hitherto failed to secure a clergyman who will take the responsibility of uniting the pair.

Fined For Piloting Vessel.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—An important judgment regarding the piloting of vessels up the St. Lawrence from Quebec to Montreal was given yesterday morning by Judge Leet. He sentenced Philippe Garneau, the third mate of the steamship Cascapedia to pay a fine of $5 and costs for having piloted that vessel from Quebec to Montreal.

The action was brought by J. C. Gauthier of the Branch Pilots' Association, claiming that nobody had the right to pilot a vessel of a certain size but the captain or owner or a regularly commissioned pilot. Judge Leet upheld these contentions and gave judgment accordingly. The case will be appealed.

Youthful Depravity.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—"Have her arrested!" is what several witnesses told Judge Lanctot Mrs. Mallard told them, when they complained to her that her daughter had been obtaining money and groceries from them under false pretences. The little girl, only ten years of age, was yesterday morning sentenced to three years in the reform school.

According to Mrs. Trudeau, the youngster would watch for children about her own age leaving grocery stores and would approach them, and after finding out if they had an account, would draw on it in that person's name, making believe she was a daughter of the family she victimized.

Nearly a Bomb Victim.

New York, Sept. 9.—J. B. Body, general manager of Pearson & Sons' enterprises in Mexico and an intimate of Gen. Diaz, just missed falling a victim to a dynamite bomb in San Luis Potosi, while en route to New York.

The train made a ten-minute stop between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning. Just as the train pulled out of the station a terrific explosion shook the private car and Body and his traveling companion were thrown from their berths. The rear platform was wrecked.

Volunteer Died In Hospital.

Kingston, Sept. 9.—James Patterson, aged 54, Belleville, died at the Station Hospital. He was a volunteer at the recent camp, and was taken ill while on parade and removed to the hospital. He had heart trouble.

Flagman Dropped Dead.

Kingston, Sept. 9.—Geo. P. Huff, aged 70, for thirty years a flagman on the Grand Trunk at this city, dropped dead at Vanneshar. He was in good health when he left Kingston.

WHITNEY IS RIGHT

There is no Need to Fear Annexation Says Sir Wilfrid—Reciprocity is 40 Years Old and Has High Recommendations

TWO SPLENDID MEETINGS

Stratford, Sept. 9.—"Sir James Whitney spoke at North Bay last night," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday afternoon, addressing the great gathering of ten thousand enthusiastic people in Victoria Park. "I had not the opportunity of hearing him, but those who did hear him report that, notwithstanding the fact that he spoke from an anti-reciprocity platform, and in opposition to the agreement, he stated frankly and fairly that this talk of the loyalty of the Canadian people being affected, and that there was danger of their being seduced into annexation, was sheer nonsense. Canadians are of better stuff than that, and their loyalty to their motherland cannot be bought. Sir James Whitney is right in that. He represents the situation just as it is."

"Although, arithmetically, I am old, it is true, yet I feel that I have a young heart, with the vitality to lead the Liberal party to victory at the coming election." Such was the opening message of the Premier to the meeting yesterday afternoon, his second last before he returns to Quebec. The idea of reciprocity, he said, was not new. Nearly forty years old, but this was the first time it has been presented to the people. He rejoiced that Providence had given to him in his old age the task of introducing such an agreement for the Canadian people. Both parties were divided on confederation, and on the idea of the building of the transcontinental railways, and both parties, if the Conservatives followed their former leaders should be in favor of this reciprocity and if they followed the instructions received at the feet of Sir John A. Macdonald should vote on the 21st in favor of reciprocity. Dealing with the cry of "Let well enough alone," the Premier stated if that was to be the cry, then let the present Government alone, "but we are not prepared to clog the wheels of prosperity that God has bestowed upon us."

Speaking of horses, the Premier stated that when our horses were to be shipped to the United States, we have to pay up to Uncle Sam's tax collector. "That would be well enough, but it would be better if the money paid in that manner remained in your pockets." The speaker prophesied that after the 21st of September, things would be better.

Meeting at Landon.

London, Ont., Sept. 9.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was given a hearty welcome by an audience of eight thousand people at the Princess Rink here last evening, although this city was not on his original itinerary he was prevailed upon to assist the fight on behalf of John M. McEvoy, the Liberal candidate, who is opposing Major T. Beattie, former member of Parliament. The gathering remained closely attentive, although there were several outbreaks of heckling. The Prime Minister's speech was entirely on the Government's reasons for bringing the reciprocity agreement into action, and he spent some time in ridiculing the position of Mr. Borden in the present contest.

Ex-Judge Resigns From Contest.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—The retirement of ex-Judge J. A. Ouimet as the Opposition candidate in Yamaska is announced. It seems he has accepted a pension from the Government on the score of ill-health, and is disqualified.

Youthful Desperados.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—"Such cases as these make the juvenile court imperative," said Judge Bazin yesterday when disposing of Francois Therrien, 11 years of age, and Thomas Duperre, 9 years of age, who stood charged with numerous thefts.

The little lads, imbued with the spirit of the wild west, following visits to moving-picture shows, had armed themselves with knives and pistols and were caught working the "hold-up" game in the east end of the city.

Thursday night they saw Miss Juliette Shears of 247 Joliette street and, with one of the boys pointing a gun at her head and the other holding a knife and shouting: "Hands up! Money or your life!" Miss Joliette parted with her handbag, but followed the little lads at a judicious distance and gave information to Constable Cabana, upon which he took them in charge.

The boys were allowed to go on the parents' promise that they would be better looked after in the future.

Inaugurated New Service.

Ottawa, Sept. 9.—The Department of Trade and Commerce in its weekly report publishes a statement from W. A. Beddoe, trade commissioner in New Zealand. Mr. Beddoe says that the Marama sailed from Auckland on Aug. 4, inaugurating the new direct service between Canada and New Zealand, and carrying 130 carcasses of lamb and mutton, 19 crates of poultry, 5 cases of rabbits, 75 cased of jam and a quantity of hides and wool, destined for Vancouver.

C. N. R. to Have Lake Line.

Winnipeg, Sept. 9.—Sir Donald Mann arrived in the city yesterday and was in a reminiscent mood, commenting that it was just thirty years since he first set foot in Winnipeg, and noting changes. He announced incidentally that next year the Canadian Northern will proceed to the establishment of a line of passenger boats on the great lakes, first sailing to be in the spring of 1913.

SIFTON AT OSHAWA.

He Complains That Reciprocity is a New Thing.

Oshawa, Sept. 9.—Hon. Clifford Sifton addressed the Conservative electors of Oshawa last night.

Prominent men from various parts of the riding occupied seats on the platform in the big rink. Dr. John and Dr. Jim Moore of Brooklin, Arthur Johnston of Brougham, John Bright of Myrtle, Albert W. Jackson, Major Rutledge, Donald McKay, John Smith of Whitby, T. C. McAvery and Fred Jones of Balsam, John Cowan, John Schofield, Sam McLaughlin, Fred. Bull, president of Williams Piano Co., were among those present.

They had been told not to put their trust in princes. Mr. Sifton said during his address. He would say, "Don't put your trust in Ministers or Prime Ministers." Sir Wilfrid had promised early in the last session that there would be no tariff changes, but he could not keep his promise. This reciprocity pact was a tariff change. Sir Wilfrid now promised that if reciprocity carried there would dbe no reduction in duties on manufactured goods. But circumstances would be too strong for him to prevent agitation for free trade in manufactured products after free trade in natural products was obtained. The protection to farmers could not be taken away and the protection to manufacturers maintained. We shall have commercial union if this treaty goes into effect.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Sugar advanced 20 cents.

Incendiary fires are frequent at Belleville.

The Franco-German dispute regarding Morocco has not yet been settled.

Miss Nellie Beese, a Berlin sculptress, qualified for a pilot's license yesterday, and the first aviatress in Germany.

Because of failing health "Old Bill" Miner, train robber, aged 69, has been sent to the Atlanta, Ga., prison farm to serve his 20-year sentence.

Stanley Mowry, formerly of Toronto, was scalded to death in a boiler explosion at the Saskatchewan Lumber Mill here yesterday morning.

The famine riots in Changnon are spreading; and the American Baptist Chapel near Quainsan has been sacked by a band of marauders from Suchau.

A big raft of logs in tow of three tugs was broken up by the storm on Lake Huron near Sarnia, and the logs scattered along the beach for miles.

A young woman with a prayer book clasped in her hands was found dead beside the railroad tracks in Irving Park, Chicago. Police believe she might have been murdered and her body placed on the tracks.

A balloon and parachute performer named Woodward had a narrow escape from death at Cornwall Fair, when his parachute failed to open and he dropped a considerable distance to the ground. He is said not to be seriously hurt.

John Davis, of Montreal, was brought to the hospital with his hands and legs burned. Davis is employed in the powder and dynamite plant and a cigarette spark ignited the particles of powder and dynamite in his clothing after work.

GOES TO THE CHAIR.

Beattie, the Virginia Murderer, to Die on November 24.

Chesterfield, Va., Sept. 9.—Henry Clay Beattie, jr., last night was found guilty of murder in the first degree. The jury had been out but 58 minutes, when it came into court with a verdict of guilty. No degree of guilt was specified, however, and Judge Watson declared that the jury retire again to decide this matter. It seemed but a minute or two that the jury was gone. When they reentered the foreman announced that the jury held Beattie to be guilty of first degree murder in putting his wife to death on the night of July 18 last. The penalty is electrocution.

The defence asked for 90 days to file a petition for a writ of error to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia. Attorney Wendenburg for the state asked that the defence be restricted to within a few days of the meeting of the Supreme Court in November. Judge Watson decided that the request of counsel for the accused was reasonable and granted a stay of execution for 90 days.

Judge Watson sentenced Beattie to be electrocuted at Richmond on November 24.

Swindler Out of Bankruptcy.

New York, Sept. 9.—In discharging Patrick J. Keiran, from bankruptcy Judge Hough in the Circuit Court, wiped out $231,150 liabilities which Keiran has sworn he was unable to liquidate. The court had no alternative.

Keiran took advantage of a loophole in the bankruptcy law which enables a man to get clear of his financial encumbrances, provided he makes frank and, to all appearances, truthful voyal of his liabilities, his assets, and his inability to liquidate.

He is still under indictment on charges of grand larceny at Norwich, Conn., in connection with note transaction for $10,000, while he was president of the Fidelity Funding Co., and also in Pittsburg. Keiran had many Canadian victims.

Died Rather Than Surrender.

Cornwall, Sept. 9.—Fred. Ashley of Massena Springs shot himself in the head with a 32-calibre revolver in his brother's cornfield. Ashley went to the home of his brother Levi, whom he tried to shoot, as well as Levi's wife and his own son, who was calling on his uncle. He was prevented from doing any damage, but made his escape. Officer Demo had a warrant to arrest Ashley on a charge of abusing his wife and family some time ago, and learning that he was hiding in the cornfield, the officer proceeded in search of him. When Ashley saw the officer coming he put the revolver to his head and fired, and died in a few minutes.

Binder Twine Famine.

High River, Alta., Sept. 9.—A binder twine famine is reaching an acute stage in Southern Alberta. High River dealers have been appealed to by towns north and south, but stocks here are low and, in the opinion of implement men, insufficient for local needs.

No adequate supply is in sight, and many farmers will have to cut without twine.

BUILDING COLLAPSES.

Theatre Restaurant at Nice, France, Falls on Workmen

Nice, France, Sept. 9.—The restaurant connected with the Eldorado, the largest theatre in Nice, collapsed yesterday morning, burying a number of workmen in the debris. Late last night eleven dead and sixteen severely injured persons had been taken from the ruins by the firemen and soldiers, but it was feared that other persons still remained beneath the wreckage.

The building was in course of reconstruction, and while the cause of the disaster has not yet been definitely ascertained, it is alleged that the work, in which reinforced concrete was used, was being hurried by the contractors, who were liable to a heavy fine for each day they exceeded the contract time for finishing the structure.

The collapse occurred at 10 o'clock yesterday morning while the work was in full swing. A few of the workmen near the windows heard the first rending of timbers above them and leaped to the street, escaping with slight injuries. Those in the interior, however, had no chance to get out, as the entire roof collapsed and carried them down beneath it. Several of these men were taken out shortly afterwards, but died after receiving the last rites of the church by a priest who chanced to be passing.

Lost Her Leg.

Barrie, Sept. 9.—Miss Marian Wilder, 16 years of age, of Toronto, while visiting friends near Thornton recently, was the victim of a serious accident, in which one of her legs was caught in a cutting box and so badly mangled that it was necessary to amputate the limb. The young woman was brought to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where the operation was performed Thursday. The patient is doing well.

Set a New Record.

Etampes, France, Sept. 9.—M. Etampes, the French aviator, competing for the Michelin Cup yesterday, beat his own record of 748 miles in fifteen hours, made Aug. 28, at Mourmelon, by flying 776.86 miles. His time was 14 hours 7 minutes.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for electric light fixtures, wiring, &c., for the Public Building, Peterborough, Ont., will be received until 4 P.M., Wednesday, September 20, 1911, for the work mentioned.

Tenders will not be considered unless made upon, and in accordance with the conditions contained in forms supplied by Department.

Plans and specification to be seen on application to Mr. W. Blackwell, Architect, Peterborough, Ont., and at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender.

By order,
E. O. TAYLOR,
Secretary.

Open Day and Night

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of home-stead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased home-stead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Ontario Minerals

The Ontario Government returns of the mineral production for the first three months of 1911 show an increased production of 1,120,949 ounces of silver, and an increase in value of $667,200.

The total production of the metalliferous mines and works of Ontario for the period amounted in value to $6,208,760. The output of silver was 7,580,497 ounces, worth $3,760,544. The Gowganda and Elk Lake district produced 128,000 ounces, and South Lorraine 66,795 ounces. The production of copper was 2,121 tons, valued at $360,240, a decrease of $59,836; of nickel, 4,124 tons, valued at $824,800, a decrease of $246,023; iron ore, 11,621 tons, valued at $34,494, an increase of $9,270; pig iron, 115,494 tons valued at $1,883,717, an increase of $73,281; cobalt and nickel oxides, 337,946 tons, valued at $28,000.

Died at 102.

Mrs. Robert Hughes, Lanark County's oldest citizen, died at her home in Innisville recently at the great age of 102 years, after a short illness. Her son, Robert Hughes, was buried a few days before from the same homestead at the age of 67 years.

The late Mrs. Hughes was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1809, and came to this country with her parents when only nine years of age. She leaves many children and great-grandchildren, some in California, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Toronto, Montreal, and Ottawa. Mrs. Hughes retained the use of her faculties to a wonderful degree to the very last.

Rejected Immigrants.

In the statement for the last fiscal year the Canadian Immigration authorities show that 17,814 immigrants were rejected at the ports of entry or on the frontier. Of these 15,504 were from the United States, while 2,310 were rejected at the ocean ports. The Englishman is in the unenviable position of heading the list, as out of 784 immigrants deported for physical unfitness, crime or other causes, 340 were English subjects. Americans came next with 189 persons deported, while of other nationalities, 90 were Scotch, 23 were Irish, and 13 were Italian.—Century.

Meredith's Days of Penury.

The city council is to be asked and no doubt it will consent to place memorial tablets on the house once occupied by William Morris, Burne-Jones and Dante Gabriel Rossetti at 17 Red Lion square. George Meredith in the days of his extreme penury joined with these other three young men in their bachelor establishment. The state of his boots, we are told by one of the biographers, at length aroused the solicitude of his fellow tenants, who one night stealthily replaced them by a new pair. But Meredith was so much piqued by what was meant in all kindness that he withdrew from the fellowship the next day.—London News.

Joan of Arc's Sword.

A sword in the Dijon museum has just been identified as that used by Joan of Arc and presented to her by Charles VII. of France. On one side of the hilt are engraved a figure kneeling before a cross and the inscription "Charles VII.," while the other side bears the name "Vaucouleurs." The sword also bears the arms of France and of the town of Orleans and the date, 1419.—London Mail.

R. B. Matheson, K.C., Dead.

Ottawa, Sept. 9.—Roderick Balmacarra Matheson, K.C., a well-known lawyer, is dead of heart failure. He was born at Ottawa in 1865, but was educated at Port Hope school and then at Trinity University, Toronto. He graduated from Osgoode Hall and was called to the Bar in 1890.

Suspected of Wife Murder.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 9.—Dr. J. F. Sudman, a veterinary surgeon, whose wife was found dead in bed Thursday, was arrested on a charge of murder. An autopsy revealed a quantity of cyanide of potassium in her stomach, and a bottle of the poison was found on him.

"MAN WITH RED FLAG"

JOHN BURNS' NAME ONCE INSPIRED TERROR.

Now One of the Leading Legislators in Great Britain and is First Working Man to Reach Cabinet Rank in England—He Led Rioters and Went to Prison for His Principles—One of the Best Loved Men in England.

The vast change that has come over public life in England is graphically illustrated in the career of John Burns. Two decades ago England rang with the terror of his name. Today moderate men give thanks that so steady and conservative a man should be at the head of the Local Government Board. He used to stand in the public mind for all that was incendiary, visionary, revolutionary. To-day men look upon him as a firm brake on the runaway coach of labor. He is the first workingman to reach Cabinet rank in England. For many years he was the idol of his class; he is now regarded by a large section of it—the Socialists—with an almost venomous distrust.

His career has been one of storm and toil. He began life as a machinist on 7½ cents a week, a fatherless boy with his mother dependent upon him. It must have been the Scotch blood in him that made him so passionate to educate himself. The passion has lasted. There are few men in England with a larger or a more thoroughly digested library on social and economic questions; there is no man in England who has studied the lives of the poor at such close range or with a more understanding sympathy.

Even before he was twenty he had made himself known as a stump orator on Clapham Common and a pungent letter writer to the local papers. The economics of poverty, problems of housing, the workings of the poor law, the causes of unemployment, the organization of industry—he took to such topics as readily as most boys of his age and class take to football and betting. His employers discharged him, not for slackness or inefficiency, but because they did not care to have a bitter, active propagandist of Socialism and discontent on their payrolls. Flung into the ranks of the unemployed and boycotted by the ring of engineering masters, Burns threw himself wholly into the work of agitation. In the '80's he made himself known all over London as the leader of the unemployed, "the man with the red flag." He was frequently arrested; he was once actually imprisoned; for all well-to-do people his name became synonymous with anarchy, riots and spoliation.

A change began to come over John Burns when he was elected to the London Common Council. The agitator turned by degrees into the administrator. He was the only labor representative on the council, and his experience, sanity and good humor quickly made themselves felt. He proved himself an indefatigable councilor, inspecting and inquiring into everything on his own account, and securing reform after reform in the treatment and wages of the council's employes, the conditions of its contracts, the provision of parks, drainage works, asylums, public control of the London street car system, the erection of artisans' dwellings, and so on.

When he entered Parliament in 1892 he found the same sort of work waiting to be done on a far larger scale. He gained the ear of the House at once—first, because he never spoke without having something to say; secondly, because the breezy, vigorous confidence of the man, his sincerity and enthusiasm, made indifference impossible; and, thirdly, because on many subjects he probably knew more at first hand than all the rest of the House put together. Everything that concerned the well-being and interests of the working classes found John Burns equipped at all points. A great deal of the social and industrial legislation of the past twenty years bears the mark of his influence, and you would have to search long and deep to come across another M.P. whose career has been so demonstrably useful and constructive.

With his snow-white hair, his large and deeply-lined forehead, his great, brown, burning eyes, his square and sturdy figure, his head thrown massively back, his whole bearing suggestive of power and combat, John Burns is a striking figure as he rises to address the House or as he tramps up and down the terrace outside with free and swinging stride. But to see him at his best you should see him some Saturday afternoon in one of the public parks; among his own people, giving and exchanging salutations, patting a youngster on the head, helping to fish out a ball that has fallen into the pond, showing a boy how to handle a cricket bat, skipping over the ropes with the girls, congratulating the mothers, jesting with the policemen — the very picture of zest, health and jollity.

The workingmen know him and love him. They recognize in him the biggest man that their class in England has yet produced. And John Burns knows them and loves them in return, and uses both his knowledge and his affection to rebuke, chastise them, and shame them into elevating themselves. Himself a non-smoker and a total abstainer, he never shrinks from rubbing in his conviction that there is little the Government can do for the workingman compared with what the workingman can do for himself. No man has spoken out so strongly against drink and betting. No man has insisted more trenchantly that social and industrial reform must begin with the individual. It is there that he parts company with Keir Hardie and his followers. They are Socialists and look to the state for everything; while John Burns hates nothing so much as the thought of the English workingman becoming a prey to that policy of pauperizing coddle which the Labor party holds out as the highest social ideal.

OYSTER ISLANDS.

Their Growth is Roughly Analogous to That of Coral Reefs.

Oyster islands similar to those formed of coral are found in several parts of the world. The islands in Newport river and Beaufort harbor, North Carolina, says a writer in the Century Path Magazine, have been discovered to have as base a reef to which the spawn were attached and above this layer upon layer of oysters, vegetable growth and debris brought by the action of the waves and winds, all of which finally grows high enough to rise above the surface of the water. This growth is exactly analogous to that of the coral islands of the Pacific.

The islands near the mouth of the river Tagus, in Portugal, are said to have been built up in this way also. Here, where there is such a quantity of oysters that 100,000,000 a year would scarcely be missed if they were removed, the expense of which would be beyond the river's mouth is dotted with oyster islands. As in the case of the coral reefs, which on the outward side may be covered with living, growing coral, live oysters thrive in the same waters where the accumulation of dead generations has served to form the islands.

Muscles May Move Themselves.

Albert von Haller, a Swiss surgeon of the eighteenth century, was the first to point out that the muscles of our bodies have an automatic action. Before Haller's time it was believed that the muscles could not contract or swell up of themselves, but were drawn up by the nerves of volition. Haller discovered that this is not so, but that a muscle, if irritated, will draw itself together automatically, even when it is quite separated from the nerves, and this has since been proved to be true by a great number of experiments. So that, though it is true our nerves are the cause of our moving, because they excite the muscles and so cause them to contract, yet the real power of contraction is in the muscle itself. The body of man is full of wonders, not the least of which is this automatic power of contraction in all muscles.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Comma.

The point on which most writers are at odds with the compositor is the comma. He is too fond of this particular punctuation point. He takes a delight in breaking up the flow of a sentence with his artificial pauses. We all say, "Why then did you do it?" up one breath. It is the compositor who says, "Why, then, did you do it?" It is possible to be too hard on the comma. It has its undeniable uses. Edward Clodd in his memoir of Grant Allen tells the story of a compositor who dissented very strongly from that writer's moral philosophy and had to "set up" an interview with Allen in which the sentence occurred, "He is happily married." He solved his conscience by printing it "He is, happily, married."—London Chronicle.

Girls Run the Elevator.

Milwaukee boasts of something new—girl elevator operators, duly licensed by the municipal inspector and certified to be competent not only to run lifts, but to make ordinary repairs on them. There are two of them, and they have solved a problem for the Young Women's Christian association managers, who stacked up against a combination of a building with elevators and a rule against men employees. As "the head of man" was not allowed "to set foot" in the Young Women's Christian association, the officials had the two young women take a course in elevator running and repairing, and now everything is lovely.—Exchange.

School Children Insurance.

In Berlin a novel insurance scheme is being introduced, recommended by the kaiser, having for its chief feature insurance against accidents to school children on their way to and from school. The policy covers all accidents to children within the walls of the schools as well as on the playgrounds, as during lessons in physics and chemistry. The premium is 40 cents a year, and in case of death a sum of 3,000 marks ($780) is paid to the parents, while total disability entitles the child to $1,560. For temporary disablement the company pays all doctor bills and 75 cents a day.

Weariess Stairs.

A flight of stairs has been erected in Paris over which 14,000,000 persons have passed without so much as scratching the surface. These steps are almost imperishable, for in the concrete of which they are constructed a generous proportion of carborundum has been introduced, and since carborundum is almost as hard as the diamond it has given the concrete a wearing quality which no marble or granite could possibly approach.

Obsolete Skyscrapers.

Skyscrapers of a decade ago do not even tickle the idea of Manhattan's sky line these days. If a building wrecker's advertisement is to be believed twenty-two story structures are being torn down like other squatty buildings in the path of progress. His placard, pasted on a row of bricks in Bowling street just off Broadway, says: "—— ——, wrecker of buildings. Twenty-two story structures removed."—New York Press.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Sept. 8.—Business is old and new Manitoba spring wheat over the cable to-day was quiet, owing to the fact that bids came 1½d lower. The foreign demand for oats was fairly good and the prices bid showed an advance of 6½d to 7½d. Bristol being 6½d and Liverpool 1½ 10½d, but even at these figures no business could be worked on account of the further sharp rise in prices in Winnipeg.

The local market was very strong and prices were marked up ½c per bushel. There continues to be a good enquiry from European sources for flour, but the bids on spring wheat grades were lower to-day than what American export houses were offering for the same grades. The local trade is fairly active and prices firm. The demand for bran and shorts is good.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. McKee, of Lakefield, was in the city to-day.

Rev. Mr. Robson, of Ivanhoe, was in the city yesterday.

Dr. Greer has returned home from his cottage at Gore's Landing.

Mr. Claude Brady has gone to Toronto to take a course in the School of Pharmacy.

Mr. J. D. Moffatt of London, and Mr. C. Walters, of Belfast, are guests at the Munro house.

Mrs. A. S. Laing, of Montreal, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Watt, 263 Rubidge street.

Mr. John M. Watt of Midland, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Watt, 263 Rubidge street.

Mrs. Childs of Perry street, who took a trip to Tamworth, England, with her daughter, returned to-day.

Mr. J. T. Simpson and niece, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Malcolm, and child, of Montreal, are guests at the Hotel National.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brown, of Picton, N.S., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, 497 Gilmour street, for a few days.

In the absence of Conductor George Jobbett, who is sick, Rule Inspector William Hudgins is conducting the Lakefield train.

Dr. G. L. Williams left yesterday for Minnesota, where he will be in one of the private hospitals for a year taking special work.

Messrs. R. B. and F. H. Manley, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, Keene and W. G. Heathfield, Buffalo, N.Y., are guests at the Hotel National.

NEW YORK POLICE MAKE VERY SUCCESSFUL RAID

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, SEPT. 7.—Despite their elaborate preparations, a squad of sixteen policemen headed by Sergeants Ray and Giblin, of the West Sixty-Eighth street station, failed to arrest any prisoners to-day when they visited four resorts alleged to have been gambling places in West Forty-Second and West Forty-Third Sts.

News that they were coming had preceded the raiders and while they found plenty of gamblin paraphernalia in the houses visited, they were deserted when the policemen entered. Several ice box doors were chopped down, while hundreds who had been notified when and where the raids were to take place stood outside the buildings cheering the axemen.

Women Protest

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 8. — Beulah Binford reached this city last night by way of the Pennsylvania Railroad, having changed from the New Jersey Central Railroad at Elizabeth, N. J., to avoid, it was said, the crowds awiting her appearance at the Jersey City terminal. She was accompanied by a theatrical booking agent, who is arranging for her appearance in vaudeville, and several other theatrical men.

It is understood that the large vaudeville houses in this city have declined to book her.

Protest From Women.

If the protests that are going up from prominent club women, actresses, and other women well known in this city are to be taken as a criterion of the feeling of womankind in general, Beulah Binford will not be heartily welcomed to the Metropolitan stage as 'an actress' of anything else. When the news reached here that the young girl who has become notorious through her connection with the Beattie murder trial at Chesterfield had been liberated from jail at Richmond and had started north to "go on the stage" many of the leaders of woman society in this city protested that such an exposition of Miss Binford would be "an insult to all womankind."

A Peace Plan.

"Am I to understand," inquired the insurgent leader, "that you have a philanthropist who is ready to spend money to promote peace?"

"We have," answered the American tourist. "But why?"

"My army can be bought off for $10 per head."—Washington Herald.

Voice From the Clothes Closet.

"How I wish," moaned the half starved moth,
"I had a political pull!
I haven't had a square meal for years
On account of the tariff on wool!"
—Chicago Tribune

When He Got Them.

Bacon—See all the medals he's wearing.

Egbert—Yes. Do you suppose he shot as many men as that in the year?

"Of course not. He missed that many. The Humane society gave him those medals."—Yonkers Statesman.

349 GEORGE STEET

F. L. FOWKE, M.P.

He Is a Back Bencher With His Eye on a Front Seat.

"Freddie" his friends call him. He was christened more than that, Frederick Luther to wit. His last name is Fowke. He hails from Oshawa, and holds a seat for South Ontario in the Commons by virtue of a certain majority of two hundred and forty-three votes, which the people of that riding gave to him in 1908.

Mr. Fowke is a twinkly-eyed, jolly-looking little man; some way you want to stop and pass the time of day with him when you meet him in the corridor, but on second thoughts you don't, for you feel that, after all, you don't know him any too well. Come to find out, nobody seems to know him any too well. He keeps himself more or less to himself does Frederick Luther alias "Freddy." Topographically, so far as the Chamber is concerned, he is a back bencher—he sits just across from that earnest performer, Manley Chew—but, topographically, is as far as it goes.

Come to sit down and look into it carefully, there are just as many types of back benchers as there are of front benchers, only the fellows down in front keep you just wondering what they are going to do next, and you haven't time to look at the fellows behind. There is the back bencher who can't help it 'cause he was born that way. He will be a B.B. as long as he stays in Parliament, he knows it and sits tight. There's another kind of B.B. who doesn't know it, and who is, therefore, a disqualified nuisance, popping up to get on record when nobody wants to have his record. There are all kinds of chaps who apparently act as scenery along the back fringes. There are mighty few of them who have the redeeming trait of modesty, which being interpreted, means, after all, no more than commonsense, sitting tight till they have something to say about a subject on which they are familiar, and then counting a million or so before they get up, just to be sure that the House wants to hear them.

Fowke is one of these. You will spend a whole lot of time in the galleries before you hear him open his mouth, but when he does he usually says something that is worth saying. The curse of the Parliamentary small potato is his desire to talk, to talk, and then to talk a little, after which to resume talking. Fowke sits tight, lets those around him volley and thunder, reads with avidity, and gets up and says something worth listening to.

There is something eminently clean and clear and sane about Fowke. He won't get excited, neither will he try to excite you. Which may be accounted for by the fact that he comes from fine old U. E. Loyalist stock, which is apt to be self-contained and self-reliant. He comes by his political attainments honestly. His maternal grandfather, Hon. M. B. Stone, left Canada one day and went over to the States of Minnesota, where they elected him State Senator forthwith.

He has a unique record, too. He holds the provincial championship belt for the longest term as mayor. They elected him alcade of Oshawa once, and it was eight years before anybody else had a chance at it. He was too busy fixing up the town to give up during that time. Oshawa owes most of what it has and is to him. This is his first term in the House, but the Liberal members already hold him in the highest regard. He is quiet, unassuming, studious on public questions, "on the job," a good man.—Star Weekly.

To Hunt With Arrows.

James Challis and Z. E. Jackson of Atchison, Kan., are going hunting in the wilds of British Columbia armed only with bows and arrows. They expect to go after mountain lions and grizzly bears if the opportunity should arise.

"I expect the most enjoyable time of my life on that trip," said Mr. Challis. "I am sure we will enjoy hunting with our primitive weapons more than the man who can stand a mile away and bring down a deer or bear with a big express bullet. There is the same difference between hunting with bow and arrow and with a rifle as between catching fish with a fly and in a seine."

Mr. Challis and Mr. Jackson will be joined by Harry B. Richardson of Boston, who holds the world's archery record, and William H. Thompson of Seattle, also an expert archer. They will sail up the coast of British Columbia 400 miles, and when they have reached a point which appears favorable for hunting they will go ashore and push into the interior.

A large supply of arrows which the party will take has been made here at odd times during the last spring and winter.

Decrease In Canal Traffic.

A decided decrease in canal traffic since the opening of navigation is shown in figures prepared by the Railway Department up to May 31. The total tonnage was 5,894,074, a decrease of 2,418,166 as against the same period last year.

A decrease of 2,416,569 at the Soo is explained by the fact that the closing of the American canal last spring sent boats over to the Canadian side. Traffic in the Welland and Trent canals has increased.

Makers of Current History.

"It is not easy to think," says Dr. N. M. Butler, president of Columbia University. "Very few human beings have formed the habit of persistent thinking with regard to those matters which press upon their attention and which solicit their interest and help. Most of us are dominated by the newspaper headline, and the men who write those headlines are the real makers of current history."

Want Women's Residence.

A movement is on foot to raise funds for the construction of a women's residence at Queen's University as a memorial to the late Mrs. Gordon, wife of the principal. All lady graduates will be asked for financial assistance. Already a big sum has been realized.

Spring Products.

Mary stood upon the curb,
And coins stuck in her throat.
She'd left behind her rubbers,
And she didn't have a boat.

THE STRATTON RALLY SATURDAY MARKED BY LARGE CROWDS AND GREAT ENTHUSIASM

Labour Textiles Who is its Friend and the British-born and Others Show the Difference Between Lip-Loyalty and the Real Thing.

BRIGHT SPEECHES

Good business was done at the sign of the flag on George street Saturday night. As usual, the Stratton rally crowded the long room to overflowing. The speeches were short and snappy. The speaking part of these Saturday night meetings is always over by ten o'clock, so that club night will not interfere with tub night and the week-end shopping.

As a matter of fact the rallies are going to be missed when this election is over. The committee room, with its flags and pictures and its fellowship in party work is always a cheerful scene and is, moreover, a mighty comfortable place to smoke in and hear good talk.

The Workingman's Night.

Saturday night was Peterborough night, cost-of-living night, workingman's night, and, to a very large extent, loyalty night. The Union Jack looks down nowhere on a heartier, more loyal assemblage than the Stratton workers. Nearly every speaker took occasion to say how hot under the collar it made him to see the Borden followers plastering everybody in Canada with disloyalty but themselves. It is an outrage, of course, that decent citizens should be called traitors and annexationists simply because the Liberals are about to get what the Conservatives tried for forty years to get and could not. Naturally every Canadian resents insinuations like that, and when Mr. Daniel O'Connell capped all the other loyal speeches of the night with a burst of eloquence such as only he is capable of, the cheers were so loud that the ranks of Tuesday over in Burnham's committee rooms, across the street, must have wondered what was up.

The workers displayed the greatest enthusiasm. The country is overwhelmingly in favour of reciprocity and J. R. Stratton and the only thing the workers in town have to guard against is over confidence.

An Easy Riddle.

Chairman R. R. Hall answered again that paradox. "How can the Canadian farmer get higher prices for his products and the Canadian consumer pay less for his food.

"It's easy as rolling off a log," said Chairman Hall. "Some of you are thinking that only one tariff wall is being taken down. As a matter of fact two tariff walls against natural products are being removed, the United States tariff wall, which meant $4,800,000 duty on Canadian food products last year and the Canadian tariff wall, which meant $2,300,000 on United States products."

"One of these tariff walls," continued Mr. Hall, "the United States tariff wall, affects the Canadian producer. When it is taken down the Canadian producer is made free of another market of ninety millions, and is thus delivered from the tyranny of the Canadian middlemen and food monopolists, who squeezed him on prices in this country."

"The other tariff wall," explained Mr. Hall, "the Canadian tariff wall affects the Canadian consumer. When it is taken down the Canadian consumer is likewise delivered from the bondage of Canadian middlemen and food monopolists, who fixed the prices over the counter for him, too.

"In a word, reciprocity in natural products, removes two walls that stand between us and the things we must have to eat. We are ahead with the two duties removed, and still further ahead in the improved conditions of independence for both consumer and producer in having a market wide enough and long enough to get out of the clutches of the middleman. Reciprocity will soon alter the state of affairs, by which the Canadian farmer got less for his products than he could in the United States and the Canadian consumer paid more for his food than people paid in the United States."

Some Canards Nailed.

Candidate J. R. Stratton gave an account of his meetings at Centreville and Bensford, and his busy week's pilgrimage to the north country, where meetings, noon, afternoon and night, were the order of the day.

"Wherever I go," said Mr. Stratton, "I find the people more and more interested in the reciprocity agreement. They are going to give it a fair trial in their own interests, and the interests of the country as a whole."

"They ask me about Peterborough" said Mr. Stratton, "and I say Peterborough is all right. They will vote for a member who doesn't forget the interests of Peterborough when he is looking after the interests of the country at large."

"Some of the canards my opponents are circulating are outrageous," continued Mr. Stratton. "As for instance when they say the Canadian General Electric Works will be shut down in two years if this agreement is carried. In twenty-five years of campaigning I have not met so many false statements as I have in this election. So far from shutting down this reciprocity agreement will help the Canadian General Electric. If the directors of this company, who live in Toronto, were in this constituency, many of them would vote for me. They are not interfering with any of their employees, who are all at liberty to vote as they see fit in their own best interests."

Nothing Too Good for Peterborough.

"I tell you," said Mr. Stratton, "that this reciprocity agreement means increased orders for the Canadian General Electric, real orders manufactured here in Peterborough, not orders such as Kendry and Bradburn and Burnham claimed to have got from the Whitney Government and which were manufactured in the United States.

"There is not a merchant, manufacturer, workingman, or consumer in Peterborough that will not be helped by the proposal.

"Some people say 'let well enough alone.' In 1896 Customs duties at Peterborough were $53,000; in 1910, they were $450,000, not taking into account the amount of raw material that comes in free for the manufacturers. The increased duties show the increased purchasing power of the Peterborough people. In 1896 the population of Peterborough was 10,000 in 1911 it is 19,000. These are cheerful figures, showing the local progress.

"But I am not content to let well enough alone," continued Mr. Stratton. "I want to see more factories in Peterborough. I want to see the Board of Trade and the City Council busier, drawing industries our way. They have cheap hydro-electric power in the western part of the Province. For my own part I have strived to make power cheap and plentiful in Peterborough. The conservation dams, which I was instrumental in getting, have doubled the quantity of power available for Peterborough. The conservation dam under construction in Cavendish will refill White Lake and Black Lake, and will make water power, where there were only empty basins before."

More Power to Peterborough's Elbow

When the Minister of Railways and Canals was in town the other day," Mr. Stratton continued," he happened to mention something about dredging the construction of dredges, scows, and improvements in another part of the country. I asked him why not do that here, too. He accepted my suggestion. Thirty thousand dollars in material and wages are the result of that little conversation. The dredges and scows will be reconstructed here, in Peterborough. It means increased employment to that extent. I hope I acquire merit by that little act. Everything counts."

"The power for manufacturing industries is here," said Mr. Stratton, "and can be increased. It's up to the Board of Trade and the City Council to get busy and go after the benefits that are within their reach."

"No," said Mr. Stratton, "we must not let well enough alone. If everybody had said that we would still be in the tallow-candle age and the only lighting our streets would have would be with torches and coal-oil lamps."

A Couple of Rearbacks Discounted.

Mr. Stratton took a fall out of the plain and fancy lying of the Review regarding his Centreville meeting. "It was the largest meeting I ever saw there," said Mr. Stratton, "and so interested from start to finish that you could have heard a pin drop."

"As for Mr. Leary's remarks about the home market in the Northwest, they got that twisted, too. Mr. Leary is as strong a Liberal as he ever was and as strong a supporter of mine." See his statement in the Examiner Monday and then you'll have some idea how the Review can manufacture stories out of the whole cloth."

What Senator Cox Thinks.

"What is Senator Cox's opinion of the agreement?" asked Mr. Stratton. There is no man more interested in the industries of Peterborough than Senator George Cox. There is no man owns more of Peterborough. There is no man that is more careful of the bawbees. He is the last man in the world to advise the people against their own interests. He was not one of the eighteen Toronto millionaires to kick over the traces. On the contrary, he was a millionaire who thought the agreement over carefully and then gave reciprocity his unqualified support. He sees nothing in it that can do anything but help the merchant, the manufacturer and the workingman both as to employment and wages. It is worth while bearing in mind that a man so vitally interested in the prosperity of Peterborough as Senator Cox is a hearty supporter of reciprocity."

From Ox Carts to Autos.

"I was out in Cavendish and Galway this week," said Mr. Stratton; "I travelled over roads that I was instrumental in getting built. My auto went where an ox-cart couldn't venture fifteen years ago. Ask the people out there who got the roads built. Who had the concession lines opened up. There hasn't been a foot of new road built there since I left the Ontario Government."

"You needn't be afraid of the country vote," Mr. Stratton concluded. "It's firm and steady and favourable. As far as the City of Peterborough is concerned, I find that the mechanics and working men and citizens generally are better pleased with the agreement the better they understand it. If we keep track of our friends and see that they get to the polls, we'll roll up a majority vaster than has been."

A British-Born on Loyalty.

Mr. William Guy showed what the British-born could do in the way of a speech sprinkled with apt quotations and historical parallels. He has been in Canada twenty-five years but he was born in London within the sound of Bow Bells, and his loyalty to the Old Land across the sea is just as fresh as ever.

"Reciprocity is not politics," said Mr. Guy. "It's just business. Somebody says annexation. Bot! What about England. She trades with all the world and she hasn't been annexed to anybody yet.

"I yield to no man in my loyalty to that flag," said the speaker, pointing to the Union Jack over the desk. "Nor do I yield to anybody in my Protestantism. Am I to be called disloyal because I vote for reciprocity?

"Annexation!" exclaimed Mr. Guy. "The Conservative party has done a little annexing on its own account. They have annexed Bourassa. I do not see how they have the nerve to ask any British-born to support that combination."

Lip Loyalty Versus the Real Thing.

"Anything to beat Laurier," seems to be their motto. They say what the mob said in Jerusalem two thousand years ago: 'We will not have this man to rule over us'. You can teach a parrot to say God Save The King, and a monkey to wave flags, but that doesn't constitute loyalty".

"Patriotism," said Mr. Guy, "does not consist solely in dying for one's country. The other and best part of it is living in the best interests of one's country is the national unity Sir Wilfrid Laurier is trying to promote. You can break a single stick. But you cannot break a bundle of faggots. Race and creed cries are not the thing to keep the bundle together and make it strong."

"On Canada's page of history you will not find a greater name than Laurier. And I'll warrant you," said Mr. Guy, "that George E. Foster will be in small type, or there will be a foot-note saying "Please Turn Over."

A Campaign Trick.

"They try to deceive the British born," said Mr. Guy. They ask him 'What were you in the Old Country? A Liberal, eh? Oh, well, Liberal-Conservative is the same thing in Canada. You see with us. Let the British-born understand that Liberal here and Liberal there are the same thing. It was the Liberal Government in England that gave the workingmen his blessings and it is the Liberal Government in Canada that gives his blessings here. It is the Liberal party that breeds men like Lloyd-George and John Burns, and Laurier, who are on the side of the people. You don't find men like that in the Conservative party.

"And now," continued Mr. Guy, "that the Conservatives have got mixed up with men like Bourassa I do not know where they are going to end. Surely, British born, you are not going to let men like Bourassa take your vote. If their's is the party of loyalty, let me give it as wide a berth as I can."

Mr. W. H. Ruse.

Mr. W. H. Ruse said that the only fault he had to find with the Liberal Governments was that it gave so much employment to the workingman that he had to go shorthanded. As for reciprocity, if it was good for the farmer and the manufacturer it

A BARLEY BREW.

It seems there is a good word to be said even for the famous most-favoured-nation feature of the tariff agreement, which its opponents say will flood Canada with products from a dozen countries. The people who buy barley figure it out something like this:

Seventy-five to eighty cents a bushel is now being paid in Canada for Canadian barley. That barley would bring from a dollar to a dollar twenty in the States, if the agreement were in force—if the 30 cents a bushel duty were removed.

Meantime, if, as is the case, some of the most-favoured-nations have barley to sell, it could be had in Canada for eighty cents. Coming from Austria it would be free of duty coming into Canada, but it could not compete with the Canadian barley in the States, for if sent there it would have to pay duty. In the case of barley, therefore, not only is the tariff agreement good, but the most-favoured-nation treaties make it better. It looks paradoxical, but the barley buyers say it is correct.

It may be explained that under the favoured nations treaties with Great Britain, any tariff reduction granted with any country, say the United States, is to be extended to these nations. The reciprocity agreement makes the United States market free to Canadian barley, but not free to any of the favoured nations.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

The British market is being held up to the farmers by the opponents of bigger and better markets, as the best market fr everything he has to sell.

As a matter of fact for many of the things the farmers grow there is no market in Great Britain at all.

Great Britain is a free trade country. Our farmers can ship there anything they like without let or hindrance. The United States is a highly protected country. Bear this in mind, and then compare the comparative values of our exports in certain lines of farm produce to the two countries in 1911.

	Exported to Gt. Britain.	Exported to U.S.
Hay	$1,182,899	$1,449,990
Horses	36,072	499,116
Swine	None	45,526
Sheep	2,611	257,850
Poultry	1,154	102,324
Rye	None	45,309
Buckwheat	295	40,624
Straw	3,910	14,495
Potatoes	138	13,536
Turnips	None	206,923
All other vegetables	43	233,006
Berries	None	62,614
Dried apples	16,018	20,000
Peas	79,319	334,234
Milk and cream	None	1,719,919
Eggs	2,426	6,927
Clover seed	230,961	1,169,737
Flax seed	2,295,411	3,880,211
Grass seed	2,948	191,737

In all these articles the exports to the United States, in the face of almost prohibitive duties, were greater in volume than the exports to Great Britain. For none of these articles of farm production, save hay and flax seed, is there any market at all in Great Britain. That there is already a market for them in the United States is shown by these statistics. When the duties are taken off will not the volume of our sales increase enormously?

All the facts are against the assertions of the Conservatives that there is no market for our farm products in the United States.

It is to be remembered, too, that reciprocity still leaves us the British and Canadian market. What the reciprocity agreement does is to provide the farmer with a nearer and higher market, a market as shown above, that has been our largest market in many lines and in the face of a stiff tariff.

HE WON'T GET THE CHANGE.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Mr. Borden's right hand man, says, "Mr. Borden, as a result of the elect ion, "can form a Conservative government, if Quebec does her share.". This means that there can be no Conservative government without Quebec support — and this support would be overwhelmingly that of the anti-British French members elected by the help of the Bourassa movement, and by appeals to anti-British sentiment. In sixty-four constituencies in Quebec there are only ten straight Conservative candidate—the rest are anti-British, Bourassa Nationalist candidates, who are, by arrangement and understanding, supporters of Mr. Borden, and by their help alone, according to Mr. Foster, can he form and carry on a government.

What, in the world, do the ultra-loyalist-ultra-Protestant Conservatives of Ontario think of that for a national policy? If, as they declare, there is danger to religion and British connection in having a premier of French-Canadian birth, whose motto is "one flag, one fleet, one throne," what it will it be to have the government of Canada flung into the hands of a controlling French clique, such as that led, controlled and engineered by, Bourassa, whose motto is "no fleet, no flag—but the French tri-colour—and no throne at all—only a French Canadian republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence."

Such an unrighteous compact is more fatal to Canadian nationality under the British flag, more fatal to British connection, more fatal to the dearest liberties of Canada, than a hundred reciprocity agreements, if their tendency were ten-fold more antagonistic to Canadian national integrity than the lip loyal Conservatives—not the true Canadian Conservatives—falsely declare the pending agreement to be.

What Ontario, what Peterborough, elector can be fooled by the "loyalty" cry—by the danger-to-Protestantism cry in the mouth of the supporters of the Burnham-Borden-Bourassa conspirators? Mr. Borden may, in his hunger for office, consent to govern loyal Canada with the help of the Bourassa anti-British brood, but loyal Canadians won't give him a chance.

"THE PARTING OF THE WAYS."

"The parting of the ways," is not a new phrase; it is twenty-five years old. President Taft has infringed Bayard's use of the term in 1907.

Here is what Taft said at the joint session of the Forty-seventh General Assembly of Illinois at Springfield, February 11th, 1911:

"We have taken up those things that are involved in a Canadian reciprocity treaty because opportunity offered. Now is the accepted time. Now Canada is in the mood. She is at the parting of the ways. Shall she be an isolated country, as much separated from us as if she were across the ocean, or shall her people and our people profit by the proximity that our geography furnishes and stimulate the trade across the border that nothing but a useless, illogical, and unnecessary tariff wall creates."

There is no reference here to political absorption of Canada, only reference to the mutual benefit of enlarged trade relations between the two countries.

In 1867, after Sir Charles Tupper's visit to Washington, in the interests of reciprocity with the United States, Secretary of States, Mr. T. F. Bayard, wrote to Mr. Tupper the following, taken from United States Document, No. 862, page 42:

"The gravity of the present condition of affairs between our two countries demands entire frankness. I feel we stand at the parting of the ways. In one direction I can see a well assured, steady, healthful relationship, devoid of petty jealousies and filled with the fruits of prosperity arising out of a friendship cemented by mutual interests, and enduring because based upon justice; on the other, a career of embittered rivalries, staining our long frontier with the hues of hostility, in which victory means the destruction of an adjacent prosperity without gain to the prevalent party—a mutual, physical and moral deterioration which ought to be abhorrent to patriots on both sides, and which, I am sure, no two men will exert themselves more to prevent than the parties to this unofficial correspondence."

The reply of Sir Charles Tupper, under date of Ottawa, June 9, 1867, taken from the official correspondence presented to parliament in 1868 is as follows:

"I entirely concur in your statement that 'we both seek to attain a just and permanent settlement and that there is but one way to procure it, and that is by a straightforward treatment on a liberal and statesmanlike plan of the entire commercial relations of the two countries."

(Sgd.) CHARLES TUPPER.

Here it will be seen that Sir Charles Tupper referred not to reciprocity in farm products only, but to "the entire commercial relations of the two countries—something more like unrestricted reciprocity, which of course he did not mean, for no sane Canadian would dream of anything like unrestricted reciprocity.

STRATTON RALLY SATURDAY NIGHT MARKED BY GREAT ENTHUSIASM

must be good for the manufacturer. "With a good cause and a good candidate," said Mr. Ruse, "it's up to us to roll up an old-time majority for J. R. Stratton—the man we can trust."

John McCann's Home Thrusts.

Mr. John McCann, Traffic Manager of the Street Railway, prophesied another victory for J. R. Stratton.

"But why," he asked, "are we here so soon? It's only three years ago that we elected him. The reason is that the Opposition in the House of Commons tried to talk this reciprocity agreement to death. Squandered a million dollars blowing off wind against reciprocity and so we had to have an election.

"I tell you what," said Mr. McCann, "it's Laurier's luck that he landed a bargain that all the Conservative statesmen have been reaching for during the last forty years. If a Conservative Government had got this agreement you would have found every Conservative in Canada howling for it.

"There is no doubt in my mind that it will help the working classes. We import $160,000,000 worth of food stuffs from the United States. It doesn't take any head for the higher mathematics to understand that the consumer must benefit by the duties being removed on that amount of stuff. If that isn't so why have there been three general elections in Great Britain against food being taxed?

"Finance Minister Fielding challenged the Conservatives in the House to let it go through and give it a trial, but they reneged, because they felt in their bones that if reciprocity ever passed it would be such a boon to the people of Canada that the Conservatives wouldn't get into power for the next fifty years."

Preaching and Practice.

Coming to the loyalty cry Mr. McCann asked: "Are the Tories the only loyal people in Canada? It's not what Champ. Clarke says or Bill Taft says. It's what Canada says that goes. How did the Conservatives in the House of Commons show their loyalty when they voted against the British preference? How do they show it now, when they join hands with Bourassa—a man that Clark Wallace, Grand Sovereign of the Orange Order, called a traitor across the floor of the House; a man that George E. Foster cried 'Shame!' to? These men that insult the British flag are now Mr. Borden's allies. A nice lot they are to call any body of good British subjects disloyal".

"I needn't tell you," continued Mr. McCann, "what Peterborough was like in 1895, men in factories getting a dollar a day for five days a week, and girls, from 40 to 60 cents a day. And I needn't go into the figures to prove how Canada has prospered and Peterborough has prospered since under Liberal rule. But I do want to tell you that whatever the workingman got in Canada he got from the Liberal Government. He got for one thing a special Department of Labour; he got a fair wages policy and a fair wages officer to enforce it. The Liberal Government stood by the unions as in the case of the G. T. R., when but for its help, the union would have been annihilated. It passed the law whereby when a workingman is summarily discharged he gets his wages that day, instead of having to sue for it in the Division Court.

The Workingman's Friend.

"I needn't recall the long list of benefits the Liberal Government has bestowed on the working man," said Mr. McCann, "but I want to point out that Conservative governments have been against the masses and Liberal governments for them from time immemorial. Look how the Conservative Government in England trampled on the workingman. And look, too, how the aristocratic tax dodgers began to holler treason and disloyalty when the Lloyd-George budget made them pay for a few of their privileges. And remember that Lloyd-George, that friend of the poor and oppressed, says that this Laurier reciprocity policy is crystallised common sense.

"I'm satisfied to leave the reins in J. R. Stratton's hands, because he is on the right side. He has fought many hard battles. He has won 'em all, and he's going to win this one."

Why Did the Conservatives Object?

"This reciprocity issue," said Mr. Daniel O'Connell, "is of greater importance than anything since Confederation. The farmers had been waiting for their turn for a long time. So had the average wonesumer. Reciprocity in natural products is the full and satisfactory answer. If the farming population of Canada, which is seventy per cent. of the whole, is prosperous, the whole national fabric is prosperous, for it is the wealth that springs from the soil that waters every industry."

"The Liberal Government," continued Mr. O'Connell, "can never be accused of neglecting the working classes. Its fundamental principle here, as in England, is the interest of the masses, rather than of the classes. Observe how the Liberal Government in England has stood by the masses in their struggle for what one might almost call the right to exist. The same demarcations that distinguish Liberal and Conservative in England, distinguish Liberal and Conservative here in Canada. The Liberal Governments, Dominion and Provincial, have always legislated in the interest of the workingman."

"Reciprocity!" exclaimed Mr. O'Connell, "why, Sir John Macdonald framed his famous National Policy of protection for Canadian manufacturers—and nobody wants to abate that protection one jota—to put Canada in a strong enough position to demand back that reciprocity which the United States took away in 1866. He wanted to get the very thing we are getting to-day and now the Conservatives denounce it. Is this sincere? Is it good sense? Is it common honesty?

A Proved Benefit.

"The Conservatives," continued Mr. O'Connell, "talked reciprocity in the House of Commons, right down to the early months of 1911. They said they could hold up both hands for it. What are they doing now?"

"Reciprocity is not a new experiment. We tried it from 1854 to 1866, and it tasted so good that we have been hankering for it ever since. Lord Elgin, then Governor-General of Canada, a Tory, interested himself to get it for us, not to promote annexation, you may be sure, but to allay the annexation sentiment prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times. And what was the result? Not annexation but Confederation."

"What are the objections to reciprocity," asked Mr. O'Connell. "Why do Mr. Borden's supporters try to mislead the farmer and the workingman Why do they plaster the blank walls with their placards and cartoons? Why do they pour out their money to defeat democracy? Where do they get their money from? They do it to keep down the working classes. They are fighting reciprocity to preserve monopoly.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words.

Mr. O'Connell devoted a quarter of an hour to the lip loyalty of the Opposition, as compared with the Laurier brand of loyalty which shows that actions speak louder than words.

"The British Preference," said Mr. O'Connell, "put the old proverb that blood is thicker than water into good hard dollars and cents. Was there no affection there? Did that do nothing to cement the Empire? There was more loyalty in that one transaction than the Conservative Government showed in the thirty years it was in office."

"When Britain was threatened in South Africa, what did this French Canadian Premier of ours do? He sent, unsolicited, not one, not two, but four contingents of our bravest and best to fight, and, if need be, to die, for the Mother Country in that distant land.. There are graves over there now that testify to our loyalty."

The Links of Empire.

"When Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to London, the shining figure in those imperial conferences, what did he do but make Canada's name higher in the minds of England's statesmen, and the statesmen over seas? What did he do but uphold our proud position as a free nation in the great aggregation of free nations which constituted the British Empire?"

"When England, that weary Atlas, burdened with its task of policing the seas of the world, but making no complaint, kept on shouldering those tremendous expenditures, what did Sir Wilfrid Laurier do but inaugurate the Canadian navy, which will fight shoulder to shoulder with England when the pinch comes."

"There is nothing baser or more dishonest," said Mr. O'Connell, "than to impute disloyalty to a Government capable of deeds like these. Canada is loyal to the core. The man who says that both sides of politics are not equally and consistently loyal, and who believes it, is no true patriot.

"What I say to you," concluded Mr. O'Connell, "is vote for Liberal Government and the principles of democracy, loyalty and patriotism. That is to say vote for Mr. Stratton and give him such a majority on Sept. 21st that it will make a mark for Peterborough for years to come."

The meeting closed with cheers for the King, and for J. R. Stratton—as somebody shouted—the man who works.

TAXES ON FOOD THAT WILL VANISH WHEN THE DUTIES ARE ABOLISHED

Read Over This List of Duties on Table Supplies That Canadian Homes Are Obliged to Buy in the United States and Pay High Duty On—Some Articles Twice as Expensive in Toronto as in Chicago—Government Takes Its Toll Off Every Oyster Supper—Canadian Season Short in Most Cases.

Here is interesting reading for every housewife in every Canadian city and town. It gives information supplied by the buyer for one of the large restaurants in Toronto, and applies proportionately to Peterborough, and shows how reciprocity, by abolishing the duties, will reduce the cost of living. As a restaurant is only a dining-room on a large scale, the facts herewith supplied come home with force to every home:

HEAD LETTUCE—We are obliged to purchase this article from the United States. The local supply covers a few weeks, and its quality is not up to the standard of the imported article. We pay an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent., and we use a large quantity per year.

TOMATOES—We buy this article about nine months of the year from the United States. The local supply covers three months; the first supply comes from California, afterwards from Florida, later from Texas. The hothouse production here in the winter time is very unsatisfactory. We pay a duty of 30 per cent., and we consume a very large quantity.

CAULIFLOWER—The local supply covers about three months of the year, and we purchase the rest from the United States, and pay a duty of 30 per cent.

PARSLEY—The parsley we use is imported almost entirely from the United States, with usual duty on vegetables, and we use a very large quantity.

TURNIPS AND CARROTS—In the early season of the year we are obliged to get the fresh article from the United States, and pay 30 per cent. duty ad valorem.

POTATOES—We pay 20c. per bushel duty, and we are obliged to get our early potatoes from the United States.

CELERY—The local supply ends in November, and after that we are obliged to purchase this article from the United States and pay 30 per cent. duty ad valorem.

Toronto Prices Twice Chicago Prices.

GREEN PEPPERS—For about six weeks we get our supply from local growers, and the balance of the year we are obliged to purchase them from the United States. We have just paid $12 for a case, and the same case is selling in Chicago at $6. The duty and transportation charges, with commissions, explains the difference.

LIMA BEANS—There are none grown in Canada, and we pay the usual duty.

EGG-PLANT—The supply from Canada covers a few weeks only, and during the rest of the year we are obliged to import it from the United States, and we pay 30 per cent. duty.

DRY ONIONS—We import these almost entirely from the United States and pay the usual duty.

GREEN ONIONS—We import, except during the season of the year, which is about three months.

RADISHES—Are about the same.

CANTELOUPE—We pay 3c. duty apiece no matter what size. The local supply covers about six weeks, and we are obliged to obtain them from the United States during the rest of the year.

PEARS—This article we purchase chiefly from California, as we have found them usually well packed, well selected, and our local supply covers a very short period, and we pay 1c. a pound duty.

PEACHES—We buy large quantities of California peaches. Our own supply covers about two months. We pay 1c. a pound duty on the American article.

BEEF TENDERLOIN—We get all this article fromm the United States, and pay 3c. a pound duty. The Canadian butchers do not separate it from the ribs.

25 Per Cent. Tax and Nearly All Oysters.

OYSTERS (SHELL)—We pay 25 per cent. duty on these, and our supply comes almost entirely from the United States. The source of supply of the Malapecs is so limited that a single hotel in Toronto would consume the full supply, and we are obliged to import oysters from the United States.

OYSTERS (BULK)—We pay 10c. per gallon duty, and we are obliged to purchase this from the United States.

LOBSTERS—We pay 25 per cent. ad valorem on this article. The local supply continues from December to July, and the balance we get from the United States, and as we consume about 1,000 pounds per week the duty we pay is $52.50 on these.

FISH—We use almost all fish from Canadian waters. The bluefish, flounders, Spanish mackeral, sea bass, pompano, codfish we are obliged to get from the United States, and pay 2c. a pound duty.

CUCUMBERS—Our local supply on this article covers about three months, and the balance of the year we are obliged to get them from the United States, and we pay 30 per cent. duty.

CHERRIES, PLUMS, AND APRICOTS—The local supply of these covers a few weeks, and during the balance of the year we procure them from the United States, and pay 1c. per pound duty.

STRAWBERRIES—We pay 2c. per pound duty, and the local supply is limited to about six weeks. During the spring we are obliged to procure these from the United States, but when our season is on here we, of course, get our supply from the Canadian producers.

In nearly all the instances herein before mentioned the imported article does not interfere in any way with the native producer.

THIS IS A FINE COLLECTION OF FOOD TAXES YOUR WIFE HAS TO PAY ON HER BREAKFAST TABLE, HER DINNER TABLE, AND HER SUPPER TABLE. THEY WILL BE WIPED OUT UNDER THE RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT.

THE GREAT TEMPTATION

A Short Story.

"No," said the woman who was telling the story, "I did not have the time to do as I did—I took the time. There are plenty of good reasons why I should have taken it.

"At least 17 insistent duties glared at me from various corners of the house. They glared at me accusingly, as one who would willingly neglect them. They glared at me indignantly, as one who lightly assumed duties with no idea of discharging them. They glared at me pityingly, as one who had been slightly brought up and didn't know any better. But I turned my back on them all, dressed the children and went.

"This is why I went. I had taken a perfectly green girl from the intelligence office and trained her steadily for two months. I had trained her so that she understood what I was saying and could do the housework more than fairly well. Anyone who has trained a green girl for two months at a stretch knows that a rest cure is due the trainer, but I'd never been able to introduce rest cures into my curriculum, as I didn't feel abused. I simply stood back and gloated over the way I'd handled that girl.

"And then one Thursday evening a tall, gaunt woman with a fairly good knowledge of English appeared and Stasia and she went up to Stasia's room. When they appeared Auntie Wandaluski — for that was the gaunt one's name — held Stasia's papier mache suitcase in her hand. Stasia, clutching her month's pay, acquired but two hours previously, brought up in the rear.

"Stasia was about to leave, at once!

"No, the work was not too hard. No, she didn't want more money. She was about to be married, and, as the girl next door expressed it, I didn't even know she 'was keepin' company.'

"She went in the middle of the spring house-cleaning. She went when a sister-in-law who'm I had never met was on her way from the Pacific coast to visit me. The three intelligence offices which constituted the first aid to the suburbs could send me no one for a week. So I went to bed discouraged and woke up sick—not seriously sick, but just a dawning headache that a cup of tea helped to dispel.

"It was as I drank the tea that the great temptation reared its head. 'Isn't it a lovely day?' said the great temptation enticingly. 'You ought to be out of doors on such a day. Oh, well, I know the work isn't done and you have no girl, but the work will keep and the world is full of girls!'

"At this point the duties that I have mentioned before stalked from their respective corners and tried the effect of withering the great temptation, but it was unperpred.

"How fresh is the smell of the lake air!' it went on. 'How pleasant is the beach!' 'How much good it would do the children!'

"I had put the dishes to soak right after breakfast; that was all I had done. That was all I was going to do. I ran upstairs and dressed myself and the children, locked the door and fled toward the nearest station that would furnish a train to bear me and mine to the lake shore. As I turned the corner and looked back at the house a duty glared at me from my bedroom window. 'Going away for the day and not a single bed made!' it shrieked after me. I made no defense. I had none to make.

"The fiends of the great temptation may have been legion, but it was truthful. The lake was blue, the air delightful, the atmosphere quivered and sparkled. There were very few persons about. The children and I sat on the beach and ate quantities of fruit that I had brought and later I read a new magazine. Once or twice I had an uneasy feeling that a hovering duty was asking me what would be the result if the sister-in-law should arrive ahead of time and, getting into the house by hook or crook, should find the beds unmade. I refused to listen — absolutely refused. The great temptation was so proud of me that it threw up its hat and cheered.

"I am now coming to the part of the story that I don't like to tell. Even to myself it sounds 'fishy,' but it really is true, notwithstanding.

"As I approached my own door late that afternoon, literally saturated with ozone and the joy of living, being accompanied by two children similarly affected, my neighbour crossed the lawn. Behind her came her maid and behind her came still another maid. Briefly told, the mistress of the second girl was going to England to visit her husband's people. She would be gone four months; I could have Jeanie for that period if I wanted her, but Jeanie would like to return to her first mistress in September.

"Would I take her? I had difficulty to keep from throwing my arms around her. I promptly arranged for her to come the next day.

"After this masterly achievement I went inside my house, donned an apron and worked like one possessed.

"How did you dodge the headache?' asked my husband at dinner. 'I thought you were in for a regular old timer when I left this morning.'

"I was,' I answered. Then I told him the story of the great temptation.

"I don't exactly know myself what the moral of this tale is. Many good housekeepers would say that it has none, that it was, in fact, highly unmoral in its lesson of rewarded shiftlessness. But I don't know."—Chicago News.

TO Get Poisons From the Blood

You Have to Depend on the Filtering Process of the Liver and Kidneys.

These Organs Alone Can Purify the Blood, and They Do Their Work Well When Helped by

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

No medical treatment can possibly purify the blood except as it sets in healthy working order the kidneys, liver and bowels.

To these organs is assigned the duty of filtering from the blood the poisonous waste matter which is left over when the nutritious elements are extracted from the food you eat. If they are not overcrowded or slow and sluggish in action they keep the blood pure and healthy.

For this reason Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills are the most satisfactory treatment you can possibly obtain to purify the blood.

Their effects are prompt, definite and certain. The liver action is quickened, the kidneys are invigorated, the regular movement of the bowels is assured. It is only a matter of a few hours until you begin to feel the benefit of this great medicine. Further use, as often as is necessary to keep these organs active, will cleanse and purify the blood and enable the digestive system to properly do its work.

Backache, headache and bodily pains will disappear, and the fatigue which is an accompaniment of poisons in the system will give way to new vigour and energy. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Another Conservative Farmer Who Can Keep Still No Longer

Mr. Robert C. Brandon, of Cannington, Issues a Vigorous Protest Against Attempts of Special Interests to Keep Down Agriculturists—A Typical Case Applicable To All

To the Editor.

As a farmer I am like the rest of us, almost too timid to put up a defence against oppression. Yet, I was never fitted by nature to imbibe that grand old doctrine, "He who smites you on one cheek, turn unto him the other also." The farmers have played that role too long—in connection with the trade questions. Aggression now is our only hope. To be wounded by our own enemies is natural, but to be coerced with the heel of our political friends in our heart's blood, and not speak, is cowardice of the meanest kind. Silence is a virtue no longer.

I have been a Conservative, i.e., a patriot, all my life. Was instrumental in organizing North Ontario farmers in the Patron movement in 1893 and 1894 helped to spread the doctrine that Caleb Mallory preached, and which is now, as well as that of the late Sir John Macdonald "thank heaven" going to bear fruit through later markets and better trade relations."

As farmers we will examine the character and actions of our anti-reciprocity advisers. We shudder to have traitors in our country, but when they stealthily try to creep into the private recesses of the whole body politic, ply hard their industrial calling, 'tis serious, indeed. I have heard the fakir argument. And it abounds with commiserations for our manufacturers, for the benighted farmers, for the labourers, and railway employees. Be it remembered, the Manufacturers' Association has 2,700 members—all wise, diplomatic men—who are all helped by tariff protection, from 17½ to 27½ per cents. And the present trade bargain only asks 2½ per cent. reduction. To these men who get special favours our Opposition must be tied. And all over Canada, Ontario appears to be the centre of the conflict.

Featured, it says we will compel the "Western" Provinces to pay us from $300 to $450 for our horses, commission to buyers, and 1,000 to 2,700 miles of freight to enrich the carrying companies and compel an all-West-and-East route. We can reason the trade in other commodities on the same line of argument.

Now, commonsense teaches us with trade barriers removed we can realize precisely the same results—minus the costly transhipment—and our friends Westward can buy in a neighbouring market nearer home. But the Ontario farmer is asked to compel a continuation of this even against his own son and daughter, who live in the West. Sir, as farmers, our children in the West must have fair play.

ROBERT C. BRANDON,
Cannington, Sept. 6, 1911.

WHAT WE HAVE WE'LL HOLD.

Peterborough has flourished under Liberal Administration as it never flourished before; has grown as it never grew before. Would we not be taking a big chance in turning over the business of Canada to Mr. Borden, who stands for the same policy that brought stagnation under Conservative rule? Let any one honestly compare conditions in 1896 and conditions in 1911.

Peterborough has never been so faithfully represented at Ottawa as during the last seven years, and especially the past three years. Would it be to Peterborough's advantage, in any sense, to change members. Think it over in the light of business, and of the best interests of Peterborough.

WE'LL HOLD.

AN OBJECT LESSON IN SUCCESS

The Rise of the B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. Harness Business From Small Beginnings to its Present Flourishing State

One of the best traits in human nature is the pleasure the average man takes in another's success.

There is not a person in Peterborough who feels anything but satisfaction at the growth of our industries and the increasing employment at good wages which they afford the workingman.

There is not a workingman in Peterborough who is not genuinely and particularly interested in the expanding prosperity of his own employer and of the other employers who are his daily bread. The workingman very properly feels that his employer's success is his own gain in the shape of a steady job with plenty to do.

WHERE GOOD METHODS COUNTED

The progress of B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. is a case in point. No one begrudges this enterprising firm the rewards of good management, large vision and favourable tariff conditions which it is now reaping. The Ackerman Harness Company has more than kept ahead of the times. It has seen profitably into the future and prepared for it.

The founder of the business came to Peterborough from Port Perry about twenty years ago. He started—in a small way—manufacturing harness in a little rented building with the usual exemptions just across the way from the site of his present large factory. He employed perhaps ten hands, and ten thousand dollars would have bought everything he had in his business.

No, not everything. It would not have bought his business capacity, his diligence, his foresight, his prudent boldness and many other qualities which are worth more than ready money.

In 1891 the business was small and struggling, but there was a careful steersman at the helm and presently honest, intelligent and continuous effort began to tell.

In 1896 the business began to extend and the new factory was built. This factory had to be enlarged twice to take care of the growing trade. The factory was exempted from taxes, as was also the first extension, and when the last extension was made the City Council granted B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. a fixed assessment, which was not subsequently ratified by the popular vote. The thrice enlarged factory had to be further supplemented with a warehouse in Regina, which is a convenient distributing centre for the Northwest market. The firm of B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. now has agencies in all the large cities of the Northwest, where a great part of their business lies.

A FLOURISHING INSTITUTION

At this writing, Sept. 11, 1911, the Ackerman factory employs seventy hands or more. The firm is rated in R. G. Dun & Co's at upwards of a quarter of a million dollars, with the highest grade of credit, and these ratings are always well within the mark. Its progress during the last fifteen years, astonishing as it is, is no more than it deserves.

The buiness has kept pace with the growth of the West. It has marched with the Liberal policy of filling up that vast territory with tillers of the soil and creating an expanding market for Eastern manufacturers. The more farmers there are in the Northwest the more horses will be needed, and the more horses the more harness. This fundamental fact was half the battle for B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. It is greatly to their credit that they foresaw the effect of the enlightened Liberal immigration and transportation policy and took advantage of it.

The other half of the battle was the well-balanced Liberal tariff policy which gave B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co the protection which their young and growing industry required, thus fostering and cherishing and backing up the hard work and common sense they put into their business operations.

ADEQUATE PROTECTION FULLY ASSURED.

No amount of tariff can protect business inefficiency, but where business efficiency is a good part of a man's stock in trade the tariff is both encouragement and strength. It is pleasing to reflect that, duringall the years B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. were working up to their present position of one of the most flourishing industries of the kind in Canada, the wise Liberal tariff policy did all it could to help.

From 1896 up to the present time the industry represented in Peterborough by B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. enjoyed the following protection under the Fielding tariff:

Item 612—Harness and saddlery, including horse boots..... 30%
Item 615—Whips of all kinds, including thongs and lashes.. 30%
Item 551—Horse clothing jute, shaped or otherwise manufactured 30%

This protection will not be touched. Nobody's protection will be touched. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has said so time and again. We can believe Sir Wilfrid Laurier. What's more, nobody in Canada that can see straight wants the manufacturers' protection removed or reduced. It is necessary to the upbuilding of the country. The men the factories employ are a large part of the farmers' home market.

The B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. harness business can go ahead and prosper as usual, confident that the Fielding tariff will continue in its favor the thirty per cent. protection it has already enjoyed for fifteen years, and under which it has done so deservedly well.

THE GOOD INFLUENCE OF RECIPROCITY

Reciprocity will help to fill up the Northwest farms, and with the wider market in natural products the farmers will have more money to buy horses, which in turn will require more harness and bring increased profit to B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co.

No doubt, under the expanding influence of reciprocity B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. will have within the next five years not only a warehouse at Regina, but another warehouse at Saskatoon, another at Edmonton, another at Lethbridge and perhaps a branch factory at Calgary.

Peterborough is glad to see B. F. Ackerman. Son & Co. going full speed ahead with nothing in the road to stop it. The employees of the firm are naturally delighted to witness their employers' present success and the growing promise of the future.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

"OH friend, never strike sail to a fear! Come into port greatly or sail with God the seas. He has not learned the lesson of life who does not every day surmount a fear." —Emerson.

Can you imagine a mother who deliberately handicaps a child by encouraging habits which were sure to lead to some physical defect. Of course not. And yet how often you come into contact with cases in which mothers have handicapped their children by encouraging habits of mind which led to mental defects.

I am thinking especially just now of the child who is afraid of thunderstorms.

In nine cases out of ten when a child is unreasonably terrified by a thunderstorm it is the mother's fault.

Sometimes she is to blame because she has deliberately encouraged the child by letting him see that he can hold the centre of attention whenever there is a thunderstorm if he will yield completely to his fear, and by talking in his presence about how terribly he suffers during thunderstorms and about his high strung and nervous temperament.

More often she is to blame because she does nothing or not nearly enough to overcome the child's fear.

Most children are naturally terrified by heavy crashes of thunder and vivid lightning.

But there are two ways of treating that terror.

One is to sympathize with it and make much of it and increase it by all the power of suggestion.

The other is to pass it off as lightly as possible and interest the child in other things or even in the beautiful impressive aspect of the storm itself.

I was with a very wise mother the other day during a terrific thunderstorm. It was the biggest storm her little four year old daughter had ever witnessed and of course at first she was inclined to be much frightened. Instead of yielding to, and sympathizing with this terror, the mother drew her little girl's attention to the great beauty of the lightning, got her to watch for especially magnificent zigzags, told her the dear old folk story of Hendrik Hudson rolling his great balls in the mountains, explained to her how little real reason for fear there was and soon had her interested and comforted.

The child will doubtless grow up without needless discomfort of terror every time the sky darkens as if for a thunderstorm.

I am convinced that there are a very few people — and I mean a VERY few and its a thousand to one you are not one of them — who can so fill of electricity that a thunderstorm does affect them physically.

They CANNOT wholly overcome their terror.

Furthermore there is a certain amount of absolutely reasonable alarm, natural fear of being struck when a thunderstorm is close at hand. That you cannot blame anyone for feeling although I think that "to reckon danger too seriously, to hearken too intently for the threat that runs through all the winning music of the world to hold back "the hand from the rope because of the thorn and fro mlife because of death," is to lose half the worth of living.

But aside from these two conditions, I think that fear of a thunderstorm is something to be very much ashamed of and that the mother who does not do everything in her power to help her child overcome it, or better still keep him from acquiring it, is doing a very wrong thing.

WINNERS IN THE LAWN COMPETITION ANNOUNCED

Mr. E. F. Collins, superintendent of Allan Gardens, Toronto, who acted as judge in the lawn competition of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, last week has announced his awards as follows:

Lawns looked after by the owners entirely—1st J. H. Williams, Boswell avenue; 2nd, Geo. S. McKee, Water street; 3rd, W. J. Kennedy, Aylmer street.

Lawns looked after by hired help—First, Miss Dickson, Dickson street. There were no other competitors.

For lawn only, looked after by hired help—First Mr. S. D. Hall, Inverlea street. Mr. Hall was awarded a full ten points for having his lawn in perfect condition and for its general neatness, and was given first prize and special mention. There were no other competitors.

Mr. B. Cooney, Stewart street, carried off the prize for the best flowers.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Special Prizes At Exhibition

Secretary F. J. A. Hall, of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, announces some special prizes in connection with the big event.

There will be a special prize of $5 for the best pony shown on halter, an entry fee of 50c. being charged in this event.

The Bank of Nova Scotia has offered a special prize of $5.00 for the best real estate turn-out and the society is giving second and third prizes in this event.

Mr. Stratton has kindly consented to show all his prize winning high steppers at the Exhibition, exhibiting four-in-hand, tandem, singles and pairs, saddle horses, etc., before the grand stand on Friday and Saturday.

The Junior Leaders will meet every Friday evening at 5.30 for floor work, after which supper will be served, and a short time spent in study.

The Intermediate Leaders will meet on Wednesday evening for reorganization at 6.00 p.m., when supper will be served. It is important that every man be in his place, as election of officers and other important business will be transacted.

THE LAST CHANCE

The Government has thrown open for entry 25,000 homesteads in Western Canada in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These homesteads are within 30 miles of present lines of the Canadian Northern Railway (and some much less) and all will undoubtedly be served by railway lines within a short time.

The low round trip homeseekers' fares to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan are in effect only two more days this year, September 26th and 19th. The fares are low, the return limits long and the stop-over privileges liberal.

Write at once for the latest Homeseekers' guide, fares and other particulars. The Canadian Northern Railway offers a choice of all routes, reaches nearly every part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, thus enabling one to examine all sections and make a wise selection.

All particulars can be obtained By writing to R. L. Fairbairn, Asst. General Passenger Agent, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Downham Returns From California

Mrs. P. Downham has returned home after spending the past nine months in the State of California, thoroughly delighted with her stay. Mrs. Downham visited at the home of her cousin, Mr. Hugh A. Lees, an old English family, now residing at San Jose, Santa Clara County, who has an 80 acre fruit farm which will produce this year $15,000 worth of fruit.

Mrs. Downham travelled all over the state of California and found Santa Clara Valley to be the richest fruit district in the state. It is all laid out in avenues like a large city, with the street cars stopping at each farm. Land throughout the valley is worth from $800 to $2,000 per acre.

When at the coast, Mrs. Downham also spent several weeks at San Francisco and while there had the experience of feeling several slight earthquake shocks, one of them being quite pronounced. Seattle was also described as a city of wonderful brilliancy.

On leaving for home, Mrs. Downham came by way of Oregon, over the road of 1000 wonders and the trip was immensely interesting and wonderful. Short visits were made at intervals along the route, until Winnipeg was reached, where a stay was made in this rapidly growing city. Mrs. Downham says from what she could hear all along the way home from the coast, the west is overwhelmingly in favour of reciprocity.

ORGANIZED LABOUR DECLARES FOR THE RECIPROCITY PACT

Executive of Dominion Trades and Labour Congress Report in Favour of Agreement Believing it is in the Interests of the People of Canada--Will Hurt Nothing But Pockets of a Few Capitalists.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

(Exclusive) Special to Examiner.

CALGARY, SEPT. 11.—Peterborough delegates were at the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress, which opened here (Calgary) this morning. The report of the Executive contained the following:

"Your Executive does not hesitate to say that it believes the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States is in the interests of the Canadian people. If other proof of this were wanting the fact that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was against, would be sufficient to prove it must be of some value to the workers. This organization has never tired of proclaiming its love for free labour, because that helps its pocket. Reciprocity has long been recognized in the International Trades Union movement, and we see no danger to anything but the pockets of few interested capitalists in permitting people to swap knives if they see fit to do so without intervention of a horde of customs officials. The trade union movement is better and stronger because of the freedom it enjoys in the exchange of benefits."

The above resolution, which will likely be adopted by the Congress, is regarded here as one of the strongest boosts Laurier and reciprocity have yet received.

MR. PATTERSON HAD NOT HEARD OF THE RUMOUR

On Saturday it was being circulated by the opponents of Mr. Stratton, that if the reciprocity agreement was carried the effect would be to close down the Canadian General Electric works.

A reporter of the Examiner called to-day upon the Superintendent, of the works at Peterborough, Mr. E. G. Patterson, and asked if there was any truth in the rumour. Mr. Patterson's reply was: "I have heard no such rumour."

REVIEW ROORBACK NAILED

The Review of Saturday evening says:

"Some two or three months ago Mr. "Leary took a carload of horses "West, as has been his custom. He "found the market in Winnipeg very "slow, and putting the carload of "horses in charge of a sales stable, "went on to Edmonton and the far "West.

Mr. Leary, in conversation with the Examiner, says that these horses were shipped on the 25th of July to Winnipeg, and that immediately on their arrival there he sold three of them at good prices, and could have sold the whole of them at a large profit had he sold them on time, but the owner of the sales stable in which he placed the horses, had a barn full come in just after Mr. Leary left for Edmonton, and instead of selling Mr. Leary's horses, sold his own, thereby leaving Mr. Leary's horses on his hands.

Mr. Leary went on to Edmonton from Winnipeg and returned, and finding thirteen of his horses unsold he shipped them to Yorktown, Sask., and returned to Peterborough. Since returning home he has received a letter offering him a price for the whole thirteen horses. which price is satisfactory to Mr. Leary, and they are now disposed of.

Mr. Leary informs the Examiner that there is no question of doubt about it that Ontario horses will find a better market closer to home in the Eastern States as soon as the duty of from $50.00 to $75.00 a piece is removed off the Canadian horses entering into United States.

Upon further questioning Mr. Leary says that the farmers of the West are all talking "wheat" --that is the all absorbing question—and that the West will undoubtedly, so far as he can size up the situation, send a full quota of representatives to support the Government and the Reciprocal Agreement.

The Review also makes the statement that:

"Mr. Leary has also said that he is "going to return West prior to the "election.

Like the other statements made by the Review, this is also untrue. Mr. Leary states that he came home from the West with the expressed purpose of assisting the exhibition and working and voting for Mr. Stratton.

The average price of barley in Canadian centres for the period—July 6, 1910, to April 12, 1911, was 50 cents per bushel.

In Minneapolis the average price, for the same period, was 78.9 cents per bushel; in Milwaukee 82.4 cents; in Buffalo 66.7.

When Canadian barley had free admission to the States the average export price for sixteen years was 67 cents. During the past seventeen years, with a high tariff wall to cross, the average price has been only 42 cents.

Under reciprocity the tariff wall will be taken down again. Do the farmers want it taken down?

AN ALTERCATION

A slight altercation of an interesting character took place on the market on Saturday. A citizen purchased some potatoes from a farmer, and when he got them home and weighed them, he found that there were only 80 lbs. to the bag. He went back to the market to see if there had been any mistake, and was informed by the saleslady that there was a new law setting the weight of potatoes at 80 instead of 90 lbs. to the bag. It was then investigated; but no standard weight to this effect could be found. No action was taken in the case, but the saleslady was informed of her mistake.

WILL NOT GROW HERE

In the early spring a sample of broom corn as grown in the southern states; was sown in some soil near Cobourg. It is now seen as a result of the experiment that this species of corn will not grow to perfection in these parts. It is said that the soil is too rich, which causes the grass to grow to an unnatural height of ten feet, while the "brush" does not develop far enough to warrant its use.

T. A. S. NOTES

A very large attendance of members was present at the meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S. yesterday afternoon. The resignation of Mr. Leo. Derocher from the position of first vice-president of the society was received, and Mr. Albert New was elected by acclamation to fill the vacancy. Ten new candidates were added to the membership. Rev. Father McColl has offered a prize for the member bringing in the most new members before the anniversary on January 8, 1911.

Work on the new T.A.S. park is almost completed, and a marvelous transformation has been made in the grounds. The lots on sale are going fast.

PREMIER SATISFIED

Ontario Will Do Her Share Towards Reciprocity He Says

ALL IS SECURE

Windsor, Sept. 11.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier concluded his tour of Ontario with a magnificent meeting here Saturday. "The week I have spent traveling your province has been all too short," he told the great gathering. "I could wish that I could be with you longer. On Monday I return to my native province of Quebec, and I carry with me the assurance that Ontario will take a good part in the coming victory for the great policy so long dear to the hearts of the people of Canada."

On the platform was Mr. Louis Wigle, former Conservative M.P., and no less than seven other Conservatives took occasion, at the close of the meeting, to meet Sir Wilfrid and tender assurance of their support on the present issue of reciprocity.

Nearly fifteen hundred Americans came over from Detroit and vicinity to hear the Canadian Premier. Among their number were Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, who voted against reciprocity in the United States Senate, and Mr. Milton A. McRae, president of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

Following short addresses by Dr. P. A. Dewar and Mr. A. H. Clarke, the local candidate, the Premier spoke both in English and French.

He was the apostle of the policy for which the Conservatives and Liberals of the past alike had labored, a policy of opening up better trade relations with the great republic with which Canada shared the continent. Canada and the United States were so united geographically and through the bond of common kinship and language that the development of trade relations in natural products had long been desired. The mistake of the past had been made by the Americans in rejecting the overtures of Sir John Macdonald and his successors. "It is a source of gratification to me in my old age to bring you a concrete proposal of reciprocity so long sought by my predecessors in vain," said Sir Wilfrid.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. Could anything be more fair? Is there any reason why you should hesitate to put our claims to a practical test?

The most scientific common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. They are very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. They do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

We urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Two sizes, 10c. and 25c. Remember, you can get Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store.—The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury.

Railroaders May Strike.

San Francisco, Sept. 11.—Men high in the councils of the shop employes on the Harriman System are striving to prevent the 25,000 individuals whom they represent from striking. Other men also high in the same councils are urging drastic measures as the result of the railroad's action. From the statement made by several of the labor leaders before going into the conference, it appears that the meeting probably will last well into next week. The situation would be thoroughly discussed before a decision is reached, they said.

Patched Up Their Troubles.

Montreal, Sept. 11.—The trouble in the fire department was patched up on Saturday through the good offices of Mayor Guerin. Chief Tremblay has agreed to withdraw his charge against sub-Chief Martin on receipt of an apology which the sub-chief has agreed to submit. Chief Tremblay has also withdrawn his $5,000 suit against Ald. Lamoureaux, the latter pointing out that his utterances had been misinterpreted.

Night Flyer Killed.

HOW TO TREAT HAY FEVER

TAKE "FRUIT-A-TIVES" IF YOU WANT RELIEF

Hay Fever is not a difficult trouble. The real cause is impure blood, due to defective action of bowels, kidneys and skin. In ninety per cent of the cases of Hay Fever, there is Chronic Constipation, Weak Stomach or Indigestion. This is proved by the fact that sneezy, goggles and other local preparations do not cure Hay Fever.

One or two "Fruit-a-tives" every night will stimulate the bowels, kidneys and skin, and thus remove the poisons in the body which produce the aging and nervousness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices.

Parisian Bankers Are Cutting Off German Credit

A DIPLOMATIC MANOEUVRE

Paris, Sept. 11.—Germany's counter proposals to those submitted by France regarding the settlement of [illegible] difficulty reached Paris Saturday night. M. de Selves, the Foreign Minister, after taking cognizance of them, immediately carried the document to Premeier Caillaux. Two Ministers made a lengthy examination of its contents and decided to submit the counter proposals to specialists on Moroccan questions, notably M Regnault, the French Minister to Morocco. When they have formed an opinion the Premier will call a meeting of the Cabinet, probably on Thursday, and lay the whole matter before them for decision.

In accordance with an agreement made with the German Government no communication was made to the press concerning the text of the document, but it is understood that Germany in return for the recognition of France's free hand in Morocco, demands economic guarantees, which amount to privileges and which would be unacceptable not only to France but to all the other powers, as they would practically suppress commercial equality in Morocco.

It appears certain that the financial difficulties of Germany are partly the result of the operations of French finance. The German monetary world was caught at a time when it was unable to resist the sudden hostility of the Paris bankers, who three weeks ago began to call in the credits, which in any way concerned Germany. A good deal of Berlin paper is held in Paris and considerable is held by Swiss banks, which are debtors of the Paris bankers. When the political situation was taking on a dark phase, as an ordinary measure of prudence, French financiers began calling in the debts owed by Germany. German embarrassment was immediately perceived, and this process was encouraged by the French Government as a diplomatic manoeuvre.

A French banker of distinction, who has close relations with the Government, returned here Friday from Berlin, where he has made a thorough examination of the situation. There is no disposition among the Paris bankers to push matters too far, but they explain that they desire the return of their money at a time when apprehension concerning the political future exists. Distrust among the Germans of their own Government with reference to finances is, in French opinion, going to exercise a strong influence in settling the Moroccan controversy. It is known that the financial flurry has been intensely annoying to the German statesmen.

No Fear of War.

Berlin, Sept. 11.—The financial panic which has been aroused in Germany through the delayed Moroccan negotiations has caused the Government to issue a number of provincial districts official notices, declaring that the fears of war are entirely unfounded and imploring the public that the sensational reports emanating from various irresponsible sources are unworthy of credence. Local officials have been ordered to post notices to this effect in panic places.

Foreign Minister Von Kiderlen Waechter also is reported as having given a reassuring statement to a leading financier regarding the situation.

Canadians Free.

Pekin, Sept. 11.—The Chinese Government is concentrating troops on the borders for the purpose of suppressing the alarming disturbances in the province of Szechuen, if the provincial forces are insufficient in numbers or prove disloyal. Many Canadian missionaries are among the Christian refugees. These in all number about 100, of whom 30 are Americans. Nothing has been heard from them for the past four days. It is believed that they are being escorted by Chinese troops in the direction of the Yangtse Kiang.

Shanghai, Sept. 11.—The Yangtse River is 45 miles wide in places. The great floods stretch over a territory seven hundred miles in extent. Seventy thousand survivors surround Nanking, where 300 are dying daily.

Similarly distressing details are being received from many cities. It is feared that the waters will not subside before the middle of October. The rains this year were unusually early and caught the crops before they had matured.

Red Cross Founder Dying.

Oxford, Mass., Sept. 11.—Bowed down by the weight of years, Miss Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, was believed to be near death to-day, at her summer home, in this town. In poor health when she came here early in the summer from her home at Glen Echo, Md., she had grown gradually worse.

Her doctors say that Miss Barton's strength had been greatly impaired by an illness from pneumonia some time ago, and that her extreme age had left her without power of recuperation. While death might not be immediate, it could be long delayed.

CASCARETS CURE A BILIOUS HEADACHE

Gently but Thoroughly Cleanse Your Liver, Stomach and Bowels and You Feel Great by Morning

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets — they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

HEARST IS CONDEMNED

Montreal Meeting Resents His Interference in the Fight

MANAGER SENDS REPLY

Montreal, Sept. 11.—An "anti-Hearst" demonstration, organized by a number of Conservatives, now leading the anti-reciprocity campaign in Montreal, drew thousands to Champs des Mers Saturday night. Here they heard the past of Hearst discussed at some length, and in a manner which certainly could not have lead them to think very highly of that gentlemen.

The direct cause of the assembly was the allegation that throughout Canada copies of pro-reciprocity journals, controlled by William Randolph Hearst, were being freely circulated with the object of influencing Canadian voters. Further, it was alleged that these journals contained false and deceptive statements and articles calculated to mislead the reader.

Mr. Hearst himself had been invited by telegram to be present, and Mr. Henri Bourassa was slated as the chief speaker, but neither appeared. The telegram to Mr. Hearst informed him that it was hoped that he could see his way clear to take part in a joint debate here as that his false and malicious allegations could be publicly refused.

In replying to this telegram the following message came from The New York American, signed by S. S. Carvalho:

"Mr. Hearst is in Europe and has been there for the past three months. No one here has the slightest authority to speak in his name. He might decide to answer a courteous telegram addressed to him in London; but I certainly could not undertake to forward him a telegram composed of ridiculous misstatements and couching in boorish language nothing but a confession of the ill-breeding, misrepresentation, and unimportance of the individuals signing it."

On the other hand several messages were read from Canadian newspapers endorsing the stand taken by the organizers of the meeting and condemning Mr. Hearst for the free circulation of his journals in this country.

Papineau Mathieu, Conservative organizer, was the first speaker, and stated that Taft and Hearst were banded together in a conspiracy to change the relations between Canada and the Mother Country.

Oliver Asselin attacked Mr. Hearst as the publisher of "Yellow Journals."

Rufus Pope, chief organizer of the meeting, following in a similar strain. Mr. Hearst, he said, controlled seven yellow journals, which were condemned as rotten in the United States. Roosevelt and Root had said that the Hearst papers might be considered responsible for the assassination of President McKinley.

All good Canadians should unite in protesting against the baleful influence of these journals being introduced into Canada.

Other speakers followed in a similar vein.

Suicide at Guelph.

Mob Broils Into Hospitals

Chiasso, Switzerland, Sept. 11.—Gioia Del Colle, a city with a population of 20,000 in the Italian province of Bari Della Puglies, has, according to official advices received here, been the scene of savage excesses in consequence of the cholera epidemic now raging in Italy.

The crowds rushed into the hospital, brought out the cholera patients and carried them in a ghastly procession through the streets.

CITY AQUATIC MEET WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Interesting Event Held on the Canal Saturday Under the Auspices of the Y.M.C.A.—Mr. W. O. Taylor Carried Off the Lech Shield in the Life-Saving Competition.

100 yards swimming, senior—W. O. Taylor. Time 1.28 1-5. Prize, silver medal, donated by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

50 yards swimming, junior—Wilfrid Stratton, time 46 secs. Prize, silver medal, donated by W. O. Taylor.

400 yards single canoe—D. White. Time 2.06 4-5. Prize, pair paddles, donated by Peterborough Canoe Co.

440 yards swim, senior—Donald White, time 9.20. Prize, watch fob, donated by F. Clarke & Son.

400 yards canoe fours—Messrs. L. Carter, J. Downie, L. Davidson and D. White, time 1.55 1-5. Prize, four paddles, donated by the English Canoe Co.

220 yards' swimming, junior—Ormand Cavanah, time 4.46 4-5. Prize pair of shoes, donated by Mr. James Carey.

Life Saving contest—W. O. Taylor. Prize, possession of Wm. E. Lech shield for one year and silver medal, donated by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

The above were the winners of the City Aquatic Championships, held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday afternoon in the reach of the Canal, just above the Lift-Lock. The aquatic meet was a grand success in every way, the events being warmly contested, while there was a large crowd of spectators who found the afternoon's sport thoroughly interesting. The meet served to show the progress that is being made in swimming in Peterborough and the work of some of the contestants in this line was a revelation to the spectators. Some very clever swimmers were in the different events and the manner in which they clove the water won the admiration of the crowd. The life-saving contest, the winning of which carried with it the ownership of the Wm. E. Lech Shield was especially interesting, and the contestants showed great proficiency in life-saving methods. The conditions required the contestants to go to the rescue of a supposedly drowning man and tow him fifty feet in three different methods, a most exacting demand upon the contestants, but those who took part showed themselves fully capable of the task, and the judges had some difficulty in selecting the winner, which finally turned up in Mr. W. O. Taylor, who not only has the Lech Shield for the year, but also wins the handsome silver medal donated by Mr. J. J. Thompson, the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. One of the most exciting races of the afternoon was the men's fours paddling, in which Donald White's crew carried off first place in a hair-raising finish from the quartette captained by Harold Hill. Only a couple of feet separated the two boats at the finish, and the race was worth going miles to see. Some of the swimming races were as warmly contested; in fact, every event was a real race and all were well filled. The Y. M. C. A. are to be congratulated upon the grand success of the first City Aquatic championships, and it is with pleasure that the Examiner mentions the fact that this meet will be made an annual affair. With all its advantages in waterways, Peterborough ought to be in the first flight in aquatic sports and the Y. M. C. A. has taken a step in the right direction in arranging the championships and in the swimming courses, which are a feature of the work of the Association of the Manitoba Amateur Athletic Union. I took it into my head to have a crack at the one half mile and one mile events. I had had absolutely no training, as on my job I don't get time for running, being shifted about so much. Anyway, I was back in Brandon in time to enter the races, and I ran second in the one mile, being beaten only by a couple of yards, and won the half mile by ten yards, so that I think I did pretty well. If I could have had about a week's workout before, I would have got the mile; anyway, I am more than satisfied, although I am stiff to-day all right. I should like to be down for the Examiner road race, but I will be missing this year."

MR. STRATTON'S HORSES CARRIED OFF MANY PRIZES AT CANADIAN NATIONAL

Hon. J. R. Stratton's horses, which were on exhibition at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, returned by express to Peterborough on Saturday. The visitors to the Exhibition were unanimous in saying that Strathormond stables were the best stable of harness horses on the grounds, and the prizes taken by them were more numerous than those won by any other exhibitor in Canada.

On Thursday, August 31st, in the open runabout class, "Midget" won first prize.

On Friday, September 1st, in the class, harness horses over 15.2, "My Pride" and "Premier" carried off the first prize in competition with Crowe & Murray, of Toronto, Yeager, of Simcoe, Co. Pellatt, of Toronto, and Mr. Stewart of Montreal.

In the gentleman's pair, to suitable vehicle, again did "My Pride" and "Premier" carry off the first prize.

In the open for all class, high steppers, "Premier" again took the red ribbon.

In the King Edward Hotel Cup, valued at $100.00, ladies' turnout class, "Perfect Dream," which horse has never been beaten in this class anywhere, carried off the red ribbon.

For the Championship Silver Medal, best pair of harness horses on the grounds, "My Pride" and "Premier" again took first prize.

For the Reserved Championship, single high steppers, "My Pride" carried off the championship.

In the Combination Saddle and Harness Class, "None Nicer" took second prize.

For the best single horse, "My Pride" took the first prize.

In the high stepping class, open to all classes, "My Pride" again carried off first prize.

In the tandem, open for all, "Perfect Dream" and "My Pride" took second prize. "Premier" not being very well, "Perfect Dream" took her place, and the tandem was not just up to the conditions.

In the saddle class, open to all, "None Nicer" took second prize.

In the four-in-hand, "Perfect Dream," "My Pride," "Premier" and "Latest News" were in the ribbons.

In the high stepping class, 15.2 and over, again "My Pride" took second prize.

Pair of horses under 15.2, "Loch Ryan Princes" and "Latest News" won the ribbons again.

In the 15 hands and under, "Latest News" was still in the ribbons.

In the single class, 15.2 and over, "Perfect Dream" showed its perfection, and was again in the ribbons.

The judges, one from New York, and one from England, both stated that the Peterborough horses were the best lot of harness horses at the show.

The Peterborough Exhibition will take place this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and Mr. Stratton has acquiesced in the wishes of the Directors of the Peterborough Horse Show to show on Friday and Saturday, the various classes that he has exhibited at different exhibitions in Canada this year.

Good Programme Of Races For The Fair

As usual the horse racing will be a feature of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition which opens on Thursday of this week. The directors have set aside $700 in prize money for the track events and they promise to be the best ever seen at the local Exhibition. The programme is as follows:

Friday, September 15th.

Two O'Clock.

1. Trot or Pace, 2.22 class, prize $150. One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.
2. Trot or Pace, 2.18 Class, prize $200. One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.

Saturday, September 16th.

1. Trot or Pace, 2.30 Class, prize $150. One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.
2. Trot or Pace, Free-for-All, prize $200.00—One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.

Horses eligible on 1st September, 1911. No horse entitled to more than one division of prize. Usual weather conditions. Right to change order of races reserved. Hopples allowed. National Trotting Association Rules to govern. Trotters allowed 4 secs. Five to enter, four to start.

Entries to be made with the Secretary on or before September 14th, 1911. This rule will be strictly enforced. The Secretary will be at R. Deane's store up to 10 p.m. on the 14th, to receive entries.

All prizes will be divided 50 per cent., 25 per cent. 15 per cent. and 10 per cent.

Charlie Thorpe Wins A Race In Brandon

The sporting editor of the Examiner has received an interesting letter from Charlie Thorpe, the well known ex-Y.M.C.A. and Victoria Harriers' long distance runner who will be remembered by Peterborough people for his pluckey running in the past four Examiner road-races. Mr. Thorpe is now in the employ of the C. P. R., with headquarters at Brandon, Man., and has evidently not lost either his love nor his skill in the running game, as his letter says in part:

"I want to tell you about some sports that were held in Brandon yesterday (Labour Day) under the sanction of the Manitoba Amateur Athletic Union. I took it into my head to have a crack at the one half mile and one mile events. I had had absolutely no training, as on my job I don't get time for running, being shifted about so much. Anyway, I was back in Brandon in time to enter the races, and I ran second in the one mile, being beaten only by a couple of yards, and won the half mile by ten yards, so that I think I did pretty well. If I could have had about a week's workout before, I would have got the mile; anyway, I am more than satisfied, although I am stiff to-day all right. I should like to be down for the Examiner road race, but I will be missing this year."

CITY AQUATIC MEET WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Interesting Event Held on the Canal Saturday Under the Auspices of the Y.M.C.A.—Mr. W. O. Taylor Carried Off the Lech Shield in the Life-Saving Competition.

100 yards swimming, senior—W. O. Taylor. Time 1.28 1-5. Prize, silver medal, donated by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

50 yards swimming, junior—Wilfrid Stanton, time 46 secs. Prize, silver medal, donated by W. O. Taylor.

400 yards single canoe—D. White. Time 9.06 4-5. Prize, pair paddles, donated by Peterborough Canoe Co.

440 yards swim, senior—Donald White, time 9.30. Prize, watch fob, donated by F. Clarke & Son.

400 yards canoe fours—Messrs. L. Carter, J. Downie, L. Davidson and D. White, time 1.55 1-5. Prize, four paddles, donated by the English Canoe Co.

220 yards' swimming, junior—Ormand Cavanah, time 4.46 4-5. Prize pair of shoes, donated by Mr. James Carey.

Life Saving contest—W. O. Taylor. Prize, possession of Wm. E. Lech shield for one year and silver medal, donated by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

The above were the winners of the City Aquatic Championships, held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday afternoon in the reach of the Canal, just above the Lift-Lock. The aquatic meet was a grand success in every way, the events being warmly contested, while there was a large crowd of spectators who found the afternoon's sport thoroughly interesting. The meet served to show the progress that is being made in swimming in Peterborough and the work of some of the contestants in this line was a revelation to the spectators. Some very clever swimmers were in the different events and the manner in which they clove the water won the admiration of the crowd. The life-saving contest, the winning of which carried with it the ownership of the Wm. E. Lech Shield was especially interesting, and the contestants showed great proficiency in life-saving methods. The conditions required the contestants to go to the rescue of a supposedly drowning man and tow him fifty feet in three different methods, a most exacting demand upon the contestants, but those who took part showed themselves fully capable of the task, and the judges had some difficulty in selecting the winner, which finally turned up in Mr. W. O. Taylor, who not only has the Lech Shield for the year, but also wins the handsome silver medal donated by Mr. J. J. Thompson, the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. One of the most exciting races of the afternoon was the men's fours paddling, in which Donald White's crew carried off first place in a hair-raising finish from the quartette captained by Harold Hill. Only a couple of feet separated the two boats at the finish, and the race was worth going miles to see. Some of the swimming races were as warmly contested; in fact, every event was a real race and all were well filled. The Y. M. C. A. are to be congratulated upon the grand success of the first City Aquatic championships, and it is with pleasure that the Examiner mentions the fact that this meet will be made an annual affair. With all its advantages in waterways, Peterborough ought to be in the first flight in aquatic sports and the Y. M. C. A. has taken a step in the right direction in arranging the championships and in the swimming courses, which are a feature of the work of the Association.

MR. STRATTON'S HORSES CARRIED OFF MANY PRIZES AT CANADIAN NATIONAL

Hon. J. R. Stratton's horses, which were on exhibition at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, returned by express to Peterborough on Saturday. The visitors to the Exhibition were unanimous in saying that Strathormond stables were the best stable of harness horses on the grounds, and the prises taken by them were more numerous than those won by any other exhibitor in Canada.

On Thursday, August 31st, in the open runabout class, "Midget" won first prize.

On Friday, September 1st, in the class, harness horses over 15.2, "My Pride" and "Premier" carried off the first prize in competition with Crowe & Murray, of Toronto, Yeager, of Simcoe, Col. Pellatt, of Toronto, and Mr. Stewart of Montreal.

In the gentleman's pair, to suitable vehicle, again did "My Pride" and "Premier" carry off the first prize.

In the open for all class, high steppers, "Premier" again took the red ribbon.

In the King Edward Hotel Cup, valued at $100.00, ladies' turnout class, "Perfect Dream," which horse has never been beaten in this class anywhere, carried off the red ribbon.

For the Championship Silver Medal, best pair of harness horses on the grounds, "My Pride" and "Premier" again took first prize.

For the Reserved Championship, single high steppers, "My Pride" carried off the championship.

In the Combination Saddle and Harness Class, "None Nicer" took second prize.

For the best single horse, "My Pride" took the first prize.

In the high stepping class, open to all classes, "My Pride" again carried off first prize.

In the tandem, open for all, "Perfect Dream" and "My Pride" took second prize. "Premier" not being very well, "Perfect Dream" took her place, and the tandem was not just up to the conditions.

In the saddle class, open to all, "None Nicer" took second prize.

In the four-in-hand, "Perfect Dream," "My Pride," "Premier" and "Latest News" were in the ribbons.

In the high stepping class, 15.3 and over, again "My Pride" took second prize.

Pair of horses under 15.2, "Loch Ryan Princes" and "Latest News" won the ribbons again.

In the 15 hands and under, "Latest News" was still in the ribbons.

In the single class, 15.2 and over, "Perfect Dream" showed its perfection and was again in the ribbons.

The judges, one from New York, and one from England, both stated that the Peterborough horses were the best lot of harness horses at the show.

The Peterborough Exhibition will take place this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and Mr. Stratton has acquiesced in the wishes of the Directors of the Peterborough Horse Show to show on Friday and Saturday, the various classes that he has exhibited at different exhibitions in Canada this year.

Good Programme Of Races For The Fair

As usual the horse racing will be a feature of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition which opens on Thursday of this week. The directors have set aside $700 in prize money for the track events and they promise to be the best ever seen at the local Exhibition. The programme is as follows:

Friday, September 15th.

Two O'Clock.

1. Trot or Pace, 2.23 class, prize $150. One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.
2. Trot or Pace, 2.18 Class, prize $200. One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.

Saturday, September 16th.

1. Trot or Pace, 2.30 Class, prize $150. One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.
2. Trot or Pace, Free-for-All, prize $200.00—One mile heats, 3 in 5. Entrance: 5 per cent. and 5 per cent. additional for winners.

Horses eligible on 1st September, 1911. No horse entitled to more than one division of prize. Usual weather conditions. Right to change order of races reserved. Hopples allowed. National Trotting Association Rules to govern. Trotters allowed 4 secs. Five to enter, four to start.

Entries to be made with the Secretary on or before September 14th, 1911. This rule will be strictly enforced. The Secretary will be at R. Denne's store up to 10 p.m. on the 14th, to receive entries.

All prizes will be divided 50 per cent., 25 per cent. 15 per cent. and 10 per cent.

Charlie Thorpe Wins A Race in Brandon

The sporting editor of the Examiner has received an interesting letter from Charlie Thorpe, the well known ex-Y.M.C.A. and Victoria Harriers' long distance runner who will be remembered by Peterborough people for his plucky running in the past four Examiner road-races. Mr. Thorpe is now in the employ of the C. P. R., with headquarters at Brandon, Man., and has evidently not lost either his love nor his skill in the running game, as his letter says in part:

"I want to tell you about some sports that were held in Brandon yesterday (Labour Day) under the sanction of the Manitoba Amateur Athletic Union. I took it into my head to have a crack at the one half mile and one mile events. I had had absolutely no training, as on my job I don't get time for running, being shifted about so much. Anyway, I was back in Brandon in time to enter the races, and I ran second in the one mile, being beaten only by a couple of yards, and won the half mile by ten yards, so that I think I did pretty well. If I could have had about a week's workout before, I would have got the mile; anyway, I am more than satisfied, although I am stiff to-day all right. I should like to be down for the Examiner road race, but I will be missing this year."

CHARLIE THORPE,
The well-known ex-Peterborough runner, who captured half-mile event at Brandon Labour Day.

We are receiving on Tuesday a car load of Peaches, Plums and Grapes, which we will sell cheap all next week. A. LONGO.

The YOUNG FELLOWS' BARBER

Gentlemen—At 144 Simcoe St., rear of Payne's Drug Store, you will find one of the most up-to-date and best ran tonsorial parlours in the city. The new proprietor, Mr. Percy Lynch, has had wide experience in some of the best shops on this and the other side, besides a local reputation as a first class workman. The famous Stark system of Face Massage and Shampoo is something new in Peterborough and is used exclusively. One trial will convince you that up-to-date methods bring you greater results for your money than the old-time way. Young fellows want to look 'just right, and one call will bring you back again, as the service is without equal in the city. A high class barber is employed and Mr. Lynch guarantees everyone prompt attention and careful work regardless of time or numbers. One trial is solicited, the work will do the rest.

Mr. Scott, of W. Scott & Co., coal merchants, who had the misfortune to break his leg, some six weeks ago, was taken from the Nicholls Hospital to his home on Hunter street, yesterday.

Mrs. J. J. Carroll, of 313 Pearl avenue, and Mrs. Chas. Bergoine, of 514 Water street, have returned from Toronto, where they were for a week, the guests of Mrs. James Mackvoy, Serard street east.

WEDDING BELLS

KUNDINGER—SULLIVAN.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dunnett, Barnardo avenue, when Miss Esther E. M. Sullivan was united in marriage to Mr. John G. Kundinger, of Detroit, Mich, by the Rev. J. R. Webb. The bride was attired in a navy blue tailored suit and point d-esprit waist.

Mr. and Mrs. Kundinger leave for their home in Detroit, Mich., on the 4.28 C.P.R. train.

OBITUARY

THOMAS BURK.

Peterborough lost a well known resident yesterday in the person of Thomas Burk, of 103 Smith street, who died at 1 o'clock after a short illness.

The deceased was a life long resident of Peterborough, and his kindly and sympathetic disposition caused him to be beloved by all those who were fortunate enough to know him. He was an enthusiastic member of the St. Peter's T.A.S.

Mr. Burke is survived by two sons, Patrick and Thomas J., and two daughters, Margaret and Mary. His wife passed away about five weeks ago. One brother also mourns his demise, in the person of Patrick Burk, of Rushford, Minnesota, and one sister, Mrs. O'Clare, of Dakota.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 103 Smith street, to-morrow morning, at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

MISS GRAHAM.

Miss Graham of Selwyn, who was brought by her sister, Mrs. John Northey, also of Selwyn, to the Nicholls hospital some days ago, passed away at that establishment yesterday. The remains were conveyed to Selwyn for interment yesterday.

ST. JOHN'S NOTICES.

PREMIER WHITNEY'S BIG BROTHER IS FOR RECIPROCITY.

Mr. Albert Whitney, brother of Sir James Whitney, speaking at the Liberal convention, Prescott, September 7.:

"I am heartily in favour of reciprocity. So far as I can see, the men who are leading the fight against it, are certain millionaires of the city of Toronto. It will be a great thing for Canada. I will allow no man to charge me with being weak in my loyalty to the British Empire, and this cry is one of the most foolish ever presented to the people."

St. John's Church Harvest Festival

The Harvest Festival will be held in St. John's Church Thursday next. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 o'clock, and Choral Evensong at 8 p.m. when the special preacher will be the Rev. F. H. Hartley, M.A., of Toronto. The offertories throughout the day will be devoted to the Clergy, Widows and Orphans Fund.

Contributions of fruit, vegetables, flowers etc., will be most acceptable, and should be sent to the church on Tuesday afternoon, or very early on Wednesday morning. The decorators will begin their pleasant task on Wednesday afternoon, and under their management the building will soon assume a festal appearance.

The Choir has for some time, been preparing special music and may be trusted to provide an attractive programme. Large congregations will, no doubt, be present, to join in this great act of praise and thanksgiving for mercies received during the past year.

ON A LONG FLIGHT

Bird-Man Begins Transcontinental Biplane Trip

WILL TAKE A MONTH

San Francisco, Sept. 12.—Robert G. Fowler left the stadium, Golden Gate Park, in a Wright biplane on his transcontinental flight to New York at 1.37 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The start was made under the most favorable weather conditions. The aeroplane was christened with a bottle of Pacific Ocean water by James Ralph, jr. a director of the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Fowler carries a message from Brigadier-General Brush, commander of the U. S. army of the Pacific, to General F. D. Grant, commander of the east, whose headquarters are at Governor's Island, in New York harbor.

With a trade wind at his back the airman climbed into the sky and doubled back over the trail of the forty-niners.

Fowler will attempt to jockey his biplane to New York by easy stages via Sacramento, Elko, Salt Lake City, Granger, Cheyenne, North Platte, Omaha, Rock Island, Chicago, Fort Wayne, Pittsburg, Buffalo and Albany reaching the end of his journey by Oct. 10.

He regards the crossing of the Sierras as the most difficult portion of his journey, but expects success.

As he sped, rimmed with verdure-covered hills, dropped beneath him, Fowler flipped the tail of his big kite to the westward, nosed his way up into the sky until he found the inbound wind and winged away to the northeast across the roofs of the city. Throngs crowding the roofs of the skyscrapers and office buildings cheered his passing.

A special train, containing all the necessary parts for repairs, left the station the moment the cheers of the immense throng assembled showed that a successful start had been made.

Fowler crossed the bay at a height of 500 feet and passed from sight at 1.57 p.m.

He was reported passing Salem, 48 miles from here, at 2.30 p.m., and passed Davis, 76.8 miles away, at 3.08 p.m. He reached Sacramento, his stopping-place for the first leg at 3.19 p.m.

Fowler was flying about 800 feet from the ground when he reached Sacramento. He circled around the north side of the city, finally making a beautiful turn and pointing the nose of his machine down toward Agricultural Park, the state fair grounds, where he landed at 3.38 p.m. He was taken in an automobile to the office of Governor Johnson, who welcomed him and offered his good wishes for the success of the first transcontinental flight ever attempted.

Fowler left Sacramento for Colfax at 5.55 p.m.

Stops at Auburn.

Auburn, Calif., Sept. 12.—Aviator Fowler landed here at 6.36 o'clock, and stopped for the night.

Prominent Citizen Dead.

MAINE GOES "WET"

The Pioneer Prohibition State Changes Its Mind

MAJORITY IS SMALL

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—Unofficial returns late last night indicated that prohibition has been voted out of the constitution of the State of Maine by a bare majority of 1,607 votes. About 20 small towns had not been reported, and the vote of these, together with errors incident to the collection of returns by telephone, still left the exact result in some doubt. One hundred and twenty thousand voters visited the polls and cast their ballots on the question. With the 25 towns missing the vote was 60,676 for repeal and 59,069 against a change in the constitution.

As had been predicted, the cities were the chief strongholds of the repeal faction, but the majority of 12,000 in the total city vote was barely sufficient, according to the latest available returns, to offset the vote of the rural communities.

Although the vote cast yesterday did not equal that of a year ago, when the Democrats swept the state, which had for years been a Republican stronghold, the election was without question one of the most interesting contests that the state has ever known. There was not a home in any section of the state, no matter how deep in the wilds that did not receive quantities of literature on both sides of the question.

Little excitement marked the voting. Although the polls in some of the cities were crowded during much of the time that they were open, it was an orderly crowd and gave the officials little or no trouble.

Since 1887 Maine has had a statute prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, and since 1884 prohibition has been a part of the constitution. In that year, 1884, the question of placing prohibition in the constitution was put before the people and prohibition won by a majority of 49,985, carrying every county in the state.

Polyers were offered all day in hundreds of churches.

Dominion Census.

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Steps are being taken by the census branch this week to collect the last outstanding information as to the population of Canada; when it is in the first official bulletin will be issued. When the census was taken it was found that in cities and towns there were many vacant houses. It was deemed advisable to wait till September, when the holiday season is over, to collect this information, and it is being done this week. An official announcement as to the population of the Dominion may be looked for not later than next week.

6,242 Women Propose to Him.

New York, Sept. 12.—Col. Edward H. R. Green, son of Hetty Green, the world's richest woman, has within the last few months received 6,242 such offers.

Not long ago, Col. Green, who is 40 years of age, and a jovial bachelor, remarked good-naturedly to a reporter: "When I find the right girl I will marry her, if she will have me."

Of the proposals received to date, 1,321 were from foreign shores, and 739 of these were from Britain.

ADDRESS OF MR. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORATE

Electors of the West Riding of Peterborough

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

The arguments have all been made and comparative prices have been quoted at length. You have doubtless read, heard and digested. It only remains to recall the outstanding features of the question before the country—reciprocity in natural products with the United States.

Reciprocity will injure or disturb no industry or factory or workman, in Peterborough or elsewhere, but on the contrary will materially promote the interests of all.

The protection which the Fielding tariff has always accorded our manufacturing industries, will be continued unabated. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Fielding have time and again given assurance of this. The mutual effect of freer trade in natural products and protection for our manufacturers cannot fail of being beneficial by giving the workingman cheaper living and the manufacturer a more prosperous home market.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer by giving him an unlimited market in the United States for those products which he cannot ship to England, or which he cannot sell at home to advantage.

Reciprocity will reduce the cost of living from twenty-five to thirty per cent. It will benefit the consumer in about sixty of the chief elements of his diet.

American eggs, all American fruits, fresh and dried, and all vegetables; will come in free of duty at the season one when there is no production here.

Fish of all kinds, oysters and shell fish will come in free.

The existing duties will be materially reduced on fresh meats, bacon and hams, dried, smoked and salted meats, canned meat, canned fish, sardines and the like, canned vegetables, flour, oatmeal, pearled barley, macaroni, biscuits, etc.

These reductions will materially reduce the prices of these articles to the consumer.

How, you may ask, can reciprocity raise the price to the farmer and lessen it to the consumer?

The answer is simple enough. Reciprocity takes down two tariff walls which stand between the natural products of Canada and the United States and their natural disposal.

The American tariff is the wall against the producer, against the Canadian farmer, which prevents him seeking an outlet for his surplus in that direction and leaves him at the mercy of the Canadian food combines.

The Canadian tariff is the wall against the Canadian consumer, which prevents him from getting the benefit of cheap American products at the times and places when these do not compete with Canadian products.

At present the Canadian farmer receives less for his products than the American farmer and the Canadian consumer pays more for his food than the American consumer.

Reciprocity in natural products removes these two [illegible] and allows the food products of a continent to find the most convenient channels.

The relief to producer and consumer should be almost immediate. Nobody ever saw the cost of living increased by the removal of two food taxes.

What are the side issues that have been dragged into this campaign—the loyalty of the Liberal party, annexation, Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion and the British Born.

They are almost too absurd to mention, but I will answer them briefly.

Loyalty of the Liberal party? The answer to that is British preference, South African contingents, the Canadian navy. Actions speak louder than words. The very men who are plastering the majority of the electors of Canada with the imputation of disloyalty, have a working alliance in Quebec with the firebrand Bourassa, who hates England and preaches destruction to British ascendancy and Canada.

Annexation? The answer to that is that Lord Elgin, Governor-General of Canada, in 1854, a Conservative and an ardent Imperialist, was the chief instrument in obtaining the reciprocity treaty with the United States, which lasted from 1854 to 1866. His avowed purpose in securing reciprocity, was to cure the annexation sentiment, then prevalent among Canadian business men on account of the hard times.

Lord Elgin believed, with Lloyd-George, that reciprocity in natural products between Canada and the United States, was crystallized common sense, and with the London Times, that a happy and contented member of the British Empire, is better than an unhappy and discontented one. Lord Elgin's cure worked. Instead of annexation, reciprocity brought Confederation in its train, and gave this country the great blessing of national unity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's religion? The Protestants of Ontario outnumber the Roman Catholics six to one. Protestantism is in no more danger from a Liberal Roman Catholic premier than it was from a Conservative Roman Catholic premier, Sir John Thompson. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has no more Roman Catholics in his cabinet than Sir John Macdonald had, or Sir John Thompson or Sir John Abbott, or Sir Charles Tupper, or last but not least, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, once the Grand Master of the Orange order. Sir James Whitney has two Roman Catholics in his cabinet, and they have shown themselves equitable and capable administrators.

The British Born? We are all British born if we are born within the Empire, and we are all equally proud of it. Those who were born in the Mother Country and have come to Canada since 1896 to better their conditions need not be told what the Liberal Government has done to help the workingman and to open up the great Northwest prairie to the land-hungry homeseekers. In Canada, as in England, most of the workingman's blessings have been the gift of the Liberal Government. Neither need they be told what a Liberal Government has done for the old land across the sea in the matters of British preference, the South African contingents and the Canadian navy. The British born may be depended upon to rally to the side where they find their best friends.

Hoping to receive the same confidence from the electors of West Peterborough as I have received in the past, I am,

Yours Respectfully,

J. R. STRATTON.

Out to Bust it.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 12.—Sir Wm. Van Horne, accompanied by his son, Mr. R. Benjamin Van Horne, and his secretary, arrived in the city at noon yesterday in his private car Saskatchewan, attached to the Atlantic express. He spoke strongly against reciprocity at a Conservative meeting last evening.

When asked by the reporters whether he intended to continue his platform campaign against reciprocity, Sir William said that, like some other things, when one got started on a campaign of this kind it was hard to tell where it would stop. "I have received a great many invitations to speak in other places, and I will probably go to upper Canada or the west to accept some of them. I [illegible] my views [illegible] the arrangements are being made by the campaign managers, and I will leave it to them to make the announcements in their own way. I have placed myself in their hands, and I am out to do all I can to bust the damn thing. That is all I can say."

Milk Strike in Boston.

Boston, Sept. 12.—Hundreds of empty milk bottles remain on back door steps, and many families went without milk for breakfast, yesterday, when this city experienced the first strike of milk wagon drivers. Nearly 200 employes of three of the largest milk distributors of Boston stopped work. They want more wages and new working rules.

WILL BE REDEEMED

Reception to Premier at Victoriaville Augurs Well

SPEAKS AT ACTONVILLE

Victoriaville, Que., Sept. 12.—"I only ask from you the same rights of justice, liberty and equality which you ask for yourselves. I have won before on that basis, and I am going to win again."

With this clarion cry Sir Wilfrid Laurier closed his address at Victoriaville yesterday before an audience of 7,000 people.

Yesterday's meeting was a remarkable one. This is the stronghold of Nationalism, but Sir Wilfrid Laurier carried the war into Africa. Not only did he deliver a message, virile and strong, and one that was full of fight, but he was also all tenderness as he addressed old friends whom he had known as a lad many years ago.

If the cheers of thousands of honest men mean anything it means that Drummond-Arthabaska will be redeemed by the Liberals. It is evident that the constituency is ashamed of its recent vote.

At Actonvale.

Actonvale, Que., Sept. 12.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke here yesterday, a large section of the population being at the station to meet him. After Mr. L. L. Bauthier, the Liberal candidate, had briefly addressed the crowd, Sir Wilfrid spoke from the rear of his car.

The Liberal leader dwelt briefly on the reciprocity and navy questions, concluding his speech with an onslaught on the Nationalists and their leader. "Mr. Bourassa," said Sir Wilfrid; "must be ashamed of the disgraceful campaign of hypocrisy he is conducting. Mr. Bourassa, the autonomist, champion of the pure among the pure, and the ally of the Ontario jingoes, should also be ashamed of the personal attacks his paper, Le Devoir, is making, and of having his organ circulated throughout the province with the funds of the Anti-Reciprocity League.

"The statement has been made, and it has not been denied, but the bullet [illegible] to me that day yet. But on Sept 21, I have no doubt Mr. Bourassa and his allies will be left to their hatred. I am no more a young man, but I am sound of foot and eye, and my heart is young. Why should it not be, since after traveling all over the country I found that the people were still in sympathy with the cause I represent. I am confident the Liberal party will be returned to power with an increased majority."

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will speak here on Tuesday night, Sept. 19. The place of speaking and other details have not as yet been announced.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Thanksgiving Day this year will be October 30.

Mrs. Monk, wife of the French Nationalist leader, is dead.

The Lincoln Avenue Methodist Church at Galt was dedicated yesterday.

Hon. William Harty has retired in Kingston and the Liberals have nominated Mr. J. McD. Mowat as their candidate.

Mr. Pliny Loucks of Flesherton was attacked by a cow, and would probably have been killed had not his son rescued him.

Two thousand English farmers have joined a union, as a protest against working one hundred hours a week, with bad food and low wages.

It is rumored that Cardinal Merry del Val, when revisiting the British Isles shortly, will cross the Atlantic and visit Canada and the United States.

George Mack of Harriston, 84 years of age, lies in a very serious condition as a result of a ladder giving way while he was on it with a load of water.

Twenty-eight of the forty-six rice mills in Louisiana have been merged into the Louisiana State Rice Milling Co., with an authorized capital of $6,000,000.

Lee Hammond, one of Captain Thomas Baldwin's aviators, made the first aeroplane flight ever seen in Ottawa at the Central Canada Exhibition yesterday afternoon.

Fire broke out in the Arlington Hotel Barns at Bridgeburg yesterday morning. The fire started in the upholstering department, among four cutters, all of which were burned to a cinder.

Oxford white flowers basket, lights out on, and a lightning bolt ignited 500 barrels of oil in the British American Oil Works at Toronto, causing a loss of $800 in last night's storm.

The steamer Africana, owned at Sydney, N.S., for contravention of the Canadian fishery regulations, has been released under bonds. The matter will probably be dropped, the others having undertaken not to repeat the offence.

Murder and Suicide.

Calgary, Sept. 12.—At 11 o'clock yesterday morning Emily Gusta, a servant girl employed by G. T. Robinson of this city, was shot and killed by Charles Steadman. Steadman afterwards shot and killed himself. Two bullets were discharged into the girl's forehead [illegible]

ONE NUT CUT OFF.

But Missionaries Are Believed to Be Well Guarded.

Toronto, Sept. 12.—The anxiety felt for the safety of the missionaries in China can not be hidden, although members of the Foreign Mission Board are confident that the protection of the British gunboats is sufficient to insure safety during their flight from Chengtu to Chingking, a journey of 400 miles. In the meantime, telegraphic communications are out of Western Chengtu, and nothing definite from this point, which is in the fighting zone, has been heard.

The following cable answers, received by Mr. Shore of the Foreign Missionary movement, tell the story, while the missionaries are believed to be en route to Chingking from Chengtu surrounded by Government troops.

"Chingking, Sept. 11, 1911.

"Situation quiet, officials and people friendly. Extremely anxious about Chengtu. There is no telegraphic communication with Chengtu or Kiatingfu. There is every probability that Chengtu missionaries left a few days ago, acting under orders from consul. We are now endeavoring to provide against all emergencies.

"M. A. Brillinger."

Canadian Methodist Missionary Representative.

"Shanghai, Sept. 11, 1911.

"Owing to the critical state of Chengtu, foreigners have been ordered to Chingking. Reported on the 7th. Communication is interrupted.

"China Inland Mission."

"New York, Sept. 11, 1911.

"No replies to cables Chengtu for three days. Associated Press states Pekin has had no word Chengtu four days. Anxious.

"T. C. Hunte,

"Methodist Episcopal Church in U.S."

"Boston, Mass., Sept. 11, 1911.

"No word from Chengtu since cablegrams reported to you. Associated Press now reports nothing heard from Chengtu in four days. Believe missionaries are being collected by Government troops in the direction of Yangtse River.

THE BILL FOUND.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—At the criminal sessions of the court of King's bench yesterday, a true bill was found against Arthur Beschey, held on a charge of murder, and true bills against Giuseppi Pesche, Nicholas Patris and Joseph Vallancourt, on charges of attempted murder.

Peschey is the watchman who got into an altercation on the street, fired at three shots finally wounding Emilio Lacelle, one of the men from whom he had been fighting.

Papal Order to Montreal Mayor.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Mayor Guerin was yesterday notified by Archbishop Bruchesi that he (the mayor) had received from His Holiness Pope Pius the title of Knight Commander of the Pontifical Order of St. Gregory the Great.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Carlton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Carlton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle

GOD'S KINGDOM TO TOP ALL OTHERS

Satan Shall be Bound and Divine Justice Will be Executed in the Earth.

Mt. Lake Park, Md., Sept. 10.—The International Bible Students Association has been holding a convention here for more than a week; many able speakers have been heard. Higher Criticism is at a discount amongst these Bible Students. They claim that the internal harmonies of the Bible attest its Divine authenticity. Amongst these earnest students are many who at one time were infidels. They profess greater faith than ever in the Bible as the result of reading Pastor Russell's books, to which many of them were led through his sermons.

Pastor Russell was the principal speaker at the convention to-day. He arrived during the week, and is being entertained some distance from the Park, at the Weber mansion. Hundreds visit him every evening. Pastor Russell spoke twice to-day in the large Auditorium. He delivered one of his discourses from the text, "In the last days the Mountain of the Lord's House shall be established in the top of the mountains, . . . and all people shall flow unto it" (Isaiah ii, 2). He said in part:

Our text tells of great events in the "last days." It would be a mistake, however, to suppose that these words imply the end of time or the end of the world, in the ordinary senses. The Bible declares that "the earth abideth forever," and it tells of the wonderful blessings of Restitution, when the Lord's footstool shall blossom as the rose—Paradise restored. All this is to come in the "last days."

The Jews understood that the seven days of the week, six of labor and the seventh of rest, were typical of seven greater days of a thousand years each. In harmony with this thought, some of them tell us that we are living in the Friday night of the world's history—which means that the great Sabbath of Rest is about to begin—the thousand years of Messiah's reign (the Jewish day beginning in the evening).

The New Testament writers seem to have had the same thought. Thus our Lord declared, "My Word shall judge you in the Last Day." Similarly, Martha declared her faith in the resurrection of her brother, saying, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the Last Day" — the Millennial Day, the Day of Christ—the great Day which will witness the overthrow of sin and death and the uplifting of humanity. Of that great Day we read, "In His Day shall the righteous flourish, and evil-doers shall be cut off." This Seventh Day is frequently spoken of as "that Day," as indicating the time when Divine power will no longer permit the reign of sin amongst men, but Messiah's Kingdom will actively intervene. The overthrow of Satan, sin and all unrighteousness will then take place. It is during this Day that Messiah will put down all things opposed to righteousness: "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."

Throughout that glorious Day the resurrection process will be in operation; mankind will be rising out of its meanness, sin, sickness and death, back to all that was lost in Eden and redeemed by way of the Cross. In the end of these days, or "after these days," of the reign of sin, God promises to make a New Covenant with the House of Israel and with the House of Judah, through which they shall be uplifted; and the blessing will flow from them to all nations (Jeremiah xxxi, 31.) It will be after these days also that "God will pour out His Spirit upon all flesh," as says the Prophet Joel (Joel ii, 28).

Our text is to be considered from this standpoint. In the end of these days, in the promised Day of Messiah, the Mountain of the Lord's House shall be established, fixed, in the very top of the mountains—above all other kingdoms. This is in full accord with the entire tenor of the Scriptures. A mountain symbolizes a kingdom; and as the Prophet declares, God's Kingdom will be the highest Mountain; it will be over the top of all other kingdoms. It will be established or fixed permanently above all others.

Messiah, the great King, with His Elect Bride and associate with Him, will exercise His Divine power, Satan shall be bound for a thousand years, [illegible] will no longer be permitted

From the invisible plane of glory and majesty. Justice will be executed in the earth; every good word, thought and deed will be rewarded, and every evil thought, word and deed will be punished—swiftly—surely. Perhaps paralysis of the tongue will be the means by which evil speaking, false words and deceptions will be punished. Perhaps paralysis of the arm or finger will be the means employed to stop the crime. Certain it is that "Nothing shall hurt or destroy in all God's Holy Kingdom" thus established.

How speedily the world will then learn righteousness! Now it doubts the very existence of God, and declares that if He exists He pays little or no heed to wrong-doers. "Now the wicked flourish; yea, they that tempt God are even exalted," as the Scriptures declare. But the New Day will change all this. Messiah "will lay righteousness to the line and justice to the plummet, and the hail (Truth) shall sweep away the refuge of lies, misrepresentations, misunderstandings" (Isaiah xxvii, 17, 18). "The blind shall see out of obscurity, and the deaf ears shall be unstopped"; "The knowledge of the glory of the Lord shall fill the whole earth," until "None shall need say to his neighbor, 'Know the Lord,' for all shall know Him."

The present tendency is to gravitate downward, but our text tells of a reversal of this order—all nations shall then flow or gravitate upward—toward the righteous Kingdom of Messiah: "Many people shall say, 'Let us go up'." The Kingdom, in its original establishment, will be Israelitish—Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the Prophets will be made Princes in all the earth (Psalm xlv, 16).

The Jews, naturally, will rally to their standard and begin to recognize the fulfilment of the prophecies of old. Other nationalities will begin slowly to realise the import of the great, New Jewish Dispensation. Their ideas and ideals will be antagonistic for a time. Gradually they will see the Restitution blessings coming to Israel, in harmony with the Divine arrangements of the Kingdom. Then, as our context declares, "Many people will say, 'Come, let us go up to the Mountain of the Lord, to the House of the God of Jacob; He will teach us (as well as the Jews) His ways and we (as well as they) will learn to walk in His paths'."

Both Spiritual and Natural Israel are in the picture. Mt. Zion is the higher, the Spiritual Jerusalem; the lower, the earthly. The Law shall go forth from Mt. Zion (Spiritual Zion, the Messiah—Head and Body—Bridegroom and Bride)—while the Word of the Lord (the directing and instructing) will go forth from Jerusalem (the Patriarchal Princes, who will represent the Kingdom).

The context tells us that the new King, Messiah, will judge amongst the nations—amongst all the peoples. It will be a general judgment first, an individual one subsequently. The national judgments will mean calamities upon the nations. The demonstrations of the great dreadnoughts and great armies will prove that they are not to be the peacemakers of earth. On the contrary, those trusting in these devices will suffer most severely. All must learn the lesson that Messiah's Kingdom comes not by human might nor power, but is the Lord's institution, in His own appointed time.

The lesson will be so thoroughly learned in that Day of Trouble that war will forever cease. The Prophet David tells us that the mighty army of the Lord, through Messiah's Kingdom, will work havoc with present institutions. Then "He will make wars to cease unto the ends of the earth." Our context tells us that thereafter "They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Even Boys' Brigades, etc., thereafter will be at a discount. Human energy and activity will find better employment in conquering self, sin-sickness and death.

The description here given by the Prophet Isaiah of the Day with which this Gospel Age will end, the great Day when Messiah's Kingdom begins, agrees very closely with a description of the same given in the book of Revelation. Isaiah tells us that idolatry to gold and silver shall be brought to an end, and the great trouble of that Day will cause many to hide themselves in the rocks, for fear of the Lord and for the glory of His Majesty (Isaiah ii, 10, 11). "The lofty looks of man shall be humbled, and their haughtiness shall be bowed down and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that Day" (vs. 9-11).

The idols He shall utterly abolish, and those who worship them "shall go into the rocks and into the caves of the earth, for fear of the Lord and for the glory of His Majesty, when He ariseth to shake terribly the earth" (vs. 18-21).

The same picture is set before us in Revelation xi, 15-17. Here the great ones of earth are represented as calling upon the mountains to fall on them and to hide them from the presence of the Lord. The thought is to fall over us, hide us, protect us. The Prophet Malachi asks, "Who shall abide in the great Day of the Lord?" "Who shall be able to stand?"

Let us construct a picture before our minds. Let us suppose the vast oceans, constituting three-fourths of the earth's surface, to represent the masses of mankind unsettled, unattached, without property, with little hope or prospect, with illimitable longings, but no power to satisfy them—"without God and without hope in the world." Let us consider the land behind and before us to represent society, fixed, established, desirous of peace, having something which it does not wish to lose, which it does not wish the "sea" class to wash away.

As in the sea we find shallows and mighty depths, so on the land we find low places, higher places and mountain peaks, and each of these represents a certain degree of prosperity or adversity. The mountain heights would represent the princes of society, merchant princes, bankers, as well as political powers. As from time immemorial there has been a conflict between the land and the sea, the latter, in storms, violently attacking the former and seeking to capture it, so between the two classes here represented—the "sea" class, helpless and without property, is envious of the "earth" class, those who, under the present order, seize and possess the chief blessings.

The mountains, the rocks of society (social institutions, lodges, financial institutions, capitalists, combinations, national treaties, etc.), will all fail in that great Day of trial and judging and testing; the shaking and overthrow of every human institution is in full accord with the Divine requirements of Justice, Righteousness.

My dear hearers, where is your treasure? Where is your security? This long-foretold Day of the Lord is nigh. The great time of Trouble impends, a time "such as was not since there was a nation" (Daniel xii, 1). If our treasures are upon the earth and our confidence rests in human organizations, the time is near when we may be crawling into these holes, these social and financial protective arrangement, calling upon them to cover us, protect us, but there will be no protection possible. The Apostle declares respecting that Day that everything that can be shaken will be shaken—everything that is not in full alignment with the Divine standards will go down. In the language of the Scripture, we should set our affections on things above, not on earthly things. The Master counsels further, "Lay up for yourselves treasure in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal."

If we have been careless in this matter in the past, it is high time for us to invest what little we have of time, influence, talent and money in the service of the King of kings—in laying up treasure in heaven, in promoting the interests of the great Kingdom wherein we trust, and of which we hope soon to be members, sharers with our dear Redeemer.

We are not counseling foolishness—the throwing away of money, of time and influence. On the contrary, we counsel the spirit of a sound mind, that every hour, every talent, every penny be used, not as our own, but as the Lord's; not according to our selfish desires, but according to the Divine will, so far as we are able to understand it; that we may glorify God in our bodies and spirits which are His.

Every talent we possess is that much of our stewardship, of which we must shortly give account. The Lord's servants, the consecrated, Spirit-Begotten, will be called to account before that great Day of trouble upon the world. Jesus said, "Watch ye, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all those things coming upon the earth, and to stand before the Son of Man." Our watching is in respect to our talents, our faithfulness in their use.

In one of His parables the Lord tells us that on His return to establish His Kingdom, before beginning to deal with the world at all, He will deal with His servants. The inquiry will be, How have we used the pounds and talents given to us by our Master? All those who use their opportunities faithfully will be accounted worthy of a share in the Kingdom, as illustrated in the parable, "Enter ye into the joys of your Lord"; "You have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things"; "Have dominion over two cities," "five cities," etc.

There will, indeed, be some of God's people who will pass through the trouble with the world. Those who are too fearful of the weight of the cross will bury their talent in the earth. They will fail to have their portion with the Lord and His saintly few in the Kingdom and, instead, will have their portion with the hypocrites, in the great trouble of that Day.

It is impossible for us, or for any one, to avert the great catastrophe which is surely bearing down upon the world. The Lord's people are to have nothing whatever to do with bringing about the great catastrophe, any more than had the Prophets, whose words we are using. It is for us to make our own "calling and election sure," and as far as possible to send out the Divine Message in no uncertain tones to all of God's people, that each and all may be found faithful in the use of their pounds and talents—retrieving each possible loss of opportunities, or, as the Apostle says, "Redeeming the time, because the days are evil" and unfavorable.

Our day witnesses the world gone pleasure-mad — "Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." The spirit of the world surrounds us, threatens to engulf us and destroy our spirituality. There never was a greater need than now for the soldiers of the cross to arise and "put on the whole armor of God," to "watch and pray," and fight a good fight against their own weaknesses and against the darts and snares of the Adversary.

Many dear Christians realise that we are living in strange times, but do not realise that we are in the transition period between the reign of sin, sickness and death, and the reign of Messiah's Kingdom of righteousness and light. Let each one whose eyes of understanding have opened to a better appreciation of God's great Book be on the alert to "show forth the praises of Him who hath called us out of darkness into His marvelous light."

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

Branch Line of Railway from Guysborough to Sunny Brae Through Country Harbour Crossroads with an Extension from Country Harbour Crossroads to Deep Water of Country Harbour.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Guysborough-Country Harbour Line," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock on Friday, September the 15th, 1911, for Section No. 1 of the above line of railway, comprising that portion extending from Guysborough to Country Harbour Crossroads and from the latter point to Deep Water Country Harbour.

Plans, profiles, specification and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on and after the 15th instant at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway, Moncton; and at the office of the Board of Trade of Halifax. Forms of tender may be procured from the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals or from the Chief Engineer of the Intercolonial Railway.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $100,000 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JOHNS,
Secretary.

Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, August 12th, 1911.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Breakwater and Dredging at Port Stanley, Ont.," will be received until 4.00 P.M., on Wednesday, September 13, 1911, for the construction of a Breakwater and Dredging at Port Stanley, Elgin County, Ont.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, London, Ont.; J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Port Stanley, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the contract. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
E. C. DESBROOKERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 16, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dredging Port William, Ont.," will be received until 4 P.M. Wednesday, September 13, 1911, for dredging required at Port William, Ont.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Only dredges can be employed which are registered in Canada at the time of the filing of tenders. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
E. C. DESBROOKERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,

ANTI-LIQUOR CRUSADE STIRS UP THE "TRADE"

Trouble Started When One of the Speakers at the Convention in Germany Accused the Press

The rapid progress of the anti-alcohol crusade in Germany has created some confusion among the members of the "trade," and their endeavors to check the movement culminated in some exciting scenes during the recent anti-Alcoholic Congress organized by German total abstainers at the Hygienic Exhibition at Dresden. The brewers, distillers, hotel-keepers and restaurateurs, while the congress was proceeding, arranged a series of opposition meetings of "friends of alcohol," at which speakers gave addresses on the benefits accruing from the absorption of wines, spirits liqueurs and beer As the meetings were public, numbers of fervent anti alcoholic advocates attended, and lively incidents resulted when they were refused permission to enter into open discussion, scenes amounting almost to riots occurring on several occasions. The "friends of alcohol" obtained their revenge indirectly, for a leading Good Templar, Judge Popert, of Hamburg, in addressing a meeting of the congress, made the assertion thatt he press of Germany was unfairly influenced against abstainers and in favor of the manufacturers of alcohol, owing to the large sums spent by brewers and distillers for advertising in its columns. This charge has aroused the indignation of the newspapers throughout Germany, which, while declaring themselves in favor of moderation, argue that every man is a law unto himself in this respect, and accuse the total abstainers of immoderation in their campaign and with attempting to "terrorize" the public into accepting their point of view.

IS VENICE FALLING?

The Deepening of a Canal Has Stirred Many Foundations

M. Paul Souday, a writer in the Eclair, gives the alarm: "Venice is dying." He tells a tale which must harrow every lover of art. The Doge's Palace shows ominous cracks, the foundations of St Mark's have in several places sunk in, and fissures have appeared in the Bridge of the Rialto. Will all the glories of Venice crumble? It is feared that water has filtered in through the foundations of the Piazza and as far as the Rialto. The fall of the Doge's Palace and St. Mark's would be the end of Venice. M. Souday seems to think that all this is due to a recent and fatal ambition of the modern Venice to become once more a great seaport. The deepening of the Canal Grande has stirred the foundations of the buildings on its banks, and if the alarm be warranted Venice will indeed have sealed her own doom. The fall of the Campanile is ascribed to the same cause which is now threatening the palace and the cathedral. It will not serve Venice much to have a port in which deep draught vessels can enter if the two buildings which make her a unique city in the world collapse. Venice complains that she is a dead city from the business point of view. Her condition will be still worse if the Doge's Palace and St. Mark's crumble through her fault; and the fault would be one for which she would not easily be forgiven.

Stack of Old Horseshoes

A unique sight is to be seen at Upper Studley, near Trowbrige, where Mr. James Jennings, the well-known steam roundabouts proprietor, has a huge stack of old horse-shoes which he has collected during the past two years. It stands 17 feet high, is 10 feet through, weighs about 180 tons, and could not be purchased for $2,500 The shoe stack attracts great attention, particularly from touring motorists, who frequently stop to examine the curious pile.

BRITISH CAPITAL

Coming to Canada in Ever-increasing Volumes

For the last six or seven years British capital has been flowing into Canada in an ever-increasing volume. The Monetary Times of recent date contained a table which serves to illustrate this fact. In 1905 the total amount of British money invested in Canadian industrial light and power enterprises was $5,000,000; in 1910 this form of investment was exactly trebled. This of itself would be a remarkable showing, but it is overshadowed by the fact that for the first four months of 1911 British investment in Canada in these three lines alone amounted to $12,000,000. The grand total of British capital invested in these activities during the period named is $65,000,000. From all appearances, Great Britain is only beginning to exhibit its liking for and trust in Canadian enterprises. Of course, British investments in Canadian railroads have been enormous for years, but it is not long since ordinary undertakings in the Dominion attracted the attention of capitalists in the Mother Country. Aside from ordinary industrial investment during the present year, dry docks on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts will employ $16,000,000 of British capital. Moreover, it is expected that $5,000,000 will be drawn from the same source for the purpose of developing the mineral oil industry in New Brunswick, while negotiations are on foot that may call for another $1,000,000 for the establishment of a great white-wear factory in the same province.

MARRIED IN POLICE COURT

Peculiar Place a Russian Couple Chose for a Marriage

"We want to get married."

With this salutation Alexander Lubinsky, a Greek Catholic, aged twenty-nine, and Edda Preedi, a Protestant widow of twenty-seven years, both natives of Libau, Russia, appeared before Mr. Jacob Cohen, J.P., in his office, Toronto. They were lavishly attired. But the Jewish Magistrate did not feel equal to such a comprehensive task and he advised that the happy couple secure the services of Rev. J. D. Morrow. The latter consented and the ceremony was arranged. When "the athletic preacher" arrived on the scene he found the future "man and wife" shyly standing in a secluded corner of the Police Court. It was with difficulty that he gained the necessary information preliminary to the ceremony as neither of the participants could speak English. A strange feature of their marriage occurred when Lubinsky produced two rings and insisted on wearing one himself. He submitted to the advice of Mr. Cohen, however, and placed them both on the bride. After the benediction Lubinsky drew from a prosperous-looking wad two bills—a green one, which he gave to Mr. Morrow, and a two-dollar bill, that went into the hands of Mr. Cohen. The Magistrate objected to receiving a fee, and so by mutual consent the $2 was given to the preacher. Lubinsky muttered something which Mr. Cohen interpreted as, "It will buy bricks for his church." Mr. Morrow then assured them that Lubinsky's subscription would be duly registered.

A LONG WAIT

It is Mr. Arnold Daly, the famous American actor who recently made such a hit in "Arms and the Man" at the Criterion, who tells this story. He attended a dinner some time ago at which a lady who had risen from obscurity to fame on the stage told of how, one morning when unknown, she had called at Mr. Frohman's office in New York. She approached a particularly lordly office-boy and humbly inquired if Mr. Frohman were in. "He's not in," replied the boy, putting his feet on the desk. "Then I'll wait," she said, and seated herself in a chair. After an hour's wait she became weary, and ventured to make a second attack on the office-boy. "Will he be in soon?" she inquired. "I don't know," was the reply. "Will he be in to-day?" she persisted. "Not likely. He's in Europe!" At this point Mr. Daly sat up and took notice. "Were you that girl?" he asked. "Indeed, yes. Why?" Said Mr. Daly, "I was the office-boy."

LOVE SEEKS ASSURANCE

V. J. Warren, Calgary.

Too well, dear heart, too well you answer me!
Why do I ask to have you put in words
That which no human language can express!
Speech of the gods alone can compass that,
Which lifts us to the gods and lets us taste
Of heaven's bliss.

Ah, yes! I know what next you would reply.
Have I not read it in your sad, soft eyes—
Those heavenly windows of an angel's soul?
Have I not felt it in your warm caress,
Your clinging arms and sweet, red lips?
Do I not know?

Ah, yes!—even as the morning knows the sun!
The dew-kissed rosebud feels the same as I.
And shares a common secret with the world.
I know, and yet, ah yet, dear heart,
My ears are deaf, until I hear you say,
"I love you."

A "FAITHFUL HENCHMAN"

Romantic to a degree has been the career of Mr. Jesse Collings, upon whom Birmingham has decided to confer the honorary freedom of that city. He was born in a Devonshire cottage, and knew what it was to struggle on the pitiful wages of an agricultural laborer before he made his mark. Nobody is so ready as he to tell how he went to Birmingham with a solitary five-pound note in his pocket and started to carve out fame and fortune as a junior clerk in a firm of hardware merchants. Then he interested himself in social reforms and politics, and made the acquaintance of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, whose "faithful henchman," to quote the political description, he has been for many past years.

BRANDER MATTHEWS INTERVIEWS ANDREW CARNEGIE

WHO TELLS OF THE HATRED BEHIND HIS $185,000,000 GIFTS.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

ONE great and undying hatred of Andrew Carnegie's life underlies all of the ironmaster's gifts of $185,000,000 or more to public purposes. It is a hatred far deeper rooted than his oft expressed dislike of dying rich; it is a hatred bred by his very commercial success—a hatred fostered and maintained with all the Scotch stubbornness and singleness of purpose he possesses. And because nothing will abate this hatred except the complete wiping out of its cause Mr. Carnegie is devoting every dollar he gives and the major time and energy of his later years to a worldwide effort to get the best out of life for mankind.

Cathedral libraries, church organs, peace funds, peace societies, hero funds, college endowments and the founding of institutions, irrespective of the amounts involved, are but bits of machinery each turning some cog or wheel which surely helps to make the mighty theme his mind has conceived.

This one consuming hatred of Mr. Carnegie's otherwise equable life, underlying all his valued gifts, is inspired by and directed against war. He wants to bring about the time when the "profession of arms will be a disgrace." He is bitterly opposed to people shooting or stabbing or clubbing one another whether in a city crime wave or with scientific and impersonal deliberation as members of opposing armies. He thinks that saving human life is an economy and that taking it is a wasteful extravagance.

That an underlying unity of purpose influences all his gifts Mr. Carnegie himself admitted in a recent interview with Professor Brander Matthews, the critic and member of the Simplified Spelling Board. Mr. Matthews had called at Mr. Carnegie's residence to discuss certain matters connected with the simplified spelling movement. After discussing the progress the shortened spelling is making among business men and advertisers, as the result of sending out hundreds of thousands of pamphlets yearly from the headquarters, No. 1 Madison avenue, New York, he said:—

"Mr. Scott asked me the other day if there was any connecting link of purpose in your varied gifts. He thought he could detect an inter-relationship among some of them, but confessed that he was puzzled to see what giving pipe organs to churches and simplified spelling had to do with each other. Is there any such unity of design in your gifts? Of course, in the case of simplified spelling I can see that if we made writing English easier for foreigners it will naturally help the peace propaganda."

Mr. Carnegie laughed and pointed to a motto carved on the wall of his den:—

"All is well since all grows better."

"As to the case of the church organs," began Mr. Carnegie, with a half humorous twinkle, "your friend might have remembered that 'music hath charm to soothe the savage breast.' And also that there are few things better calculated to make a child want to throw such a textbook and jump on it in wrath than our illogical English spelling. But while my gifts of church organs do have influence for peace, it was prompted by my own deep love for good music and my belief in its uplifting power. Music is certainly a lingua franca among the civilized nations, a language in which the composers of one nation can tell the story of national character and ideals to the musicians of all others. To give the people of one country an opportunity to enjoy the music of another is to establish a certain community of interest, and thus to foster a sympathy begotten of clearer mutual understanding.

"Real understanding is the basis of peaceful relations, whether between individuals or nations. Bickerings, controversies, battles are results of race prejudice and of a failure to understand other peoples. Who can say that the great musicians have not given us a fairer understanding of their nations and their national characteristics? Therefore, I am inclined to believe that these church organs will increase the knowledge of those who hear them—and greater intelligence is another factor making for peace—and by creating a regard for other nations accomplish something for the peace movement.

A Beggar Breeding System.

"Moreover, this gift of organs—like my gifts directly to peace and to education which makes for peace—does not violate any principle of not wishing to do anything entirely by myself. I want to help others to help themselves. Frequently one can do more harm by distributing alms than in any other way. Such a system breeds beggars. I now only give one-half the cost, the congregations first provide the other. The man who carelessly hands a dime to a beggar, largely to relieve his own feelings, is guilty of a serious offence—he encourages beggary. Many beggars in reality make more a day than a toiling laborer. I never give a cent to a beggar, nor do I help people of whose record I am ignorant; this at least is one of my really good actions."

"A form of negative virtue?" suggested Mr. Matthews.

"Exactly," continued Mr. Carnegie. "The organs merely help people to help themselves; put within their reach good music just as Major Anderson put within my reach the books which have so importantly affected my personal career."

"You agree with me then that simplified spelling has its peace bearing?" Mr. Matthews asked.

"I may say that it was the attempt to pacify the Spanish speaking natives in the Philippines that brought the necessity of simplifying English most strongly home to us," was the reply. "Recently the teachers who were sent to the island to teach English wrote Dr. Scott, secretary of the Simplified Spelling Board, asking whether he could not send his publications to them to help overcome the torments of English orthography. Very early these teachers found that while it was not so difficult to teach these Spanish speaking people to speak English our illogical and non-phonetic spelling seriously retarded the spread of the language.

"The foreign children are finding such spelling as 'though,' 'plough,' 'enough,' 'cough,' 'slough,' 'though,' 'hiccough,' even more troublesome than do our own American children. Teachers estimate that such spellings actually waste two years of our own children's education in mere memorizing. They say our children, in actual education, are two years behind the little German scholars who have a more logical spelling. It occurred to me that if it delays our own children two years our complicated spelling must keep back Spanish speaking adults and children even longer from a reading knowledge of our own language, which alone could put them into real understanding of our government, traditions and national characteristics. Here a logical spelling would have directly hastened peace, saved years of total misunderstanding or partial comprehension of our aims. Similarly Dr. Scott received many letters of like tenor from the Transvaal, where even the Dutch language, because its spelling had been simplified, was easier to learn and apparently was going ahead of English."

"In other words," said Mr. Matthews, "you believe that a reading knowledge of a language is necessary to a really thorough knowledge of that nation's institutions and people—that a translation rarely exactly reproduces the spirit of the original. And, as you have said, understanding is the basis of peaceful living."

"This is true; knowledge is a great factor of peace," the ironmaster resumed. "It is not your educated, fully informed man who ..... s part in broils and riots. The ignorant or partially ignorant man, who acts either on false information or blindly without any information at all, is the one who is always quarrelling. And if the Spanish speaking peoples in the Philippines were delayed in their understanding of us by our spelling, so also, to a greater or less degree, are all other people of other tongues—whether Latin, German, Russian or Japanese. Especially is our spelling a great handicap to the foreigners who seek our citizenship.

"Some day, I believe, English is destined to become the world language, the vehicle of understanding among nations. But its rise to this position, as well as its present international usefulness, is obviously hindered by the absurd spelling, which proves such an obstacle to our own children, even those of native born parents. No matter how highly trained a man's reasoning power may be, he cannot learn to spell English by analogy. Our spelling is arbitrary and not based on reason. Combinations of the same letters represent widely different sounds.

Difficulties of English.

"Think of the saving in time and effort if our children could learn the sounds of the letters, and, using these sounds as a basis, instantly pronounce any word when written or spell any word when pronounced.

"Think how much more quickly the foreigner would find our literature open to him, be able to get at first hand a knowledge of the real purpose of our government, a real understanding of our people.

"The difficulty of learning English is explained as being due to one obstacle. We no longer pronounce our words as they are spelled. The symbols which formerly represented the sounds of these words now no longer represent the new pronunciation. Take Scotland, for example. My forefathers said 'thocht,' and 'bocht,' 'rocht,' 'focht,' &c., and they pronounced every word as it was spelled. If they were living now they would know better than to use a spelling which no longer represents pronunciation. I have made several converts by asking them to write the word 'thought,' and then asked them why they should be such fools as to insert 'gh' in the spelling. In old times we spelled spite 'spighte' and bright 'brighta.' From spite we have erased the 'gh,' and the 'e' from bright, only the 'e.' Why not also the 'gh,' making 'spite' and 'brite?'

"The Carnegie Institution now uses many simplified spellings. The Smithsonian has extended its use, and the Modern Language Association and the National Education Association have indorsed it. There is one personal instance in connection with the Carnegie Institution for Research, Washington, which gave me great pleasure. There was a discussion as to whether this progressive organization should not move forward in the matter of spelling. Three of the directors were disinclined to take the step, one the celebrated Dr. Welch. The president, who favored the matter, stated the case, whereupon Dr. Welch said:—'Oh, I admit you have all the arguments, but we have all the prejudices.' Think of men of Dr. Welch's standing adhering to his prejudices!

"Knowledge, education, travel—actual travel if possible, but otherwise travel through books—are great encouragers of peace. It is hardly possible to quarrel with a person or nation when you understand the good traits which offset those we do not like. We hate only those whom we do not know. And we can't know people without liking them better. We soon discover the feeling of brotherhood growing as we come to understand others. I know that on my travels, when I saw that every nation had its good characteristics and its good men laboring for others, I felt a closer bond. And in reading of their religions I found how true it is that the Heavenly Father has not restricted the revelations of His power to one branch of his children, but has given revelations to each."

"After that statement it is hardly necessary to show the peace application of your libraries," said Mr. Matthews.

"I trust that every library is promoting better international understanding, aiding every reader to improve his own fund of knowledge, helping him to be more competent for his special task, filling his hours of recreation with deeper pleasure," was the rejoinder. "They open to him information about his own country and all other countries, independently and in their basic relationships; they teach him the interdependence of the nations. I was very much pleased to learn that in many of these libraries they have what is called the 'story hour' for little children. Some of the librarians in the so-called foreign quarters of New York, instead of telling children the usual fairy stories or tales of American history and literature, hit upon the idea of telling these children of foreign parents stories about their parents' native lands—stories designed to emphasize the good points and to explain the old folks' affectionate regard for their fatherland.

"These stories necessarily make these little new Americans think more kindly of these foreign lands, and the tales, when repeated at home, make a closer link between countries across the sea and our own Republic. They naturally stimulate requests for books about other lands and other peoples. I do not believe that a certain boy of whom I heard had been an attendant at these story hours. This boy was seen crying bitterly. His young companion asked what was the trouble.

"'Me father gave me a licking,' the boy replied.

"'Aw, dat's nothin'. Me fadder licks me an' yells while he's lickin' me to make him stop quicker, but I don't go yellin' around the street like a baby eh?'

"'Dat's all right; neither would I. But just think of being licked by a Dutchman.'

"Many years after I began distributing libraries I found it was an inherited activity. I learned that my father was one of the five loom weavers who had assembled some books and had formed the nucleus of the first Mechanics' Library, of Dumfermline, Scotland. This library has moved seven times; the first time the weavers moved the books in their aprons. Now I have given this library a permanent home, and it will always be a source of pride that my father was one of the first to form a library in my native town and that my mother laid the foundation stone of the last one.

"My own determination to found libraries dated back to my early youth, after Major Anderson, of Allegheny, Pa., had opened the use of his private library of four hundred books to the use of boys and young men. I said when I had money (not if, for I was sure I would make money) the first use I would make of it would be to establish libraries. In passing, I might say that probably the first time any word of mine appeared in a newspaper was a request I wrote to a local paper to have Major Anderson extend the privilege of his library to the class of employed boys to which I belonged.

Germ of His Libraries.

"I had no money to get books; I was making $1.25 a week and it was all needed. Major Anderson, of Allegheny, opened the use of his books to working boys. Here we could read books and exchange them. There is now a monument erected to him in Allegheny. When I wanted to use the books the question arose as to whether I was a 'working boy,' for I was then in a telegraph office. I wrote an appeal to the Pittsburg Dispatch that I be granted this privilege, and I resolved that whenever I had surplus money the first use I would make of it would be to establish public libraries.

"I have never regretted my choice, and if I had to start again I would follow the same course. My plan has been to offer towns the means to build libraries provided they would maintain them. I did not wish to do everything, and the money they expend conducting the libraries is often more than the interest upon my gifts. This gives every citizen in the town a real ownership in the library and does not lead to civic pauperization. Moreover, the library does nothing for nothing. The visitor to get benefit must improve himself. One of my greatest satisfactions in the matter of libraries is the truckloads of letters I receive from parents who report that a great change has come over their children now that access to books had been given them.

"Those who use these libraries will get a clearer realization of the fact that all peoples are connected in a greater or less degree of brotherhood. Moreover, all education tends directly to the elevation of humanity. We know now that man was not created with an instinct for his own degradation and fall. His development was from the lower orders and he is endowed with an instinct for ascension. 'All is well since all grows better,' and I see no limit to the progress of humanity. Man was at his lowest stage when he killed and ate his fellow men."

Asked which of his funds gave him the greatest pleasure, Mr. Carnegie replied:—"In one sense the hero fund; that is my pet. No one suggested it. Other things that I have helped to extend may have existed in other forms, but I think the idea of honoring soldiers of peace and civilization—of providing funds for them if disabled and caring for their widows and families—is new. There are fewer greater weapons for peace than the encouraging of men to save or serve their fellows instead of taking their lives in battle. The average man will tell you that war develops heroic qualities. But to my mind peace and the saving of life are a far more effective developer of genuine heroic traits.

"The peace funds, aside from any monetary or other reward they confer, signalize brave deeds done in the quiet domain of everyday life, accomplished without the excitement of waving flags or martial music. They are not done in a daredevil moment; they are the result of natural and innate bravery, an expression of the highest humanity and absence of thought of self. To bring these to light is to spread the idea that one does not need to wait until bullets fly to be brave. They are an encouragement of a bravery possible to some degree to all of us—the bravery of everyday existence. Besides, the heroes in this case are not paid hirelings like soldiers, pledged to kill their fellows by orders—sad, miserable work indeed.

"The first of these hero funds was for the North American Continent—the United States, Canada, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland—awarded in each country on the same terms.

"The second hero fund, established for Great Britain and Ireland, is managed by the Commissioners in Dunfermline, my native town, and is especially successful. The purpose of the commission was to prove 'what the best men of a city can do with money to bring into the lives of toilers more of the sweetness of life.' The commission is successful beyond expectation.

"The third fund went to France, the fourth to Germany. Of six others which I have offered, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland have all been graciously accepted, the Emperor of Germany and the Queen of Holland becoming sponsors."

"Does not the fact that an American has established these hero funds in many foreign countries establish in itself an element of international friendship and conciliation?" Mr. Mathews asked.

"Possibly," was the reply, "but their direct purpose is to encourage people to live peaceful lives and to see the real dramatic quality of everyday life, which occasionally gives opportunity for display of what the world cannot fail to realise as moral heroism. Everyday life means a development of industry and commerce—deeds done in furtherance of both. Industry is as great a foe to war as war is of industry."

Education and Peace.

"I suppose that the retirement fund for college professors, the Carnegie Institution at Washington, the Carnegie Institution at Pittsburg, your endowments of colleges, &c., further peace directly by contributing to education," said Mr. Matthews.

"All education bears directly on peace, and scientific discovery benefits not one nation, but the world at large," Mr. Carnegie explained. "The scientist, the college professor, the investigator, whatever his national citizenship, is also a citizen of the Republic of Facts. He works, not for one community of people, but for all people. And the contributions of one nation to the well being and happiness of peoples of other nations must have a bearing on the feeling of brotherhood. Scientific discoveries are international introductions. My giving of a building to the engineering societies of New York, while a direct appreciation of their service to peace and civilization, also provides a place where men from all parts of the world can meet, learn to like each other and carry the influence of that common esteem to all portions of the globe. Wherever a bridge is built or a canal constructed, a railroad laid, a river spanned, the knowledge and experience of all nations must come together in a monument of peaceful occupation.

"The pension fund to the steel workers, a gift of gratitude and recollection, to be sure—is nevertheless, an influence which will keep men in peaceful occupation, contributing to, rather than lessening, the world's commerce."

"In other words, Mr. Carnegie, you feel that organs, libraries, hero funds, simplified spelling, educational endowments, are hastening the day of a complete understanding between nations, and so a day of ultimate peace?"

"Indirectly and imperceptibly, perhaps, but quite as surely as my gifts to The Hague, the Bureau of American Republics and the Peace Fund," he replied. "Peace is a matter of intelligence and education. Everything which furthers the universality of education and makes for better understanding between nations brings nearer the day when the profession of arms will be a disgrace.

"We of the English speaking race are about to banish war from our wide boundaries as criminal. This example will soon be followed by other nations, and this, the foulest fiend ever loosed from hell, no longer invalidates our claim to civilization."

KING'S CREAM HORSES

Interesting Facts About the Famous Hanover Creams

Of all the King's horses that find a home at the Royal Mews at Buckingham Palace, the most interesting, perhaps, are the "Hanoverian creams."

The first creams to come to England were brought from Hanover by King George I., and the strain has remained pure and unbroken ever since. The beauty of the creams lies in their magnificent manes and tails, otherwise they are thick-set and sturdy-looking creatures. In Hanover these horses were used as draught horses, but these English descendants of theirs are very pampered creatures.

Every day they are exercised on the soft tan of the Royal riding-school, but except on State occasions they have no real work to do.

There are eleven cream-colored horses at the Royal Mews.

Their training begins when they are four years old, and about a year after that they are ready to be harnessed to the State coach. Their coats are polished till they shine like satin, and their manes and tails are carefully brushed and braided with blue ribbon.

The trappings of the creams are a mass of crimson Russia leather and brass, and weigh 126 pounds to each horse; and it takes two grooms to lift each set of harness and set it upon their backs.

Stops Itching Heals the Skin

And Cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and All Skin Diseases

These Results You Can Be Sure of When You Use

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Quick and certain are the effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Itching is stopped almost as soon as it is applied. The sores are cleaned out, morbid growth is arrested, and the healing process is soon set in action.

Compare these results with the tediousness and uncertainty of internal treatment for itching skin disease. By all means look after the health of the blood and the system generally, but get rid of the annoying and torturing skin ailment at once by using Dr Chase's Ointment.

The reputation of Dr. Chase's Ointment has been made by its marvellous success in the cure of eczema and piles. But it is just as effective in the cure of old sores and wounds which have defied ordinary treatments and been given up by doctors.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is prized by mothers as a treatment for the skin troubles of babies, such as chafing, skin irritation, scald head and baby eczema. Its soothing influence stops the itching, and it prevents the development of eczema from these lesser skin troubles.

Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine, Sask., writes that Dr. Chase's Ointment cured her boy of eczema when his head was a mass of scabs, and he suffered untold agony from the itching. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE SQUIRREL'S CUNNING

Storing Its Winter Supply—Why It is a Game Bird Guard

Although the common red squirrel is one of the liveliest and most attractive of our wild creatures, a knowledge of its habits is more casual than intimate.

The past winter gave forest lovers an opportunity for studying squirrels to an extent seldom possible, as the mildness of the weather made neither for long nor deep hibernation. I was surprised at the number and variety of places where the little animal had stored its winter hoards. The smallness of these, too, was noteworthy, as they seldom contained more than a handful of foodstuff.

The larders were in hollow trees, old birds' nests, but most often in the ground a little below the surface, and although many of the hoards were at the foot of trees, the favorite place was in a field bordering a wood and about twenty or thirty yards from the edge. The latter is probably the safest larder of all, as marauding rats and mice do not venture so far outside the wood in winter.

After watching the squirrel going from one hoard to another, I have little doubt that its ability to find these is not a matter of memory or of instinct, but of smell. It is the same highly-developed sense, too, that makes the squirrel an accomplished truffle hunter (for truffles are a great squirrel dainty), and I think that it must have been their smelling abilities that brought squirrels to a peach house in which they did a lot of damage.

Squirrel cunning defeated the most cleverly laid traps and other attempts at capture, and to save the fruit the unwelcome visitors had ultimately to be shot. The squirrel is one of the best game bird guards, and its winter stores have fed many a famished pheasant.

Beyond an occasional "chuck!" the squirrel does not pay much attention to a mere man, but immediately it espies a fox or stoat on the prowl it chatters loudly in the greatest excitement, and game birds never fail to profit by their sentinel's warnings, apparently knowing that the squirrel is no idle alarmist.

Pheasants scratch up and devour the squirrel's winter stores when other food is scarce, and the "drey" always wasted ten times the quantity of food he consumes, and shatters nuts, acorns, wild fruits and hedge berries which the game birds would not otherwise get, and which they thoroughly enjoy, it thus benefits them all the year round.

One of the prettiest sights is that of young squirrels taking their first lessons in climbing and jumping. Like most wild animals the squirrel can swim well when the occasion demands, but it does not love damp, and when passing through wet grass its tail is carried high and not foxwise, as it usually is when the squirrel is in motion.—From the Scotsman.

MARRIAGE RESOLUTIONS

When Theodore Parker, the great American preacher, was married, he entered in his journal on his wedding-day the following resolutions:

First—Never, except for the best reasons, to oppose my wife's will.

Second—To discharge all duties for her sake freely.

Third—Never to scold.

Fourth—Never to look cross at her.

Fifth—Never to worry her with commands.

Sixth—To promote her piety.

Seventh—To bear her burdens.

Eighth—To overlook her foibles.

Ninth—To save, cherish, and for ever defend her.

Tenth—To remember her always in my prayers. Thus, God willing, we shall be blessed.

The commandments which Parker put upon himself are like the old decalogue, all comprehended in one word—love.

WHY HE FOUGHT

A defendant at Enfield the other day made the following answer to the accusation against him: "His little boy came to my house and said, 'Father sends kind regards, and he's waiting to do it on you.' I said, 'I don't fight in the street,' but he came and knocked the door; and I went out and had a go with him, and the ginger-beer man was referee."

PAVED WITH SILVER

Native Ore Discovered in Waste Rock At Cobalt

On the causeway of broken rock laid between the town of Cobalt and the T. & N. O. station workmen have uncovered in a chunk of rock showing pieces of native silver all over its surface. It got there by the merest accident. The town some time ago borrowed what was believed to be waste rock from the dump pile of the Silver Queen to face their retaining walls and to make sidewalks inexpensively. Some few days ago a mining man, more observing than his fellows, thought he detected the darting glint of "native" in the stone he was walking over, and examined it. As it is an excellent advertisement to the district it is to be left there, but it is to be observed in so that no enterprising high-grader shall lift it for his personal use and entertainment.

Phoenix is sixty-four years of age, weighs 216 pounds and is 6 feet, four inches in height. He is an old-timer in the circus business, having managed several of the largest shows in the country.

A BACHELOR'S DOWRY

M. Vassalieff, a St. Petersburg millionaire, bequeathed his whole fortune to provide poor engaged couples with the means of getting married and setting up in a comfortable home of their own. In his will he explained that his relations were rich enough already without any of his money; therefore he left them none. But that he wished to enable poor girls to marry. "The reason that so many beautiful women never get a husband is solely because the young men of the present day have no self-respect. They do not look for beauty, but for money, when they seek a wife," said he. "I love all women, especially those who have to work for their living, and that is why I want to help them to get married, for I consider a single life is the saddest thing on earth."

HOT GOOD Business.

He Says Mr. Borden Discussing Pact at Sydney.

Sydney Mines, N.S., R. L. Borden addressed a good audience here last night speaking of the business side of the pact, he said:

"The whole tendency of this compact is to export the unfinished Canadian product in order that it may be converted into the finished article by the labor of a foreign country.

"That is not good business for the Canadian people. Our policy should be to develop our natural resources and convert them into finished commodities by the labor of our own people, and to establish such conditions in this country as will insure a generous living wage to Canadian workingmen. That result cannot be accomplished unless our industries are placed on a firm basis. The aim and tendency of this treaty is to place them on an exceedingly insecure and unstable basis. The natural resources of the United States are under the control and ownership of twenty-five or thirty great capitalists of untold wealth and power. The trusts and combines through which these men direct their efforts will not be less ruthless and unsparing in Canada than they have been in the United States.

"The goal and aim of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1891 was unrestricted continental free trade. That policy meant one tariff for the two countries to the exclusion of the rest of the Empire, and any such tariff would be made at Washington and not at Ottawa. Such a condition would mean commercial vassalage, which must be followed by political absorption."

Gun Play Popular.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Gun-play seems to have been the order of the day during the week-end just passed. There were four cases of shooting on the dockets and eight prisoners yesterday.

Antonio Codio, who was assaulted, he claims, by a fellow-countryman, and who fired two shots at his fleeing assailant, put up such a fight when Detective Falard tried to disarm him that it took four constables to subdue him. Brought before Judge Lanctot his revolver was confiscated, and a permit which was given him by Judge Leet to carry firearms, was cancelled.

John Dacker, whom it is alleged shot Elsie Jette in the head, was brought before Judge Lanctot, charged with attempted murder. Andrew Smith and Jack Skringe, accused of abetting his act, were also arraigned. All pleaded not guilty to the charges and were remanded until the 14th for enquete.

Nicholas Hayes was charged with having shot Juliette Van Mar three times because she refused to submit to his advances. Brought before Judge Lanctot, he pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until the 18th for voluntary statement.

NEW PRAYER BOOK.

Anglican Synod Takes First Step Towards Change.

London, Ont., Sept. 12.—The general synod of the Anglican Church yesterday afternoon passed the recommendation of the committee on the adaptation of the Book of Common Prayer. By so doing the first step was taken in remodelling the prayerbook to meet the needs of Canadian church and the requirements of Canadian associations, something that one wing of the church has been agitating for in many synods for years. The recommendation was not passed without a bitter opposition, however.

The evening session was devoted to the business end of the new prayer book and finally it was adopted that the Cambridge Press would have copies of the new amendment prayer book ready for the next general synod.

The ne temere was brought up at the morning session, Hon. S. H. Blake of Toronto making two motions, first to have a joint committee appointed from both upper and lower houses of the general synod to confer with other religious bodies to conduct the fullest investigation into the matter and to recommend any change in legislation to remedy the existing evils of the marriage law. The second was a memorial to the Government to set aside the Court of Exchequer as a court to which all questions of the validity of marriage would be referred. Neither resolution was put to the house, the noon adjournment coming before the conclusion of the debate upon them and, according to the order sheet, the prayer book question had to be settled first.

James E. Jones, K.C., of Toronto, and Dr Davidson, LL.D., of Montreal, led the opposition against the resolutions, both declaring that the ne temere did not effect the marriage laws of Quebec — the decisions and rulings on the cases in question being made on the civil law of the province, which had been broken when the marriage contract had not been solemnized in the manner prescribed by that city's civil law. The debate was a warm one.

FRANCE DECLINES.

Politely Refuses to Accept Germany's Terms.

Paris, Sept. 12.—France's reply to Germany's counter-proposals in the Moroccan negotiations has been written, and will be laid before the French Cabinet to-day for approval. The task of drawing up the reply proved simpler than at first expected, doubtless because the German demands were such as could not be accepted by France. The reply will be despatched by special courier to the French Ambassador at Berlin after the Cabinet meeting to-day, and he will hand it to the German Foreign Minister, Herr Von Kidderlen-Waechter.

It is understood that the reply, while it is written in a spirit of conciliation, is absolutely firm with regard to the position which France has assumed concerning questions of principle, from which France will not depart a hair's breadth.

The broad outlines of Germany's proposals have been communicated to the public, because the Government believes that the people have a right to know at this period of tension what was being done. Foreign Minister De Selves has also indicated in a semi-official note that France reply would be a refusal to accept Germany's conditions. In this French opinion appears to be wholly united and prepared for any contingency.

One point of view in official quarters is that Germany's financial situation, which is expected to reach a climax by the end of September, may tend to moderate Germany's demands.

German Opinion Optimistic.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—The German newspapers generally have adopted a more optimistic tone relative to the Moroccan negotiations. The Cologne Gazette's semi-official Berlin despatch declares that the French reply to Germany will arrive at the end of the week, after which Germany will be in a position to prepare further proposals. The developments up to the present, says the despatch, justify the belief that both sides are striving for a satisfactory solution of the difficulty.

Bismarck's Sword Fell.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—There was a strange incident on Saturday in the Saxon town of Artern.

Hundreds of the inhabitants gathered in the square where Bismarck's statue is situated. At a clock in the square struck noon the sword which the statue of the dead statesman held in its hand extended and fell noisily to the ground. It was immediately followed by one of the arms.

This peculiar happening caused a great sensation among the superstitious, many of whom declared that it was a sign of war.

MEAN BLACKMAILERS.

Two Montreal Swindlers Had a Novel Trick.

Montreal, Sept. 12.—Wearing a rag-picker's license, which somewhat resembles a constable's badge, and carrying a dark lantern, two men have been conducting a hold-up game in Westmount and Notre Dame de Grace. Sauntering along some of the less frequented streets they flash their lanterns in likely places to find spooning couples. On finding a young man and girl, their game is to go up, flash the badge and tell them they have to come along to the police station. It was not hard to convince such people that they had committed some offence of the bylaws. These two "officers" would gently insinuate that if a little cash was forthcoming the matter might easily be fixed. The game was a good one until Sunday, since a young student on College St. Antoine road refused to produce the coin when "arrested," and notified the police. One constable was sent out and arrested a man on the charge of loitering, and he appeared in the Westmount Police Court yesterday.

Here he was confronted by two girls who identified him as a man who had stolen a purse from them. The girls had been so frightened when confronted by the men on a dark street that one of them dropped her purse on the sidewalk, and the men immediately made off with it.

Accordingly, the man the police arrested Sunday night was remanded for a couple of days until the police can locate the other man.

Record Heat in England.

London, Sept. 12.—Friday was the hottest Sept. 8 in English records. The thermometer at South Kensington marked 88 in the shade, and never before has a temperature above 90 been registered in London in September.

It was the thirty-third day this summer on which the temperature of London exceeded 80, and the sixth day on which it reached 90.

The drought has been equally remarkable. The water famine in various parts of the country is becoming serious. Reservoirs are empty and condemned wells are being re-opened, with grave risk to health.

Italian Leaped From Ferry.

Toronto, Sept. 12.—Joseph Sarli, an Italian musician, who boards at 53 Agnes street, committed suicide yesterday morning by jumping from the ferry boat Kathleen, on her 11 o'clock trip to Centre Island. Efforts were made to rescue him, but the body sank immediately, and all attempts to recover it have as yet been unsuccessful.

The unfortunate man was subjected to epileptic fits, and it is believed that he was the victim of a fit when he jumped from the boat. He leaves a wife and four children.

Some Other Ways In Which the City Consumer Benefits By Reciprocity

Two of the principal questions which the city dweller has to encounter when he meets an opponent of reciprocity are these:

"How will reciprocity benefit the consumer? If the farmer is going to get a larger market where do I come in?"

On the face of it, the questions seem hard to answer, but they are not so difficult as they appear.

We consumers here in the cities as in all other centres of population, know that, owing to geographical distances, to freight rates and to other causes, it is often difficult to secure the necessaries of life from home producers, and that we are in consequence compelled to buy foreign fruits and vegetables, and in the case of the west and the north foreign canned goods as well.

That has nothing to do with the tariff issue, for we are already buying them and have been buying them for months and years.

Let any householder or his good wife take a walk down Bank street or Rideau street to-day right in the midst of the Canadian fruit season, and what will he or she find? That the fruiterers' windows are filled with California pears, southern peaches and western plums.

There must be some reason why those fruits are on sale in those shops. It can only be that the home production is not sufficient to supply the demand or that freight rates upon Canadian fruits are so excessive that the sellers here find it cheaper to import the fruits and pay the duty than to pay the freight rates demanded upon Canadian fruit.

This being the case, why should not the producer be given the advantage of the market nearest to him, if he can get it, and the consumer, in Ottawa for instance, be allowed the privilege of securing his fruit for consumption at as cheap a rate as possible?

Coming down to figures, the blue book dealing with the probable effect of the reciprocity agreement shows that, on the basis of the trade of last year, the consumer will benefit by the remission of the following amounts collected upon importations from the United States—and bear in mind those importations would not have been made unless there had been a demand for them by the Canadian consumer:—

Sheep, $32,878.
Poultry, $11,900.
Potatoes, $45,720.
Tomatoes, $80,128.
Other vegetables, $120,476.
Melons, $21,142.
Apples, $23,628.
Peaches, $47,970.
Grapes, $70,656.
Blackberries, etc., $60,672.
Cherries, $6,576.
Cranberries, $22,900.
Plums, $20,900.
Quinces, apricots and pears, $26,178.
Eggs, $22,981.

Now these are the articles which chiefly interest the consumer. The remission of duty involved in the agreement cannot be ruinous to the Canadian farmer, because if he had been able to supply the home demand he would have done so last year. But he was not able to do so, with the result that the Canadian consumer had to pay the sums mentioned for the articles enumerated, in addition to that which he would have otherwise to pay.

These official figures look very much as if the Canadian consumer stands to benefit materially by reciprocity. Figure it out in your own case and see what you think of it.

Mr. Stratton Had The Industrial Interests Of Peterborough In View

Promptly Apprised Chief Local Manufacturers of the Fact That Reciprocity Negotiations Were Imminent—Asked Advice as to How He Could as Representative Best Look After Their Interests.

On June 24th, 1910, Mr. Stratton addressed the following letter to the local head of the Canadian General Electric Company, to to the heads, or managers, of the chief manufacturing industries of Peterborough:

E. G. Patterson, Esq., Superintendent Canadian General Electric Company, City.

Dear Sir,—I have no doubt that the question of improved trade relations between Canada and the United States will be taken up and considered by Parliament, perhaps, during the next Session, judging from the comments of the Canadian trade Journals, the Canadian Press and the American Press, which latter represents a reversal of the hostile attitude of the United States on trade matters towards Canada for several years. Judging from all these, the matter will have to be dealt with without much more delay.

I quite appreciate the question is full of difficulties and the utmost care should be given to the consideration of any arrangement (if one at all desirable is possible) that may be arrived at.

There is one point upon which I feel, as representative of West Peterborough, that I should have full and early information: Assuming that it is found that the United States authorities are willing to make tariff concessions to Canada, it is important that I should have as full information as possible in regard to the articles upon which Canada would like to secure better rates in the American tariff.

What I had in my mind was that, if I could get the different manufacturers together in Peterborough, at their convenience, to discuss and find out the articles (if any) we could sell advantageously in the American market, if reduced rates can be obtained, I might, in this event, be able to give prominence to the views of the different manufacturers before the Government, that would be helpful to the manufacturers of this district generally, as well as the country at large.

The House, as you are no doubt aware, meets about the middle of November, and to have any success whatever, we should get our views so arranged and agreed upon in good time, in order to have them effectively presented to the Government and Parliament.

The holiday season is coming on, and it is difficult to get all together at week ends.

I would make it a point to meet the different gentlemen connected with our manufacturing institutions, at any time they can find it convenient to meet, if I were made aware of it two or three days in advance.

Meanwhile, I would suggest that it would facilitate matters, and help reach the object to which, I think, we all agree we should attain, if you were to think over the matter yourself, and arrange your ideas in as concrete a form as possible, and, at the same time, it would be well if you could speak to other manufacturers upon the subject and ask them to give similar attention to the subject of reciprocity.

I do not approach this matter in any partizan way. If we are to have reciprocity, I believe, in the interests of all concerned, we should have real reciprocity—not the big end of the bargain for our sharp-witted, and, sometimes, sharp-dealing neighbours across the line.

I would like the matter approached in such a manner that I could be of the best service to the community, and I can assure you that any information that I am able to obtain, that can be supplied in the interests of the manufacturers of Peterborough, will be used to the best of my judgment.

In dealing with this matter we in Peterborough, who have common interests, and Canadians, in general, should divest any action taken of partisan politics, entirely, and treat the subject as a business matter on business principles. It is a national matter, and should be regarded with national breadth of view.

Yours truly,

(Signed) J. R STRATTON.

This letter explains itself; it shows that the Representative of West Peterborough was alert, as he always is, to protect and advance the interests of the city. He foreshadowed what was the probable action in regard to reciprocity, which, at that time, was thought would directly affect manufactures in Peterborough, and was prompt in notifying those concerned and inviting their cooperation on business principles. To show that his action was appreciated, replies were recived from all the manufacturers addressed, but two strong Conservatives. Though the agreement, as negotiated and effected, did not prove so vitally important to manufacturers — being almost exclusively devoted to free exchange of natural—farm—products the action taken by Mr. Stratton showed that he is always alert in promoting the welfare of the city, for which in actuality, as in contemplation, he has done more in regard to its material and other advancement, than any other representative this riding has ever had.

MR. STRATTON HOLDS ANOTHER SPLENDID MEETING IN HARVEY

The Attitude of the Ackerman Harness Co. to its Employees and Reciprocity Receives Attention.

BENEFITS OF PACT

Mr. Stratton and Mr. Meldrum addressed a large meeting of the electors of Harvey at Spence's School House, Government Road, on Monday evening.

Mr. Thomas Flynn occupied the chair, and expressed his pleasure at seeing so many present to hear the all-absorbing topic of reciprocity discussed.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum briefly referred to the agreement and showed the advantage of it to a district such as the Government Road, where grain-growing was not carried on so largely as other products of the soil. He pointed out the advantage to them in the stock-raising—cattle, hogs and sheep and dairy products.

Beef sold in that district at 3 1-2c to 4 cents per pound, and other meats in proportion, and the people had good reason for surprise that the same meats were sold in the cities at from 15 to 25 cents per pound. He was satisfied that reciprocity would correct this condition, and that reciprocity would have a similar good effect all over the country, and would stimulate Canadian agriculture, without in the slightest degree injuring the Canadian manufacturing industries.

Mr. Stratton's Address.

Mr. Stratton spoke of the length of time he had enjoyed their confidence, and of the good relationship that had always existed between them. He ridiculed Mr. Burnham's subjects of discussion in the campaign and pointed out they might as well discuss why Mr. Burnham had never married as to discuss the matters he was endeavouring to foist into the discussion—matters that had not the slightest relation to, or bearing upon, the question the electors had to decide.

He contrasted the condition that existed in Harvey in 1896, when the Laurier Government took power, with the conditions of to-day. Then their calves and feathers were unsaleable, and telegraph and telephone poles called for no sale. He also recalled the conditions that prevented the residents from feeling any prosperity in their pockets. He took up the agreement and explained its nature fully and emphasized the advantages to be gained by a Township like Harvey, by its adoption.

He then pointed out the large number of Conservatives that were placing their own interests and the interests of the country before party. He was satisfied that every acre of good land and timber would be benefitted and increased in value and every town and city in the Dominion increased in value. He pointed out that even former Conservative members of Parliament were supporting reciprocity, and he quoted the remarks of Mr. Lewis Wigle, Conservative ex-M.P.P., when speaking recently from a Liberal platform, when he said:

"I am a Conservative now, as I have been for forty-five years," he said, "and in endorsing reciprocity I am simply endeavouring to obtain what the Conservative party under Sir John Macdonald and other leaders had been striving for during all that period. Had Mr. Borden been in power and the offer been made to him he would have accepted, and every Conservative with the exception of a few of the money kings in Toronto would be now clamouring for reciprocity."

This was Mr. Stratton said, only one of many instances where good patriotic Conservatives were pronouncing in favour of a measure that was so manifestly in the public interest.

Mr. Stratton also pointed out that nearly all those opposed to reciprocity and contributing funds to prevent its adoption, were either connected in some way with the monopolies, or were paid by them to speak and write against it.

If an appeal was made by the Liberals to any other class like that being made to the British born, a great howl would be raised. Such class appeals to any other class would be resented as an insult to their intelligence. We were, he said, all British born, and it was an insult to the intelligence of all Britons to have such an appeal made, as would separate them into opposing classes.

He also showed that Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster, in Parliament, when the French treaty was under discussion, reproached the Government for an action that might interfere with the trade of Canada with the United States. This agreement was one that could be terminated at any time for just cause.

He then took up the idea that trading with the States was absolutely necessary. Each country had products the other wanted. He instanced coal. Nova Scotia had soft coal that the Eastern States, close at hand, required, and the distance prevented it being shipped profitably to Ontario, while Pennsylvania supplied us with the hard coal not obtainable in Ontario. It was just as reasonable to expect the hard coal of British Columbia to be consumed in Ontario, when we have United States coal at our very doors, as to expect Ontario horses and grains to be sent to British Columbia against the heavy, long-distance freight charges.

Mr. Stratton pointed out that while reciprocity benefitted farmers it did not injure manufacturing industries. The working men were in favour of it when they were not deceived by lying manufactures. The Executive Committee of the Dominion Trades Congress are strong for the reciprocity proposal. They do not hesitate to say that the agreement, if adopted, will be in the interests of the Canadian people and it would benefit the Trades Union movement, which some manufacturers didn't do much to help. One of these is in Peterborough. It does not recognize the union and will not recognize the union. It denies the right of its employees to organize for their own protection, and wishes not only to control their labour and wages, but to control their opinions and votes as well. He referred to the B. F. Ackerman and Son Harness Company. This firm had posted the following notice in the shop:

> "This firm is opposed to Reciprocity, or any measure that will injure British connection or industries or the farming interests of Canada."

Mr. Stratton urged that the agreement did not menace British connection as every leading British statesman approved of the agreement as a common-sense arrangement. It did not hurt the farmers because, in this country, scores of Conservative farmers and thousands throughout Canada approved of the agreement and they should have credit for having some sense and knowing what they wanted.

The agreement was opposed by some manufacturers without any reason — since there is no free exchange of manufactured articles provided for; no removal of duty on both sides of the line, as there is on a considerable list of farm products. There is a slight reduction in duty by both Canada and the United States on some agricultural implements—a reduction of from 2 1-2 to 5 per cent. Manufacturers in general are not, and will not be, interfered with in the slightest degree.

Why then are some manufacturers opposed to it? For instance, why should Mr. Ackerman, of the Ackerman Harness Company, post a notice in his shops warning his employees that he is opposed to Reciprocity, and inferentially and practically forbidding his employees to discuss the question. Are not his employees free men, and have they not the right of every elector to discuss what the whole country is discussing? Do not the heads of the Company, in this posted notice, plainly intimate to their employees that they run some sort of risk in having opinions and voting according to their opinions?

The sole reason that Mr. Ackerman can have for opposing the agreement seems to be that he is a Conservative—which he has every right to be—and that it is his party duty to oppose the Government and everything it proposes, no matter how helpful the conditions created by the Liberal Government have been to him.

But he can have no economic or business reason for opposing it, or for opposing the Government. As a matter of fact he owes the greater part of his success and the growth of his business to the policy and administration of the present Government.

When Mr. Ackerman, during the Conservative administration, about twenty years ago, removed his then modest business from Port Perry to Peterborough, and established it on the opposite side of the street in Peterborough, from which his prosperous factory is located now, he managed to hold it together, till the Liberal Government came into power. We all know that from that time his business began to grow and prosper, largely through the expansion of his business in the Canadian West. The energetic policy of the Liberal Government, that found the West an unbroken and unpeopled wilderness, promoted its settlement, thus developing its resources, and creating demands for the manufactured products of Ontario, including the products of Mr. Ackerman's factory. The policy of the Government in settling and opening up the West created a market for Mr. Ackerman's products, and a splendid market, too, and to that is largely due the fact that since the Liberal Government came into power, he has three times increased the capacity of his factory and is increasing it a fourth time, in face of reciprocity which is soon to be passed. It was practically entirely due to the prosperity arising from the Government's policy of peopling the West that Mr. Ackerman has built, or is building, a large warehouse in Regina, as a Western distribution point of his harness. It is only to the West that the Ackerman Company ships harness by the carload.

The West is solidly in favour of Reciprocity, because it will add immensely to its prosperity, promote settlement, increase products, create wealth, and make it a still better market for Ontario manufactures, including Mr. Ackerman's excellent harness.

Reciprocity will help the Western, as well as the Eastern, farmer, and will not hurt Mr. Ackerman, but help him, to a larger, and, therefore, better market.

The agreement only removes the duty from farm products, and lowers it from 5 to 2 1-2 per cent. on farm implements. It does not interfere with Mr. Ackerman's, or any other manufacturer's protection. Mr. Ackerman still enjoys the benefits of a protective tariff of 30 per cent. on harness, which is not touched by the agreement and will not otherwise be touched. He still enjoys free access to the splendid market of the West for his harness—a market that will be made bigger and better by Reciprocity, and a market guaranteed him by ample protection from foreign competition.

Mr. Stratton went on to show that the Ackerman industry has not only been well treated by the Government, but by the municipality and people of Peterborough, the workingmen and other ratepayers who are helping pay its taxes through the exemption it enjoys. No industry in Canada would be so directly and largely benefitted by the Reciprocity Agreement as the Ackerman Harness industry. This showed that the head of the establishment must be opposing reciprocity merely as a matter of party politics. This he has every right to do; this is a free country, and every man, whether he be employer or workman, is entitled to his opinion—except the employees of the Ackerman Harness Company; the posted notice to their employees is very close to the border line of intimidation.

What would Mr. Ackerman think, what inference would he draw if the Government were to say to him: "We are opposed to a protective duty on harness?" Could he do anything else than regard it as a threat—as intimidation? But the Government has no intention of doing this in his case or that of any other manufacturer, any more than it has the intention of injuring his business or any other business, by passing a measure of reciprocity—mutual free exchange of farm products between Canada and the United States.

The Ackerman Harness Company is untouched by the Reciprocity Agreement as to the protection it enjoys; they have had, still have, and under reciprocity will have in a larger degree, a splendid market for their goods, and besides, are not subjected to any extra expense in providing union labels for their goods.

Mr. Stratton concluded by pointing out that the chief opposition to the reciprocity agreement was not on its merits. The opposition to it where not purely political—for party reasons—was founded upon selfish interests. It was an agreement proposed in the interests of the great farming community. It would benefit them and through their increased prosperity, would benefit every class of the community. He was sure that Harvey would do its share in pronouncing the favourable verdict the country would pronounce in September 21st.

A most successful meeting closed with cheers for the King, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Stratton.

"OBSTACLES IN THE PATH"
—From the "Ottawa Dipper"

RECIPROCITY BENEFITS THE FARMER AND THE CONSUMER

In the din and confusion and conflict and clashing of interests that make up so large a part of the fight in the election campaign probably no body pauses to consider so harmonious and beautiful thing as the cycle of the seasons and the wonderful table for all the months of the year that Providence and Nature have spread for the people of this continent.

When full consideration is given to these things the prospect of reciprocity must surely gladden the hearts of industrious men and women who are entitled to the comforts as well as the necessaries of life.

Just think for a moment on the natural conditions that can be made to minister to the welfare of the people, whole people. Hard wheat grows nowhere in the world better than in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Corn grows best in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas. Vegetables and fruits grow best at one season of the year in Ontario and Quebec, at another season in the middle states and at another in the southern states.

Is it not reasonable and logical to conclude that we shall have more food, better food and cheaper food if we are given the opportunity as we will be under reciprocity of freely availing ourselves of the varied and abundant food supply of the entire continent?

The Canadian farmer is not hurt for the reason that he cannot supply these products of the table at the season they come to us from the States. On the contrary he will gain because the United States market will be open to him when his brother farmer across the border can no longer supply its needs.

For instance there is the potato. The Canadian article is not on the market during part of the year. Canadians must get their supply from the States. The duty on potatoes coming into Canada amounts to $45,000 a year, and in addition to these there are $3,700 on yams or sweet potatoes. These duties are paid by the Canadian consumers. Under reciprocity potatoes and yams will come in free.

Under reciprocity poultry is placed on the free list. Canada imports $83,000 worth of dead poultry and the consumer pays a duty of $10,000 on what is imported. That will be saved when the agreement is ratified after the Government is returned to power. Canada imports yearly from the States $650,000 worth of fresh vegetables such as cabbages, onions, tomatoes and upon these the duties are nearly $200,000. Everybody knows of course that these are imported at the season the Canadian farmer cannot supply fresh vegetables for at any other time they would not bear the freight charges. Under reciprocity the duty will be saved.

The same thing is true with regard to fresh fruit, such as apples, cherries, peaches, berries, cranberries, plums, pears, quinces, etc., of which over $1,200,000 were imported from the States last year. The duties on these amounted to $258,660. All the homes in which these fruits are used, will benefit by these duties being abolished.

On the other hand the Canadian farmers will have the benefit of a free market in the States for their wheat, barley, hay, oats, cattle, horses and hogs at prices that generally rule higher in the United States than in Canada. Here is a list which shows just what this means:

JOHNNIE CANUCK CONSIDERS THE SITUATION WITH GOOD SENSE

He Touches and Lays Bare Several Weak Spots in Opposition Contentions and Arguments

Peterborough, Sept. 11, 1911.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—About three years ago the electors were informed by the Conservative party in this riding, by large posters on all bill boards, that it would be a great calamity if they elected the Hon. J. R. Stratton. Well, we did elect him, and the only calamity experienced was what befell the Conservative party. When we stop and consider what a great mistake we would have made if we had elected his opponent, is it any wonder that so many Conservatives will place partyism to one side and vote for the best interests of the people. I hope it is not necessary for to call attention to what practical consideration has been given to the requirements of this riding and to contrast it with what would have been accomplished if we had taken the enemy's advice and left at home the most aggressive and best representative that this riding or any other riding ever had.

The Review has got so badly mixed up in the bad company of combines and trusts that it cannot understand how a near millionaire and owner of fine horses and a president of banks and financial companies can take a chance of losing some of his wealth, when he knows that he is acting in the best interest of the people whom he represents in parliament. If the Hon. J. R. Stratton is called upon to make any sacrifice upon this occasion it would not be the first time, and he will not pass the hat around either. Oh, no, don't run away with the idea that he is afraid of a dollar, or of the Review, or of the Conservative candidate.

Let me call the attention of the working man to the fact that if they and the farmer elect the Borden party, that this party will be under a compliment to the millionaire promoters of trusts and combines who, as history and personal experience have taught us, look after their own special interests first, and that of the people and the country last. With the most of them we are living in the age of dollars and cents. In the paste in the Mother country, when they waved the old flag and appealed to our patriotism in order to help them, we workingmen were "Johnnies on the spot." Though David Lloyd-George and his followers both in England and in Canada, the masses are thinking and acting for themselves, and will insist upon government by the people and for the people.

When a party starts out upon a course of misrepresentation it is always a sign of weakness. The Review has not treated the convincing arguments of Hugh Guthrie fairly; for instance, they compare the prices of meat in Chicago with those in Peterborough. Let them take the prices of Toronto and the United States cities and they will see that he was right. Mr. Gray's letter was misleading in the same manner.

Mr. Burnham agrees with me that the arguments used by the Review are not fair. To use his own words, in a letter of his in the Weekly Sun, it is hardly fair to quote Chicago against some small Canadian city, or New York either. The circumstances should be alike to warrant a fair comparison.

Now a word about the appeal to the British Born, got up by an Englishman of Toronto, for personal profit. Loyalty in the British needs no cultivation, and opinions and advice that are constructed so that they coincide with the big interests that have kept the British Born worse than in bondage, create suspicion. He advises his countrymen to save us Johnnie Canucks from ourselves. We are only a side issue in this affair. Such British Born as he is, with his professional loyalty, are of little credit to a country. In his pamphlet he states that this country, when he came to it, was looked upon as a poor relation of the United States and of no account, and we were regarded with indifference and contempt, and not once does he give any credit to the party that has made Canada one of the greatest countries in the world to-day, as he claims to be. Is it not easy to see that to give credit where credit is due, would not be acting in the interests of the party he represents. He also adopts the campaign lie of referring to the agreement as a treaty. I wish to inform him and his friends, that there is no sentiment of disloyalty in the Liberal Party in Canada. The only place he will find disloyalty is among the Quebec allies of the Conservative party, he would be better employed in Quebec.

"LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE!"

The opponents of the Government did not say this until last January. About the time of last election, indeed, they were saying that the country was on the road to ruin. And all along the Opposition has been pressing wifely attentions on the Government as a husband that needed reforming. See, for example, what Conservatives have been saying for some years past at Ottawa as to the need of reforms for the country.

Mr. W. H. Sharpe, Conservative M. P. for Lisgar, Manitoba, speaking on the 13th of December, 1910, said:

"The minister has also been asked time and time again to open new markets. There are resolutions in this report (report of the second general convention of the National Live Stock Association), asking him to open up new markets, and I would like to know if he has done it, if he has ever made any attempt to open a market for the thoroughbred stock of this country."

Like Mr. Northrup, Mr. Foster and other Conservative members, Mr. Sharpe was expecting last December to see the Government either fail to make any arrangement with the Americans or concede them reductions of duty on their manufactured products. In either case the Opposition was preparing to denounce the Government. Now it denounces the making of any arrangement at all as "interlocking" our tariff policy with that of the United States. We are told that any dealing with Uncle Sam is unwise, as he must always get the better of us. Did we lose by the arrangement of 1854-1866? Sir John Macdonald did not think so, in the days before he was "a dead Conservative."

Dr. J. W. Edwards, Conservative M.P. for Frontenac, on Jan. 21, 1910:

"In 1908, the United States provided us with a market for $95,900,000 of our goods, but in the same year our smaller population afforded for the people of the United States a market for $214,000,000 worth of their goods. There was an adverse balance of trade for Canada, of $118,000,000. Honourable gentlemen opposite say that cuts no figure. But will any man in this House say that he would not prefer to have those figures reversed? Will any man say that it would not be better for Canada if we were selling the United States $214,000,000 worth while they were selling us $95,900,000 worth? In 1908 we bought from the United States $1,254,704 worth of horses. And what market did they afford for our horses? They took $900,000 worth. Why was this? As I stated last session and repeat today, it is largely because our tariff discriminates against the Canadian farmer; that is, under the tariff arrangements, it is easier for the American farmer to bring stuff into Canada than for the Canadian farmer to get his stuff into the United States."

Evidently Dr. Edwards was highly dissatisfied with existing tariff conditions in January, 1910. But since January, 1911, he shouts with the rest of the irreconcilables, "Let well enough alone." The reciprocity agreement would remove the very discrimination against which he protested, but now he will not have it removed. And Dr. Edwards is only one of many partisans who have turned the same somersault.

Young Farmers Of Ontario Will Have Bright Future With Reciprocity In Force

Large New Markets Will Give the Chance for Big Profits That Opening Up of New Railways Gives to the West—Will Build Up Towns and Cities, Too

What is the cause of the exodus of young farmers from Ontario to the West?

That cause does not lie in the possibility of producing more to the acre there than is produced here, because there is no such possibility. The soil of the Western Provinces is not more fertile than is the soil of older Ontario. It does not lie in the possibility of securing higher prices for the products of Western farms than are obtainable in Ontario, because farm products sell at a lower level in the West than they do here.

WILL INCREASE LAND VALUES.

The great drawing power of the West is found in the hope it affords of rich returns from increasing land values. A man takes up a homestead or buys at a low price a location miles away from a railway. In time a railway comes and then the lucky owner finds himself suddenly enriched by the increased value so given to his holding.

It is the multitude of stories of wealth so gained which have caused many young men to leave Ontario homesteads and seek new homes in the West.

NET RETURNS WILL INCREASE $200 A YEAR.

Reciprocity will do for Ontario what railways are doing for the West. It will, by the opening of the American market, where the prices of hogs, cattle, horses, and other products are higher than here, increase the returns from Ontario farms. Farmers themselves who have studied this question place the annual increase in the returns from an average hundred acre farm so obtainable at $200 to $500 a year. With this increase in the annual returns from Ontario farms there must come an increase in farm values. The double profit will tend not only to check the present outflow of population; it will promote an inflow. Young farmers now here, seeing lands at present valued at $60 and $70 per acre gradually rising towards the hundred dollar mark, will be led to think that Old Ontario is too good a place to leave. Farmers in the United States, seeing land on this side, more fertile than their own, selling at less than the price of their own, will be led to come over and invest in our cheaper and more fertile lands for the purpose of supplying their own market. This will cause a still further increase in land values. This will tend to still further diminish the movement from the land in Ontario. It will tend to promote a movement towards the land.

Reciprocity is a measure for the re-population of rural Ontario. The re-population of rural Ontario means increased prosperity for the towns and cities of Ontario.

RECIPROCITY: WHAT IS AND WHAT IS NOT WHAT AGREEMENT DOES FOR THE CONSUMER

Being Reciprocal it Works Both Ways—Giving Higher Prices to the Producer and Cheaper Living to the Consumer

What is reciprocity?

The Imperial dictionary defines reciprocity, applied to trade, as equal commercial rights, enjoyed mutually, by two countries trading together.

The "reciprocity agreement" now before the electors of the country is an arrangement entered into by Canada and the United States, by which trade is facilitated by permitting United States natural products—chiefly farm products — to enter Canada from the United States free of duty, and Canadian natural products—chiefly farm products—to enter the United States free of duty.

That is, there will be absolutely free trade in these natural products between the two countries.

The agreement also provides for a reduced rate of duty — the same both ways—on a small list of articles "the growth product or manufacture" of the respective countries. For instance there is a reduction of duty of from 2 1-2 to 5 per cent. on agricultural implements, the same on these articles going into each country. The reduction of duties is much greater in the case of the United States, for these duties are much higher than the Canadian rates.

There are NO MANUFACTURED GOODS ON THE FREE LIST, so that the statement—that there is free trade in everything—manufactures as well as farm products, is not true. Any statement to that effect is made through ignorance or from pure malice.

The elector who is "loaded up" with such a statement should demand proof—a copy of the agreement can easily be obtained. But he will get no proof, for the agreement does not provide for free exchange of a single article manufactured in Peterborough, and in every case where there is a reduction of duty, the tariff remains high enough to provide adequate protection to permit of successful competition with the United States or any other country.

No one can dispute that reciprocity will be a great benefit to the Canadian farmer. He will have access to a market where prices are much higher for what he has to sell and which is so large that prices will not be materially depressed by the fresh shipments he will send in.

And it is no less true that reciprocity will enable the Canadian housewife to buy her supplies cheaper than she can now. As the farmer benefits by the taking off of the United States duty against what he has to sell, the Canadian housewife will benefit by the taking off of the Canadian duties on what she has to buy. That's the beauty of the agreement—that it's reciprocal.

And here again the new market which the Canadian housewife will have access to is so large by comparison that the fresh demand from here will not materially advance prices. The larger markets will largely determine the price of both farm products and the food for the workingman's table.

And, strange as it may seem, while the price of farm products is higher in the United States, the cost of the workingman's food is less. The former statement has been amply demonstrated by innumerable illustrations. The latter is no less the fact. A statement from a Toronto steward of a large restaurant furnishes evidence on a long list of fruits, vegetables, meats and groceries.

As to WHY this curious state of affairs exists, we are not so much concerned. Broadly, the reasons are that we have a restricted market which, among other things, has enabled the middleman to extort an inordinate profit.

But we are dealing with a fact, not a theory. And the fact is that the American workman's food costs him less and that the American farmer's prices are higher.

An arrangement that puts more money in the Canadian farmer's pocket, decreases the Canadian workingman's cost of living, and doesn't adversely affect Canadian industry, can only be described as ideal.

That's reciprocity, that's what it does and will do.

A LETTER AND A REPLY

The Peterborough Examiner, City.

Dear Sirs.—We note with interest in the columns of your last evening's paper that you have given considerable prominence to the progress of our business during the last twenty years. Without commenting any further on this matter, we consider that it is due to us that you publish in your next issue, with same prominence in type, etc., the fact that the article in question was published entirely on your own responsibility, and that we were not responsible for the information given, nor were we aware that it was your intention to publish same until after the issue of the paper.

We thank you, in anticipation of this favour.

Yours truly,

Th B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company, per

The Examiner acquits B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co. of tendering any information about their prosperous business. The facts in yesterday's article are matters of common knowledge, and the Examiner simply used them as an illustration of the growth of the Company during the period mentioned, and also inferentially to show that the Ackerman Harness Company, which is one of the most flourishing industries of its kind in Canada, should have no reason to oppose the favourable conditions under which their business has expanded. The Examiner is pleased to note their success.—Editor Examiner.

ELLIOT'S

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

YOU doubtless know that your high heeled shoes tire you much more than your common sense walking shoes:—you, of course, meaning the sex that wears these instruments of torture.

You probably realize that the reason you were so abominably tired the other night was not because you had done anything especially strenuous but because you wore those French heeled shoes while shopping.

But, do you realize that high heeled shoes may do much more than tire you—may actually injure you?

If you know anything at all about your internal organism you know that it is a very delicately balanced affair. Now the high heeled shoes throw the weight of the body forward, and if this position is held for too long a time, doesn't it seem quite natural that this delicate equilibrium might be disturbed?

If you don't believe me, ask your doctor. I'll wager he'll talk more forcibly than I have.

Yes, I know those dainty, pattery little high heeled shoes are much more attractive than the big clumsy kind. I just love them myself.

And I grant you that they are all right for occasions when you are going to be sitting down most of the time.

But for occasions when you will have to stand or walk a good deal—well, is the daintiness worth while at the price of certain exhaustion and the risk of physical injury?

• • •

Do you know of anything more mortifying than to have someone with whom you have been talking over the telephone for five or ten minutes finally acknowledge that she has company or some pressing engagement from which you are keeping her?

I don't.

The agony of looking back and thinking— "And she's been squirming and trying to get away all the time she was talking."

Whereas if anyone courteously tells you the moment that you call up, that it is not just convenient for her to talk just then and that she would like to call you up later you are not in the least disturbed or chagrined.

• • •

As I was passing a public dump the other day a gust of wind threw half a dozen letters at my feet.

A few of them were torn in two or three fragments. Many of them were entirely whole.

The subscription of one of the letters which lay at my feet was, "Your loving sister, Anne."

Presumably such a letter would contain intimate family details. And there it lay—and its companions—ready for "him who runs to read."

I didn't read the letters but I don't think I should have blamed anyone who did.

Carelessness like that which put those letters untorn into a waste basket to be thrown into the litter barrel and thence to be carried to the public dump richly deserves such punishment.

Where do the letters you throw into your waste basket go?

Perhaps you think they are burned up, but are they? Surely not in the summer months when there is no furnace fire.

On the whole I think it behooves you to be sure your cast off correspondence is going to be burned up, or else to tear it into mighty fine shreds.

I can assure you I shall in the future.

THE MODERN HEAD DRESS

Causes Baldness — We Cannot Change the Head Dress, But We Can Prevent Baldness

Up to the time we began to civilize him a bald headed Indian was a thing unknown. Wearing nothing on his head except the covering furnished by nature and being a stranger to the use of a hair brush, especially the public one, the scalp and hair had plenty of ventilation, much sunlight and, hence, a condition favourable to a luxuriant growth of hair existed at all times.

It was the adoption of air and light excluding head gears and artificial head decorations generally, together with the occasional use of a community hair brush, which gave the dandruff germ its opportunity. Since this parasite has multiplied to an alarming degree until now there is hardly a person who is not troubled more or less with dandruff and falling hair.

Many, to be sure, have passed the worrying stage. Having become chronically bald they realize that nothing is capable of producing natural hair for them. Let these be a warning to all who are experiencing the significant annoyance of dandruff and falling hair.

Dandruff, which is due to a germ, and falling hair can both be overcome by the regular use of Newbro's Herpicide.

This wonderful scalp remedy kills the vicious germ which causes dandruff, cleanses the scalp and stops the hair from coming out. The destruction of the germ permits the hair to grow naturally and luxuriantly as nature intends.

Herpicide makes the hair bright, snappy, light and fluffy.

One dollar size bottles guaranteed. For sale at all drug stores.

Applications obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Send 10c. in stamps or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

STREETS FLOODED WITH MOLASSES

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NEW ORLEANS, SEPT. 12.—One million gallons of molasses, let loose by the bursting of a huge tank, flooded some of the principal streets to a depth of fifteen inches, causing a stoppage of all street cars and vehicular traffic.

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

Heartburn, Dyspepsia, Gas and Other Stomach Misery Vanishes

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly written on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why Diapepsin always relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever get a little fur Ingestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some Pape's Diapepsin now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

Eruptions Increasing

Special Wire to The Examiner.

CATANIA, ITALY, SEPT. 12.—Eruptions of Mt. Etna have become more intense and it is reported that three craters have opened. A continued rumbling and emissions of lava have terrorized the people and whole villages have been vacated.

ALL SAINT'S TEAM WON FROM ST. JAMES 5-2

Before a small crowd on the Driving Park, St. James and All Saints football teams battled for one hour and ten minutes in the first game of the fall series of the Church Football League. The game started out with the blue and white pressing, with the result that a corner kick was taken by Monk, who dropped the sphere a few yards in front of the goal, and by some clever work of Dawson, who passed to Downes, the first goal was scored for the blue and white.

St. James came back strong and in less than five minutes evened the score by some pretty work on the part of Turner and Miller.

The Hooperites did not like to see the score stand 1 to 1 and so went down the field, and by some clever work on the part of Dawson and James, Dawson scored Goal No. 2 for the All Saints.

On starting the second half All Saints went right in to win the game and scored three tallies in less than fifteen minutes and then took things rather easy for the remainder of the game. In the last five minutes of the game, St. James scored their second goal and the game ended with the score five to two in favour off the All Saints.

Mr. Pugett handled the game in his usual good manner and gave good satisfaction. The All Saints team were: Goal, Hull ;backs, Gamble and Robinson; half-backs, Vickers, Hooper and Edwards; forwards, Monk, Gash, James, Downes and Dawson.

Synopsis of Canadian North West Land Regulations.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

FAIR WEEK

Fair Week at the Fair Grounds
Fair Week at Our Store

Just as soon as the gates closed on our big, splendid Fair last year, the wise farmer began planning for this year. He had discovered where he came out first, and where the other fellow had beaten him. He had looked and examined, and profited by his neighbor's examples, and had been stimulated by them to greater efforts. Isn't that so? Now he is once again ready to exhibit the fruit of his year's toil.

We've followed the path of the wise farmer. Through many months we've planned and worked, making ready for this Fair Week Sale. Our farm is the markets of the world. From it we glean the merchandise you desire.

For Fair Week we have assembled the prize-winners in good values—offering values absolutely unequalled—low prices that are positively matchless—on every sort of desirable merchandise

The housewives should be especially interested in our store during the Fair Week, for we have provided some particularly interesting items in particularly desirable merchandise. Merely a hint of innumerable Fair Week Bargains.

NEW BOSTON CAFE TO BE OPENED THURSDAY

The new Boston Cafe, to be operated in the old China Hall building by Mr. Douros will be thrown open to the public on Thursday, giving Peterborough one of the finest restaurants in Canada. No expense has been spared by Mr. Douros, either in the furnishing or the decorating of this fine new cafe, and the manner in which the premises have been transformed will be a revelation to the visitor. The new restaurant is commodious and bright and the cheery effect has been heightened by the pure white tint of the walls and ceiling and the many mirrors that are used.

In the front of the ground floor there will be a lunch counter similar to that used by Mr. Douros in the old Boston Cafe and this will be separated from the other part of the restaurant by curtains and will have a separate entrance. On the other side of the restaurant in front will be dining tables, while the big room at the rear will also contain tables. There will thus be accommodation for a large number of people to dine at the one time. The kitchen is situated in the second floor of the building, entirely away from the restaurant proper. It is the intention of Mr. Douros to instal another dining room in a short time on the second floor, using the front part of the premises for this purpose.

The old Boston Cafe has been closed for a couple of days and the new Cafe will be ready for Thursday, when there will be a grand opening, with a first class orchestra in attendance.

Mr. Douros, since coming to Peterborough, over a year ago, has firmly established himself in the restaurant business and his enterprise in opening such a modern, commodious, and in every way suitable establishment, will undoubtedly have its reward. He caters, of course, to the better class of trade and believes in merit in everything he handles.

Fair Week at the Fair Grounds
Fair Week at Our Store

Just as soon as the gates closed on our big, splendid Fair last year, the wise farmer began planning for this year. He had discovered where he came out first,and where the other fellow had beaten him. He had looked and examined, and profited by his neighbor's examples, and had been stimulated by them to greater efforts. Isn't that so? Now he is once again ready to exhibit the fruit of his year's toil.

We've followed the path of the wise farmer. Through many months we've planned and worked, making ready for this Fair Week Sale. Our farm is the markets of the world. From it we glean the merchandise you desire.

For Fair Week we have assembled the prize-winners in good values—offering values absolutely unequalled—low prices that are positively matchless—on every sort of desirable merchandise

The housewives should be especially interested in our store during the Fair Week, for we have provided some particularly interesting items in particularly desirable merchandise. Merely a hint of innumerable Fair Week Bargains.

MR. ACKERMAN, HIS HARNESS INDUSTRY AND THE RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT

Mr. Stratton in dealing with the opposition to the Reciprocity Agreement, at his Rockcroft meeting last night, pointed out that this opposition is not on its merits. Where this opposition is not purely political—for party reasons—it is founded on erroneous impressions. It was opposed by some manufacturers without any reason—because there is no free exchange of manufactured articles provided for; no removal of duty on both sides of the line, except on a considerable list of farm products. There is a slight reduction in duty by both Canada and the United States on some agricultural implements—a reduction of from 2 1-2 to 5 per cent. Manufacturers in general are not and will not be interfered with in the slightest degree.

> "This firm is opposed to Reciprocity or any measure that will injure British Connection or industries or the farming interests of Canada."

Why, then, are some manufacturers opposed to it? For instance, why should Mr. Ackerman, of The Ackerman Harness Company, post a notice in his shops (the accompanying), that he is opposed to Reciprocity and inferentially and practically forbidding his employees to discuss the question. Are not his employees free men, and have they not the right of every elector to discuss what the whole country is discussing? Do not the heads of the company in this posted notice plainly intimate to their employees that they run some sort of risk in having opinions and voting according to their opinions?

The sole reason that Mr. Ackerman can have for opposing the Agreement seems to be that he is a Conservative—which he has every right to be—and that it is his party duty to oppose the Government and everything it proposes, no matter how helpful the conditions created by the Liberal Government have been to him.

But he can have no economic or business reason for opposing it, or for opposing the Government. As a matter of fact, he owes the greater part of his success and the growth of his business to the policy and administration of the present Government.

When Mr. Ackerman during the Conservative administration, about 20 years ago, removed his then modest business from Port Perry to Peterborough, and established it on the opposite side of the street in Peterborough, from where his prosperous factory is located now, he managed to hold it together till the Liberal Government came into power. We all know that from that time his business began to grow and prosper, largely through the expansion of his business in the Canadian West. The energetic policy of the Liberal Government, that found the West an unbroken and unpeopled wilderness, promoted its settlement, thus developing its resources, and creating demands for the manufactured products of Ontario, including the products of Mr. Ackerman's factory. The policy of the Government in settling and opening up the West created a market for Mr. Ackerman's products—and a splendid market too, and to that is largely due the fact that since the Liberal Government came into power, he has three times increased the capacity of his factory and is increasing it a fourth time in face of Reciprocity, which is soon to be passed. It was practically entirely due to the prosperity arising from the Government's policy of peopling the West that Mr. Ackerman has built or is building a large warehouse in Regina as a Western distribution point of his harness.

The West is solidly in favour of Reciprocity because it will add immensely to its prosperity, promote settlement, increase products, create wealth and make it a still better market for Ontario manufactures, including Mr. Ackerman's excellent harness.

Reciprocity will help the Western as well as the Eastern farmer, and will not hurt Mr. Ackerman, but help him—to a larger and, therefore, better market.

The Agreement only removes the duty from farm products and lowers it from 2 1-2 to 5 per cent. on farm implements; it does not interfere with Mr. Ackerman's or any other manufacturer's protection. Mr. Ackerman still enjoys the benefits of a protective tariff of 30 per cent. on harness, which is not touched by the Agreement, and will not otherwise be touched. He still enjoys free access to the splendid market of the West for his harness, a market that will be made bigger and better by Reciprocity, and a market guaranteed him by ample protection from foreign competition.

Mr. Stratton went on to show that the Ackerman industry has not only been well treated by the Government, but by the municipality and people of Peterborough, the workingmen and other ratepayers who are helping pay its taxes, through the exemption it enjoys. No industry in Canada would be so directly and largely benefited by the Reciprocity Agreement as the Ackerman harness industry. This showed that the head of the establishment must be opposing Reciprocity merely as a matter of party politics. This he has every right to do. This is a free country, and every man, whether he be employer or workman, is entitled to his opinion—except the employees of the Ackerman Harness Company; the posted notice to their employees is very close to the border line of intimidation.

What would Mr. Ackerman think, what inference would he draw, if the Government were to say to him: "We are opposed to a protective duty on harness;" could he do anything else than regard it as a threat—as intimidation? But the Government has no intention of doing this in his case or that of any other manufacturer, any more than it has the intention of injuring his business or other business by passing a measure of Reciprocity—mutual free exchange of farm products between Canada and the United States.

The Ackerman Harness Company is untouched by the Reciprocity Agreement as to the protection it enjoys; they have had, still have and under Reciprocity will have—in larger degree—a splendid market for their goods and, besides, are not subjected to any extra expense in providing union labels for their goods.

MR. ROBERT STUART FLATTENS ANOTHER QUAKER OATS FALSEHOOD

Anti-Reciprocity Campaigners, Not Content With One Misrepresentation, Tried Another, But With No Better Results—Mr. Robert Stuart and Western Branch of the Quaker Oats Company—Reciprocity Will Hasten Its Construction.

The political cause must be weak that has to be supplied by arguments founded on straight lying. Some time ago the statement was assiduously circulated by certain anti-reciprocity newspapers and speakers that the passing of reciprocity would result in the closing of the large plant of the Quaker Oats Company employing some eight hundred men, in Peterborough. On being asked by the Toronto Star as to the truth of this statement, Mr. Robert Stuart, head of the Quaker Oats Company, wired an absolute refutation of the statement, pointing out that as far as the Peterborough plant was concerned, the Quaker Oats Company favoured reciprocity. As the Peterborough plant is the only plant the Quaker Oats Company have in Canada, one would have thought that the misrepresenters would have been content with Mr. Stuart's statement of his position. However, on September 1st, the News published the following paragraph, displayed on its front page:

"LET CANADA GROW."

The Quaker Oats Company, which has its Ontario plant at Peterborough, has intended to erect a large plant at Winnipeg or some other point in the Canadian West. If reciprocity is adopted the Company will escape the expense of building a mill west of the lakes. It will supply the Western Canadian market with cereals made at its United States plants."

The Star wired Mr. Stuart as to the truth of this statement. To-day, (Monday) the following telegram was received from him:

Charlevoix, Mich., Sept. 10th.

I directed answer to your telegram of the first, but find it was not sent. The Quaker Oats Company intend establishing a plant in the Canadian North West, but have not decided on location. Reciprocity will hasten the selection.

(Signed) ROBERT STUART.

MR. JAMIESON CHOSEN ENGINEER AT PUMPING STATION

Important Meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee Last Night—Presentment of Receipts, Payments and Appropriations.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last evening for the express purpose of making arrangements to secure an engineer for the South End pumping station. There were present at the meeting Ald. Morgan, chairman, Ald. Kernegan, Ald. Metheral, Ald. Graham, Ald. Edgar, the City Engineer and Mr. Pardue.

Chief Howard reported having handed over 87 feet of old fire hose. The old hose was pretty badly worn out. Ald. Metheral thought that 50 cents per foot was too much, so he requested that the price be not set until the hose was inspected. It was decided, however, to take them over at the price paid for the last.

Mr. Pardue was present for the purpose of setting before the Committee the advisability or necessity of having a man placed at the pumping station, preferably, Mr. Jamieson, the Engineer at the Fire Station. He pointed out that it would not be necessary for the man to be there all the time after the machine got running right. He thought if he would go down about twice a day after a week's time, that that would be sufficient.

The Chairman stated that Mr. Jamieson was willing to go, but he wanted remuneration for the extra services. He thought $200 extra was not too much. Ald. Kernegan thought the Engineer on the steam roller would be a suitable man in the winter, but it was pointed out that a man was as necessary in the summer as in the winter.

Ald. Metheral thought that if they had to pay a high salary for a man now employed by the city, they might as well employ a man extra and pay him to stay there all the time. The chairman said it was for the Council to set the salary, if there was to be one, so it was only for them to grant that Mr. Jamieson be the man to go. It was then granted.

Mr. J. J. Turner was present, and requested that a large arc light be placed at the corner of King and Water street, at the rear of the opera house. He said it was really necessary as the members of the opera companies coming out at the rear at night, were afraid, as there were all sorts of characters lined up there.

This came in for a great deal of discussion and they finally decided to take no action.

The question of light asked for on Concession street, was also left over.

Ald. Edgar asked that a light pole at the corner of Wellar and Park streets, be moved, as it was right in front of a man's house and was planted near a tree, which it was injuring. The matter was left with Ald. Graham and Ald. Edgar, who will meet at that place to-day and decide whether that post cannot be done away with when the light is placed in the centre of the street. Numerous other places were mentioned as being in need of light. The corner of Simcoe and Water streets was also mentioned.

MR. KERR TO SPEAK IN NORTH COUNTRY

The Liberal Candidate Will Visit Apsley Next Saturday

Mr. F. D. Kerr, Liberal Candidate for East Peterborough, has, during the past week, held a number of successful meetings, and has met with great encouragement. He has had very valuable assistance in Mr. Cowan, Editor of Farm and Dairy. His meetings this week are at Moloney's School House, and Garbutt's School House, Douro; Town Hall, Lang, and Girven's School House, Otonabee.

On Saturday Mr. Kerr will visit the back country, speaking at Apsley. Mr. Kerr's committees are receiving great encouragement from Burleigh, Chandos and Anstruther.

WIFE MURDERER CUTS THROAT WITH KNIFE

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WOODSTOCK, SEPT. 12.— George Beebe, the farmer who killed his wife with an axe on a farm here on Sunday afternoon, and has been searched for by the police ever since, this morning crawled from a swamp where he had been hiding. Returning to his home he cut his throat with a knife and died before medical aid could reach him.

PRESBYTERIANISM IN PETERBORO' MAKES A FORWARD MOVE

Presbyterian Council Representing the Three City Churches Was Organized Last Night. Coming Visit of the Moderator of the General Assembly, the Home Mission Superintendent and the Secretary of the Men's Missionary Movement.

The boards and sessions of the three Presbyterian churches in this city held a most important meeting in St Andrew's Church last evening. They took the most significant step in the interest of Presbyterianism here that has been made for many a day. From this time on the three churches will stand together in every move that is of interest to their cause. Visibility was given to the union by the organization of a Presbyterian Council, of which Sheriff Hall of St. Paul's is president, Mr. Richard Lees of St. Andrew's is vice-president, and Mr. J. W. Buyers of Knox is secretary-treasurer. This union will pave the way for the larger union that is still to be. The ministers, members of the boards of managers and sessions are members of the council. These men were most enthusiastic about the proposition.

Plans were laid for the coming visit of the distinguished deputation of the General Assembly, the members of which are to occupy the pulpits of the three Presbyterian churches on Sept. 24th. Rev. Dr. McKay, the moderator of the assembly; Rev. Dr. Grant, superintendent of Home Missions, and Mr. F. W. Anderson, secretary of the Men's Missionary Movement, will be heard on that day. The council decided to follow this visit by a whirlwind campaign in which the sessions and managers will visit every Presbyterian family in the city and lay before each individual personal responsibility.

The men are most enthusiastic and expect great results from the conference with the church leaders and the campaign. Arrangements are being made by which the deputation may also visit Springville, Omemee and Lakefield congregations on the 24th. Automobiles are being placed at their disposal. The deputation will also make a trip to Whitby presbytery on Monday, the 25th, returning to confer with the managers and sessions, members of the council the same night. Interesting facts of the visit and the campaign will appear in the press.

Port Hope's Fire Chief Stricken With Paralysis

The citizens of Port Hope were grieved on Saturday evening when they heard the sad news that their esteemed friend, Mr. James Dunn, Chief of the Fire Department, had been stricken with paralysis. Mr. Dunn had been about as usual all day Saturday and went to his supper about five o'clock. It was noticeable then, however, that something was wrong, but he offered no complaint. After supper he went upstairs to change his clothing but soon had to call for assistance, when it was found that his left side was paralyzed. Drs. Ulemesha and Powers were summoned and to-day they report his condition favourable. He has been conscious all the time, but the left side is perfectly powerless. Mr. Dunn's friends, and they are very numerous, hope for a speedy recovery.

WOMAN IS CHARGED WITH BIGAMY

Estelle Kesigoo, a middle-aged woman, was arrested at Chemong yesterday by County Constable Cochrane on a charge of bigamy. The arrest followed a communication from Mr. A. G. Murray, LL.B., Gore Bay, Can., stating the facts of the case, and also containing the warrant. Isiah Kesigoo was her first husband, and some time ago she left him and married Anthony Gokeskiouga. She got tired of her second, apparently, and returned to Kesigoo, when the authorities got hold of the information and took action. The defendant is lodged in the jail here awaiting the arrival of the provincial officer to take her back to Manitoulin Island.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

BIG PROGRAMME FOR THURSDAY EVENING AT THE EXHIBITION

There is a new departure in connection with the big Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this year. Hitherto the first day of the Exhibition has been merely preparation day with nothing for the general public until the afternoon of the second day. This year, however, the directors have decided to throw the grounds open to the public on Thursday night. Exhibition Park will be brightly illuminated; there will be a concert by the 57th Regimental Band and a grand performance before the grand stand by the Bollini Troupe of aerial artists, the famous Carl Damman family of five expert acrobats and the comical trick mule. The programme will be wound up with a magnificent display of fireworks. This will be a great evening's entertainment and the public will appreciate the action of the management in arranging this extra evening's programme. It is hoped that the enterprise of the directors will not be disappointed and that there will be a big crowd on hand for Thursday night the opening night of the Exhibition.

The grounds and buildings will be open all day Thursday for receiving exhibits and all displays, except live stock, and poultry must be in place by noon. At 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon the judging of dairy products, bread, grain, roots, flowers, vegetables, fine arts, ladies' work and domestic manufactures will commence.

On Friday, the second day, the grounds will be open to the public from 8 a.m. At 10 a.m. the judging of the poultry in the poultry tent will commence. At 1 p.m. there will be the judging of halter horses in the small ring.

Two o'clock sees the commencement of the programme in front of the grand stand, with the first heat of the 2.30 class, trot or pace. The other events scheduled for Friday afternoon are the 2.18 class, trot or pace, ex-Mayor Yelland's dog race, six performances by the Bollini troupe, marvellous aeralists, the Carl Damman acrobatic troupe and the trick mule and a concert by the 57th Regimental Band. There will be a grand evening performance at night with band concert, fireworks and vaudeville performance in front of the stand.

The fate of the fair now rests with the weather man. The directors have spared neither time nor expense in making preparations, and their arrangements are now complete. They are satisfied that if the weather is good the Exhibition will smash completely all records of the past. There never was a better programme offered; arrangements for the event were never more complete; all that is needed now is fine weather, and a record crowd will file through the gates of Exhibition Park.

Mr. Stratton will show his string of thoroughbred harness horses on Friday and Saturday afternoon, a feature that will be appreciated by every lover of good horses.

Ex-Mayor Yelland's dog race always creates a great deal of amusement, and there is every reason to look for some fun when the canines are set loose on Friday afternoon. Mr. Yelland has offered $5.00 for this event, $3.00 to go to the owner of the winner and $2.00 to the possessor of the second canine.

TO APPEAR BEFORE COUNTY MAGISTRATE

Five young men, of the Township of Dummer, will appear before Magistrate Edmison at Norwood on Thursday on a charge of creating a disturbance near Stoney Lake on the 9th of August. According to some information to hand, the young men in question were under the influence of liquor and damaged the property of a certain man up the lakes to some extent.

Two other cases will be tried at Norwood on Thursday. Two men of that neighbourhood, named Wm. Parsels and Chas. Townsend, are charged with creating a disturbance in the village street by using profane language while under the influence of liquor. The charge was laid by the Norwood village constable, and Magistrate Edmison will go to Norwood on Thursday to dispose of all the cases.

The case of McQuaig vs. Tedford will be dealt with by Magistrate Edmison here on Saturday.

It appears that Albert H. McQuaig, a plasterer, had taken over a piece of work from Richard Tedford, who resides near Warsaw, and when he went to proceed with the work he found that it had been done by another man. He then claimed the wages from Tedford, and the latter struck him, it is said, with the result that McQuaig charges Tedford with assault and nonpayment of wages; the same being committed on the 8th of Sept. The parties in the case desired that it be tried in this city owing to the presence of some witnesses, so it will come up on Saturday at 11 a.m.

Back From Congress

Mr. B. Lastar, formerly of Peterborough, and now of 16 Rose avenue, Toronto, who has just returned from attending the Congress of the Zionist in Switzerland, was in the city to-day. Mr. Lastar is writing an interesting series of letters upon the Congress, and his experiences in Palestine, which will be published in Saturday issues of the Examiner. The Congress, which meets every two years, was attended by 429 delegates fro mall parts of the world. There were thirteen from Canada, and Mr. Lastar was honoured by being the only Canadian delegate who was given an opportunity of addressing the Congress. In addition, he was chosen as one of the twenty-one delegates on the Palestine Commission, the most important body in connection with the Congress.

DISQUIETING RUMOURS FROM FAR EAST

Special to The Examiner:

PEKIN, CHINA, SEPT. 12.—Anxiety at offices of the Foreign Legations here, concerning the Canadians and others who were located in and around Chentu, was heightened this morning by rumours that the military governor there had committed suicide because he was unable to cope with the machinations of the rebels and revolutionists there. Chinese authorities here admit a loss of life in fighting in the district, but give out no details. If the governor really committed suicide it probably means that his troops were defeated and with the rebels in control the precarious position of the foreigners in the district can be understood. Fresh troops have been ordered into Chentu, but nothing more has been heard of the hundred and sixty Canadian missionaries and other foreigners supposed to have left Chentu under military escort four days ago.

WEDDING BELLS

WESLEY—MARTIN.

In Toronto to-day, George A. Wesley of Peterborough, was united in the bond of holy matrimony to Miss M. A. Martin of Toronto.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Wesley will reside at 540 Downie street.

RISHEA—LEAHY.

The Sacred Heart church was the scene of a pretty fall wedding this morning at 6 o'clock, when Miss Annie Leahy, daughter of Mr. William Leahy, was united in matrimony with Mr. Albert Rishea. The wedding was solemnized by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, in the presence of a large number of relatives and guests. Miss Celena Rishea, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and Mr. Robert Leahy, brother of the bride, assisted the groom. The church was prettily decorated with fall flowers, chrysanthemums and ferns.

The bride looked pretty in her wedding gown of white Duchess satin and carried a bridal bouquet of pink and white asters. The bridesmaid wore a gown trimmed with white embroidery, with a white hat prettily trimmed, to match. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful sunburst of pearls, to the bridesmaid a pearl crescent, and to the groomsman a diamond stick pin.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Gertrude Leahy, sister of the bride, who was becomingly gowned in a dress of cream silk. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of, after which the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Toronto. The bride travelled in a tailored suit of navy blue ladies' cloth, her hat being of white beaver and willow plume. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Rishea will reside in Fort William.

MARRIED.

FUNSTON—BEST.— At the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. H. Manning, 304 McDonnel St. Mr. H. F. W. Funston, of Toronto, to Miss Bertha Best, daughter of the late Henry Best.

7 Killed In Storm

Special to The Examiner.

TUSPIN, MICH., SEPT. 12.—A wind storm of cyclone proportion, swept through the southern part of Wexford County, last night, doing much damage. At Hobart, five miles from Cadillac, a woman and six children were killed and their bodies were buried under the debris of a store.

SAVE YOUR HAIR; SAGE TEA WILL DO IT

Dandruff, Itching Scalp and Falling Hair Quickly Stopped.

There is one place where baldheaded men shine, and that is in the front row seats of the theatre. If these baldheaded people had used Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy in their earlier days they would not be so conspicuous now. This preparation does not plant new hair, but it does strengthen weak, dying hair, and not only brightens dull, parched hair, but gradually restores the color to faded or gray hair. It is a clean, wholesome hair dressing, which can be used daily with perfect safety.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

CANADIAN REFUGEES HEARD FROM

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, ONT., SEPT. 12.—The Methodist mission rooms this morning received a cable from Mr. Brilling at Chung King, that the Canadian refugees had been heard from on the way from Chentu, but nothing definite as to the conditions. He added, "Trust there were no lives lost."

PEKIN, SEPT. 12.—Word has been received that a small party of British citizens, presumably Canadian missionaries from Chentu, arrived at Sufu. The remainder of the party is still missing.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested, and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

COMMITTED SUICIDE

Special to The Examiner.

QUEBEC, Q., SEPT. 12.—Crazed by alcoholism, Napoleon Thomassin, aged 28, cut his throat with a razor and died at the Hotel Dieu hospital last night.

Important To Ladies

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto is visiting this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at Hotel Oriental on Sept 15 and 16.

SITUATION IS GRAVE

District of Sze Chuen in Grip of an Ominous Revolt

ARE MISSIONARIES SAFE?

Pekin, Sept. 13.—An imperial edict issued yesterday says that the ringleaders in the disorders in Szechuen Province intended to proclaim independence. As a consequence, the Chinese Government has ordered the viceroy to destroy the rebels to the last man. The viceroy's attention has been called, however, to the fact that many of those taking part in the disturbances are misguided, and the Government instructs him to distinguish between them and the actual rebels in imposing punishment.

The possibility of very serious results in Szechuen is considered grave. If the rebellion is not promptly suppressed it is likely to spread to other provinces, where there has been much discontent of late. Some of the newspapers are urging the people to join in the rising, but the merchants everywhere are fearful that if the rebels are successful, it might be the beginning of a general conflagration.

The Japanese legation has received a despatch indicating that Chinese troops are among the rebels who are besieging Chengtu. No reports have reached here as to the extent of the affected area. The Yangtse section of the province has not yet broken out, although ready to participate if the movement seems successful.

It is not known whether the American and Canadian missionaries have left Chengtu or are besieged in that city. Their last telegram declared their intention of sending the women and children forward. If they left the city and made the journey in safety by the river, they should reach the Yangtse in a day or two. The best means of travel would be by junk, where the fugitives would be less conspicuous than if proceeding by carts across the country.

Missionaries Apparently Safe.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—A cablegram received at the Methodist Mission rooms yesterday in a measure dispelled the anxiety permeating the atmosphere regarding the safety of the missionaries in West China, which is now in a state of insurrection.

The cable reads: "A number of parties of missionary refugees nearing Chungking. Trust no lives are lost." Mr. Shore has asked by cable that he be informed each day as to the missionaries arriving there from Chengtu.

W. A. Mackinnon Resigns.

London, Sept. 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—W. A. Mackinnon, Birmingham, Canadian trade commissioner, has resigned to take a position under a land company. W. E. Ray, late of Cuba, succeeds him.

Fell From Scaffold.

Montreal, Sept. 13.—Victor Nantel, a painter, 28 years of age, died at the Western Hospital yesterday morning, as a result of injuries received in falling from a scaffold fifty feet high, on a building at the corner of Laporte avenue and St. James street Monday.

Made Descent Into Vesuvius.

Naples, Sept. 13.—Prof. Pocallo has made a descent into the crater of Mount Vesuvius for scientific observations. He succeeded in descending many hundred feet below the mouth of the crater.

RENEGADE LEADERS

Conservatives Can Vote Reciprocity With Good Conscience

TWO SPLENDID MEETINGS

Beauce Junction, Que., Sept. 13.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier came here yesterday from Quebec to support Hon. Dr. Beland, his youngest colleague in the Cabinet. The Premier was greeted by 4,600 people, and delivered a fighting speech, and the most forceful of the campaign. He said that though on the verge of seventy years he would fight his opponents to the end, and that never before had he to fight such insidious and dishonest tactics. An incident showing the proverbial courtesy and charm of the Premier occurred when he met Mrs. Fenteux, daughter of the late Hon. Honore Mercier, and kissed her warmly. The crowd applauded wildly. Sir Wilfrid later left for Thetford Mines.

Taking his hat off and making energetic gestures, he declared: "Never have I seen a campaign in which the tactics of the opposition were so insidious and dishonest. But thank God, I have strength, though I am on the verge of seventy years, to face them and fight them to the bitter end. Neither the Imperialists of Ontario, nor the Nationalists of Quebec, will succeed in overthrowing Laurier."

Appealing to Conservatives to break away from their party leaders, he said: "If you vote for me, you do not desert your chiefs, for it is that your chiefs have deserted you in departing from the policy of Macdonald."

He said that the proper market for Canada was the United States and he proposed with the reciprocity to put the money that had hitherto being going into the United States treasury into the pockets of Canadian farmers.

A Thetford Mines.

Thetford Mines, Que., Sept. 13.—Apparently unfatigued by his exertions of the afternoon at Beauce Junction, where he addressed a large gathering, Sir Wilfrid Laurier appeared here last night, before a crowd of 5,000 people to set forth reasons for the return of the Liberal party to power.

The Premier first addressed a large gathering in the skating rink and then spoke briefly at an overflow meeting which was held outside.

Sir Wilfrid was accompanied by Hon. Mr. Beland, Hon. Charles Devlin, Mr. A. L. Pacaud, Liberal candidate in Megantic, and Mr. Savoie, former Liberal member.

The Premier, speaking in the centre of the largest asbestos producing district in the world, opened with a reference to the rapid development of this section of the province. This development, he said, was due to the fact that asbestos was allowed to enter freely into the American market unhampered by tariff regulations. He drew a moral from this, claiming that reciprocity would put the producers of other products in a similarly fortunate position.

Fighting on Liberian Border.

Paris, Sept. 13—Mail advices received here yesterday from French Guinea, tell of sharp fighting between the troops of French posts and insurgent natives near the Liberian frontier. Capt. Hequet, one sergeant and five privates were wounded.

A despatch emanating from French sources, affirms these reports and adds that the trouble was fomented by the Liberians contrary to the treaty delimiting the Liberian frontier.

OUT AFTER TRIPOLI

Italy Takes a Hand in the Affairs of North Africa

FRANCE ASKS FREE HAND

Rome, Sept. 13.—Premier Giolitti had a long conference yesterday with the Minister of War, Gen. Spingardi, and the Minister of Marine, Admiral Cattolia, regarding the Tripoli question.

The Prime Minister, it is understood, said that if the Turkish Government was not ready to recognize Italian influence over Tripoli under some form of a protectorate, the only recourse must be the military occupation of the Turkish province.

Both the Minister of War and the Minister of Marine declared that everything was ready for an eventual expedition of troops, backed by the Italian navy. Indeed, the engineer corps already have made preparations to insure the occupation of the region, should their services be required. If the Government deems it necessary to use troops for this purpose, they will be despatched from Naples and Taranto.

The Italian press urges the Government not to allow the present occasion to Tripoli to escape, pointing out that after a settlement has been reached in the Mediterranean between France and Germany through Morocco, such a favorable opportunity never will recur. The Italian people as a whole do not display much enthusiasm over the prospects of Italy obtaining concessions in Tripoli, they recalling former Italian colonial disasters.

France's Reply to Germany.

Paris, Sept. 13.—A momentous meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday afternoon to consider France's reply to Germany's counter proposals in the Moroccan negotiations. The meeting lasted three hours. The terms and a rough draft of the document were laid before the Ministers by Foreign Minister De Selves, and were discussed and scrutinized from every aspect.

Although the Minister formally refuse to satisfy public curiosity by making any statement whatever as to what passed at the historic council, it is understood that the Cabinet accorded its fullest approval of the reply prepared by Mr. De Selves, which is no less explicit than that submitted by Germany. It sets forth in the clearest possible manner France's position with regard to the question of principle raised by Germany, and pays particular attention to the necessity of maintaining commercial equality for all and of assurance to France of an absolutely free hand politically in Morocco.

The Foreign Minister will proceed to Rambouillet to-day to submit the decision of the Cabinet to President Fallieres. He will then have drawn up the definite text of the reply, which will be despatched from Paris without delay and will be in the possession of the German Government by the week-end.

ETNA IN ERUPTION.

Volcano Sends Out Torrents of Lava and Ashes.

Catania, Sicily, Sept. 13.—The crest of Mount Etna now present a terrifying spectacle. Heavy smoke lies over it with frequent brilliant flashes, and the bombardment which is continuous along a line nearly two miles in extent, is like the firing of heavy artillery. A torrent of burning lava, estimated at 2,000 feet wide and four feet deep, is pouring down the slope. Everything in its way has been carried before it. Groves of trees have been uprooted and set on fire, and the lava stream is sweeping through the fields, sending out for miles around hot resinous waves of smoke.

The peasants have left their homes, carrying with them the aged, the sick, and the children, and whatever meagre belongings they were able to get together.

Whole regions covered with hardened lava from past eruptions, have been torn open by the frequent earth shocks. Many of these have been of great violence, and the peasants fear a repetition of the Messina disaster.

Soldiers to Stop Strike.

Bilbao, Spain, Sept. 13.—The strike situation in this city is serious and steadily growing worse. A state of siege has been proclaimed and reinforcements of 5,000 troops are on their way here. Business is at a standstill, stores are closed and the tramways and railways have stopped. Desperate encounters between strikers and troops are of constant occurrence. The soldiers have fired on the mobs several times and Monday night the civil guards wounded eight persons, two of them fatally.

Striking miners at Oviedo dynamited a railroad bridge in order to prevent the transportation of coal from a colliery where the men refused to strike. Troop have been despatched to that town.

Deposed Shah in Full Flight.

Teheran, Persia, Sept. 13.—The deposed Shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, whose attempt to re-establish himself on the throne has met with many reverses, is reported to be in full flight and to have reached Gumesh Tepe with seven followers. Gumesh Tepe is the port on the Caspian near the Russian border where the ex-shah first landed last July on his adventure against the reigning Shah. A large amount of gold captured from the rebel leader, Arshad Ed Dawleh, has been delivered to the Persian treasurer general.

IN HIS OWN TOWN.

Mr. Borden's Rally Has to Complete With Liberal Meetings.

Halifax, Sept. 13.—Liberal meetings throughout the city took most of the ginger out of the rally held by Mr. R. L. Borden, Mr. Crosby and Sir Hibbert Tupper here to-night.

Ald. Bligh presided. He introduced A. B. Crosby, Mr. Borden's running mate in Halifax. Mr. Crosby's remarks were brief, but were well received.

Mr. Borden in his address said that the United States is able to produce food for four hundred millions. Canadian farmers get better prices than American farmers.

Mr. Borden appealed to the audience on the plea of patriotic sentiment against that of a few cents a bushel on beans. Reciprocity, he declared, would inevitably mean annexation.

Before Sir Charles Hibert Tupper spoke, the audience, led by ex-Ald. Hebb, sang "God Save Our Canada." The speaker made a patriotic appeal to the electors to stand by the national policy and the cause of the Empire. He was accorded a good reception.

Cheers for the King, and the speakers concluded the meeting.

Whitney Foresees Landslide.

Stratford, Sept. 13.—Over 4,000 people thronged Waterloo street rink last night and gave Premier Whitney a most memorable reception.

Arriving at 8 o'clock, the Premier was met at the station by Mayor Brown and the City Council, and, headed by the local band, was escorted to the rink where the mass meeting was held.

Sir James Whitney prophesied a great landslide in this country, and said he would also pledge his reputation that it would be a great landslide for Mr. Murphy in North Perth.

"President Taft has stated time and again," said Sir James, "that the American will have direct access to the Canadian natural product and will benefit by it. He also states that the bond uniting Canada to the Mother Country is light and almost imperceptible, and it would be easy to detach Canada. He says distinctly what he wants, and gives reasons for such."

Murderer's Suicide.

Windsor, Sept. 13.—Crawling from his hiding place in a swamp early yesterday morning, George Reebe, who killed his wife with an axe on Sunday afternoon, committed suicide on the doorstep of his home by cutting his throat with a sharp knife. He was found dying by inmates of the house, and expired before medical assistance arrived.

HONORED FOUNDER.

Endeavorers Celebrate Birthday of Dr. Clarke at Aylmer.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—The founder and president of the Christian Endeavor Societies of the world was born in Aylmer, Province of Quebec, sixty years ago and yesterday his anniversary was celebrated there. Dr. Clarke, the initiator, was present himself and many delegates of the great movement attended. After a luncheon, Rev. Dr. Clarke gave an address on "My Heart's Desire," quoting his mother, Mrs. Lydia Symmes, for the lessons she had taught him in his youth, and showing her diary as an influence upon his course in life. Services were held at her grave by Rev. R. Clements of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union.

At a banquet last night many Canadian workers in the Christian Endeavor cause spoke, including Miss E. Hall of the Quebec Union, and Thomas Brann of the Ontario union; Dr. Bernard Clausen of the New York State union, Karl Lehman, interstate secretary, and Dr. Clarke himself. The founder related many interesting phases of the movement in the world, stating that now in every remote corner some devotee of the cause could be found.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Judge Bordwell has ruled that John McNamara must be tried in Los Angeles on Oct. 11, and not at Indianapolis.

Two prisoners got three months yesterday in London, Eng., for trying the confidence trick on Henry Scott, a retired Canadian farmer.

Hon. R. Lemieux, Liberal, and Dr. G. P. Gauthier, opposition, have been nominated for Gaspe. Polling will take place September 25.

The Saxon army manoeuvres assumed a realistic character yesterday, when eleven cavalry scouts lost their lives in the waters of the Elbe.

With the salmon packing season almost over on Puget Sound, it is estimated that the pack of pinks for this season will reach 750,000 cases, or nearly twice as much as in any previous year.

Three Germans ascended at Frankfort-on-the-Main for a pleasure trip, had on landing numerous freshly-taken photographs in their possession and the authorities at Verdun, France, have arrested them.

Papineau, a Toronto coal driver, was driving along when he fell from his seat and the wheels of his own wagon ran over him. He was picked up by some men passing in an automobile and hurried to the hospital.

At Hobart, five miles from Cadillac, Mich., a woman and six children were killed, and that the bodies were buried under the debris of a store in Monday's cyclone. The school house and several other buildings at Hobart were blown down.

Not Quite Repealed Yet.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—Returns from 519 of the 521 cities, towns and plantations, of which 250 are furnished by town clerks on the matter of the repeal of the constitutional prohibition, had been received last night, and give the following vote:

For repeal, 60,278; against repeal 60,437.

Majority against repeal, 159.

About the middle of the afternoon it became apparent that the prohibitionists were surely, though slowly, gaining, and the state committee of the No License League, which in the morning had decided to petition for a recount, joyfully turned over that prerogative to the anti-prohibition leaders. On account of the fact that the returns from all the towns have not been absolutely verified, the "wet" leaders have not wholly given up the fight.

Reward For His Aid.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—The pluck and public spirit of Mr. H. Hodgson, 22 Morley avenue, street railway motorman, who went to the aid of a police man in trouble at King and Rossen vales on Labor Day, were yesterday recognized by the police commissioners, who voted him $25 in recognition of his service and in compensation for his clothing, which was torn and his watch, which was lost in the fight.

Robert McGrath, Thomas Gale and John Gorman were charged with assaulting the police in yesterday morning's police court. Several witnesses swore that McGrath kicked Policeman Pellinger in the jaw. McGrath swore he did not and was promptly arrested for perjury. He was sent to the Central Prison for six months for the assault. Gorman was sent away for four months and Gale fined $50 and costs.

TERRIBLE HEADACHES

Trenton Merchant Relieves To Despair By The Pain.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

TRENTON, Ont. Jan. 29th, 1909.

"I was a dreadful sufferer for many years from Stomach and Liver Trouble—but my greatest suffering was from violent headaches. They were so distressing that I almost had to give up my business. I went to Toronto, consulted specialists and wore glasses, but nothing did me any good and the headaches became intolerable.

I was then induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and from the beginning, I was better, and in a short time I was quite well again—no more headaches—and I threw my glasses away.

"Fruit-a-tives" not only cured my headaches, but completely cured me of all indigestion, and restored me to perfect health again." W. J. McCOMB.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest cure for headaches in the world and is the only medicine made of fruit juices.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Headaches, Indigestion and all Stomach and Bowel Troubles. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Extra Mild, Remember

Many people would drink ale, in preference to all other malt beverages, if ale did not make them bilious.

This O'K brew is brewed especially for those people. It is extra mild and extra light, and lets you enjoy the creamy deliciousness of real old English ale without the heaviness and excessive bitterness. In easily—opened seal stoppered bottles. No broken cork or tinfoil in the glass.

WILL EXTEND MARKET

Development in the South Based on Expected Victory for Reciprocity

An interesting development in financial enterprise based on the expected victory of the Laurier administration and consequent passage of Reciprocity is thus told by the New York Sun:

"Preparing for the harvest that is expected to follow the concluding of a Reciprocity agreement between this country and Canada, representatives of Canadian bond houses have descended upon this city and Chicago with some attractive lists of securities. For the most part the securities in which they are trying to interest American capitalists are bonds and stocks of companies developing the western part of Canada, particularly of companies interested in public utilities, such as light and power for the rapidly growing towns and cities. So far the Canadians have been met by local bankers with a statement that they are too early in the field, though, in some cases, plans have been made for a publicity campaign to begin when the results of Reciprocity begin to be plain. It is expected that Canadian securities will have a good market in New York when the public interest comes back to the stock market, if for no other reason than that in Canada the government is not engaged in making political capital out of attacks on corporations—mainly because there is no necessity in the corporations themselves for such action."

THE RESULT IN CASH

Reciprocity Means Five Hundred Dollars a Year to Farmers

James R. Anderson, Treasurer of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, is campaigning for Dr. Morley Carrie, Prince Edward County. "I am no traitor," he said, "to the Conservative party, but the leaders of the Conservative party to-day are traitors to the principles of that party. It is not only in this county, but in other counties, you will find hundreds and thousands of Conservative farmers who will vote for the movement. If we can have reciprocity in farm products it means $500 on an average per year to each one of us farmers. Eighteen Liberal millionaires of Toronton have turned their backs upon the pact for the sake of their own pockets, and we should look upon this as one of the best evidences that reciprocity is in the interests of the farmer.

"In Kingston, men who have been in close contact with the American prices, and who have voted Conservative for years, have told me that they intended to vote for reciprocity. They say the American farmers right across the River St. Lawrence get just four dollars a ton more for their hay than the Canadian farmers around Kingston and on Wolfe Island. These farmers about Kingston and on Wolfe Island told me that for every dollar they earned off the farm the American farmer got a dollar and a half, and this has been the case for the last five years. What better evidence do you want than that? and this is the evidence of the farmers themselves."

The Air Is Germ Laden

In the Springtime—Disease is Ready to Make You a Victim When the Blood is Thin

Rich, Red Blood is the Greatest of Germicides—You Can Get the Blood Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

When the blood is rich and red, when it is largely composed of red corpuscles, there is little chance for disease germs. They cannot thrive in the system which is filled with good blood.

But in the spring the blood is generally thin, weak and watery. It lacks the vitalizing red corpuscles and you become an easy prey to the germs of disease which seem to lurk everywhere at this time of year.

You can fortify yourself against the germs of disease by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, makes the blood rich, red and healthy.

Weakness, tired feelings, stomach derangements and disorders of the nervous system soon disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

This medicine cures by the building-up process, and for this reason its benefits are lasting. Nearly everybody needs something in the spring to enrich the blood and tone up the system, and it would be impossible to get a more satisfactory spring tonic than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

H. R. EMMERSON
Liberal Candidate in Westmoreland, N.B.

Mandate from the People

"We have had a mandate from the people of Canada for the last fifteen years," declared Sir Richard Cartwright. "We got the first one in 1900. That mandate was endorsed in 1904, and re-endorsed in 1908; and I can tell these gentlemen that it will be much more than re-endorsed on September 21."

THE HORSE TRADE

Removal of Barriers Would Help on the Industry

With reciprocity established between Canada and the United States, one of the drawbacks to the reciprocal showing of horses on both sides of the border will be obliterated. At present, horsemen going from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, and other Canadian cities to attend the great New York State Fair Horse Show are obliged to ship their horses "in bond." This is bothersome on account of certain formalities that must be observed, especially if a horse belongs to a dealer and he sells him after reaching the other side and winning some ribbons. The valuation, too, is always a matter of conjecture. Horse-breeders, owners, dealers, and trainers are feeling quite comfortable over the adoption of the reciprocity treaty with Canada by the Senate. Now, if the Canadian Parliament will up and do likewise, horse interests between the two countries will surely reach a stage beyond the expectations of those who were in favor of the treaty and calm the fears of those who regarded it with disfavor. With the expense and annoyance of the duty removed on horses, trade is bound to increase rapidly not only to the immediate profit of those engaged in the business, but to a vast improvement and enlargement of the breeding industry of both countries. A great trade is opening up in the Canadian Northwest, which has been increasing gradually for the past five years, even with the burdensome restrictions in force. With these removed, trade will only be limited by the supply. Hundreds of good brood mares have been shipped into the Saskatchewan country and other sections of the rapidly-growing Northwest have bought largely, to say nothing of the older portions of the Dominion. No matter what else the treaty will benefit, the reciprocal trade in horses looks extremely promising.

WHAT STATES GRANTED

In Some Cases They Have Gone Below the Canadian Duty

"A very common criticism on the part of the gentlemen who have not viewed this matter as favorably as we would have wished has been: 'If the United States want to make a tariff arrangement with you, let them come down to your rates of duty.' It seemed to be taken for granted that that was what the United States would not do. But that is exactly what we asked them to do, and what they have agreed to do respecting a large number of articles. They have not only come down to our rates, but in some cases they have come below them, and in those cases, in order to reach that common rate, we have had to make reductions. But, as our tariff is a modest one, while theirs, in the main, is a high tariff, the result has been that, in order to arrive at a common rate, we have had to make only moderate reductions, while they, in many cases, have had to make quite large reductions.—From Hon. W. S. Fielding's introduction to the tariff agreement.

FREE FROM BONDAGE

J. H. Ashdown Says That is What Reciprocity Will Be for the West

For the people of Western Canada, said Mr. J. H. Ashdown, at Winnipeg, the issue before them was one of the most important. The success of reciprocity would to some extent free their hands from the bondage which had previously existed. He believed that the great majority of the people of the West desired to have the greatest measure of free trade possible, and that such a policy must be pursued to give an advantage to Western Canada. Unfortunately it was not possible to have absolute free trade. Canada had a large debt. There was heavy expenditure for public works and the high cost of a government all made it necessary to have a reasonable amount of protection. The government of the day had not attempted to interfere with the National Policy. While it protected the manufacturers on the one hand, it now desired to give to the farmer the best possible market for the disposal of his grain. The pact would not compel the farmer to ship his grain to the south, but it would give him an alternate market and competition for his product.

"Under any circumstances," said Mr. Ashdown, "the quantity of grain in the country this year would make it almost, yes, utterly impossible, for the roads to carry it to Fort William in anything like a reasonable length of time. You must remember that after that grain begins to move there are only two months of navigation on the lakes, and consequently, after the close of navigation all you can do is to fill up the elevators of Port Arthur and Fort William and in the interior. There is not in the whole country sufficient capacity to look after such a crop as we will have this year. This crop is simply one of those that will go on increasing year by year, until in the course of a very few years we may expect to number the bushels by the hundreds of millions. We are supposed to commence this year with 200,000,000 bushels, and we will in a short time get them up to four, six, eight or ten hundred million bushels. If not to-day, it will then be an utter impossibility to ship such a large crop out of the country by the present channels."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts, a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3 per acre in certain districts. Price $5.00 per acre in Edmonton—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Sir Alex. Aylesworth Says Reciprocity is Not a Political Question

Sir Alex Aylesworth, speaking at Campbellford, said reciprocity was an inviting question because it affected the future for good or ill of every family in the country. "We are not," said Sir Alex, "on the defensive in regard to this question, but enthusiastically supporting it because we believe it to be in the best interests of the farmers, the workingmen and the common people of this country. It is not a treaty, not an entanglement into meshes from which Canada will never be able to free herself, but an agreement which can be terminated after a trial. We ought to pass this law because it will enlarge and extend markets for Canadian farm produce. It is not a political question, but a business proposition. It will bring us increased customers for our wheat, barley, horses, cattle, etc."

TEN PER CENT. MORE

An Estimate of the Benefit to the Farmer From Reciprocity

Mr. W. C. Good, farmer, Brant county, writes as follows: "My own opinion is that the ordinary farmer in Ontario may fairly expect to obtain 10 per cent. more on the average than he has been getting if the reciprocity agreement is ratified. Assuming this, on a gross income of $3,000 on the 100-acre farm (which is above the average, but not out of the way with proper farming), the additional income would be $300 a year. The cost of many lines of manufactured articles will also be cheaper, though at present not very materially so. Taking things on the whole I should say that the average Ontario farmer stands to gain $3.00 per acre per year by the ratification of the pact. This is about half the current value."
